—A dream Day special says that Sturgeon Bay parties are agitating on the organization of a company to purchase the steamer Columbia of southern Michigan, and run her the remainder of the season in the Menominee-Door county route in place of the Hackley, which was sunk several weeks ago. This unfortunate leaves the Columbia of the Traverse Bay line.

—Manistee Herald: The Charlevoix Courier claims that W. A. Smith, of the Sentinel, signed an agreement with the papers of the county not to put in a separate bid for the printing of the supervisors' proceedings, and then went squarely back on the word by agreeing to publish the proceedings for a lump sum of $50. We have not heard Mr. Smith's version of the controversy, and until we do the Herald will refuse to believe that William A. Smith ever violated his word in any such manner. Mr. Smith is somewhat eccentric, and at times is prone his friends to quite understand him, but the writer has known him for years, and we do not yet prepared to believe that he would do such a dishonorable act as is charged by the Courier.

—The official statement of the state tax commission shows that the total valuation of Charlevoix county is increased $281,979 over last year.

—Dr. Lewis reports that Mrs. Theo. Hoit, of Evelina, on Sunday, by stepping over an obstruction fell down and broke her arm and dislocated her wrist.

—The fisherman's hall last Friday night was a big success. Everything connected with the occasion went off fine, and the attendance was the largest of the year.

—Miss Edith Mason, of the U. S. hospital corps, left San Francisco Saturday for the Philippines, on the transport Sheridan, which will call at Honolulu and Guam on the way.

—Remember now that winter is nearly upon us, that the SENTINEL has a clubbing arrangement that permits you to get your general winter reading cheap and plenty of it.

—The south terrace is forging to the front. Morris Ackert has a house well under way on South Bridge street, and Stephen Smith has begun the erection of a residence on South State street.

—Fred Butler, carrier on rural free delivery route No. 1, reports 267 pieces of mail delivered in October, and 267 collected. He desires us to give notice that drop letters for delivery on the route must have a two cent stamp.

—The walls of the new bank block are up two stories and will, with a continuation of the good weather of the final week Mr. Clement expects to have the building enclosed before the month is out. The architectural details of the structure begin to show themselves with good effect. The building will be a credit to Northern Michigan.

—Edmer Wright, of the Petoskey "Argus," was here Friday of last week hooking up candidates for membership in the independent Order of Protectorate, of which he is the good Knight. The candidate for which he came, chiefly, was out of town, and he proceeded to the Lake Shore and Boyne City, at which places he expects to increase the membership of the Order by at least three.

—Lightning struck the steeple of Eagle of Skillagalee Sunday night. The bolt's main coast was torn away and her deck ripped up for a long distance. Fortunately none of the crew suffered from the blast. Distress signals were hung out and in a short time answered by the tug McCaul which towed the Figle into Beaver Harbor. Monday the tug Wheeler towed her to Milwaukee.

—The Hebron Independent, in speaking of the Charlevoix county official printing matter, says: "Of course the other side of the question remains to be heard. Editor Smith, who is one of the oldest of northern Michigan newspaper men, is also one of the brightest writers in this portion of the state and does not need to throw anyone down to come out at the top himself."

—Mrs. Kubin, wife of Supt. Kubin, of the sugar factory, accompanied by her two sons, arrived here from Detroit yesterday, and the family are settled down already to the Blatenhard house, on Main street. We are sure the ladies of Charlevoix will make this lady from sunny Italy welcome to their circle. Mrs. Kubin speaks no English, but we predict that in a short time will elapse before she will be calling up the butcher and the baker by phone in good Anglo Saxon.

Putting Matters.

The pasting of Bridge street is being rapidly accomplished and it looks now, barring bad weather, as if we should have a bitulithic street for wagons before the sleighs are taken from their summer quarters.

The big 30 ton mixer arrived Wednesday, evening. Thursday it was unloaded from the cars, and Friday morning it began its journey to the Ward lot, via the Pine Lake shore road and Newman street—fifty cars and one nail yellow. It mounted on iron wheels, with iron-tire tires, and no ordinary roadway would hold it up. Therefore, for both hard and soft place were provided and with the two powerful steam road rollers, it was pulled out of the sand at the sugar factory. Saturday night it rested at the Belvedere and Sunday morning the work began again. When the big outfit reached the Macadam on Newman street Supt. Lindsay ventured to try the bare roadway, and for twenty rods went well, but finally broke through the crust and buried itself.

The big plant was parked up to the planks again. On Monday evening the mixer was planted on the Ward lot and it is expected that by Friday the "real stuff" will begin to get to the street.

The grading has been done from the Antrim street intersection to Union street, and Monday morning teams began hauling the coarse crushed rock for the bottom layer. The rollers and steam rollers have already leveled the street from Antrim to Clinton, so that it looks good enough to leave without pavement.

Death of John Cooper.

Deceased emigrated here from Canada about twenty-five years ago, and during those years he has enjoyed the respect of the community, as a man of strict integrity and sterling character. His wife preceded him to the better land about six years ago.

He was the father of George and John Cooper, of Essex; Joseph of Lesipe; Fred W. of Charlevoix, Mrs. Mathieson, of Kansas; Mrs. Robert Sherman, of Ironton; Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, of Chelsea, and Miss Emma, of Hawkins, Minn.

The County Normal School.

On Monday of last week the Secretary of the Board of Education received from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction a formal notice of permission to establish the Charlevoix County Normal Training School. Acting under a previous misunderstanding, the Board have designated Monday, Nov. 2, as the opening day for the new school. On that day the County Normal Board, consisting of State Superintendent Pat. Dunn, County Commissioner Chase, and local Superintendent Howe, assumed the supervision of the school, and the organization of the course of instruction to be followed for the first semester, the school will probably be in almost continuous session from that time, with a week vacation at the holidays, in order to allow the Normal year with two weeks from the close of the public school. The law requires all candidates to enter before the second Tuesday of the Normal term. Interested persons who know themselves to be legally qualified need not wait for entrance-pedagogs but should plan to be present on the morning of the first day at the Charlevoix High School building. The new Normal room is on the first floor.

The Hiatt Greenhouses.

There are, doubtless, very few Charlevoix people who are aware of the fact that the Hiatt greenhouses in this village constitute the most extensive plant of its kind in the northern half of the state.

An additional house has just been completed, 20x75, with modern appliances, and the area of glass it now includes 10,000 feet, and every foot is used for the propagation and growing of plants and flowers, excepting, at this time, Mr. Hiatt is furnishing lettuce to a number of customers.

Mr. Hiatt will again next year supply the grounds of the Grand Hotel at Mackinac, the Charlevoix depot and inn grounds, and probably the railroad park at Petoskey.

At present Mr. Hiatt has a most magnificent display of crysanthemums, carnations and roses. The establishment is really an unpaidlled credit to Charlevoix.

SCHOOL NOTES.

There are only one or two vacant seats in the High School, the enrollment to date being about 115.

Small boy to Miss Gregg: "God made the world in seven days, and then he rested; then he made woman and ever since then he has rested since."

The Board of Education have decided on the purchase of a Hennington No. 6 Typewriter with tabulating attachment for the commercial students. Now we are hoping for a special room for the typewriting and book-keeping, in order to do the work to the best advantage.

A new case for physical apparatus has been added to the Laboratory. The microscope can now be kept under lock and key when not in use. The addition of two shelves over the chemical tables and a new lot of reagent bottles, alcohol lamps, and other chemical supplies, makes our laboratory equipment as complete as that of any school of our size in Northern Michigan.

The children in Miss Scutten's room, who have been studying about the Battle of South Africa, were surprised to learn that we are to have some real Kaffir and Zulu boys here in Charlevoix next April. If you don't know what that means, please ask the freshmen of the High School.

Lecture Course—Nov. 21, May Farlow's Pickaninies, a high class musical program of adult white artists with three little "darkies" thrown in for the fun of it; Jan 8, Dr. James Kirkby, one of the lecturers on the platform; Jan 8, James Clement Ambrose, Chicago's "Thinking Humorist" "Never mind how he looks, hear him," Apr. 15, The Hawthorne Musical Club, five men for male quartette, trio violin and other instrumental specialties, and historical impersonations; April 8, The Kadlec Boy Choir, the finest vocal act you ever heard, interspersed with humorous recitations and sketches of Boer life and history. When a High School student comes to sell you a season ticket for this "unparalleled aggregation," don't you say him nay.

LATER—The new Remington typewriter No 6 has arrived, and will be put into service at once.

Mr. Armstrong addressed the students of the High School Wednesday morning on "The care of the eyes."

The students' monthly reports are sent out at the beginning of this week parents are requested to examine them carefully and return them promptly.

The Normal Training Class began work on Monday with twelve students in the enrollment, several of the candidates have not yet entered.

High School Lyceum met on Wednesday evening, hereafter its session will be held only in alternate weeks, the sixth grade and to older persons who do not bring peanuts and other refreshments to the High School.

By an understanding with Supt. Supt. Mr. Howe will continue the work in Digitology and Penmanship throughout the year. Mr. Dr. Vos takes the Teacher's Algebra for the present, and Mr. Howe the Arithmetic and Book-Keeping. Miss Marshall of Atwood, one of the more advanced students will also give temporary assistance until a special Normal teacher is engaged.

CHAPTER I.

Harvey Marston was standing at the window of his father's home, looking out upon the gardens and the distant hills, but he was not thinking of the beauty of the scene before him, for his face was pale and his lips were drawn and pinched by the pain of a recent disappointment.

Frank Forbes, his rival, had just left the house, and Harvey had learned from his own lips that he was engaged to Ethel Hopkins, the girl he had loved for years, and had hoped to make his own some day.

Ever since he had been old enough to think of such things he had looked upon Ethel as his future wife, and he had been so certain of her love that he had never thought it necessary to make sure of it by a direct question. He had been so sure of her that he had been in the habit of speaking of her as his wife, and he had been so sure of his own position in her heart

STEAMERS IN PERIL.

YUKON CRAFT IN DANGER OF ICE CRUSH.

Ships and Cargoes Worth More Than $2,000,000 Held in Suspense Slow Progress Made by an Average News of Minor Note.

A despatch from Seattle says that steamers and barges walled in since early in the winter in the Yukon are in perils of the worst kind with little prospect of being released before the winter. Two steamers from Dawson, the Leah and the Bonanza King, left the city late about three days ago and the packer Ora, which was in the Klondike, is caught in the mouth of the Yukon. All the boats are in the ice and at its mercy. The Leah and Bonanza King are in the ice at the city. The packer Ora is caught in the ice at the mouth of the Yukon. The packer Ora is a small craft and is believed to be safe. The Leah and Bonanza King are valued at $100,000 each. The Ora is valued at $50,000. The cargoes of the three boats are valued at $1,000,000. The packer Ora is a total loss. The Leah and Bonanza King are insured for $50,000 each. The cargoes are not insured. The Leah and Bonanza King are owned by the Yukon Navigation company, which is controlled by the Guggenheim syndicate. The Ora belongs to the Yukon Transportation company, which is controlled by the same people. The Leah and Bonanza King were caught in the ice at Stewart river, about 100 miles from Dawson, on their way down from Dawson. The Ora was caught in the ice at the mouth of the Yukon. The Leah and Bonanza King were in charge of Capt. Jack Shaw, who is one of the best known and most skillful pilots on the Yukon. The Ora was in charge of Capt. Jack Carmichael, who is also a skillful pilot. Both captains are now in Dawson. Capt. Shaw is a brother of Capt. Tom Shaw, who was killed in the Klondike last fall by a fall of ice from a cliff while he was asleep in his cabin on the Klondike river. Capt. Jack Shaw is a nephew of the late Capt. Jack Mitchell, who was one of the most famous of the Yukon pilots. Capt. Jack Shaw is a man of about 35 years of age. He is a native of Victoria, B. C., and has been on the Yukon for about 10 years. He is married and has a family living in Victoria. Capt. Jack Carmichael is a native of Ontario and has been on the Yukon for about 12 years. He is married and has a family living in Victoria. Both captains are men of the highest character and are universally popular on the Yukon. They are men of great nerve and great skill in the navigation of the Yukon. Their friends here are very anxious for their safety. Capt. Shaw is a brother-in-law of Mr. Frank Ward, who is well known in this city. Mrs. Ward left for Dawson a few weeks ago to be with her husband during the winter. Mr. Ward received a letter from his wife while she was on the Yukon river, in which she said she was in good health and was enjoying the trip very much. Mrs. Ward is a sister of Mrs. Capt. Tom Shaw, who was left a widow by the death of her husband in the Klondike last fall. Mrs. Shaw is now living in Victoria. Mrs. Ward is well known in this city, having lived here for several years before her marriage. Her friends here will be very much grieved if anything should happen to her husband or her brother-in-law, Capt. Jack Shaw.

FIERCE FIGHT ON TRAIN.

Desperadoes Attempt to Rob an Express Messenger—Two Are Killed.

Chicago, Ill., Special.—Two men were killed and one wounded in a fierce fight on a train between Chicago and Omaha, Neb., early Tuesday morning. The dead are:

E. W. Hall, president of the Hall State Bank, Dunlap, Ia., shot through the head and breast.

Unknown man, about 30 years of age, shot through the head.

The fight occurred on the Chicago and Northwestern road between Missouri Valley and Dunlap, Ia., and the men had evidently come from Omaha. The assailants had evidently boarded the train at Council Bluffs, Omaha, or some station between Omaha and Missouri Valley. The fight started when the express messenger was robbed of his money and valuables. The passengers were aroused by the noise and shots and ran into the express car, where they found the wounded man and the two dead men. The wounded man said he was robbed of his money and valuables by three men who had ordered him to hand over the express money. He said he was then hold of by two of the men while the third one went into the express car and blew the safe open with dynamite. The noise of the explosion aroused the sleeping passengers, some of whom ran into the express car. The robbers then ordered the express messenger out of the car and he was shot as he left the car. He ran back through the train and the robbers left the train at Dunlap, Ia., where they were seen to meet a fourth man who had been waiting some time in the station. The wounded man was able to walk to the station after the robbers had left the train and was able to give a description of the men.

CANADA ON STAND ALONE.

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain Departing Never Mentions Tariff to Canadians.

London despatch says: Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and his party left Liverpool for Canada on the Allan steamship Tunisian at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The departure was made the occasion of a great demonstration of the Unionist party in favor of the Government's policy of preferential tariffs. The Tunisian was cheered by the crowds on the docks as she left her moorings, and Mr. Chamberlain and his party were loudly cheered as they left the train at the dock station. The Tunisian's passengers included the Duke of Marlborough, Lord Ashtown, Lord Ashcroft, Lord Cheylesmore, Lord Lucas, Lord Lurgan, Lord Ormonde, Lord Rosmead, Lord Stanley of Preston, Lord Strathcona, Lord Tweedmouth, Lord Wolverton, Lord Wrottesley, Lord Zetland, Sir Alfred Milner, Sir Gilbert Parker, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Frank Lascelles, Sir Thomas Lipton, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Frank Lascelles, Sir Thomas Lipton, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Alfred Milner, Sir Gilbert Parker

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Z. C. Fairbanks, the well-known fruit tree man, and a veteran of the Civil war, died at his home in Traverse City Tuesday.

While hunting at Trout lake, 25 miles from St. Ignace, V. Dwyer received a charge of buckshot in his left thigh from an accidental discharge of a gun carried by his son as they were walking along a trail, the father in advance. The stock of a rifle carried by the elder man was also shattered.

The Detroit Free Press is authority for the following: "Mackinac Island is to have a Double of modern design. The building will be called the New Grand Theatre and its opening will take place about Aug 1. Thos. Edward Allen, of Detroit, it is said, will manage the theatre. The building will be 100 by 66 on the ground and will seat about 1,000 people.

Emmet county debtors will have to pay up or go without medical attendance when sick. The Emmet county Medical society has authorized physicians to hand in lists of delinquents for circulation among the members and no one will respond to a doctor's call. Notices have also been sent to all unlicensed practitioners to stop practice or prosecutions will follow.

Big Chief Daniel at his wigwam near Harbor Springs passed away on Thursday night of last week. The last chieftain of the once numerous Ottawas has been a familiar character here for years. He was well liked by his people, and his whites who had dealings with him said he was strictly honest. At one time he owned valuable real estate but died penniless. With his death end all tribal proceedings of these Indians.

Elk Rapids Progress: The scow owned by the Charlevoix Tug Co and used in carrying slabs from Pine Lake to the Cement Co. in Elk Rapids was unable to stand the severe storm of last Friday and while tied at the Cement Co's dock was pounded against the piles with sufficient force to open her seams permitting her to sink in about fifteen feet of water. The high winds of Saturday and Sun day broke the scow to pieces and parts of her are now strewn along the beach.

Petoskey Daily News: Exactly three years ago, or to be exact, October 18, 1900, there was sleighing in and about Petoskey, snow having fallen to the depth of six inches. Isaac Hufford, of near Charlevoix, during a call at this office related the circumstance. He said that while that first snow fall remained only a few days, by November 15th snow was here in earnest, and there was dodging until the following May. People who are prone to complain of what they are pleased to term unseasonable weather should have lived in those good old days.

A New York special says: The General Electric Company are getting out plans and estimates of contracts for complete electric equipment for the new electric trolley street railway of Traverse City, the machinery with the Peninsular Railway company (in Old Mission, N. W. Ultna, the only name given, is promoter said that the franchises were already granted and work of construction will be begun early next year. The amount of estimates is not given nor will be until the track contracts are approved, and signed it is understood that plenty of capital to complete the road has been secured.

A terrible hunting accident occured near Topinabee Sunday afternoon while Fred Davis, 12 years old, was out in a row boat on Mullett Lake duck hunting, when his shot gun was accidently discharged, the charge passing through the lower part of his abdomen and through the thigh, passing out a few inches below the hip. Davis stuffed articles of clothing into the wound and in this terrible condition rowed a mile to shore and called for help. Doctors were summoned from Wolverine, but it was several hours before they could reach him. Doctors believe he will recover.

A Wexford county farmer writes to the Cadillac News as follows: "I think there is as much profit in raising sugar beets at five dollars a ton as in raising potatoes at forty cents a bushel, and everybody knows that there is a good profit in raising potatoes for forty cents. It is necessary to put the beets in good, strong soil. I don't think the lighter, sandy soil of Wexford county will make a paying crop of beets, but most of the hardwood land of the county will. I am well satisfied with my experiment. I raise beet raising and I think it is a good thing for other farmers of our county to take up where conditions are favorable."

Traverse City Record: The Traverse Bay line of steamers has carried more fruit shipments this year than any previous year in its history. Capt Dan Dodge of the freighter that had taken from Old Mission and Bowers Harbor alone more than 10,000 barrels, which, added to the immense quantities shipped by other boats and brought to the city by team, gives an idea of the enormous fruit production on the Peninsula this season. The production of other fruits was in proportion. The line carried from Bowers Harbor 6,000 cases of cherries earlier in the season, and great quantities of peaches and other fruits.

William H. Wallace was accidentally killed sunday noon. A discharge of his shotgun, striking lodgment in his chest, was the direct cause of death. Mr. Wallace was a well known and prosperous farmer living seven miles west of Petoskey. His farm, some 160 acres, is situated about one mile north of Carpenter. Mr. Wallace left the house, his home, at 11 o'clock in the morning. At 11 o'clock that night he was found dead by Schuyler Ramsdy, a neighbor. It is supposed that he accidentally discharged the gun while crossing a fence. Mr. Wallace was 52 years of age, was a son-in-law of the late Isaac Stauffer, and leaves a widow and four children. He was a highly respected citizen, of sterling integrity and in comfortable circumstances.

David Harry Day of Ishpeming, been, is proposed for the next republican candidate for governor, to Alex. ander H. Crain of Iron Mich, in a communication in today's issue of the Grand Rapids Herald. Mr. Crain says in reference to Mr. Day: "He is a man who holds the respect of every one who knows him. He is a man of sterling worth and integrity. A man who has had the ability to work himself up from nothing; to the holding of a quarter of a million in the lumber business. His location is logical, having as he does in the northwestern part of the state, in the lower peninsula. Mr. Day's candidacy is one which would amalgamate the opposing interests of the entire state, and while this is not a political proposition it is a logical one."

Northport besides being the home of a car ferry, can also boast of being the home or one of the most famous Indians of the country. Jonas Shawandass, son of Lewis Shawandass, who lives three miles west of Northport left his home nine years ago and spent six years at the Carlisle school in Kansas—according to the Northport Leader. The following taken from the Advance, published at Holmesville, Pa, gives an interest ing piece of information about the young man of 22 years and the record he has made since leaving home: "Jonas Shawandass, a Chippewa Indian, employed on the farm of Jonathan Clayton, in Bethlehem, near this place, several years ago and who enlisted in the second U. S. Cavalry, was mustered from the service at Fort Myers, Va., on Saturday last, 12th instant. Since leaving this vicinity three years ago he has seen service in Cuba and at various points in this country, and has gathered the reputation of being the best horseman in Troop E of which he was a member. Newspaper all over the country have at various times shown pictures of him in the act of performing extraordinary feats of horsemanship, such as picking up a dollar bill from the ground while his horse was going at full gallop. He was a member of the detachment of the Second Cavalry that was sent to attend the re-union of the army of Santiago, held at Detroit, Mich., last month, and added greatly to his reputation as a rough rider."

The democrats carried Iowa and Nebraska.

A Startling Test

To save a life, Dr. T. of Merritt, of No Mensopoty, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes, "a patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, indigestion, Constipation and kidney troubles. Try them. Only 50c at F. G. Hines & Co.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said county, held at the Probate Office, in the village of Charlevoix, on the 2nd day of November, A. D. 1903. Present, Hon. Frank D. Feighner, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of George Barnes, deceased. Lulu Barnes, administrator, and Ulric Barnes, of said deceased, on request to examine and allow the final account of said administrator, and to assign the residue of said estate to the persons entitled thereto. It is ordered that the 23rd day of November, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for examining and allowing said account, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be held at the Village of Charlevoix, for said examining and allowance, or so before the following, or such other persons as may be interested in said estate, are to appear at a session of said court, then to be held at the Village of Charlevoix, on the 23rd day of November, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, and show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. It is further ordered that said administrator give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said account, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said time of hearing.

FRANK D. FEIGHNER
Judge of Probate.

—The Charlevoix High School 24 rest ball team played at Central Lake Saturday against the boys of that town, and defeated them by a score of 17 to 6.

—Here is a suggestion: At the south end of the pavement, for a short distance on the hill, crushed stone should be put in next spring, to prevent the drift of dirt. At the street intersections the same distance should be so treated.

—Don't forget to reserve your seats for the Lecture Course at Clingerly drug store on Tuesday, standard time. The reservations for the entire season ticket in twenty-five seats, for single admission tickets ten cents each. See explanations in the "School Notes" in this issue.

—We often hear Charlevoix people remark, "What Charlevoix needs is a good fire on Bridge street." For years so, but the fellow who makes the remark generally wants the fire set on the opposite side from him, with the wind blowing yonder. What Charlevoix needs most on Bridge street is a good old fashion ed Methodist revival along the line of public enterprise.

—The congregation and friends of Rev. C. T. Stout, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, of Traverse City, on Thursday, evening surprised the rector and his wife, at their home, presenting them with a fine collection of china and cut glass. Mr. Stout may also be considered a Charlevoix resident, as the Charlevoix church is its missionary field. The principal work of this paper is a very efficient minister of Mr. Stout, and despite to see him back.

—Frank P. Gotken, who for the past four years has been book-keeper for the Charlevoix Lumber Co., has resigned his position and will remove to Pellston, where he has entered into co-partnership with his father-in-law, Charles Moody, in the general merchandise business. Mr. and Mrs. Gotken will be missed by a large circle of Charlevoix friends, who will wish him abundant success in his new venture. Mr. A. J. Suffern, of Point Jordan takes Mr. Gotken's place with the Charlevoix Lumber Co.

—We have not heard a word of serious criticism of the present pavement, but the man who renders adverse judgment against that body deserves one days in jail. In the grading and paving of Bridge street it has bonded a large job in a strong manner, and it deserves the thanks of the public. Monopoly in Charlevoix has never been called upon to solve such vexing problems, and its council ever worked more industriously to expiate for the good of the village. The present council should remain intact for an other year from next March.

—M. A. Lentham & Co. have a fine ad. this week.

—There will be a social at the Howard M. E. church, Thanksgiving Eve, Wednesday, Nov. 25 for the benefit of pastor. Good supper and program. Admission 25c.

—Capt. Tom Comfort is here under orders from the construction department of the Light House Service to build a 70-foot from beetle and walk along the north pier from the shore to the lighthouse. The material is expected into the work and Mr. Comfort expects to have the work done in three weeks.

—Mrs. C. A. Sears has completed her fine new residence on the Main street block, and moved in Monday. This beautiful home was formerly the Cadwell residence, and was adudit by the present owner. Mrs. Sears has also recently purchased from R. S. Harsha the house adjoining her on the west, and will improve she prettily.

—A Sturgeon Bay special to the Milwaukee Wisconsin says: Inspector General George Uhler of Washington and Capt. C. H. Westcott, supervising inspector of the Eighth district, with headquarters at Detroit, arrived here yesterday afternoon for the purpose of investigating the Hackley disaster. Subpoenas were immediately issued for the surviving passengers and crew of the ill-fated craft, and a deputy marshal dispatched to Fish Creek to serve them. Other witnesses, both here and elsewhere, will doubtless be examined before the investigation closes. The examinations are being held in the postoffice building, and several days will be required to complete the work, which will be most thorough.

—There is some satisfaction in reviewing the good promises made by Weather Prophet Hicks for November weather even if the St. Louis interpreter of celestial affairs is not fully followed by the weather itself. The possible storm periods of the month commencing with number 1, are the 1st, 2nd and 3rd in some sections; rains turning to snow in Michigan from the 5th to the 8th with the most general distribution through rain or snow from the 12th to the 15th. The conjunctions of the moon with the earth and sun on the 19th will cause a period of rising temperature followed by rain which can be expected to end with light falls on the lakes. The latter feature of Mr. Hicks' expectations for November, however, is his assurance that as a whole the coming month will be much more enjoyable from a weather point of view than October has been. "In fact, says Hicks: "much pleasant, autumnal weather may be expected through November and further than usual into December.

The Harbor Work.

Contractor Bearavais has practically completed his work of rebuilding the superstructure of the piers. From the government "two mark" up both piers have been rebuilt.

In order to do this, the stone in the piers had to be removed and replaced. The work has been in progress all summer, under the eye of Inspector Murray, who pronounces the work fully up to the standard, and strictly according to specifications.

Contractor Bearavais also has the contract for rebuilding the revetment on the south side of the upper channel, which has been destroyed by fire. John Monroe, our contractor, has driver the piles, and Mr. Bearavais will next week put in the timber and bench for the revetment. Inspector Murray thinks that two weeks work will complete the contract.

The building of a sugar factory at Kalkaska has been postponed to 1904. In a statement just made by a committee of which Alphonse B. Palmer formerly state senator of this district, is chairman, it is stated that arrangements could not be completed in time to put the factory in operation next year and it was decided to proceed in the matter with the object in view of getting ready to operate the Kalkaska factory in the fall of 1904.

THE PAVEMENT.

The Work Progressing Favorably—the Stretch Already Completed.

Everything about town has a "bitulithic" smell. You smell it when you put on your shoes in the morning; it attacks your nasal mucilaged when you rise and as you quaff your breakfast coffee. It mingles with the odor of coal smoke from the steam rollers, and the combination invades all places at all times. Not that it is unpleasant—it is not, for it has the smell of enterprise, the odor of business.

The paving of bridge street progresses. Charlevoix, atp this writing, has a completed bitulithic pavement from the Elston nearly to Mason street, and it is crawling steadily toward the bridge. Supt. Cramond says that if bad weather does not prevent, the pavement will be completed well up the hill toward Clinton street by Saturday night.

The village had contracted to furnish the crushed limestone for the foundation, but the crusher lacking capacity to keep ahead of the pavers, the Paving Co's crusher was started up plain Monday, the limestone being hauled from the village quarry.

As to the paving. Enough of it is completed to show that it is all that was claimed for it. It seems to be absolutely indestructible by the ordinary uses of traffic, and the surface seems to be entirely fadeless. When completed it is a stone gray in color, a shade darker than the curb, the contrast being just distinct enough to be pleasant to the eye.

With good weather, Saturday of next week will see the completion of the work, and Charlevoix will have, by all odds, the best business street north of Grand Rapids.

THE SUGAR FACTORY.

The Big Plant to Begin Slicing Positively by December First.

The sugar factory cannot be called completed, for, indeed, work will continue in many details of construction for a year yet, but so far as the manufacture of sugar from the long crop of beets is concerned, the big plant is almost ready.

Beets will be in the bins, perhaps last Saturday night, and pumps will be wired into work. Two weeks trial of the machinery with water will be necessary before the beets are sent through on their journey to the sugar barrel. During this water test all leaks and imperfect connections will be hunted out and fixed.

But it is positively asserted by Supt. Hartwig that the manufacture of sugar will begin December 1st. The beet sheds are ready, and beets will begin to pour into them this week. Cars have been ordered for rail transportation from other parts, and one carloads of coal are on hand, or will be before the first.

The force of experts and clerks are busy carrying the thousand and one things necessary for the "campaign." Last week Chief Chemist General Manager Herring, Silver Intendent Noble, Chief Chemist Thomas, and Chief Mechanic Hentze, in very busy preparing for the coming labors, now almost upon them, when the sugar for sale, and the roots begin to flow through the big gray building.

A tramway is being constructed to the old dock on Pine lake, to facilitate the landing of beets from up lake points, and crushed stone is being hauled in for sugar roads, for the factory, along which beets will be hauled. Work will continue along these lines as long as weather permits, and resumed again in the spring with vigor.

As we said at the outset, there is work to be done for the next year that will envolve a large force of men. Work will be on the main and tracks laid to it from the main line, to facilitate the transportation of coal and limestone in and sugar and by-products out.

When the plant begins operations about December first, four tons of beets will pass through its maw every minute, and the machinery every twenty hours, and sugar to the value of $2,000 will be produced every day during the campaign, besides the by-products.

AT VARIANCE.

There is an apparently irrepressible conflict on between the U. S. Fish Commission and State Game Warden Chapman over the closed season fishing for spawn. On the first day of the month, when Mr. Chapman came here to conduct the Beaver Island spawn harvest, it was announced that fishermen employed by the commission could retain only those fish from which spawn was stripped. Of course the top people all pulled out, for the reason that the catch would not compensate them for the outlay.

Subsequently word came from superintendent Clark, of the Fish Commission that the order had been modified, and that fishing would be done on the same basis as that of last season. The tugs thereupon returned to the grounds and began fishing.

On Monday Chief Deputy Warden Chas. E. Brewster came down from the south and boarded the Beaver Island with orders from the Warden to prohibit the retention of any fish stripped fish, and that all stripped fish taken out alive should be returned to the water. Mr. Brewster had just come from Marquette where the representative of the Fish Commission defied the orders and continued to fish. He was arrested and fined $25 and costs.

The position of Warden Chapman is that the element of gain to any person whatever must be eliminated from this closed season spawn gathering; that an appropriation of $750,000 has been made for this work, and that the United States should employ fishermen to do their work, paying them for it, instead of compelling them to take their pay in a manner that implies a direct violation of a Michigan statute.

It seems to us that the contention, on the part of the U. S. Fish Commission that the Federal authority is supreme in territory commonly called "United States waters," is not well grounded. It smacks too much of the time-honored "forecastle lawyer" talk about immunity from State authority whenever United States maritime law operates.

Article 1, of the Constitution of Michigan provides that "The State of Michigan has jurisdiction over the territory embraced within the following boundaries," and the same article gives the boundaries, which embrace half of the waters bordering on the State. Nothing can be plainer.

Now it seems to us that there can be no concurrent jurisdiction in Michigan waters, other than that joint jurisdiction which the Federal and State authorities hold on the land for the enforcement of Federal and State laws. We cannot see why the Federal commission should have the right to violate law when such a violation by an Indian with a Mackinaw boat and one net means fine and imprisonment.

The general government is almost nearly able to employ fishermen to do its work of spawn gathering, paying them for the same independent of any fish caught.

As we write, deputy U. S. Marshal O'Donnell, this Tuesday morning, has, in this village, served upon deputy Brewster an order of the U. S. court, to appear at Marquette the 24th of this month and show cause why an injunction should not issue restraining the State of Michigan from interfering with the U. S. Fish Commission fishing gathering of spawn to Grand Traverse.

CONDEMNED BARGE.

Last evening Mr. Brewster, who has been here waiting to get to Beaver Island, received orders from the State Warden to cut out the Beaver Island trip.

The Traverse City Record is speaking of the annual meeting of the State Horticultural society to be held in Traverse City next month says: This will be an event of considerable importance to this section, and there should be a systematic plan to make it a success. There will be prominent speakers upon fruit culture, and there should be an exhibit of the products of the season in keeping with our splendid resources. This is the recognized fruit center of the northern part of the state, and the event should be made one of value to every fruit grower in this region. It will be a good thing for Traverse City and an excellent thing for the country surrounding. The results will be beneficial to fruit growers.

TEXAS OUT OF MONEY.

STATE TREASURY EMPTY AND CREDITORS MUST WAIT

Pay Day Takes All Available Funds in Few Months—Late Comers Must Discount Their Orders—A Deserted Woman Leaves Husband Death.

The State of Texas is in the same plight for the first time in many years although perhaps not to the extent that it was in the fall of 1893, when it was found that the treasury was bare of funds and the state was forced to issue warrants which were not redeemed for many months and which for a time were discounted by large offices and engaged in business there extensively during that period. The money on hand was invested in a few months and during the interim state business was done on the credit of its citizens, for the most part, the state's creditors waiting for the time when the delinquent and exchequer were paid up. (LATER) the tide in Texas turned.

FIGHTS CHILD, JUMPS TO DEATH

New York Woman Commits Suicide by Dragging Weight Over Body.

Abandoned by her husband, Mrs. Rosalie B. Mulhauser has become the wife of Mrs. Mulhauser, who is a prominent citizen of Kansas City, and has left her home in Kansas City, Kansas, to live in Chicago. Mrs. Mulhauser is a woman of about 35 years of age, and is the mother of two children, a boy and a girl. The boy is about 4 years of age and the girl is about 2 years of age. Mrs. Mulhauser left her home in Kansas City, Kansas, on Tuesday, and went to Chicago, where she joined her husband. The woman left her children behind her, and it is said that she did not even bid them good-bye. The woman left a letter addressed to her husband, in which she said that she could not live without her children, and that she was going to her death. The woman took her little boy with her when she left her home, and when she reached the Illinois side of the river she took the child in her arms and jumped into the water. The woman sank immediately, and her body was not recovered for some time. When the woman's body was finally recovered, it was found that she had fastened the little boy to her side by means of a strap, and that the child was dead when the woman's body was recovered. The woman had evidently fastened the child to her side in order that the child might be drowned with her. The woman's husband, who is a prominent citizen of Kansas City, Kansas, is prostrated by the news of his wife's death.

One thousand challenge cooking lessons will be given tomorrow and Friday in the cooking school department of the Ladies' Home Journal, in the Madison Square Garden, New York. These are to be given three sessions of two hours each, and will be given by the Ladies' Home Journal cooking school, which is now in session in the Madison Square Garden. The cooking school is a feature of the Ladies' Home Journal Silver Jubilee, which is being celebrated this week. The cooking school is in charge of Miss Mary Ronald, who is a well-known cooking school teacher. The challenge cooking lessons are to be given by Miss Ronald, assisted by Miss Lucy Allen, Miss Mary Lincoln, Miss Lucy Gaynor, Miss Sarah Tyson Rorer, Miss Jessie Pounder, Miss Ida Bulkley, Miss Ida Bennett, Miss Mary Bradley, Miss Mary Bartlett, Miss Mary Bartlett, Miss Mary Bartlett

MOVING THE WHEAT

TRANSPORTATION COST LOWERED BY PROTECTION.

As the Result of Making Our Steel Rails at Home Railway Freight Charges on Agricultural Products Have Been Reduced Over Eighty Per Cent.

The London Statist for August 29, 1903, contains a leading editorial article on Mr. Chamberlain's reciprocity policy of discriminating duties, from which we take the following extract:

"We have seen that between 1868 and 1892 the cost of carrying wheat for export from Chicago to New York was reduced by over 80 per cent. Probably, from a little over 12c per bushel to a little more than per bushel. In other words, during the period referred to the cost of carriage by railway over a distance of about 1 thousand miles was reduced in value per bushel. West of Chicago the conditions were certainly not less favorable. Hence it will be seen that during the past 40 years the reduction in the cost of land carriage has been very significant. Furthermore, we have seen that the cost of carriage from New York to this country was reduced 75% per bushel—that is to say, from 1 bushel to 1 bushel per bushel. Taken together, therefore, the cost of carriage allows from Chicago to this country has been reduced further the past forty years from about 22c per bushel to about 3c per bushel. Is there any reason to suppose that the enormous cost of carriage has been reduced? We fail to see any."

In this great reduction in the cost of transporting the Western farmers' wheat to New York and Liverpool American steel rails have played a prominent and indispensable part. In 1896 we had not commenced the manufacture of steel rails and our entire supply was obtained from Great Britain, who charged us $28 the ton, $70.42 per ton on board ship. This sum did not include the cost of carriage across the Atlantic or the duty, since Pusey's history of the British Iron Trade, in 1871 we began the process of adequately protecting our steel rail industry with the result that we were soon producing steel rails as good as those of Great Britain at a much lower price than her rail makers had been charging us. This price was afterward steadily reduced, so that millions of tons of American steel rails have been sold to American railroads at less than $18 per ton, or little than one-third the British price of 1896. To-day the price is $28, which is exactly the amount of the duty of 1871 on foreign steel rails.

But for the great reduction in the price of steel rails to American railroads during the period referred to by the Statist it would never have been possible for Western farmers to secure the low rates of transportation for their wheat that they have had enjoyed. We could not ever have built up our magnificent steel rail industry without the help of an adequate and protective duty on foreign steel rails. We commend these indisputable facts to the consideration of our Free Trade friends who have been invited by our Democratic friends to come into the place steel rails in the free list. It may also be worth while to consider the further fact that all Western wheat growers are protected against the competition of the wheat growers of Manitoba and other British North American provinces by a duty of 42 cents a bushel on wheat and a duty of 25 per cent. on the foreign value of wheat flour.—Iron and Steel Bulletin.

WHY SHE WANTED TO KNOW.

Ambitious Woman Would Get Even for Snubbings of Society.

A woman who lives on the fringe of fashionable society, who tries hard to be fashionable and who succeeds fairly well in her efforts, recently went to a parade and had a mad her character. The principle happened to be a man of national renown and station, and the social climber was impressed with the idea of the things he could her about herself.

"Do you know, Mr. —," she said to him, "I could make your outstanding fortune for you by recommending you to my acquaintances. I have enough social influence to have you taken up.

"But you would make the return," suggested the parade.

"Yes," she said, unknowing, "I am a woman. Am I? I tell you just what I want you to do for me. I want you to read the characters of certain women and tell me all the same things you find out about them.

"What?"

"Well, I feel there is no use of my trying to deceive you. Those women have snubbed me socially, and I want to be able to my talkers about them that will blacken their characters."

Let Congress Bear in Mind.

The Cuban agitators have transmitted to President Roosevelt their thanks for his efforts in behalf of Cuban reciprocity. Well they may, for if Congress should be induced to comply it will save several dollars to the Cuban planter's pocket on every bag of sugar he sells. If that sugar all enters to the United States market, this extra income will come out of the Domestic consumer. Now, Cuba asks we wave only that the Cuban would starve if Congress did not grant a tariff reduction of 20 per cent. on the sugar she sells us. Let Congress bear in mind that the Cuban would prefer to starve than to pay the duty on sugar imposed on foreign sugars, which charges an 2-10 cts. per lb. on board ship. This sum did not include the cost of carriage across the Atlantic or the duty. Pusey's History of the British Iron Trade, in 1871 we began the process of adequately protecting our steel rail industry with the result that we were soon producing steel rails as good as those of Great Britain at a much lower price than her rail makers had been charging us. This price was afterward steadily reduced, so that millions of tons of American steel rails have been sold to American railroads at less than $18 per ton, or little than one-third the British price of 1896. We could not ever have built up our magnificent steel rail industry without the help of an adequate and protective duty on foreign steel rails. We commend these indisputable facts to the consideration of our Free Trade friends who have been invited by our Democratic friends to come into the place steel rails in the free list. It may also be worth while to consider the further fact that all Western wheat growers are protected against the competition of the wheat growers of Manitoba and other British North American provinces by a duty of 42 cents a bushel on wheat and a duty of 25 per cent. on the foreign value of wheat flour.—Iron and Steel Bulletin.

When There Is Trouble.

"Looking after a boyfriend and stuck-moving woman is a career," said the thoughtful man who has come cloistering after his office hours, "is like trying to pick up a drop of cold oliver with your fork. Sugar and trouble."

GETTING TOGETHER

HARMONY RESTORED AMONG IOWA REPUBLICANS.

Speeches of Governor Cummins, Senator Allison and Congressman Lacey Show the Party to Be United on the Paramount Issues of the Day.

An encouraging sign of the times, a manifest indication of the patriotic sense of the times and the weakness of the strong, is to be found in the notable Republican meeting held recently in the state of Iowa. In the first of these meetings that of the Iowa delegation in Congress, Speaker Henderson presiding, Governor Cummins, of Iowa, Senator Allison and Congressman Lacey were present and spoke. The Iowa idea is to carry the Republican party on the issues of the day, and the most just of the issues is sound at the Republican and consistent at the profession. The time announced that the one issue of the day is to enlarge the prosperity of the country, by the favor, through reciprocity, the farmer abundant market for his goods from foreign countries and to admit free of duty the raw material of manufacture that must follow in the wake of the growth of the manufacturer. Is it not astonishing that Republicans should in one breath shout for the protection of labor and the advantages of protection and in the next breath cry out against the idea of a greater continental volume of foreign commerce? Yet that is precisely the attitude of the Democrats. From the management of the Democratic organization it is a matter of regret and sorrow that the attitude of a statesman?

Senator Allison, in his speech at Clarinda on the 19th of October, was more emphatic than Speaker Henderson in both feet in the reciprocity ring. After telling his hearers that tariff revision was to be undertaken with the lower ground under the election well, "we said the voters have spoken and issued upon the policy that should prevail in the tariff, and the voters have spoken in the most emphatic manner that pass possible, proper regarding such a question."

"It is probable that in the future there will be some tariff changes made in consulting our tariff schedules in the light of the experience of the past. We have to give to an enlarged and to that we will respond. We have to be thinking of the time when we are to regard our protection policy.

If there is anybody who will be in a position to make a Republican speech in Iowa this year, it will be the man who has the ear of the people and who is the trusted counselor with which we have treated on which we have already given to great advantage in their laws for the free export of our products to foreign countries. Great Britain is insatiable if an open market for all our products.

In making modifications of our tariff in the future, the possibilities of international retaliation must be taken as far as practicable, adopting measures without commercial war, impairing the protective policy in any way, and preserving the principle of reciprocity to enterprise that already give us free access to their markets, or open to us open favorable terms.

Note the saving clause that we have put in, which is important, for unless that will be impossible to frame a tariff bill that will be acceptable to our congressmen and senators from Iowa and to the people of Iowa, which is the most just of the issues of the Republican and consistent in the profession. The time announced that we can make a tariff bill that will enlarge the possibilities of the country, by the favor, through reciprocity, the farmer abundant market for his goods from foreign countries and to admit free of duty the raw material of manufacture that must follow in the wake of the growth of the manufacturer. Is it not astonishing that Democrats

THE POPULAR PULPIT

PRAYER.

By Rev. C. H. Jackson.

And he said unto them, When ye pray say, Our Father.—Luke 11:2.

Jesus took it for granted that men were going to pray. He always proceeded upon that idea. He did not inquire, he did not, the evangelists fail to tell us, pump about who he had and did, but they came and came to his presence. His teaching was one of the outstanding and ever engaging features of his ministry.

Men did come to him. They came to him as a child, they came to him as a man, they came to him as a patriot, they came to him as a sinner, they came to him as a pure man, they came to him as a leper, they came to him as a ruler, they came to him as a publican, they came to him as a Pharisee, they came to him as a Sadducee, they came to him as a Roman, they came to him as a Greek, they came to him as a Jew, they came to him as a Samaritan, they came to him as a Gentile, they came to him as a man, they came to him as a woman, they came to him as a child, they came to him as a man, they came to him as a woman, they came to him as a child, they came to him as a man, they came to him as a woman, they came to him as a child

MARINE NEWS.

The Endress sailing fleet, consisting of the tugs Marquette, E. M. B. A. and C. W. Endress, were here over Sunday on their way from the north shore to Manitowoc for close season fishing.

While at the Manitous after even Saturday the steamer Silver Spray broke her cross head, and was put out of commission. She was towed into Manitou harbor by a tug. On Sunday the Beaver went after her and towed her to Harbor Springs.

Manistique, Marquette & Northern No. 1, earfery will be taken off the Northport-Manistique run after this week. Word to this effect has just reached Northport. The news is not startling to those who have kept tab on the business done by this big boat. She has been making three trips weekly for some time but the freight and passenger business has not been of such dimensions that dividends could be paid on the half million dollar boat. According to the information received, the ferry is to be towed again to the Ann Arbor Railroad Co. and is to resume the run out of Frankfort, where she was in service from arriving to Lake Michigan waters. The Ann Arbor road, it is reported, is simply overs hamed with business and the big ferry will help out their already good fleet of car ferries.

In an attempt to reach the shipwreck of South Manitou Island before coming of a heavy storm the steamer Walter L. Frost, from Chicago to Ogdensburg with a cargo of ore, ran ashore in a fog Thursday. The steamer is lying on the south end of the island with her keel hard in sand throwing cars over board in an effort to lighten the ship. Life-savers from the South Manitou station are assisting. As the vessel struck she is only two feet forward and is aground from amidship to the bow. The wrecking Fayette was ordered from Cheboygan. The Frost had to be settled as the heavy seas made her pound dangerously. A tug had been started forward by the sea before the scuttling. The steamer is on a rocky bottom, with decks two feet above water. She has on board, in addition, to her grain, three carloads of fertilizer and three carloads of vinegar besides some miscellaneous freight, all shipped from Chicago for Ogdensburg. About everything at this port went after the news, it is coming in in large quantities.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Until the new Normal teacher is engaged Mr. Howe is teaching four classes each day in addition to his own work and supervision. Moral: Don't telephone to the superintendent for 'extra time' to be tardy—being a million times to poor excuse.

The "Touch System" of typewriting will be taught on the new Remington. The keys are covered with rubbered caps that hide the letters and the student "feels out" the proper location of each from a chart hung before him. When the habit of striking the right place is established, the speed and accuracy of writing is much greater than when the eyes rest upon the keys. This advantage of the system holds with either visible or invisible writing machines.

Dr. Armstrong's talk before the High school and Normal students last week, was as sole as a profession of lecture is a medical college, besides being plain enough for an ordinary student to understand. One of its principal suggestions was that if a student is stupid in his school work, see whether he has any trouble with his eyes." Immediately after the lecture Mr Howe reported that there were twenty-three cases in the High school this month, as against twenty-five last month, of students who probably need to have their eyes examined.

The Lecture Course tickets are now on sale by students of the High School and Grammar grades. The price for the season of three concert, entertainments and two lectures is only one dollar. A reserved seat for the entire course may be secured for twenty five cents additional. These reservations will be made at Chapel's drug store on Monday, Nov. 16th, at 1 o'clock standard time. No more than ten reservations can be made by one person at one time. Get in the habit, take your turn. Any ticket holder missing comes on Nov. 21 and will be one of the last of the season.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Council Room, Oct. 15 1903.

At the regular meeting of the council held on the above date, there were present: E. W. Lowther and Trustees Washburn, Gillmer, Mc. Millan, Campbell and Miller.

The minutes of the last regular and of the intervening special meetings were read and approved.

Mr. Frazier petitioned for permission to make an addition to his house on W. of lot 3, Blk 7, of the village of Charlevoix.

The Bitumitor having the proposal to crush stone for the village at 15 cents per cubic yd, the village to furnish all the labor, proposition accepted.

The petition of Arthur Williams for a concrete for a telephone line through this town was read and after discussion the matter was laid on the table.

The report of the Treas. for 1903, was read and accepted and placed on file.

The following bills were allowed and the clerk follows the clerk was directed to draw a warrant for the sum of $[illegible] to pay the same.

NORWOOD NEWS.

O. P. Olmstead leaves here the last of this week for Nashville Wisconsin, and will have charge of E. V. Nash, mill at that place.

The Frontenac was in Friday night and took the last of the apples. About 2000 bbls have been shipped from here this fall.

Mr. Sutcliffe will move to Charlevoix, and Emily Superman will move back on his farm. Martha Ayers has moved back on her farm in Banks.

Quarterly meeting services were held here on Saturday and Sunday of this week.

Miss Andrew Orrell of Clarion is here visiting her brother. Frank Valentine has moved into the Wilson cottage, lately occupied by Mr. Orrell, and a family from Essex, will occupy the house made vacant.

Jerry Sunshine on Sunday night brought a young man by the name of Samuel Tooley to Norwood. He was in a dazed, or half crazed condition and could not tell where he wanted to go. He had a letter on his person addressed to Samuel Tooley, care Lindquist, Indian Mich. He is in no condition to be at large, and he was sent to the Superintendents at the poor Monday.

ALBERT BLASS.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Alden, the bustling little village 12 miles south of Bellaire, expects to have electric lights for its business places and residences next spring. T. D. Park, who owns the water power on the river flowing through the village, will install the plant.

Petoskey News: Sextus I. Gates, pioneer sportsman, leaves the lumber. He is 76 years of age and took out a hunting license Wednesday. A W Detwiler of Maple River township near Boyne with took second at 75 years, while M. L. Cook 70 years of age is third.

Central Lake Times: Hugh Vaughan has purchased the George Noteware drug store at Bellaire, and hereafter will be numbered with the business men of the county seat town. High did a good business for many years in Central Lake and made hosts of friends here whose best wishes for success will followed him.

J. H. Milne of the Onaway News who was a year ago several months ago is today worth over half a million. He purchased copper property near Wolverine for $2500 cash and took stock on the property and Milne sold it to Duluth and Wisconsin capitalists for $[illegible]. As a result renewed interest is aroused in the Algoma district gold fields.

A Boyne Falls special says: The prosecuting attorney had several tenderfoots high school pupils on the carpet for a cold and serious hour. These young fellows, of the best families in the place, painted yellow egg decorations for one of the high school teachers. The plan went away owing to the activity of the teacher, and the boys came forth from the attorney's interview chastened in spirit and wiser in law.

Word has been received at Boyne Falls of the reinstatement of Bert Dalton, it well known young man formerly of that place, to life imprisonment in the Washington state penitentiary for a fatal stabbing affray. This news was a great shock to his many friends. He was a bright, capable young man and a scientific pharmacist, having passed the state examination with the highest marks last year. He was married a year ago to Miss Grace Barton, a belle of that place. His one fault and the cause of his unfloing was an excessive fondness for drink. A drunken brawl resulted in his finish. He is a son of H. H. Dalton a former Boyne Falls druggist.

Fire originating in a refuse cob scimer destroyed the shingle and saw mill, blacksmith shop and barn of the Cameron Lumber Co. at North Lake Wednesday night, making a total loss of about $2,000 of which $[illegible] is covered by insurance. The mill had been closed down for the winter but their loss is a great blow to the village as they employed directly and indirectly 250 men most of the year. It is likely that the company will rebuild, having only about one year's cut ahead here, while the Central Lake branch has five or six year's cut ahead. The mill office of the Cameron Lumber Co is at Central Lake, with mills at Central Lake, Ellsworth and North Lake. The North Lake business was finished away back in the nation, and contained for a number of years by J. H. Sisman. In 1891 it was bought by Cameron Bros., who conducted it until 1892, when it became a stock company, with Theodore Thomas of Milwaukee president and Otto Salomon of Milwaukee secretary. It was at that time that the Central Lake mills were built.

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but this is not altogether true. Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to this. Mrs. O. D. VanMatre of Shepherdstown, W. Va., says "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for years tried everything I heard of but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co., Druggist. Trial bottles free. Reg. sizes 50c, $1.00.

—An accident occurred on Bridge street Wednesday evening that came very near being fatal results. During the severe westerly gale that came up suddenly on that evening, about eight feet square of the outside lire of brick on the third story of the new bank block were blown out, falling to the cement walk on bridge street. Harry Marshall was passing at the time, and was struck by the brick. He was picked up and carried to Adam's saloon across the street, and for a time it was thought his injuries were fatal. For an hour he was entirely unconscious, but now he can recognize his friends and was able to go to his home. Dr. Thomas was called soon after the accident, and has attended the patient since. Mr. Marshall was very badly injured about the head and neck, but hopes are entertained of his recovery. The pressed brick that fell had this been laying up by the wall of common brick, owing to the fact that in the afternoon the workmen were driven from their work by rain.

—A most delightful place to lunch or dine is the new Mackinaw restaurant near the bridge. Mr. McKinnon makes a specialty of choice and rare dishes, including game in season, and oysters. The place has already become very popular with those who are fond of a specially fine lunch.

—It has been a long time since November has brought in such a taste of winter as came upon us Tuesday and Wednesday. It was mid fashion old winter weather, closely related to blizzard. It directed attention, for the time, to the wood pile and the coal bin, and made people think of storm doors and snow shovels.

—Services will be held in the Episcopal church on Tuesday evening, Nov. 24th by Rev. C. E. Scott. The address will be upon the Great Missionary Council held recently in Washington, D. C., and the part taken in it by President Roosevelt. A cordial invitation is extended to all to come and bring their friends.

—County School Commissioner A. W. Chase, of Hayes township, was the recipient of a very fine compliment last Sunday. Charlevoix Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, of which Mr. Chase is a member, at its last meeting voted to present him with an apron, in Sunday compliment form, the gift being Cooper will Blum extra to Mr. Chase's home and make the presentation. The gift is a beautiful article, and Companion Chase was deeply touched by the compliment.

—The reservation of seats for the lecture course season has been remarkably large this year. At this writing 126 seats have been reserved. This is good evidence that the course this year is more popular than ever before. Such attractions as the Dunbar entertainers, the Kathe Boys choir, and the Hawthorne Club to convert programmes. Miss Florence Bedell, violinist, Miss Louise Hunter, reader and impersonator, Signation Trio, Mandolin, guitar, and Mr. Frederick Anthony, Western pianist and manager. Seven people for thirty five cents. The press reports are not merely enthusiastic with the success and popularity of this company, save the high school your patronage—and don't be too late.

THE SUMMER COLLEGE.

Charlevoix Stands a Fighting Chance to Win the Prize

About one year ago "The Congregational Summer College and Assembly, sent a delegate here to look over our village and investigate the situation with a view to making Charlevoix the permanent location of their summer College. Through strong inducements made by a gentleman in Southern Michigan, the directors were led to try Petoskey some Point near New Buffalo. It was found however a very unsatisfactory place and has been practically abandoned. A committee was appointed to take up the whole question of location and to thoroughly investigate several places in Michigan that had offered inducements, and as Charlevoix was the very first to do so, was naturally considered. With a view to facilitating matters and pressing the claims of Charlevoix, Dr. Hyslop made a hurried trip last week to Chicago and met the committee, and while there were some very great difficulties to overcome, succeeded in getting the entire committee of six to visit Charlevoix, which they did last Tuesday Evening, and left again on Wednesday morning. They were met by a number of our representative citizens on Tuesday evening and were shown all over the village and its environs on Wednesday morning. All that can be said at this position is that the committee went away very much pleased with our village. Propositions and inducements were made which seemed fair to both sides, but as the question has to be finally submitted to the directors of the College and with several other places pushing against us the matter is still in doubt. Our hopes have grown good.

The Summer College and Assembly embraces delegates from 16 states. The Congregational Methodists and United Brethren Churches, are united with the Congregationalists in the movement, and with these augmented forces, it cannot fail to be a great thing for the town that gets it.

It is expected that it will bring fully one people next year.

ACCIDENT AT SUGAR FACTORY.

The first serious accident that has occurred at the sugar factory since its establishment began on Tuesday morning (Wednesday) morning.

The last piece of machinery was being hoisted to Season's floor. It struck the planks upon which the two were standing, precipitating them to the ground floor. Dougherty struck on his head, receiving injuries that will probably result in his death from concussion of the brain. Simonson was badly bruised, but will recover.

Dougherty has a wife and four children, ranging in fifty years of age and has a grown up family.

The Construction Co. has been congratulating itself upon having no serious accidents in the placing of the enormous mass of heavy machinery in the plant, and claiming, as it does, so far, that this accidents is deeply regretted.

The Bridge Street Paving.

Bad weather is seriously delaying the Bridge street paving job, and there are those who doubt the ability of the contractors to complete the work this winter although the superintendent insists that it will be done if they have to shovel snow to do it.

The contractor worked last Sunday, and completed the block between Antrim and Mason streets. The concrete plow is laid as far north as the Hotel Bortlett, and the sub-grade is practically done to the bridge, or at least one day's work will finish it.

One thing is certain, the contractor is working every effort and making some sacrifice to do a good job, and as fast as they have gone the work is fair state.

SAILING THE BRINY.

Sun Harbor Me, Oct. 7 1903

EDITOR SENTINEL:

I arrived at Bangor, Me., Sept. 4th. Had a stormy passage from Quebec. We were blown off shore 100 miles, but got through safely. I think the Lathrop is the only schooner on the coast with a square sail and sails, and she attracts a good deal of attention.

I think I will make my headquarters at Bangor, and remain in the coasting trade between there and Boston and New York and Long Island ports, carrying lumber. I saw a fleet of 75 schooners leaving port here at one time. It look ed like the old days on Lake Michigan. This port has the record, I am told, of being the oldest customhouse in the United States. It is very nice little place of about 15,000 inhabitants. Fay's watch case factory is locate here.

Bangor, Me., Nov. 3, 1903.

We went from Sag Harbor to Perth Amboy, N. Y., and took a cargo of hard coal to Winterport, Me., 12 miles below Bangor, on the Penobscot river, and now we are loading cement lumber for New York City. (Will not come back here again this season, as it freezes up here in December, and this is a bad place to which to lay up, owing to spring ice.

We get $3.00 per thousand on lumber to New York. I expect we will lay up for the winter in some of the Sound ports. This is a hustling town of 32,000 inhabitants, with several large lumber mills. The city is chiefly spruce. They had a run of 90,000,000 to come down this fall, but I understand some of it was hung up on account of low water.

Men are building vessels here all the time, mostly four and five masted schooners. They are mostly built of hard pine and tamarack, with a small percentage of oak frames. Over in Nova Scotia, near here, they build some vessels entirely of spruce, but they are short-lived vessels.

All of the fishing schooners are built of white pine, and cost from $[illegible] to $18,000. They are also silent boats on the ocean, and need to be.

My family is here, and will remain here until I get the schooner in winter quarters, for I don't intend to be fooling around Cape Cod in winter—not this winter, at least. Regards to all friends.

Yours,
IRA H. MOREHOUSE.

MARINE NEWS.

The steamer Crescent, of the Traverse Bay line, ashore on Sunday to lay up. The Cummings, of the same line, is also going into winter quarters.

The Hyperion, the new tender for the U. S. lighthouse engineer for this district, was in port Friday, bringing material for the new elevated walk to the Charlevoix pier lights. The Hyacinth takes the place that the large Gill steamer left.

During the recent heavy southwest gale the steamer Frost, went ashore at South Manitou island, broke into and was abandoned in a total wreck. Charlevoix people are bringing in full loads of jettisoned corn. The total loss on vessel and cargo will be about $[illegible]. No insurance was carried on the hull or boat, although, the cargo was fully insured.

The first definite cargo to be discharged at this port since the customs office was established here, is that of the schooner J. Duval, which this week will arrive with 140,000 feet of Pere Marquette pine for the Charlevoix Lumber Co. The deputy collector of customs for this port will collect $280, or two dollars per thousand duty. Since the above item was written word is received that the Duval is ashore at Mackinac Island. The vessel lies on the point of Mackinac Island, near the lighthouse. The captain knows she can be got off, and will uncover the cargo when weather permits. Cargo is insured.

During the morning of the engagement Bertie was seated in the sitting-room with Miss Mandeville, who had come to see her friend, and was entertained beyond the limits of politeness by the latter's gossip and good humor.

Miss Bertie, who, at the age of twenty-five, was a little beyond the bloom of youth, was a great favorite with her cousin, Mr. Marmaduke Mandeville, the head banker of the Boston metropolis, and had visited her many times without being asked to do so, and yet without being transgressive. She was a little of a gossip herself, and was very fond of hearing gossip, and, as she knew Mr. Marmaduke's tastes in this direction, she was wont to drop in upon him whenever he was at home, and, if he was not, she would go to his sister, Mrs. Mandeville, and, if she was not at home, she would go to her friend, Miss Ludwig, the banker's daughter, and, if she was not at home, she would go to Mrs. Mandeville's cousin, Mrs. Hammond, and, if she was not at home, she would go to her friend, Miss Mandeville, and, if she was not at home, she would go to her friend, Miss Ludwig, and, if she was not at home, she would go to her friend

GEO. S. CRAKES, Chairman.

DARWIN F. MEECH, Clerk.

January 7th, 1903.

Board met pursuant to adjournment, roll called, quorum present.

The following resolution regarding contagious diseases was introduced by D. S. Payton.

Resolved.—That it is the sense of this Board that a concerted effort should be made to control the useless and lavish expenditure of money in the care of so called contagious disease.

This is a growing evil that the Boards of Supervisors of the State appear to have no power to put a veto upon the indiscriminate extortion as the law now stands.

We would earnestly urge upon our Senator and Representative such an amendment of the health law as will, first: define and limit as to what diseases they shall apply. Second—To limit any expenditure at the cost of the county to the death or discharge of the patient from the Physicians care. Third—To grant to Boards of Supervisors the authority to make contracts with duly registered physicians and capable nurses for the care of such diseases, or to permit by law said boards to audit said bills after hearing from all parties who may be interested, or to amend our present Senator and Representative to have a law] act passed as has been done in other counties making special arrangements for Charlevoix County in the matter of contagious diseases. This board would recommend that a copy of so much of this resolution as refers to the amendment of the general law shall be forwarded to our Senator and Representative and ask them to do all in their power to have the same made a law.

D. S. PAYTON.

On motion John Ward's resolution was accepted and adopted.

On motion H. Lewis county boy a safe for county treasurer. (Carried.)

On motion Geo. W. Bailey, County Clerk purchase said safe and transfer it to the surveyor's place of business.

The Prosecuting Attorney approved the following bonds.

Albert L. Fitch, Circuit Court Commr.	$ 500	Sureties	J. H. Green, Horace S. Hanna.
Darwin F. Meech, County Clerk	2,000	"	Frank Stewart, Geo. Gray.
Darwin F. Meech, Register of Deeds	2,000	"	Frank Stewart, Geo. Gray.
Henry C. Gaston, County Treasurer	10,000	"	William A. Smith, John Ward, Horace S. Hanna, Robert Hall.

The bond of H. A. Thompson as Drain Commissioner was disapproved owing to the amount not being sufficient.

On motion D. S. Payton bonds that were approved by the Prosecuting Attorney, be accepted and approved. (Carried.)

On motion D. S. Payton when the board adjourns it adjourn until February 17th, 1903, to take into consideration the raising of a dam on Deer Creek known as Porter's Dam, and such other business as shall legally come before it. (Carried.)

Report of committee to visit County Farm.

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Charlevoix County.

GENTLEMEN

Your committee to visit the county farm would respectfully submit the following report:

We did on the 12th day of Dec. visit the farm and found it in charge of Geo. Camp, wife and son, at a salary of fifty dollars a month. We found the buildings and premises in clean, neat, orderly condition. We also found seven acres of ground sowed to winter wheat, fifteen acres ploughed for spring crops and approximately 20 tons of hay in the barn; 80 bushels of wheat; 75 bushels of oats, 50 bushels of of potatoes and 50 bushels of beans; 3 milch cows, 1 heifer and seven other cattle; 3 horses, 1 colt and 1 sheep. The stock is all in good condition, also 9 pigs of pork, 1 ton sauerkraut, vegetables and canned fruit to last until spring, also fuel enough to last through the winter. The house is heated by a furnace and it is in good working order. There are at the present time 12 inmates at the county house, three with the keeper and his help occupy the entire part of the building that is furnished off and three at the hospital occupy the adjacent building. Therefore your committee would recommend that the north end of the main building on the second floor be finished off and that one of the rooms be finished to accommodate "insane" persons. Also that a closet sink bath room be put in on the first and one on the second floor with sewerage and cost pool. The cost of said improvements not to exceed, $1200. All of which is respectfully submitted.

Charlevoix, Mich., Jan. 8th, 1903.

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Charlevoix County.

GENTLEMEN

Your special committee appointed to inspect the furnace in the county building have made such inspection and would respectfully report.

We find that the jacket surrounding the boiler is badly sprung evidently warped by the heat but we are informed by the janitor that it has been in this condition for some time and that the furnace will continue to do its work the balance of the winter without repair. And would recommend that a new furnace be put in before next winter, as the piping in the old furnace is too small to heat the amount of radiator surface required in this building. Would recommend that the sheriff of appointed to see that this be done.

Respectfully Submitted,

John Ward, George Long, Wm Gray, Committee.

On motion Geo. Bailey, report was accepted and adopted.

The following petition was presented.

SIRS.—Whereas at the 1902 October session of this honorable body a petition praying that a certain portion of the Finmer and Grand Traverse State Road be vacated and discontinued, for the reasons as set out in said petition, was presented to this honorable body on the 17th day of October said petition was duly granted and, Whereas said petition was not signed by a sufficient number of freeholders of the Township through which said Finmer and Grand Traverse State Road passes and for other reasons bearing upon the legality of said action.

I respectfully petition as attorney for the Township of Marion and Charlevoix that this honorable body reconsider their action granting said petition and deny the prayer of said Petitioners. Such action will correct all errors and place said petitioners in a position to secure the necessary number of signers and to give this honorable body jurisdiction.

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan.

Sirs: We, the undersigned freeholders of the Township of Charlevoix, do hereby make application to you, the said board of supervisors to discontinue that portion of the Finmer and Grand Traverse State road in said township of Charlevoix, running as follows, to wit: Commencing at a point south 16 1 degrees west and 7.15-100 chains from the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 31 township 34 north of range 7 west, and following along the line of the said Finmer and Grand Traverse State road to where it crosses the township line between the township of Charlevoix and the township of Marion, which said State road is not included within the corporate limits of any city and village. The reasons for the above petition are

1.—That the portion of the Finmer and Grand Traverse State road lying in the Township of Charlevoix, together with a portion of the said State road extending into the Township of Marion and described in the petition presented for the discontinuance of the portion of the said Finmer and Grand Traverse State road that lies in the Township of Marion, passes over a very steep hill, which causes a great burden to all persons driving and hauling heavy loads to Charlevoix, the said Village of Charlevoix being the only available market for the products of that end of the county.

2.—We desire this portion of the said State road to be discontinued for the reason that the commissioner of highways of the Township of Charlevoix has laid out a new road commencing 2.52-100 chains east of the southwest corner of the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 31, township 34 north, range 8 west. Thence north 25 degrees 30' east 18.56-100 chains; thence north 87 degrees east 91 chains to the center of the Finmer and Grand Traverse State road, said point being south 16 1 degrees west and 7.15-100 chains distant from the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 31, township 34, north, range 8 west. The said new road laid out by the said commissioner of highways being laid out and established in connection with the action taken by the commissioner of highways of the township of Marion. The said Township of Marion, by its commissioner of highways, having laid out and established a new road as laid out by the commissioner of highways of the Township of Charlevoix. The two portions of the new road as laid out and established avoid the said steep hill and grade known as the Vosburg Hill.

3.—It would be a burden upon the Township of Charlevoix to maintain the two roads as they are laid out and, being more desirable to avoid the said Vosburg hill, the above petitioners do petition that the said road passing over the said steep hill shall be discontinued and vacated, inasmuch as the said new road is practically level, well graded and graveled. Dated at the Township of Charlevoix the 17th day of Feb. A D 1903. D Jacobs, D D Lewis, C. A. Shepard, A. Allen, J. A. Markham, Chas F. Fox, John Bell, H H Ross, Isaac S Mittlesen, A A Sellnica, Robert Madill, A G Chalmpka and 1 n. ness.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage dated 1st day of November, A. D. 1899, made by Ira Ward and Ella Ward, his wife, of Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, mortgagors, to Jacob Kamm, of Charlevoix, Michigan, mortgagee, and recorded November 8th, A. D. 1899, in Liber 50 of mortgages on page 500 in the office of the Register of Deeds for said County of Charlevoix, in the State of Michigan, on which said mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of one hundred and twenty dollars and twenty cents ($120.20) and no suit or proceeding having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage. Now therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, I shall sell the premises described in said mortgage, viz: Lots one (1) and two (2) in Block one (1) in Kamm's Addition to the Village of Boyne City, according to the recorded plat thereof, at public vendue, at the Court House in the Village of Charlevoix, in said County of Charlevoix, on the 7th day of March, A. D. 1903, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to pay said debt and the costs and expenses of foreclosure and attorney fee allowed by law, and a sufficient amount to satisfy said mortgage. Now therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, I shall sell the premises described in said mortgage, viz: Lots one (1) and two (2) in Block one (1) in Kamm's Addition to the Village of Boyne City, according to the recorded plat thereof, at public vendue, at the Court House in the Village of Charlevoix, in said County of Charlevoix, on the 7th day of March, A. Blind

During Attacks Of Heart Failure.

Would Appear To Be Dead.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Relieved and Cured.

"I have no hesitation in saying that Dr. Miles' Heart Cure saved my life one night in June. I was troubled with heart disease for two years. I had many different attacks, but the last one I tried Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and found it was the best. I was so bad I could not walk across the room without stopping to rest. I was so short of breath that I could not lie down for fear I would choke to death. I was so weak that I could not raise my arms to comb my hair. I would be sitting in a chair or sofa and I would be sound asleep in a minute. I had to be propped up in bed. I was so nervous that I could not stand the least noise. I was so bad that I was completely unfitted for my duties as a wife and mother. I had tried many other remedies without any benefit, but the first dose of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure I took relieved me. I slept all that night and the next day I was able to walk in my room and do some little chores. I was able to be up most of the time and could do my housework in two weeks. I have not had a bad spell since. I can walk a mile without fatigue. I can do my housework and have enough left for other work. I can sew, knit, crochet, read and do anything I want to. I have been taking my first bottle. I have been without it for two weeks. I do not take any medicine for any ailment. I do my own housework and have taken in washing. I can do as much work as any woman of my age. I am 45 years old. I am a mother of four grown children. I cannot say too much for Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I shall always recommend it to my friends and neighbors." Mrs. Ella Wilson, Ashland, Ohio.

"My symptoms well and positive first before I took the medicine, and before half a bottle was gone I was free from all symptoms of heart trouble. I can now do my work without any trouble. I can walk a mile without fatigue." Address Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

THE SALARIES OF MINISTERS.

Writer in Leslie's Weekly Declares They Are Too Small.

Probably no class of workers has actually shown more self-sacrifice than the ministry during the past five years than clergymen. Their wants and living has greatly increased in these years, while their stipends, as a rule, have remained stationary or actually diminished by the character of the times. In many of the poor districts one sees in increasing numbers, ministers on foot, with scarcely the merest shred upon them to clothe their families, or, perhaps, in the pulpit, in the same time, with his linen in evidence as a statement of claims as soon as heard, as the clergyman of a fashionable city or of the community in which he lives. As a matter of fact, if his average salary paid to ministers throughout the country were increased at once by fifty per cent, it would only be an act of common justice and fair dealing in a class of men so unlike the country from its labors for more light and leadership than from any other cause. STUDENT KILLED IN FRATERNITY INITIATION

Young Associate Reveals Details of Rough Treatment to Which Martin Lowe Was Subjected—Surgeon Are Failed to Have Young Woman.

Dr. Lorenzo Hasselquist of New York City, dentist, of Mount Iowa, a north central Michigan resort, admitted to-night that he was present at the initiation at which Martin Lowe, a Grand Rapids freshman, died last week from injuries received in the rites of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity at Ann Arbor. The dentist said he had been a member of the fraternity for two years, but had failed to pass the Ann Arbor chapter because of his age. He said he had not taken part in the initiation of any candidate, but had witnessed the initiation of two men. Two years ago, he said, he was a member of the chapter at Ann Arbor, but was not present at the initiation of any candidate.

Dr. Hasselquist said he was called to the house at about 8 o'clock on the night of the initiation, and was ordered to leave the room. He said he was told that Lowe was being "knocked around a little bit." He said he was ordered out of the room because he was a guest, and was not a member of the fraternity.

Dr. Hasselquist said he was called to the house a second time, and was ordered to leave the room. He said he was told that Lowe was being "knocked around a little more." He said he was ordered out of the room because he was a guest, and was not a member of the fraternity.

Dr. Hasselquist said he was called to the house a third time, and was ordered to leave the room. He said he was told that Lowe was being "knocked around a little more." He said he was ordered out of the room because he was a guest, and was not a member of the fraternity.

Dr. Hasselquist said he was called to the house a fourth time, and was ordered to leave the room. He said he was told that Lowe was being "knocked around a little more." He said he was ordered out of the room because he was a guest, and was not a member of the fraternity.

Dr. Hasselquist said he was called to the house a fifth time, and was ordered to leave the room. He said he was told that Lowe was being "knocked around a little more." He said he was ordered out of the room because he was a guest, and was not a member of the fraternity.

Dr. Hasselquist said he was called to the house a sixth time, and was ordered to leave the room. He said he was told that Lowe was being "knocked around a little more." He said he was ordered out of the room because he was a guest, and was not a member of the fraternity.

Dr. Hasselquist said he was called to the house a seventh time, and was ordered to leave the room. He said he was told that Lowe was being "knocked around a little more." He said he was ordered out of the room because he was a guest, and was not a member of the fraternity.

Dr. Hasselquist said he was called to the house an eighth time, and was ordered to leave the room. He said he was told that Lowe was being "knocked around a little more." He said he was ordered out of the room because he was a guest, and was not a member of the fraternity.

Dr. Hasselquist said he was called to the house a ninth time, and was ordered to leave the room. He said he was told that Lowe was being "knocked around a little more." He said he was ordered out of the room because he was a guest, and was not a member of the fraternity.

Dr. Hasselquist said he was called to the house a tenth time, and was ordered to leave the room. He said he was told that Lowe was being "knocked around a little more." He said he was ordered out of the room because he was a guest, and was not a member of the fraternity.

Dr. Hasselquist said he was called to the house an eleventh time, and was ordered to leave the room. He said he was told that Lowe was being "knocked around a little more." He said he was ordered out of the room because he was a guest, and was not a member of the fraternity.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Several strong applications have been received for the position of special Normal teacher in the County Training School. The Board are anxious to get the best candidate available for the work, one who has had considerable experience in teaching rural schools is a full Normal graduate, and capable and willing to act as a kind of educational "missionary" for the all the schools and teachers in the county.

The new Commercial Room is now nearly complete in its equipment except the steam radiators, which have not yet arrived. Two long double desks, accommodating twelve students each, include ample room for work in book keeping as nearly as possible under the same conditions as prevail in actual business. Students who are taking the full commercial course fill all their work in this room, and the new typewriter is in constant use. The new plan is a vast improvement upon the attempt to give business instruction in the High School room.

The Board of Education have ordered Tiffany's Industrial-Nature Calendar for use in all the grades of our schools, with the understanding that the schools themselves will undertake to pay for it during the year. The calendar contains forty-eight heavy cards, 15 by 22 inches in area, on which are mounted real samples of the various seeds, grains, grasses, textiles, and minerals used in commerce. These specimens and their modes of manufacture are explained on the cards and in a series of pamphlet articles by specialists. Among others, there are pieces of baking sugar from beets in fully smoke, the exhibit of silk worms, eggs, cocoons, and moths, and the various forms of manufactured silk is especially complete and instructive. The calendar will be especially valuable as a basis for composition work and illustrations in geography study.

The teachers in the vicinity of Pine Lake will meet in Charlevoix on Saturday, Nov. 21, for the purpose of getting acquainted. Full delegations from Boyne Falls, Boyne City, East Jordan, South Arm, Advance, Bay Springs, and Horton's Bay are expected. The invitation is generously extended to all teachers in the county who may find this notice. An inexpensive dinner will be served at noon, at the Hartlett House, after which an excursion will be taken to the sugar factory. The morning recitations are expected to meet from 9 to 10 a. m. at the High School and get acquainted with Normal School members. An opportunity will also be given to inspect the new Commercial Room and some specimens of drawing from the various grades. The gathering will be entirely informal and all citizens who are interested in our schools are cordially invited to visit the building during the forenoon. The new Industrial Nature Calendar will be exhibited if received in time.

Opportunities in Northern Michigan.

Many people believe that there is no opportunity for taking up land and making a home except in the far Western prairies or in the Canadian Northwest, while as a matter of fact there are thousands of acres of good land to be had close at home. The importance of the lumber and mining industries of Northern Michigan have somewhat obscured the opportunities awaiting the homeseeker and the farmer.

The lands in Northern Michigan are rich in timber and the soil is productive of every crop know in the temperate region. For health and strength the climate is all that could be desired. The small farmer can find ready employment and good wages while he is clearing and cultivating his farm. The soil meets every requirement of agriculture in general. Grains grown include wheat, oats, rye, barley, buckwheat and corn. Apples, pears, peaches and plums yield profitable returns. All kinds of vegetables, including sugar beets, can be profitably grown. Good pastures and stock beds are to be had on every hand.

Some assert that the time has passed when willing hands can make a home in the United States, and the salubrity howlers continue to cry that the country is filling up too rapidly. In proof of their assertions they point to the overgrowing and ever-crowded cities, where masses of the population are forced to endure a hand-to-mouth existence. They assert that all this misery is due to the fact that the poor have no longer the a chance to make a home in this country.

The truth is that every wide-awake man with good sense has the means of making himself independently rich. Capital is not necessary; savings, even, to any great extent, are not required.—Farm Life.

The Sugar Factory.

It begins to look like sugar up at the sugar factory. About two hundred tons of beets are in the sheds, and the amount arriving daily is increasing in large bulks.

Seventeen car loads of coal were being unloaded Monday and more is on the way here.

The machinery is all set up, and now the experts are going about correcting small imperfections, putting on belts, fitting shafts, and testing pumps.

The factory whistle was blown for the first time Friday afternoon. Just to try it, we hope.

Local Grange Matters.

The order of Patrons of Husbandry, or the Grange, as it is commonly called, is in a very flourishing condition in this county. Reports from ten subordinate Granges showed a total membership of over 500, with treasuries in good condition.

Marion Center Granges proved to be the busiest Grange for the quarter, in increase of membership and active work.

E. H. Ward and wife were elected to represent the Pomona at the State Grange Dec 5th. Several resolutions were adopted, through its legislative committee, to use all just means to secure the enactment of a primary election law.

The election resulted in the following officers for the ensuing year: W. M., E. H. Ward, W. O., Martin Hitting, Steward, O. H. Hammond, Assistant Steward, J. Johnson, chaplain, Mrs. McMorran, treasurer, H. Hank, G. K. Nelson Lyndsley, lady assistant steward, Ida Pope; lady Ceres, Ann Neville, Pomona, Mrs. J. Heber; Flora, Belle Mitchell.

The next meeting will be held with south Arm Grange in March.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Room, Nov 12, 1898.

At the adjourned meeting of the council held on the above date there were present Pres. E. W. Cutler, and Trustees Rose, Washburn, Wilbur, McMillan and Campbell.

The proposition of Arthur Williams for a franchise for the purpose of erecting and maintaining a telephone system in this village was presented and discussed and on motion the matter was referred to the committee on streets and side walks.

The commissioner of streets reported amount of bill against Township of Charlevoix to be $115.50 for crushed stone.

Council Adjourned.

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, and that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs C. H. VanMeter of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says "I had a severe case of bronchitis and for years tried everything I heard of but got no relief. The bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. Druggists. NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The famous pile of sawdust at Ontonagon is to be converted into alcohol and wood alcohol but ethyl alcohol—under the process discovered by a German chemist named Classen. The Ontonagon people have long claimed that they had the biggest sawdust pile in the world, but will be glad to see it worked up and disappear finally.

The town is also going to have electric lights, and an extra telephone line. Wilbur H. Campbell, who used to live over around Elmhurst and teach school and do other chores for a living, while he wrote news for the country press over the assumed name of "El Jefe," is the new president of the town. He is also editor of the leader.

Hon Hugh D. Williams of Elk Rapids, prosecuting attorney for Antrim county, had a slight stroke of paralysis last week while attending court in Bellaire. Mr. Williams' son, F. Dobson Williams, took up his father's cases, though the latter insisted in court to offer suggestions. Mr. Williams was taken home to Elk Rapids Friday morning. The stroke which affected the left side of his body and face has been shown to have been a light one, and almost an entire recovery is confidently looked for in time.

At present the Cameron Lumber Co has not fully decided what course to pursue at Torch lake. General Manager Cameron informed the Central Lake Torch that they would doubtless rebuild the saw mill but on a smaller scale as they have a couple or three years longer cut of timber there. Possibly they may move the Ludington saw mill there. However Torch Lake is not dead and the Torch predicts several years of activity at the little town yet. For 10 years that has been one of the busiest places in Northern Michigan and the amount of business done is marvelous.

GOOD ROADS—WHEN?

State Road Commissioner Earle Tells Us a Few Things on the Subject.

DEAR EDITOR:

Discussing what kind of roads to build before there is anything to build and any kind suits, reminds me of the old adage, "don't cement your chickens before they are hatched," and also my fathers advice, "after finding out what a disease hoeing" M's father was one of those farmers down in "old" Vermont and lived on one of those farms that was on every road we had to take the sheep by the third rail, wheelbarrow fashion and dive them round in between the stones so that they could get what little grass that did grow, and so was not very rich, for this kind of farming does not insure the deposit in the treasury very fast, and the meaning of the above saying to his children was—before determining what kind of hoeing we children would make, it would be advisable to plant the potatoes first, take care what he needed to put in the cellar for our own use, then determine what there was left, and use what we could get a bushel, multiply the bushel by the price and this amount divide by the number of rows of rent to buy hoeing tips, then we would be in a position to discuss sensibly what kind of hoeing we should do.

A great deal of discussion is going on, and I am as guilty as any other one and perhaps much more, about what kind of roads we are to build in Michigan, whether of gravel, clay and sand mixed, limestone, hard head macadam etc. Yet we have not spent a dollar on roads to build a first-class road. Lots on clay and gravel roads, take accident of stock divide the amount that we can raise by the number of miles of hard and go about this business in a business like manner.

Or in other words, let us consider how, when the roads will be a blessing to us if improved, then find out how much improved roads will benefit them, and if they can and will pay the tax levy to improve the roads then we will have an idea of the amount that we can invest in improved roads, then measure the roads that need to be improved and give to each one or ten miles that the amount that can be raised equitably will allow when divided by the amount of road to be improved.

Where Are The Potatoes To Sell?

In my fathers family there were three boys and one girl, and father and mother. Did each rightfully have an interest in the potatoes to sell? Father did the heeding and so well that all of his boys left the farm as soon as they had a right to, because he did his share of the work, of course he had a right to the potatoes. Mother cooked our food, taught us the scripture lessons and mended our pants where father had previously taken the first out of them, and as good mother, she too had an interest in the surplus stock of potatoes. Sister helped mother and by so doing earned her interest in the potatoes. Us boys planted, harvested, removed stone used in the hill, carried, hoed, dug and broke our backs picking up with frozen fingers occasionally thawed out at a burning stump, so I reckon that we had an equity in the potatoes to spare.

So as we had all contributed, we all had a right and so did get our share of loots.

There is a United States Corporation, in which we all own stock. This corporation keeps an army and navy to protect all who own stock. We are all protected alike because we have our own fathers before us planted, hoed and dug and sold and accumulated until the greatest corporation farm in the world in the United States of America. Then we should all share in the surplus potatoes shoulder to shoulder. Further, the rain falls on the just and unjust alike, and without any intention to force diverse the wisdom of a protective tariff nevertheless we have one, and certain kinds of potatoes (manufactured articles) are protected by this tariff and their owners which have them to sell and who by this protection are assisted in getting a better price for them, as well as the potato (mechanic) digger better wages ought to be willing that we all should share in the surplus stock of potatoes (the money accumulated at Washington). In this wise our can this money be put, others than schooling, to be of so much benefit as it can be in letting the mouth.

In another company we all have stock, and its name is the Michigan Conservative Company. This company gives state aid to educate its stock holders children. This primary school money goes to all a certain high standard of scholarship, that could not be had, if each locality depended on itself, that is in a poor township the school would be poor and in a rich one or in the city the school would be good, but on account of the state aid, all are good to the benefit of all stock holders.

Why not have a Primary fund report, which would make it possible to have good roads all over the state, that is leading roads, while now—in rich towns the roads can be good, but in poor ones they are like an ice bridge in the spring. Why not have enough potatoes to sell to any more than buy the lower beeds?

We all have stock in a smaller company the Township Improvement Association, the name implies why township, any township, any where they are formed too. As each stock holder in this company and on this farm contributes something toward the planting, hoeing or digging, all should have a right to participate in the issues if they be a factor, and then they ought to have an equal right to have a place to sell what they have and the latter the roads to walk on the former they will walk and the finest potatoes they will be able to place on and dig. And when they are hauled to market, it will only cost about half as much to haul them, so that there will be a much more money to buy boots and a place to wear them.

Host Fund at Washington or Lansing, and in Township Treasury.

For every dollar that the township pays up, the state should add another and the government should match as the two, so that if any township pays up $200, the state and government should meet this with a $400, making $600 available in any township that has an organization to help itself every year, then and only then, will we have good roads on all main roads and of course it will be some years before we get them, but every year will bring us nearer to the desired standard.

HORACE S. EARLE,
State Highway Com.

A CRISIS.

Construction Work at the Sugar Factory Suspended Last Saturday Night.

After building and practically completing a plant at a cost of about $150,000, and meeting its pay-roll every saturday night, the National Construction Co., last saturday night, defaulted on its pay rolls for the past three weeks, and the entire force of about 100 men stopped work on the Sugar factory. The situation by Monday morning developed into rumoring of a labor panic, and things went so far as to cause steps for an attachment on the factory.

Communication was opened up by Supt. Hartzig with the Detroit office, and evidently the "main plank" of the Construction Co. was up to a realization of the seriousness of the situation and by Tuesday morning affairs were arranged so as to avert any attachment proceedings, and provisions made for the payment of the men.

The situation should in no way be connected with the Charlevoix Sugar Co. This organization and the National Construction Co. are entirely separate concerns. The Sugar Co. is in no way responsible for the tempest in a teapot that came Saturday. But it is a very regrettable that just as the plant was almost ready to go into operation, for the work of $150,000 of the total investment of $150,000, the manufacture of sugar was made an impossibility this year, but such is the case.

An element that was equally as potent as the Construction Co's delay, in bringing about this condition of affairs, is the severe weather that has prevailed, the past two weeks and which promises to continue. This brought into the situation the unshipped and unharvested beet crops, which are an asset of the sugar company. Had the word on the factory been two or three weeks further ahead, every beet would have come to the Charlevoix factory, but the sugar company, at the next moment, had to face the enormous responsibility of carrying out its contracts with the farmers and it will do it to the letter.

A favorable feature of the situation, so far as the sugar company is concerned, was the expense of other factories to secure the Charlevoix beets, and they will be disposed of as they were last fall, shipped to Saginaw. Shipments have already begun, and every beet grown is being taken care of just the same as if the factory were in operation.

The situation now is this. The Charlevoix sugar factory is practically completed. It would require two or three weeks, however to put it in shape for the manufacture of sugar this winter. The early severe winter weather makes the hazard too great to attempt to handle the large beet crop. The Charlevoix Sugar Co., is solvent, not squeaky on its feet for the year 1898. It will prepare for a big vigorous crop campaign, and will make sugar just as early the fall of 1899 as the beets can be taken from the ground.

Charlevoix is in no way interested in the National Construction Co., which is only a contractor, and nothing has occurred to throw a cloud on the sugar factory enterprise. That is practically the property of the sugar company when it is completed and turned over. The delay in completing the factory is a matter between the two concerns, and is none of our business.

The sugar factory is here and it is here to stay, and it is backed by men who have plenty of money, and who are bound to make it a success.

It is only fair to Supt. Hartzig to say that throughout this little flurry, he has acted the part of an honorable man, and has the entire confidence of the men.

Bellaire Independent: J. J. McLaughlin, the oldest living settler of Elk Rapids, and one of the earliest pioneers of the Grand Traverse region, is very low according to a dispatch to yesterday's Traverse City Evening Record. It is feared he may die. Mr. McLaughlin came into the Grand Traverse region in 1847, cutting the first stick of timber on the present site of Northport. He moved to Elk Rapids in 1851, where he conducted the first boarding house for the late A. S. Wadsworth. Mr. McLaughlin was formerly judge of probate for this county, and is now supervisor from Elk Rapids township, county agent for the state board of corrections and charities, and vice president of the Old Settler's Association for Antrim county.

PROCEEDINGS

Of the Board Supervisors of Charlevoix County, For The Year 1903.

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of the County of Charlevoix State of Michigan.

Sirs:—We, the undersigned freeholders of the Township of Marion respectfully make application to you, the said Board of Supervisors to discontinue that portion of the Emmet and Inwood Traverse State road in the said Township of Marion running as follows, viz:—Commencing at a point 7 12-100 chains from the southeast corner of the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section 8, township 31 north, range 6 west and following along the line on the east, south and west of Traverse State road to where it crosses the township line between the Township of Charlevoix and the Township of Marion which said road is now included with the corporate limits of any city or village. The reasons for the above petition are

1.—That the portion of the Emmet and Grand Traverse State road lying in the Township of Marion together with a portion of the east and west road extending into the Township of Charlevoix and described in the petition presented to the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Charlevoix County, and Grand Traverse State road that lies in the Township of Charlevoix, passes over a very steep hill which causes a great burden to the persons drawing and hauling heavy loads to Charlevoix or the Village of Harbor Springs, it being the only available market for the product of that section of the country.

2.—We desire this petition of the township of Marion be granted for the reason that the commissioner of highways of the Township of Charlevoix has laid out a new road commencing at the 1/4 post on the east line of the southwest corner of the southwest quarter of section 36, town ship 31 north, range 6 west. Thence with 25 degrees 30 east 15 20-100 chains, thence north 31 degrees 30 minutes west 9 10-100 chains to the center of the Emmet and Grand Traverse State road. The said new road as laid out and established by the said commissioner of highways of Charlevoix township being duly and legally established in connection with the action taken by the commissioner of highways of the Township of Marion, north detecting course the commissioner of highways having laid out and established a new road as follows, viz:—From the north east corner of the south east quarter of section 8 township 31 north range 6 west, 40 rds. chains to the center of the chains and Grand Traverse State road, and set stake for the south end of the proposed change, thence with south east course 11 degrees 30 minutes east 10 degrees west 121 links, and a maple 7 in diameter bears south 12 degrees east 15 links. State road is south 12 degrees east, 30 degrees west, thence south 32 degrees 30 east 3 20-100 chains. Thence north 32 degrees 30 east 4 chains 50 links to degrees 30 to the center line between the township of Marion and Charlevoix. Said new road joining and connecting with the said new road as established by the township of Charlevoix. Said new road is to be 4 rods wide and to follow as near the line now laid out as possible, avoid the steep hill and gravel known as the Cushing hill.

3.—It would be a burden to the township of Marion to maintain the two roads as they are laid out and it would more desirable to divert the said running hill the above petitioners petition that the road passing over the said steep hill be discontinued and vacated, the road on the said new road is practically good well graded and gravelled.

To whom John Wass the prayer of the above petitioners be granted with the proviso that the Township of Marion and Charlevoix shall lay out suitable roads for the people about off by the closing of the said state road carried.

Petition of W. A. and D. C. Loveday for permission to construct a dam across Deer Creek.

Petition to the board of supervisors for leave to construct a dam across Deer Creek in Charlevoix county.

To the board of supervisors of the county of Charlevoix, in the State of Michigan.

Your petitioners, the undersigned respectfully show unto your honorable board, for the purpose of this petition and your official action thereon as follows, namely:

—That your petitioners are residents of the township of South Arm and Village of East Jordan, to said county.

—That said Deer Creek is a stream running from the easterly side through the entire southerly part and across the westerly side of town 32 north of range 8 west and emptying into the Jordan River on section 26, in town 32 north of range 7 west, all of it being in said County of Charlevoix.

—That said Deer Creek is not navigable for boats or vessels of any kind, for any purpose, but is navigable, in part at least, for the floating of logs, timber and small boats only.

—That your petitioners are the owners in fee, one of the other of them, and by tenure for both, of the south east quarter of the south west S. E. 1/4 of S. W. 1/4 of section twenty five (25) in said town thirty two (32) north of range seven (7) west. Through said down and along of said the value of said stream of lands through which it runs that. Thereof up to the east side of the aforesaid quarters, S. 1/4 of the south west quarters, W. 1/4 of section thirty (30) in town thirty two (32) north of range six (6) west and constituting all the land in said thirty of said town. Same to be overflowed by any dam that across said stream on said forty acre parcel hereinabove first described except some few acres on a part of one forty acre parcel on one side of said stream now owned by another party.

—That your petitioner on leave therefore being granted, by your honorable board, to them, propose to build, to close to be built either for themselves or for a company or corporation to be hereafter organized by them, for utilizing the same dam across said stream for the purpose, at the location and of the height and description hereinafter set forth.

—The purpose of said dam will be to consume the energy of said stream at the location thereof as hereinafter designated for developing water power thereof, to be applied to generating electricity and other useful objects

—Said dam to be from old stone and Deer Creek where said stream crosses the extreme westerly side of said s. e. 1/4 of the S. W. 1/4 of section 25, town 32 north of range 8 west, in the township of South Arm in said county at the present site of what is generally known as or called, the "Power mill pond" thereon and on which the dam as now thereon is to be utilized as may be found to be practicable.

—The height of said dam may, and is designed ultimately to be made sufficient to produce a thirty two foot head at the crest thereof where the normal level of said stream at the place —To remove obstructions to, and increase the flowage of the stream lied below the proposed dam, may be cleared out for the distance of about 80 rods.

—To said dam it was also proposed to construct a log chute as here inafter described, and such a log chute or lattice as may be required by the inspector of dams for said township of South Arm or the Sec com. of the state.

—The dam and log chute therein are proposed to be constructed substantially as described below viz, namely. The down stream face of the dam and the frame and log chute walls are to be made of solid hydraulic concrete All concrete shall consist of one part best Portland cement and six parts good clean sand and gravel, all to be thoroughly mixed dry, then sprayed to proper degree of moisture, rammed then put in place while fresh and well tempered. The thickness and height of the concrete facing wall of dam to be uniform after specified and the whole to be backed with solid earth filling clean up to the level of dam crest, except a space of thirty feet in width north and south, directly under the log chute and flume. This space is to be filled only to the floors of the flume, log chute, and the wheel. Rear but must be filled clear back to the head gates of the log chute and flume. The filling is to be of good earth free from all lumps and vegetable matter well moistened and thoroughly tamped. The earth backing of the dam both north and south of the log chute will be 10 feet wide of dam crest and slope 1 to 1 on the up stream side. The concrete portion of the dam as proposed will be substantially as follows. The central section of about 50 feet in length will have a base width of ten feet a total height of 45 feet with a width or thickness at crest of three feet. The wall will batter in its center face about one foot and will overlap on its base face about one foot. The base of this section shall be about ten feet below normal stream level, and 10 feet from the down stream toe of the dam. The wing walls of the flume and the log chute shall be two feet thick at the base and at the center face about one foot and will overlap on the base face about one foot. The base of this section will

Acting Adjutant Has Given Active Force in His Annual Report.

The annual report of Acting Adjutant Gen. Hall, which has been made public, shows that the strength of the army at the end of the year was 100,000 men, which was a gain of 2,000 men for the year. The number of desertions was 4,000 as against 3,000 last year. The number of enlistments was 24,000 as against 21,000 last year. The number of men of bad character is considerably reduced. The number of men who have served their time and have gone into civil life is 20,000. The number of men who have served their time and have re-enlisted is 10,000. The number of men who have served their time and have re-enlisted is 10,000. The number of men who have served their time and have re-enlisted is 10

H. M. Thomas, foreman of the jury in the Gaige Warden Spafford case, who has been in jail for two months was tried at Frankfort last week for perjury and acquitted. Spafford has not appeared yet, but it is reported the governor has issued a new pardon.

Traverse City Eagle: Rev. Hugh Kennedy at 3:00 yesterday afternoon performed the ceremony which united Mr. George Stevenson and Miss Jessie Robinson in the holy bonds of matrimony. Both parties are from Charlevoix and they were married at the home of the bride's sister Mrs. Joseph Nelson of 224 Madison avenue. They left for Charlevoix on the noon train, where they will make their home.

One of the unique sights in Boyne is the huge stack of logs which is growing into mammoth portions by the aid of a steam log loader. This is the first huge jack here in years and probably the last, as this was caused by the putting in of a new engine. It is a great curiosity to traveling men and the stack is behind a pile 300 feet long, 125 feet wide and 25 feet high at its apex. Between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 feet of lumber are in this gigantic deck of logs, mostly hard maple and hemlock.

Word comes now that Ben Eaton, "the-all-in-all" reported as serving a life sentence in a western state prison for murder, is now in Mexico "the-all-in-all, but instead is conducting a saloon business at Saint Point, Mexico. This is according to a letter just received by ex-Sheriff Troy of Cadillac from S. M. Jones, a former Boyne Falls man who is now at Saint Point. Therefore, minus further information comes we'll not consider Ben Eaton as a convict, which will be pleasantest news to Boyne and friends in this vicinity.—Petoskey News.

The farmers of Wexford county are evidently losing more than the dollars and cents involved in the proposition through not going more largely into sugar beet raising. Some fellow who has given the sugar beet subject more than a little consideration says that success in the cultivation of sugar beets depends largely upon first being able to raise a good beet family. He explains that a sugar beet family means about ten or a dozen boys or girls with about a year or so difference in their ages. President Roosevelt probably had in mind the fact that the institutes of the United States as a sugar beet producing country to his declaration against race suicide. The sugar beet family suggests, we are told, a good explanation of why the foreigner can secure more beets from the same amount of territory that can even be secured by the aggressive and inventive Yankee.

The following dispatch to the Traverse City Daily Eagle from Kalkaska, dated Monday, will be of interest to Petoskey people: "There is considerable talk here about the proposed change in the route of the Pere Marquette railroad from Kalkaska to the main line. As the route now is the June junction occurs at Rapid City. But by the proposed route it would occur four or five miles north of the small villages of Bingo, Lapeer and Baker on the present branch would not be touched unless some of the lighter traffic were still sent by the present route. The reason for the proposed change is the fact that on the present road between this place and Rapid City occurs the Lapeer hill, which, though not a very steep hill, is extremely long and difficult for a heavy train to make in the opposite direction needs to stealth at all for many miles. The spur which runs from Clare on the main line, may be continued by the proposed route and the distance between Petoskey and Detroit would by that means be shortened about 60 miles.

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. VanNeste of Staffordsville, W. Va., says "I had a severe case of bronchitis and for years tried everything I heard of but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me completely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. Drain Commissioner's Report.

To the Board of Supervisors of the County of Charlevoix.

GENTLEMEN—In compliance with the provisions of Sec. 7 of Chapter 11 of Act No. 264 of the Public Acts of 1897, I have the honor to submit my annual report as County Drain Commissioner of said County of Charlevoix covering the period from October 1902, to the 12th day of October 1903. The following named drain was left undrained, the town drain situated in the township of Pleasing in said county. The original petition for this drain was filed with the county clerk June the 2nd 1903 the petition has fourteen signatures. The survey was made July 27th 1903 and the drain partly constructed and afterwards partially filled up with logs and stone on June the 30th 1903, I received a petition to clean out, deepen, widen and extend the drain. On going over the ground I decided that it was a necessity that the drain should be cleaned out extended and generally repaired. On looking the matter up I found my predecessor in office has not secured a right of way from Daniel D. Boyle whose premises the drain crosses and I being unable to get the right of way from him, I proceeded in accordance with Sec 4 of Chapter 11 of the drain laws of Michigan, and petitioned the Hon. Judge of Probate to appoint three special commissioners, the following named gentlemen were appointed Wm J Gallagher, James McCann, Sr., and Magnus Bonner whom I met with on September 3rd, 1903, at Bonner's hotel at the Village of St. James, Beaver Island, Mich., who after viewing the premises decided that it was necessary that said drain should be cleaned out and extended. I have been unable to get any farther with this drain up to the present time. The time expended up to the present time is,

Twelve days at $10.00	$120 00
Three Com. one day at $10.00 per day	30 00
Order to Daniel D. Boyle for right-of-way	5 00
Total	$155 00

I expect to be able to finish this drain this fall. On October 5th, 1902, I received a petition signed by twelve free holders of the township of Charlevoix and Marion to establish and construct a drain in those two townships. After looking the ground over and making a survey I the proposed route I decided that it was necessary for the convenience and welfare of the public that such drain should be constructed and opened. I therefore on the 3rd day of November A. D. 1902 made an order that such drain should be established and constructed and should be known as Mill Creek Drain. After procuring the right of way from all parties whose land the said drain crosses I then proceeded to advertise and let the contract for the construction of the said drain. After advertising and posting notices according to the requirements of the law on the 16th day of June, A. D., 1903, the contracts were let for the construction of the said drain. At present the work is nearly all done I expect to be able to complete this drain this fall. In doing this work I have spent twenty seven and one half days all told. My work comes to $82.50. In February I received from the county $23 being a balance due from the Mill Creek Drain $49.50. The amount assessed to the Mill Creek Special Assessment District is $1425.00 or thereabouts; the expense of the drain when completed will be somewhere between $1250.00 and $1300.00 this will leave a small amount on hand after everything is completed. All of which is respectfully submitted.

Hiram A. Thompson, County Drain Com.

On motion G W Bailey report was accepted and adopted.

On motion D S Payton, board took a recess until 1:30 p m.

After recess—County Farm

To the Hon. Board of Supervisors of Charlevoix County

GENTLEMEN—Your special committee on County Farm would respectfully submit the following report. We did on the 15th day of July visit the county farm and found there the following: 10 tons of hay in the barn in good condition; 12 acres of oats; 5 acres of wheat, 18 acres of corn, 5½ acres of potatoes, 3 acres ½ wheat, and 3 for garden consisting of onions, cabbages, beans, beets, tomatoes, etc., enough to furnish the family and inmates for the winter. Plants of apples, plums and cherries to supply the table for the year. 6 milch cows, 7 two year olds, and 5 spring calves, 1 thoroughbred gallaway bull, and cow, 1 hogs and 2 litter of pigs, 7 head of horses, 2 colts. Farming tools consisting of mowers, plows, rakes and all other tools necessary for conducting a farm. We found the building finished on the first floor, the second floor lathed and ready for plastering; the building and surroundings are in a neat and tidy condition. We found the inmates in a clean condition and well cared for. Your committee would recommend that as soon as possible that bath tubs and a system of sewerage be placed in the building. All of which is respectfully submitted J H Graff, Geo Bailey and D S Payton, Com.

On motion W. Mears, report was accepted and adopted.

Report of committee on printing.

To the Hon. Board of Supervisors of Charlevoix county.

Your committee on printing after a careful examination of the agreement entered into among the publishers of the several county papers relative to the publishing the proceedings of the board of supervisors do hereby respectfully report the same, believing that its adoption would increase many times the present cost of publishing the proceedings and be no more in compliance with the law than if the same were published in any one of the papers edited by the parties subscribed to the petition.

ACCUSED BY CLICKS.

CHARGE AGAINST A MAN MADE IN UNCANNY WAY.

Letters Sent by Dying Telegrapher Served Together Form Name of Murderer—Business Partner of Victim Arrested Upon Evidence.

Arthur Williams, telegrapher employed in the Western Union office at the South Chicago station, was found dead in his office on Monday morning. Two bullets had entered his brain, one just above and the second just behind the left ear. Beside him was a revolver, from the lower length of the revolver a spent bullet had fallen. Williams was still sitting in his chair when the first man to reach the office, Thomas Ryan, a fellow telegrapher, found him. Ryan ran to the office of the Western Union company, which is located in the Illinois Steel company's office, and reported the matter to the company officials. The company officials called the police. Ryan, who was the first man to reach the office, was the first man to be questioned by the police in some hours. He was soon released, as it was found that he was at the office of the company when the shots were fired, and that he was the first man to reach the office after the shots were fired. Ryan's story was corroborated by the company officials.

Williams was a young man of about 30 years of age, and was married. He was a native of Illinois, and was well known in telegraph circles in the city. He was employed by the Western Union company in the office in question, and was well known in South Chicago. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias, and was well known among the members of that order in the city. The police say that he was a man who had no enemies, so far as they have been able to learn, and that they have been unable to find any motive for the murder in his business or private life. He was married and had lived with his wife at his home, 2946 Ellis avenue, for more than two years. He was married two years ago last June to Miss Ella Ryan, a sister of the man who found the body of her husband. The police say that they have been able to find no motive for the murder in her life, either.

The police say that the murder was committed by someone who was familiar with the office, and who was familiar with the habits of the murdered man. The police say that the murder was committed between 7 and 8 o'clock Monday morning, and that it was not known that Williams was in his office at that time.

—Special communication of Charlevoix Lodge No. 292 F. & A. M. next Tuesday evening, Dec. 15th, for work on second degree. By order of W. M.

—Chas. Hoare the master mechanic at the sugar factory, left for Detroit Tuesday dropping the significant remark that he would return early in the spring.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Gill of Harbor Springs were here Tuesday night, and took the boat for St. James Wednesday for a few days visit here.

—The suit of Dr. Foster against the Inter Insurance Exchange for personal damages, resulted in a verdict, Friday, awarding Foster $7,000. The case will probably be appealed.

—Local advertisers are largely in evidence this week, one side or more of S. Gidwitz & Son, and M. Stiben, Levinson, Frazier, Sattelberg, A. T. Burnett & Co., J. I. Crane, and A. B. Fletcher have changes which will interest all.

—Next Monday night at twelve o'clock the closed tubing season closes, and on Tuesday early you will be surprised what one, and tubing will be pushed until the fire fly closes up business, which will not be until February 1st, and perhaps later.

—At a regular communication of Charlevoix Lodge No. 292 F. & A. M. held recently, the following officers were elected. W. M., M. Asker; S. W., A. S. Holmes; J. W., A. Amos; Treas. Thos. E. See; secretary, F. A. Bigelow; Tyler, W. H. Maier; Stew. J. Cook. The annual installation will occur on St. John's night (Tuesday evening, Dec. 29) at which occasion every member is expected to be present.

—It indicates those interested in lake shipping to remember that hereafter the owner of property, which has been paid, and on tax deed, can redeem the same by depositing the required amount of money with the register in chancery. According to the account the owner had to settle personally with the holder of the deed, it was sometimes a hardship to settle that way as the deed holder might not easily be found. To obviate this difficulty the legislature changed the laws.

—Capt. Edith Naylor, of the Salvation Army, comes to hold meetings at Clark's hall on Antrim street. Meetings will be held every evening this week. The attendance is good but complaint of the force report that there is much disturbance created by young people who attend among for the purpose of levity. No gentleman is fully claiming respectability will attend a religious meeting with such a purpose, and we hope that at the couple will be made of the disturbers. The salvation army is doing a good work everywhere, and it is entitled to respectful treatment. A freedom is a freedom, whether it be in a church or meeting, and be should be respected by the good strong arm of the law.

—The steamer Siberia of the mill about then has sunk in Lake St. Clair twenty four miles above Windsor. Part on the east bank of the channel with 25 feet of water in the cargo hold. The loss of the Siberia were put out and the crew were in the cabin all night. One report is to the effect that the Siberia was on a bunch of stubes (one stumbe is the left effect of the clearing was caused by blocking the way to one of Lake Erie. When the news was discovered there was to do but to ground the boat. The Siberia is laden with coal. She is resting easily on mud. The wrecker Dugleaze has been dispatched to the scene of the wreck with steam pumps. Leslie Giddings of this place, is second engineer of the Siberia.

—The steamer City, of Charlevoix made a trip from Chicago to Grand Traverse bay, leaving Traverse City on her return to Chicago Monday. The steamer Illinois left here for Chicago Saturday and will lay up.

—The village mails but one mistake in the paving of Bridge street. It should have included the hill at the south end in the work. If there is any way of doing it legally next spring we hope the village will correct the error.

—The latest report of State Superintendent Fall contains many items of interest regarding the growth of our school system and facilities in the past half century. The number of high schools in the state now number 150. Fifty years ago the primary interest money amounted to 33 cents per capita of the school population. This year it is $2.62.

—Pere Marquette reflects in its October statement a check in the volume of business as compared with preceding months and the conservative policy with regard to the incurring of expenses at the present time. Gross shows an increase of $45,187 as net and expenses a decrease of the same percentage. The gross earnings for the year were $1,916,187 an increase of $90,782 over the same period last year. For ten months, January 1 to October 31, the gross earnings were $18,926,201, and increase of $773,798 over 1902. The surplus for the ten months of this year is $2,983,555.

—The new Michigan law making it a felony to shoot a man in the woods which had at last reports reduced such casualties from 12 to 2 this season, is made the more remarkable by comparison by the casualties in the state of Wisconsin. According to Milwaukee papers the casualties of hunters in the state during November are as follows: killed 20; mortally wounded 5; seriously wounded 21; missing 5. As the missing are in all probability dead, the deaths were 27 and wounded 21, a total of 48 casualties.

—Manistee Herald: A pretty fair illustration of the inconsistency of man is noticeable occasionally on our streets. People will drive to town driving rapidly to kill time, to their comfort, and having reached their destination, will tie up their team and hurry away to warm themselves besides some convenient stove. Their horses are not cold, as evidenced by the steam arising from their foaming flanks; but what is their condition after standing, hour after hour in this weather, often without blankets? The owner of that team may not be intentionally cruel, but it is an inexcusable carelessness on his part not to look to the comfort of the dumb brutes tied out in the cold.

—The annual report of the secretary of agriculture, which is to be published and telegraphed to the press for perusal, contains a number of matters of especial interest to Michigan agriculturists. The secretary says among other things: "The best sugar industry is developing satisfactorily. In 1896 20,000 tons were made; one year ago 200,000 tons were made. Careful estimates put the crop now being worked at 360,000 tons. This is a more rapid development than taken place in sugar making with new conditions to any other industry. The future of the crop depends upon the adoption of economic methods in field and factory. The growing of seed in the United States of a superior quality is assured, which will result in much richer beets and better yields than from imported seed that is now first class. Heavier tonnage per acre will come from better farming and more economy from improved machinery and the by-products. The industry is well established."

—The Wagonhance light keeper and two assistants arrived here Monday evening, after having closed the station, and their arrival on mainland only offer a very attractive effort. The tug Gelkon had the contract to take off the keepers, and was there Monday for that purpose. Keeper Olsen and his three men were compelled to use the sailboat in tow of the tug, owing to the fact that the tug had no passenger room. The tug and tow started out in a very choppy sea, and the three men signaled to be taken aboard of the tug, which was successfully accomplished. Just at this point, the boat was brought alongside the tug and Owen Gallagher was put aboard to steady her in entering the piers. After squaring away for the piers the boat capsized. Gallagher managed to hang on but all the personal effects of the two assistants were lost. Keeper Olsen had thoughtfully thrown his effects aboard the tug.

VICTIM OF LOVE'S WILES.

Elderly Suitor Badly Treated by His Innamorata.

Recently an elderly old merchant, who has for many years lived in Saginaw, fell now with a beautiful young girl of the same city and called her on marriage. She refused at first but finally said that she would accept him his age if before the ceremony was performed he would present her with the handsome home which he owned in the centre of the city. He decided to do so and arrangements were made and handed to the executive clerk, the conveyancing being that the marriage was to take place on the following morrow.

That night the young lady went to the newly acquired home, half an hour expected by the executive clerk shortly after a young friend at the door in the evening saying that she decided to do so and explained to the astonished man that the marriage was off. The young lady was given one, the conveyancing being that the marriage was to take place on the following morrow.

The young man was left in the cold, and he was left to the mercy of the executive clerk, who was left to the mercy of the young lady, who was left to the mercy of the young man, who was left to the mercy of the young lady, who was left to the mercy of the young man, who was left to the mercy of the young lady, who was left to the mercy of the young man

TURNING TO GOD.

By Rev. Anderson Scudder.

There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repents.—St. Luke, 15.

Most men believe in a general kind of way that there is a God and that they have a soul. They know that God created the world and that we are his children. Yet comparatively few of us have performed the fundamental duties of life and perhaps not a few persons are prepared to say that they have never had any thought of turning in the proper direction, of turning to God and to our Father in heaven.

There are many reasons why men do not turn to God. Some are so absorbed in the cares of this world that they have no time for the thought of God. Others are so taken up with the pleasures of this world that they have no time for the thought of God. Others are so taken up with the sins of this world that they have no time for the thought of God. Others are so taken up with the sorrows

NO CRIME TO SELL VOTE.

Purchase of One is a Serious Offense, Says Supreme Court.

According to the Supreme Court of Massachusetts it is not a crime for a party to sell his vote. The court has just rendered a decision to the effect that a man who offered to give a dollar to a voter in consideration of his vote for a certain candidate for office, but did not actually pay the money, was guilty of no offense against the election laws. In the case before the court the defendant was charged with having offered to give a dollar to one Michael Sullivan, a voter, if he would vote for Thomas Hennessy for mayor of Boston. The court holds that to sell or purchase an office is a crime, but to offer to give a vote is not disloyal to the duties of a citizen, and is not a crime against the election laws.

HUNDREDS RUSH FOR GOLD.

The greatest excitement ever seen in the Territory of New Mexico has been caused by the new gold discoveries in the Chiricahua mountains in Apache county, which were made public in Deming, New Mexico, a week ago. The news has caused a rush of people from all parts of the Territory and from Arizona and Mexico. The news first came to Deming in the shape of a few ounces of gold dust, which were shown to the Deming merchants by a party who had just come from the new diggings. The news of the find soon leaked out, and the town was flooded with people in a few hours. The excitement is at fever heat, and the town is full of people who are preparing to go to the new diggings. The gold is found in quartz and in placers. The quartz is said to be very rich in gold, and the placers are said to be very rich. The Chiricahua mountains are about 100 miles from Deming, and the country is said to be very wild and rough. The Apaches are said to be very numerous in the mountains, and they will probably make trouble for the miners. The Apaches are said to be very bad Indians, and have killed many people in the past. The Chiricahua mountains are in the country where the Apaches have their strongholds, and they have killed many people in that country. The news from the new diggings is very meagre, but it is said that the gold is very plentiful, and that it is of very fine quality. The excitement is very great in Deming, and the town is said to be full of people who are preparing to go to the new diggings.

CONGRESS

The Senate on Wednesday completed the appointment of committees to the Fifty-eighth Congress, adopted the resolution providing for the promulgation of the rules by which the Sixty-eighth Congress will be governed in the consideration of bills, and passed a resolution to seat Senator Cullom, successor to the unfortunate Senator Shelby, who died while the Senate was in session. Senator Cullom was sworn in and took his seat. Senator Dolliver, who was absent when the Senate adjourned, was also sworn in. Early in the day Senator Lodge, chairman of the committee on rules, reported the rules of last session, and they were adopted without change. The committee on rules was also given authority to report at any time during the session. Early in the day Senator Lodge, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, reported the credentials of Senator Dolliver, and he was sworn in. Senator Cullom's credentials were also presented and he was sworn in. The committee on rules was instructed to report a resolution providing for the promulgation of the rules of the Sixty-eighth Congress. The Senate then adjourned.

The Senate was not in session on Monday. The House was called to order by Speaker Henderson, who announced the death of Senator Shelby and the appointment of Senator Cullom to succeed him. Mr. Cullom was then sworn in. Mr. Henderson also announced the death of Representative Bowersock, of Kansas, and the appointment of Representative Calderhead to succeed him. Mr. Calderhead was then sworn in. The House then adjourned.

Political Comment.

Not So Easy as 1894.

Congressman Sulzer predicts that the Democrats do not will succeed this year 100 votes in the personal vote they and possibly 150. This position is at once unlikely and unfortunate. The present prospect is in small politics sense for entirely clear to a Republican victory. Congressman of men will be very different from the result of 1894 and 1896 which he apparently this is based.

Thousands of men, representing great property interests, who were so concerned in supporting Democratic candidates in 1894 and 1896 are in the utmost indifference to the fate of the Republican party.

Their indifference is due to the attitude of the administration toward the trusts. It does not matter a great deal that the trust question was raised upon the Sugar schedule, and that it had to be dodged. It does not matter that the administration was right in its decision.

The fact remains that the money contributed to some interests in Democratic States, the very states which Democratic campaigns in Ohio and Indiana are based on, came from the Sugar trust. It does not matter a great deal that the Democratic campaign in Ohio was based on the assumption —Paving of Bridge street was discontinued last Friday afternoon for the winter. The last load of "last stuff" came on at four o'clock, and by dark the pavement was surfaced to a point at the Hotel Bartlett. The contractors at once took the steam rollers and all other appliances o the Ward lot, where they, with the tug water was housed in. A watchman will be kept on the premises through the winter. The cement curb and gutter has been covered to prevent damage by frost. Superintendent Diamond will spend the winter with his family at Albany, and returned here just as early in the spring as the ground is uncovered, for the completion of the work. It is but fair to say that our people appreciate the conditions under which the work was begun and prosecuted, and are inclined to be generous to the Paving Co., which has at all times exerted itself to fill the work strictly up to the standard. We repeat what we have before said—the bitulithic is the only pavement on earth and the Warren people know just how to put it down.

Death of James Washburn.

In the death of James Washburn, which occurred at the home of his son, W. W. Washburn, in this village, last Friday morning, there departs another of the pioneers of the Grand Traverse region, and an early settler of Charlevoix.

Deceased was born in New Bruns. wick 81 years ago. As a boy he learned the trade of ship-carpenter, following that calling until he constructed a ship yard at St. John's. He also built ships on the Maine and Massachusetts coast. In 1850 he moved to Detroit, working there at his trade until 1855, when he came to Northport.

In 1856 Mr. Washburn removed to Charlevoix and established a ship yard, at the north side of Round Lake, which he operated from that year until about five years ago, when the increasing infirmities of age compelled him to turn the business over to his son, W. W. Washburn. Besides the latter he was the father of E. M. and A. J. Washburn of Petoskey.

The funeral occured Monday afternoon.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Two scoundrels got knocked out in Petoskey Sunday night by the husband whose wife had been followed home from shows by them.

The United States has reclaimed the state law, under which the railroads in Michigan north of Mackinac paid the specific taxes under the law of 1867.

East Jordan Enterprise: The buildings of the East Jordan Cooperage Co's plant are ready for the machinery, some of which is already being placed and will soon be in readiness for operation. Bolt and log stock is already coming in for their use.

Sault Ste. Marie is all agog over the reports that rich veins of gold bearing quartz have been discovered at Wetmore, Cusino, a short distance from the Canadian Soo. A repetition of the excitement which followed the discovery of gold in the Michipicoten district is being predicted by old prospectors and miners.

The Cheboygan band of Indians numbering about 300, who were deprived of their lands on the shores of Burt Lake, are soon to be placed on other lands in Cheboygan county, which Land Commissioner Wilsey was authorized by the last legislature to set aside for them out of delinquent tax lands. The Indians had their lands because they neglected to pay their taxes, and the lands were bought up on tax titles.

Central Lake Torch: The Bowen Publishing companjare now engaged in association with several well informed citizens of this section of the state, in compiling an authoritative biographical history of this and adjoining counties, and earnestly ask the cooperation of all who may be able to contribute interesting incident, fact or anecdote illustrative of local history. Many of the early settlers are yet living, and it is deemed not only advisable but necessary to preserve data bearing upon the settlement, growth and development of this region while their reminiscences are fresh and may be secured from their lips. A recent work in Grand Traverse county by this same company secured by the venerable editor, Elvin L. Sprague, met with such endorsement that it is believed a similar work covering Antrim and Kalkaska and possibly other counties, will meet with a like favorable reception.

DIGNITY OF UNCLE SAM.

Upheld In The 6th Commission Decsn.

State Officers Can't Supersize Government Officials.

A Grand Rapids special of the 6th says: Judge Wanty, of the United states court, has made a preliminary decision in the case of S. P. Wires, superintendent of the United States fish hatchery at Nelson, against State Game Warden Charles Chapman and deputy C. E. Brewster, continuing the injunction against interference with the United States officials until the final hearing of the case.

Judge Wanty granted the action of Supt. Wires and his men in submitting to the state authorities until the courts could pass on the matter, and said it could not be too highly commended. On general principles, he declared, federal law was supreme and exclusive, and any act of any state as far as it conflicted with federal legislation, was void. A government officer could not, in any legitimate function of the government, be under the direction and control of a state officer. If a deputy game warden could legally interfere with and control the official actions of a government superintendent of hatcheries, then the government would be entitled to the contempt which the deputy game warden in this case had exhibited toward it.

"The constitution, by its laws legislation," said Judge Wanty, "has not before been questioned in the courts, and if the laws of the United States seeking to confer upon the commissioner of fish and fisheries the right at all times to take fish needful for the conduct of his duty, notwithstanding contrary legislation by the state, is unconstitutional, such grave consequences must flow from a judgement annulling it that it seems to the not proper to pass upon that question on a preliminary hearing. The suspension of the law would mean an immense loss to the state of Michigan and probably as much greater loss to the states bordering on the waters where shellfish are propagated.

Worst of All Experience.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was astonishing. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered. For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the supreme medicine. Only 50c. 1lb guaranteed by F. G. Hines Co. Drug gist.

Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption Cough and Colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J McFarland Bentonville, Va. serves as example. He writes "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grippe. Guaranteed by F. G. —A new boy at the home of Capt. J. McGillery 1st mate.

—S. M. Ross went to Green Bay, Wis., Wednesday, as a witness in a law suit.

—Hon. John Nichols and wife are at Manistee, where Mr. Nichol is taking the salt baths.

—Fishing opened up yesterday with every tub tug in these waters, and will continue as long as ice conditions will permit.

—The Ladies' Current Event Club will guest with Mrs. Samuel Martting on Thursday December 17th, in the parlors of the Linton Hotel instead of with Mrs. Hillings as arranged for at last meeting.

—Capt. Wm. Finnegan arrived Saturday from Chicago, after having laid up the Illinois, and will be ready for the S. S. & meetings until it is time to put out the new steamer Michigan in the spring.

—The Traverse City Eagle, always democratic in its leanings, is saying many very pretty things of President Roosevelt lately. If it keeps on that way it will be a pretty good republican paper yet.

—Sunday, Dec. 11th, will be remembered as one of the fairest days of 1903. It was a blessed all the old fashioned sort. All the little birds seemed to continue to get 20 cents per folks and the mercury went down to the zero mark.

—In the circuit court Wednesday, in the case of The People vs Elma Frazier, for cruelty to child, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty with a recommendation for clemency. It is thought the judge will suspend sentence. In the three salmon cases all plead guilty and a fine of $50 each was imposed.

—The Charlevoix Lumber Co. has begun its spring operations, and there are out this winter will be considerably larger than that of last winter. The company have a surprisingly large area of hardwood timber yet uncut within one or two miles of the Charlevoix mill, and a fine strip of pine belonging to the concern is yet standing within reasonable hauling distance. Some of it will be cut this winter.

—A whole lot of places in Northern Michigan claim that they "stand a good chance" to get the Congressional Summer School. The contest was in Charlevoix last week, and if we may judge by the talk of the gentlemen, we stand a good chance as any. We have the consciousness that Charlevoix is the location that is offered in Northern Michigan and inducements offered equal those of any of the other points.

—The stranding of the steamer Commodore on Simmons's reef was a fortunate thing for many residents of St. Ignace and other communities in the vicinity, for as a result of the mishap numerous families are supplied with sufficient fuel to last them to some months to come and at a cheap charge. The four was jettisoned from the stranded craft and hundreds of barrels were picked up by small boats sent out from the various towns and settlements. Some of this flour came to Charlevoix in local fishtugs, and last week an agent of the insurance company was here looking up the matter. He informed us that any flour salvaged merchandise must be taken by insurance companies, subject to salvage charges.

—Chief deputy game wardens Chas. E. Brewster, and deputies Wm. Brewster and A. L. Coulter, have been waiting here several days with the chartered tug J. H. Martin, to get to the fishing grounds around the Island and strait region, where it has been reported that several north shore tugs had been fishing for a week or more before the beginning of the open season. Ice bills freezing to the stormy weather the deputies could not get out until the 10th, and the trip was abandoned. Chief deputy Wakeshire thinks that if the state would make the commercial fishing laws effective, a fund should be provided for the warden's department. A movement is on foot to secure the passage of a small revenue cutter from the government.

—F. P. Gelken and wife, of Petoskey, spent Sunday in town. Frank returned Monday, but Mrs. Gelken will remain as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Gelken until after Christmas.

—The W. C. T. T. will hold their next regular meeting with Mrs. J. Cantner on Antrim St. Thursday afternoon at 2:30. Topic—Convention echos, in charge of Mrs. S. J. Allen.

—There is some talk of a Congregational assembly and summer school being established at Traverse City—Petoskey News—Is that so? Did you hear anything about Charlevoix in connection with this matter? Of course not.

—Chicago Inter-Ocean: The Rev. William E. McLennan, until recently pastor of Emmanuel Methodist church, Evanston, and for years a prominent member of the Rock River conference, was received into the Presbyterian church as a minister yesterday. The Rev. Mr. McLennan declared that he could not do his best work in a church where pastors were frequently removed.

—Baxter Post, G. A. R. elected officers for 1904 as follows viz: Harden Berdan, Commander; Geo. O. Scott, S. V. C.; D. C. Nettleton, J. V. C.; E. H. Green, Adjutant; S. W. Cullins, Quarter Master; W. H. Collins, O. Day; Jacob Steed, Surgeon; John Miller, Chaplain; Leonard Wittmore, O. Guard; G. W. Cook, S. Major; A. E. Newberry, second M Sergeant; H. C. Pinn, Delegate; A. E. Newberry, Alternate; A. C. Newman, Sentinel; E. B. Hodge, Installing officer.

—The supporting of a newspaper costs a town scarcely a cent. Though papers may be well patronized and the business men may spend sums of money in advertising, the cash very quickly gets back into the channels from which it came. Nearly every cent a paper gathers in is spent at home and it goes to the merchants who delight in benefiting themselves and the community by liberal advertising. Boiled down the facts are that a newspaper returns all the money it gets to those who give it, and it works for the town and country is thrown in as good will.

—Battle Creek Daily Journal: Earl Emrey, one of the city's well known men, who for the past four years has been in the employ of the Michigan Telephone Co. as expert lineman, and a year in the service of the line department, has resigned a deserved promotion, the company recognizing the value of his services. Tomorrow morning he leaves for Albion, where he assumes the management of the company's office in that city, the present incumbent, Mr. Keenan, taking charge of the office at Ludington. Mr. Emery is a very capable man," said Manager Hall this morning to the Journal," and we are all glad to see him receive the promotion, which is certainly a fitting compliment to his faithful services."

—Manistee Herald: District Attorney George Covell, of Traverse City, is gaining strength as a candidate for Congress from this district. It is reported that he and his friends are quietly but diligently at work and that some committee in this section of the state will be likely to secure the nomination. The friends of B. J. Lowery, of Bellaire, seem to be urging him to enter the race, and as Lowery is well known and has a host of friends throughout the district it is safe to assert that should he decide to make the run he will prove a formidable candidate. As it will be a free-for-all race this year, the chances are that several favorite sons will contest the nomination with Congressman Loud, although it is certainly a fine thing where the nomination will go.

—The state forestry commission met in Lansing Saturday to review the plans drawn by the forestry bureau at Washington for a permanent scenery in which to grow seedlings of the kinds which are most suitable to the Michigan reserve lands. The nursery will be located in Houghtonon county, but the extent of it cannot be estimated at this time. The planting of the seed will begin as early as possible in the spring. White pine will be planted primarily, but all kinds of coniferous trees, as well as the Catalpa popular, catalpa, locust and similar varieties which give promise of quick returns will be tried. This is the first practical step to be taken in the reconnoisance which scheme which the state commission has been formulating during the last few years.

The singular situation in which Count Rudell was placed forced him to proceed extraordinarily and cautiously. Hermione's disappointment can be less excused. Heretofore must be content at an hopeless, if she be was forced to make him so. Have that she was safe in his custody. For this the Count had continued his search with the greatest care, but it was only on the night of the above function in the evening said was proved to be groundless by Marsden.

With, among, from does the matter stand? Is the girl safe or not? Is she to be?

Upon the friend all that could be proved, Rudell argued to have already fled with the girl, and, in the case of claims, he also had to endure no more than Hermione.

Against Sonell there was little proof, and the Count was not prepared. "Have you really nothing to change or add to your statement?" he asked for the last time.

"Why, why, why, I have told you!" he gave an exasperating response for the 50th time. "I have told you the whole story, the same story, the same story, the same story!"

"Well, I suppose I will have to proceed without your aid," said the Count, with a sigh. "Perhaps you will prefer to assist in his recovery, besides, we also need your services. Hermione, I am sorry you must stay alone, but I am entitled to the services of a female companion, the common quickly will do."

"When do you intend to return, Father?" asked Hermione, in the afternoon accompanying the Count at the general, sentiment. "Do Aunt and you intend to stay?" I will come back with Marsden, and I will come back with Marsden, and I will come back with Marsden, and

THE GRANGE

Conducted by I. W. DARROW,
Prom. Correspondent New York State Grange.

OUR GROWING ORDER.

A Condition Course on Most Great Questions.

During the past year there was a great growth of the order of Patrons of Husbandry in nearly all parts of the country. New granges by the hundred have organized. Many conditions in which the subordinate granges had to act in the establishment of a service of actual business and management the different bodies, starting out with 3 years experience and with essential precedents for the future. Existing granges increased their membership, in most cases doubling the number of active members. The national grange officials have recognized, in the reports of younger and more green fellows, the one year that contributes the number to another year in frequent years. All the present time measured. Patrons and subordinate grange secretary coming to your subordinate to were necessary to a high degree. The value of obtaining information in each county about local, county, state and national affairs, thus giving the membership of local year will thereby increase its usefulness.

The cost, on the whole, has been little to a fairly economical course on the part of the officers, affording the place to meet and act upon local interests. But, did there a much good or a wrong remedy to the law, for which comes with pecuniary general in the end and take the order fully for economical effect of union in England. The truth is that the order of Patrons of Husbandry has been adopted a complaint and improvement, a better and different, that will be more of a pecuniary benefit to the members of the order. Its success has called upon to provide for helping members in getting in other lines. STATE GRANGE MEETINGS.

Prepare Now to Make Them Interesting and Profitable.

The usual annual sessions will be held soon. If experience in Pomona granges have any significance in preparing for the state grange session there should be a good deal of work done in the local granges. There are only a few days of the best grange work in the year left. Every Pomona should be in a state of unfinished business in order. Good questions are pending. Some of them are of a character to which it will be well for delegates that can, may be prepared and ready to bring to the discussion of members. If there are any questions that the Pomona granges should consider, now is the time to have them discussed. Pomona and subordinate grange secretary coming to your subordinate to were necessary to a high degree. The value of obtaining information in each county about local, county, state and national affairs, thus giving the membership of local year will thereby increase its usefulness.

The cost, on the whole, has been little to a fairly economical course on the part of the officers, affording the place to meet and act upon local interests. GRANGE WORK IN THE WEST

National Master Jones Urges Patrons to Stand and Work Together.

(Special Correspondence.)

Having recently released from a three months' sojourn east and south of the conditions and necessities of the order in the states of Massachusetts, Oregon and California, I determined on returning along the trend of thought and study of the order in the several states of the Union, and carefully note the conditions surrounding the farmer's occupation in our various sections, as compared with a view if possible of advancing the interests of the order in a way general benefit to our membership in every section of our beloved country, as well in its northern extent and as exists in climatic and kind conditions. Farmers who are engaged in a particular line or pursuit understand that they are not so much interested in the conditions of farmers in remote sections of the country who are engaged in entirely different lines of agriculture and therefore do not stand to actively or apparently affect them as meaning just recognition of their respective rights in business and legislation.

It occurred to me that it was the duty of our great order to study the trend of thought and direct the minds of the American farmers along lines that will result in conditions that farmers, of necessity must stand together and work together, prosper together or suffer together for such future. The future this responsibility and necessity will not order and the sort necessarily taken by the officers thereof made and more imperative with the duty and responsibility on them. Some of our members say: sometimes forget the state sections and responsible duties of the officers of the grange and view the subject in a narrow sense of great personal pleasure to himself. Any one who goes out to some to the interest of our great Order of Patrons of Husbandry should as doubt broke himself to provide and report to the members and all others as possible, not to should given forgo but be strive as the representatives of the great primary of our order the conservator of world peace to render and better, assuring to more profitable agriculture and to the enjoyment of the general prosperity of a great nation.

Our first meeting in Oregon, held in the city of Portland, furnish some of a important and interesting concept of work. Some of the leaders of Patrons of Husbandry, men and women, officials and citizens and agriculturists, engaged and the Public, subject interests of the great farmers of Washington and Oregon. The influence of this one meeting was felt in every section of these states and attracted the attention of all the people. Public acts of the order of Patrons of Husbandry, and the self made it over states the country which I only find the Pacific Coast, and great work is accomplished and to be accomplished by them and the order. Our presiding officer for all the people of the Pacific coast is doing a better fishing and is doing a better fishing.

A Rise Needed.

Realizing that labor organizations at New Bedford recently by Miss Mabel Cordwell. To arrange the affairs of a new hall in connection with incorporated and stock company, and to assist in defraying the expense. This was disposed of mostly among the members of the grange, and the idea is a suggestion to other Patrons having a new building to undertake. The hall is 30 by 60 feet on the outside and cost $2000. It is a neat and well arranged structure, with a store and kitchen below, while the upper floor contains the main hall and anterooms. There is a fourteen foot stage with a fine commodious scenery for theatrical and other performances.

A Good Record.

There are now three four stars in the grange diadem, the correction of rail way grievances, the necessary of agriculture as a member of the president's cabinet, the pure food laws and the decision of the supreme court of the commonwealth that are the result of years of hard work, persistent work, patient work and the expenditure of much money. Some of the results are those which any one can understand, and some are those which only the well informed can appreciate. It is an honor to make these things. It is a pleasure to enjoy the results of their labors.—J. H. Allen.

Mrs. Martha Wilson, worthy Ceres of the national grange, has the honor of organizing the first Patrons' juvenile grange and has named it Edgewood grange. It is in the bounds of Saugatuck grange, Putnam county, and had also been elected members.

Schools of Instruction.

Many state granges do not make enough of the "schools of instruction" for the correct performance of the duties upon which they are based. A new competent official should hold a school of instruction in each county.

Governor Nash of Ohio has appointed Mrs. W. H. Dutton, master of the state grange, a member of the board of control for the Ohio agricultural station at Wooster, O.

Notes Study in Public Schools.

The grange everywhere is interested in the advancement of the public schools. The latest evidence of it is in the state of Iowa. The Oregon state grange has heartily indorsed the introduction of nature study in country schools. Last year a teacher in one of the public schools of a Portland suburb had her scholars in excursions to the woods and fields near by to study plants and insects there. This is the first time such a method of nature study has been taken up in this state and so interesting and successful was it that most of the country schools will take it up this fall.

Grange Fairs.

It is notable how many orange agricultural fairs there have been held the present autumn as well as minor agricultural and horticultural exhibits. This is a good sign. It means that the grange is doing something and is being more and more helpful to its farmers, whether members of the order or not. There is a lot in the experiences and incentive to better agriculture.

Demonstration Lectures.

Some granges are finding pleasure and profit in securing an expert to work, desired line of work to give a series of demonstration lectures, says Farm and Fireside. Some of the popular themes for the lecture are "Cultivation," "Care of the Soil," "How to Dress Hides and Wounds," "Care of Fruit Orchards," "Kitchen Arrangement," "Making a Country House" and others that will suggest themselves to the progressive housewife. If desirable open an above with an admittance fee could be held to defray expenses.

There is a grange in Michigan that has a membership of about 50 and yet the attendance at meetings averages every week beginning at time, even the grange hall. That grange is prosperous.

It is quite impossible to keep a record of the erection and dedication of new grange halls throughout the land. Let it good work proceed.

Homestead grange, in Ohio, circulated the report that the members who attend meetings. The set generally for the grange were about 200.

THE FARMER.

As Others See Him and as Seen by Himself.

J. T. Allison, secretary of the Pennsylvania state grange, reports that recently at a grange picnic a gentleman, not a farmer, explained the farmer to the show as he sees it. the farmer is the most independent man in the world. He says everything he wants that he cannot himself supply. His wife makes a paradise and his children are the brightest, happiest and most contented to be found anywhere. There is nothing of the kind in any jointly complete.

Soon after a farmer who owns two good farms and a house in town was heard saying:

"The farmer is not respected by anyone. He puts on public occasions. When he goes among other people he is viewed as only a farmer. He is the children's asylum to children and business men. He pays the bulk of the taxes, and others do the spending for him. A film check will be required to pay my taxes this year. I am tired of it. My properties are in the market."

There is some truth in what the first man said, the much truth in the statement of the second. The solution of the problem is that the farmer is as far as is possible the dreams of the first and to correct the evils complained of by the second.

An Excellent Programme.

We give the following grange programme of the Middlesex Worcester Pomona, held last Tuesday, Oct. 20, in the hall of Pomona. Papers were presented on "Lily Culture," by Mrs. J. H. Hunnewell; "How to Dress Poultry," by Prof. "Butter Making," by O. S. Sutton; "Administration in Practice," by Miss Ellen Harris; "Butter of Different Nations," by Mrs. C. P. Weaver; "Ice as a Necessity," by W. S. Parker; "Angora Goats," by John Washington, and "Good Roads Made Cheap," by Miss Ida Howard. A discussion was also held on "Should the salaries of government officials be placed on a basis of market review in private business?" Two minute speakers were appointed—Mr. G. H. Frost of Newton, to speak on "Ornamental Planting for Country Homes," and Mrs. C. P. Dalton of Boston, who is a graduate of Wellesley, on "Woman's Responsibility in the State."

TO RAISE GALVESTON.

THAT WILL BE ALMOST A WORLD WONDER.

Entire Island is to be Brought Up from the Gulf to Twenty Feet—Plan Said of Dutch of Five Years to Death.

How to remove the bodies of the city of Galveston, Texas, from which they were washed by the tidal wave of last September, is the most difficult problem the Galveston people have had to contend with since the city was swept by the storm. The number of bodies is not known, but it is estimated that 6,000 will be found when the island is cleared. The problem has been discussed by the city officials, and an appropriation of $100,000 has been made for the purchase of a large quantity of lime to be used in the work of burying the dead. The plan of the city officials is to raise the entire island from the Gulf of Mexico to a level of twenty feet, so that the bodies will be covered with from ten to twenty feet of earth. The work will be done by the city, the island being divided into districts, and the work in each district being given to the lowest bidder.

Galveston is to be brought up to the level of the city by means of the sand dredged from the Gulf of Mexico. The island is about 30 miles long and from half a mile to two miles wide. The work of raising the city will be begun at the east end of the island, and the sand will be pumped on the island in such a way as to form a levee, which will prevent the Gulf from flowing over the island while the work of raising the city is being carried on. The work will be done by the Galveston Island Improvement Company, which has been incorporated for the purpose of raising the island. The company has been in existence for some time, and has been preparing for the work by purchasing the necessary dredges and other machinery. SLAIN COUPLE ARE FOUND.

The decomposed bodies of Frank Fecha and his wife, an aged couple, who the Minnesota town some home at 2202 Jefferson street, Duluth, were found in a small frame shanty in a secluded spot on the land of their home. The skulls of both had been crushed and a hammer was found in the shed with one of faces clinging to it. A search for Charles Hunter, who moved into the house of the Fechas the day of their disappearance, had been found before the finding of the bodies. Hunter was the last man seen by the neighbors of the Fechas. The house was sold some time ago for the value of the old couple had been paid in full. Hunter succeeded in the house in response to a summons in John Day presiding regarding the disappearance of the Fechas. The case has created great excitement in Duluth, and it appears to most Wednesday but he did not come. Investigation of Hunter was soon found out and Charles Hunter was found in the house

HEADQUARTERS HERE.

The Booth Packing Co. Remove their Petoskey Branch to Charlevoix.

An important business change occurred this week in the removal of the Booth Packing Co's Northern Michigan office from Petoskey to Charlevoix. This great Chicago firm of fish dealers have for the past twelve years conducted their extensive Northern Michigan business at Petoskey, under the management of Olaf Nordrum. At that place they have had a large freezing plant, and the concern has, at that point and this, handled annually, 3,000,000 pounds of fish. The business of the Petoskey office has amounted to $10,000 per month every month in the year.

Now everything is to be consolidated at Charlevoix. The company's office is already temporarily established in the rear of H. A. Emrey's store, with Miss M. L. Gatchelder as clerk and stenographer. The freezers at Petoskey will necessarily be filled and operated this winter. These freezers, before their recent damage by fire had a capacity of 500,000 pounds, next year they will be removed here and increased to a capacity of 1,000,000 pounds.

The company already owns Station 1 between the railroad and Pine Lake just north of the station. This site will be used for extensive ice houses. A site will probably be secured on Round Lake, or at a more convenient point on Pine Lake for the freezers, and a permanent office established in town.

Mr. Nordrum, who is well known among Northern Michigan fishermen, will remove here soon. Mr. Nordrum has very many friends here who will welcome him.

This change means very much for Charlevoix. It makes Charlevoix the largest fish shipping point on the great lakes. It makes Charlevoix the Booth headquarters for Lake Michigan, and involves subsidiary shipping interests, in the way of local steamer lines, to an extent that can scarcely be realized at first glance.

It is a big thing, and Charlevoix is to be congratulated.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The long-awaited cabinets have been placed in the new Commercial room and this work will now be subject to no further disturbances.

An informal social gathering of the public school teachers was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howe on Friday evening, Dec. 1. Music, salted peanuts, apples, and the new Nature Study Cabinet were pleasant features of the occasion.

A new encyclopedic dictionary has been purchased for the Normal Class, and a pedagogical library of ten or fifteen volumes will soon be selected for their use and the benefit of all our teachers. The work of the Normal Class continues till Dec. 24 before their vacation arrives.

On Wednesday night of this week a general reception will be given by the Board of Education to all the teachers and Normal students. The main purpose is to cultivate more thorough and helpful acquaintance throughout the whole body of school workers.

After the vacation copy book exercises in writing will be given in all the grades below the High School. The instruction will follow a modified slant system that most nearly fits the presents condition of the penmanship in our schools. There will be no occasion to greatly change the style used by the majority of the pupils, and the writing itself is plain, most legible and speedy.

President Siddings of the Board of Education gave a very helpful address on "The Model High School Boy." The admission receipts at the last Open Lyceum were a little more than $3 dollars—to be used for school periodicals. The Literary Digest and the Scientific American each cost $5.00 a year. The school ought to have several other instructive magazines. At the first Lyceum program after vacation a debate will be given by the members of the Ancient History classes on the question: "Resolved, that our recognition of the independence of Panama was premature and not in harmony with American principles of intercourse and law."

Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequaled. A recent conversation from T. J. McFarland Jacksonville, Vt., serves as example. He writes: "I was Bedridden for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally decisive in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grippe. Guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. Sole druggist. Trial bottles free, regular size, one dollar and $5.00.

CLEANED UP.

Sugar Factory Matters All Adjusted and a Vigorous Future Provided For.

A meeting occurred last night at the Elmon Hotel that cousted the skies and dispelled all fears in the matter of sugar factory construction difficulties and the future operation of the big plant.

Besides R. R. Hane, president of the National Construction Co., there were present the following stock holders and directors. Col. E. G. Mastlag, a millionaire of Ironton, Ohio; C. C. Lewis Sr., a multi-millionaire of Charleston, W. Va., J. W. Henderson, of Ashland, Ky., pretty close to the million mark, and several local officers and directors of the Charlevoix Sugar Co.

The adjustment of past troubles, connected with the construction of the factory, which has been made altogether too much of was an item that was adjusted very much as we pay our weekly grocer's bill. The embarrassment to the sugar company, growing out of the construction difficulty and the wintry November weather, was met with almost equal uncomity, and the fact established that every obligation growing out of the belated beet harvest is to be met to the penny.

The most important and far-reaching transaction of the gathering was the placing of the united financial force of those men behind the Charlevoix sugar factory for the year of 1903. From now on every man in the agricultural department will prepare for the contract campaign among the farmers of Northern Michigan for 1903 beet seed the sugar factory will, meantime, receive the finishing touches that were being made when the late unpleasantness occured.

The Charlevoix Sugar Co's factory is squarely on its feet, with millions behind it to push it ahead.

Some Passing Observations.

We will yield to no one in our respect for the judiciary. It is the embodiment of the principles of justice and equity, and the personification of righteous judgment between man and man. In the abstract, it is entitled to the respect and veneration of all good citizens. But judges are men, like constables. Some Judges wrap the judicial ermine about their sacred persons and imagine that they are above all men and all things. To criticise them is lese majesty.

The thought is suggested by the conduct of Judge Chittenden, of the Denver Circuit. The court, having formally convicted Game Warden Spafford, refuses to recognize the governor's pardon, and proposes to pronounce sentence regardless of the executive prerogative. The SENTINEL has expressed its opinion of the case, and further comment is unnecessary. It seems to be, on the part of the judge, a case of too much judicial pride and too much judicial dignity. We do not believe there is any dishonesty in his conduct—he is too a common term, just "stuck on himself." Judge Chittenden would make a good tax commissioner.

What has become of the Traverse City Charlevoix electric railroad project. Last winter it was all the talk, and agents of the promoters were out securing right of way. Editor Campbell, of Northport, was one of the most enthusiastic of the promoters. Now Campbell is booming Northport, and Hamilton is booming the Old Mission electric road. Is it another balloon or Mr. C. & E. Kind, or—what?

In the circuit court this week the Village of Charlevoix is locking horns with an octopus—if an octopus may be said to have horns. Linday Park, in this village, is the property of the Charlevoix Improvement Co., which, being incorporated, means the Pere Marquette Ry. Co. It is a recorded plat, is surveyed into blocks and lots. The lots are advertised for sale at a good high figure. The plat constitutes one of the most beautiful and desirable resort locations in Northern Michigan. It is bounded on one side by the Inn and its beautiful parks, and by the Pere Marquetted Railroad. Strange as it may seem, it escaped the notice of the tax commission when that august body was doing business in Charlevoix. Asa result, the Village assessor, thinking that perhaps it was an oversight, assessed the property as lots, the same as other lots are assessed on Dixon avenue. The R. R. company paid the tax last year, as assessed, but the check that was given in payment was protested. In other words, the railroad company has the tax receipts, and the tax is marked "paid" on the soil, but the company's check was dishonored. It may be that this method was adopted by the railroad people to make a test case of it, but the fact remains that the tax of 1902 on the Lindsay Park property is unpaid, and the village has to recover.

Another burning question that seems to have layed into memory dismissal is whether or not Wm. Alden Smith's senatorial boom has collapsed. It seems to be generally admitted that the question will be settled at the next state convention, and that Mr. Burrows will catch the plum when the tree is shaken. But it is pretty broadly hinted that the 5th district will keep Bishop in congress until 1904 and then that he will succeed Mr. Burrows. There are a great many good republicans in Michigan who are no good reason for displacing Mr. Burrows after having been elected but one full term. On the other hand, we admit, the argument loses some force from the fact that Mr. Burrows succeeded Senator Patton after that excellent gentleman had served out a short tractional term. This again is discounted by the unquestioned fact that Senator Burrows is a strong man in the Senate and strong at the White House. Older republicans remember Chandler and Christiancy, and cannot forget that the House leader, Conger, was a weak sister in the Senate. And then what would become of Grand River navigation if Wm. Alden were to be shelved among the dignified signiours of the American House of Lords?

The national republican committeemen in session at Washington, have selected Chicago as the place where the national republican convention will be held next spring. There is a suggestion that Chicago Republican Conventions are winners Lincoln and Garfield were nominated at Chicago.

MARINE NEWS.

The steamer Beaver was safely moored at St James dock during the Sunday blizzard. She went over Saturday and did not return until Monday evening. Capt Campbell reports some ice forming at Beaver Harbor, but predicts that navigation will not close for his on this month.

The keel for the new Northern Mich. Trans. company steamship will be laid at the yard of the South Chicago Shipbuilding company in a few days. Considerable material has already been assembled and work on the engine and boilers is far along. This is the only vessel contracted for at this yard, so she will receive immediate attention, and will undoubtedly be completed long before she is needed. Her first trip will be made about June 1st, 1904. She will be christened "Missouri."

The steamer Charlevoix will receive a complete overhauling. New planks will be put in the hull where needed, and the main deck will be renewed. About $10,000 will be spent on improvements.

For Christmas buy a fine wool Pendleton Indian Robe. A very useful article about the home as a couch cover etc. $5.00 at Cranes.

NORWOOD NEWS.

Will Crosby goes this week to Chicago and will there this winter.

James Chase of Chicago is here for a week or so visiting his parents.

G. V. Nash was here for a couple of days last week returning to Manitowoc Friday. He goes this week to Missouri for a couple of months to look up oak timber for Mr. Jones.

Sunday was as cold a day as we ever had at Norwood. So early in the season it was 8 above zero, Sunday night, and the wind was not exactly gentle.

farmer named Alfred Ward finally acquired a tall, raw boned sting, and made use of it by hitching it with an equally angular cow. But it was not long before horses began to be very common, and eventually cattle came to be used almost solely for food and for the dairy. Within the last few years however, Gaylord Morrow a thrifty young farmer living just north of this village, has excited some local interests by appearing on the streets driving a fine yoke of oxen, and there are several others "breaking" steers it begins now to look as though the patient ox is going to dice more or less the oldtime position as an institution member of the community.

Elaborate plans for increasing the United States navy by constructing fourteen naval ships each year for a number of years have been recommended to the secretary of the navy by the general board of the navy. The body has recommended the construction each year of four first class battleships, two armored cruisers, four torpedo boat destroyers and four large swift scout ships.

Two cars of hides recently received at Petoskey came overland from San Francisco, two cars from Portland, Oregon, shipments from India, Texas, and two cars of Callinta, India, hides. Those hides reached Boston by steamer, and made the journey from Boston to Petoskey by rail. The remarkable thing about these hides from far away India is that they are taken from the Indian water buffalo, the natives' beast of burden. The Indian animal is kin to the Filipino beast of burden.

The Northport Leader say that it is informed through reliable sources that an important contract has just been closed with the "Soo Line" and other upper peninsula lines, whereby the big car ferry M. M. & N. will deliver to them 100 cars of coal a week during the winter and also have a contract for transferring 400 carloads of flour across from the north on their way to points south and east. It will require the full carrying capacity of the boat with a round trip every 24 hours to handle this business. Besides this all empties going both ways will be loaded with other commodities. The editor further ventures to say that this item of news may be of some interest to the people who have had strong reasons to believe that the big boat was "white elephant" and that the owners were hunting around for an opportunity to swap her off for a yellow dog or a shell gun.

A Christmas entertainment will be given by the Baptist Sunday School on Thursday evening, Dec. 25th. All are cordially invited.

McKinnon's restaurant, near the garage, continues to be a popular resort for those who want a "bang up" good chicken or lunch.

—The Charlevoix Roller Mills Co. with mills at Charlevoix and East Jordan, has been incorporated under the new name of "The Algo Milling Co."

—Capt. Herbert Holmes, who went south this fall, went into Mississippi to visit Capt. Wilson, formerly of Charlevoix, and found the Captain had died in October last. Capt. Wilson will be remembered by many of the older residents.

—The Pere Marquette began running their own trains with freight and passenger cars Chicago Tuesday of this week. They now have accommodations at the Grand Central station. Formerly the passenger trains went into Chicago over the Michigan Central from New Buffalo, on Michigan Central tracks.

—The SENTINEL still has an exceptionally fine clubbing arrangement. To all who pay in advance, or who pay up their arrears, we will send the paper and the Weekly Inter-Ocean for $1.90, or the paper and the New York Tribune Farmer for $1.90. To every new subscriber, or his any old subscriber who will send this paper and the Monthly Magazine Review for $1.50. These are great offers.

—At the regular communication of Charlevoix Chapter No. 141, R. A. M., last night Fourteen candidates received the working officers were elected. Henry C. Hooper, High Priest; A. Bartlett, King; W. H. Siler, Scribe; H. L. Iddings, Treasurer; E. H. Gaskill, Secretary; S. M. See, Captain of the Host; J. H. Collins, Principal Sojourner; Geo. Hagerman, Royal Arch Captain; A. A. —A Merry Christmas special says Grover Bay parts are to be furnished with another first class attraction the ensuing year—a steamer of everything from coal to plankin' of being the intention to put a boat on the route formerly operated by the ill fated steamer Erie E. Hawley. Representatives of a company interested at Fish Creek report to reporters there from a trip outside, where they had been on business connected with the purchase of the steamer Columbia at Grand Haven, Mich., the negotiations for which is now pending. The craft in question is a steamer little inferior to the boat lost in Lake Erie, having been in 1892 built to 140 feet long, 30 feet beam, 9 feet depth of hold, and 400 tons of cargo of 2,000 pounds to the ton. The Columbia of the Welsh Traverse Bay line.

—We have the best of reasons for believing that everyone who has been taking out in the pack. Only recently, one dark evening the publisher of this paper saw a suspicious character dropping down Main street from the pack. There is no evidence against this man, but assuming for the purpose of argument that he was guilty of every offense to perfect the trees and bushes in the park choice of trees, the generous world is worthless. If they are protected the park becomes more beautiful and valuable every year. If some depredator was made an example of, this thing would stop. Charlevoix has the finest park property in Northern Michigan, and it is worth protecting. Offenders will not escape if, under the circumstances we are selected.

—In the circuit court last week most of the calendar went over to the next regular term.

—Lisle Shanahan and wife are at Edwardsburg for Christmas with Shanahan's parents.

—D. D. Hammond and Gene Hale are opening up an ice making risk in the rear of the post office.

—M. Cohen, now in Lewis opera house block, will remove to the Crosby building, lately occupied by M. V. Cook, after Jan. 1st.

—At the Banks farm home of Dr. and Mrs. L. M. Kanagy, the bride's parents, near Atwood, Tuesday evening, occured the marriage of Miss Roxana May Kanagy, to Dr. John Marley Pride, of Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. Pride will reside in Philadelphia. The bride has very many friends at Charlevoix and Atwood, whose cordial good wishes will follow them to their eastern home.

—There have been sad—very sad features of the county printing matter for the accident of all come to the surface last week and this, in connection with the publication of the county treasurer's report. We discovered a shortage in that little letter way, so necessary in the work "Charlevoix," and "nas." We promptly used the mail and then the telegraph to secure the needed "sorts." but received information that "owing to the fact that the type foundries in the country are tied up a sticker it is impossible to secure fonts at this time." We were therefore compelled to divide the report, printing part of it on one side and part on another, in order to distribute the type for that very little "a." It only amounts to a little inconvenience to the reader, but it is all in. And it is all on account of a strike.

—Monday and Tuesday of this week were the shortest days of the year. Technically the time is known as the "winter solstice," the period at which the sun's rays fall directly over the Tropic of Capricorn. This degree marks the south of the equator. The sun was scheduled to rise Monday morning at 7:16, and set at 4:42. Tuesday the sun rose at 7:16 and set at 4:42 so Tuesday was really the shortest day of this year. Contrary to the general accepted theory, the sun continues to rise later until December 26th, when the excel time is 7:19. The fact, that beginning Wednesday the sun sets earlier, at the rate of about a half minute each day, counteracts the later rising, and gives Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the palm for being the shortest days of the year. So far as observation of the eye goes it is a distinction without and imagination of the days until the beginning of the new year.

—A very pleasant affair occurred at Mackinaw last Tuesday evening. That Master Iddings had landed the new officers and the stewards had spread a most beautiful banquet for the members. In fact, he had seated themselves at the table, and were entirely engaged in disposing of its burden, when a good big crowd of Eastern Star ladies invaded the room, bringing with them liberal additions to the already bountiful repast. It is needless to say that the ladies were heartily welcomed. After the banquet there was a very enjoyable social time. There were speeches by Past Masters, Green, Iddings and others, and songs by Bros. Iddings and J. H. Gossman. It never without problem by several brothers, and a final ruling by the Worshipful Master that both were out of order, on the grounds that the lodge room was too near the street, and the manifest damage of a new stave lying turned in. Joking aside, it was a very pleasant affair and lasted well toward midnight.

As she said it she did not calmly but precisely blinked at me in the broken.

Mr. Hawdon: I have called for the purpose of telling you how a quiet, sweet woman, the gentle charge you intrusted to my care, is now, unless I believe even to your own disinterested, I am convinced that recognition of the fact, I know my conscience was occupied at the time—that you have made impossible for his just—the tender and honest, yet noble and self-reliance to marriage with Miss Vivian Alabaster is betrayed to Vivian Alabaster.

In the name of Heaven, Miss Alabaster, I ask you, what is the meaning of this?

Does that one short letter relieve the honor of Mr. Hawdon? Does it, in the face of the fact, that Mr. Hawdon's intended bride, Miss Vivian Alabaster, is betrayed to Vivian Alabaster?

Mr. Hawdon, I am confident, is a man of honor. Yet, I am sorry to say, I know of no other way in which I can explain the situation than that he has deceived himself, and, in a moment of weakness, yielded to the wishes of his ward, Miss Alabaster, and has written to Miss Vivian Alabaster, and, in the letter, has told her that he has gone.

Mr. Hawdon, I am sorry, Miss Vivian Alabaster is betrayed to Vivian Alabaster

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The Mackinac train was held an hour at Grayling to enable the health officer to vaccinate some 60 passengers. A case of smallpox was discovered on the train and was removed to the Grayling pesthouse.

Tuel Jordan Enterprise: The copartnership in the law business of E. N. Clint J. E. Converse and A. H. Perkins under the name of Clint, Converse & Perkins was dissolved on Tuesday by the retirement of Mr. Clint who will continue practice by himself. The old firm is now Converse & Perkins, who hold forth for the present at the office over the postoffice.

Many of our people have in past political campaigns listened to addresses by Hon. J. Wight Giddings, then of Gaylord, a member of the state legislature and later Lieut. Governor. Some years since he removed to Atlanta and if Atlanta is admitted to the Union, this winter it is expected lively time Giddings will be one of her senators.

Elk Rapids Progress: A dispatch in Tuesday's Free Press corrects the information that the name of Hon. A. N. Dougherty has been presented to the U. S. Senate for confirmation as postmaster at Elk Rapids. There is no question about the appointment being unofficial. Under Sam's postal business in Elk Rapids could not be in better hands.

East Jordan Enterprise: J. E. Chew, who has been doing field work among the schools for his father, returned the latter part of last week. He says that he wishes all school directors could visit Dist. No. 7 of Springvale, and see what an enterprising community can do in the way of a nice and well equipped school house. The building is one of the best for a country district in Northern Michigan, and cost some $1600.

On January 18, State Land Commissioner Wildey will sell for taxes the site of the late village of Chase in Lake County and 81,091 acres of land in Chase county. Chase was once a thriving village with saw mills, electric lights and water works. After the mills were moved away fire swept the town down and it was never rebuilt. The deserted lots are valued at 50 cents each, and as the descriptions are of town lots, the commissioner will have to sell the property in small parcels of less than an acre each.

Central Lake Torch: Another aged pioneer has gone. On Thursday evening, December 17, at her home, three miles from town, Mrs. Hannah Upthegrove departed this life. She was born Aug. 20, 1826 in Chippewa, Ontario, Canada, married Joseph F. Upthegrove Aug. 20, 1844 at Esquesing, Canada. Here they lived until 1860 when they came to Michigan coming to the Traverse region in June of 1860 where they lived till Mr. Upthegroves death in 1891. Dec. 14, since which she has made her home with her son Henry.

A special telephone dispatch from Cross Village to the Petoskey News Saturday says that every possible effort is being put forth towards finding the supposed murderers of the young Indian girl, Rose Lee, whose body was found Thursday morning in the snow. Evidence points direct, it seems, to one man believed by most of the people of the village to be the district they are searching for. He is without doubt a white man, though the brilliancy of the alleged murder would seem worthy only of a savage. Prosecuting Attorney Smith with a deputy sheriff, is on the scene. He is examining witnesses in the Cross Village court room today. It is expected that interesting developments will ensue. The Indians who are most directly connected with the case are both, it seems, to tell what they know for fear of results. Public opinion at Cross Village is at fever pitch and the true citizens are almost positive in their belief that one certain man is responsible. Later information is to the effect that Investigation by Sheriff Smith and Prosecuting Attorney Wade it is both related in the arrest of Kennet Shomin, the last person seen with Miss Rose Leon, the Cross Village girl found dead Wednesday morning. The accused is a crippled lumberjack, an Indian, and he admits being with the girl the night before at the place where she was found dead. Shomin is alleged to have had accomplices, whose names are guarded by the authorities. Probably a half-dozen men are involved, and it is believed they assaulted the girl in a drunken orgy and left her to die of exposure. Miss Leon, who was a very interesting young woman of French descent, slipped out of her home after supper, and when she did not return she was sought all night by her parents and relatives. Her dead body was found early in the morning in a snowdrift, near the fence, only a few rods from the house of her parents.

TWO YOUTHFUL HIGHWAYMEN ARRESTED IN CHICAGO.

In Imitation of Car Robbery Outlaws, Twice Assault and Rob Cash Girls and Go to Their Burlington River Wooden Lair in Iowa.

While time-tested men in the prime have failed in their efforts to rob the Chicago Elevated railway of its cash receipts, two youthful highwaymen who have taken the pass from vaudeville and in imitation of the methods of the outlaws who have made the Chicago Elevated railway a place of terror to its patrons, have twice assaulted and robbed cash girls on the road, and have escaped to their boyish lair in the Burlington River Woodlands in Iowa.

The youthful highwaymen are Frank Dunn, aged 17, and Rob Cash, aged 16. Dunn is a newsboy and Cash is a bookkeeper. Dunn is the son of a well-to-do family living at Ashland avenue and Polk street, and Cash is the son of a widowed mother living at Ashland avenue and Polk street.

Dunn and Cash are chums. Dunn is a big, husky lad, and Cash is a little fellow. Dunn is the brain of the partnership, and Cash is the brawn. Dunn is the leader, and Cash is the follower.

Dunn and Cash are members of the Ashland Boulevard Methodist church, and they are members of the church choir. Dunn sings bass, and Cash sings tenor. Dunn is a member of the church choir because he likes to sing, and Cash is a member of the church choir because he likes to be with Dunn.

LOCAL NEWS.

—Tuesday we received by express a bundle of supplementa, advertising a Traverse City clothing and dry goods house, supposedly to be folded in this weeks issue of the SENTINEL. Why they were sent we know not, as we have entertained or accepted no proposition for any such work. When the letter was received asking for our price it was promptly consigned to the waste basket. We are not advertising for Traverse City merchants. When we cannot get enough advertising from home merchants to sustain life, we will croak.

—The Christmas Sunday School exercises at the Congregational church are going to be very fine from all reports. Some of the features will be a Santa Claus Cantata, a short drama, many songs and recitations and accompaniments and duets. There are as usual a Christmas morning service at the church for one hour beginning 10:30 a. m. The Pastor will give his last lecture in the Elijah Course, next Sunday evening, the subject of which will be Elijah on the Mount of Transfiguration. All are invited to these services.

—There has been complaint from the beginning of history that women are "curious." What is curiosity? It is the uneasy appetite of an ill fed mind. People fully educated and fully employed are not curious. Civilized women has inherited the mental growth of man and then his hand to confine that enlarged capacity to precisely the same field of activity which was authorized for a slave. Women have been accused for centuries of a tendency to "gossip." What is gossip? It is small talk about other people. The tendency to this vice is a reaction from the persistent presence of our own affairs—success.

—An editor over in Wisconsin has the advertising idea proper and he draws the line nowhere. Hence his writeup of a wedding: "Miss Jenny Jones and Bob Henry were married at the Jones mansion last night. The bride is a daughter of our Constable Jones, who has made a good officer and is good nationality to be elected next spring. He offers a fine horse for sale in another column. The groom runs a grocery store on main street and is a good patron of our advertising and has got a new line of bargains this week. All summer he has paid two cents more for butter than any other store in town. The happy couple left on the 10 o'clock train for Milwaukee to visit the bride's uncle, who is reported to have lots of money and Bright's disease. Bob certainly has an eye for business."

—We take the following from the Milwaukee Wisconsin, of the 20th, concerning the steamer Siberia, in which Leslie Giddings is an engineer. The steamer Siberia, which left Cleveland the week before last for Milwaukee with a cargo of coal, may not reach here until next spring. She has been at St. Ignace for several days and as the ice is from six to ten inches thick she may have to be laid up there. The Siberia was cut through by the ice in Lake St. Clair a week ago last Sunday. After she was freed she was taken to Marine City and repaired. A report received this morning by David Vance & Co. stated that the Siberia was still at anchor near St. Ignace this morning, where she has been since Monday waiting for more favorable sailing weather. This is said to be the last cargo of coal for Milwaukee of the season. She has a large cargo of soft coal for Janitor. Information from the straits is to the effect that a car ferry cut the Siberia clear on the 21st, and that she proceeded to Milwaukee.

—The Kilties Band, who are announced to give two concerts at the Grand Opera House Petoskey Mich. Jan 5, 1904 have achieved a wonderful popularity throughout the United states, and Mexico and are today, beyond doubt, the most popular musical organization on the American continent. The Kilties have scored an instant hit wherever they have played, and it is noteworthy that both in New York and Philadelphia, the greatest audiences which ever greeted a musical organization attended their concerts. The musicians of the band are a fine looking lot of men, and beyond doubt splendid musicians. They make a delightful and picturesque picture, attired as they are in kilts, and dark green tartan, bright red coats, and pirate aristocrat hats arranged in graceful folds. As a musical organization the Kilties are of the very first rank. The band is well balanced, and the playing is scholarly and spirited. Standard and classical music finds a place on their programme, as well as the more lighter and popular selections of the day. 2t.

FOR SALE.—Gray Gelding, six years old and sound—at a bargain. Benj. F. Hartwig, at sister Bartlett's.

—Down at the old water works building, in which is installed the American Vending Machine Co's factory, there is a quiet but persistent activity in the work of assembling those very artistic affairs that cough up a good cigar when you insert a nickle. About one hundred of these overshoes are doing business, in various places, and it is a mistake to call them a "nickle in the slot machine." They are a vending machine in the strictest sense—you get what the nickle calls for every time. In one of the rooms of the factory stand lathes and other expensive and heavy machinery, used for cutting out and forming the various parts of the machine, all run by a gasoline engine. The polished wood cases are made in Chicago, and in a side room, a stock of them is piled up awaiting the vitals that are being assembled outside. Another room is the private expert mental laboratory of the inventor, Mr. Sears, who is now working on an improved machine, and one that will give you a ten cent smoke for a dime. Manager Sears expects to turn out 500 machines this winter, and it is the purpose of the company, eliminating, to install a brass foundry for the manufacture of certain parts that are now made in Grand Rapids. Of course the nature of the enterprise, involving as it does competition with all manner of imitations, forbids that the company should tell all it knows as to future plans, but this much may be said—the American Vending Machine Co. has a good future before it, and the men composing it are a sufficient guarantee of success.

What Constitutes Treason.

We do not believe that, under a strict, technical construction of the law, Geo. F. Hoar, senior senator from Massachusetts, could be convicted of treason, impeached in his high office. But we are constrained to ask, what constitutes treason, if encouraging resistance to the government and its forces in the field does not?

In 1861 Clement L. Vallandigham was imprisoned by President Lincoln for his public utterances in defense of the southern confederacy. He afforded encouragement to the enemies of the government, and he was suppressed.

In 1899 Senator Hoar made speeches in the Senate in defense of Aguinaldo, of which that treacherous Malay was held up as a patriot. Aguinaldo, who was then in this country, sent printed, copies of Hoar's speeches to his Filipino Chief, and the outbreak followed. Lawton fell, and in the battles preceding and following the death of that magnificent officer, hundreds of American soldiers were shot down.

War in Panama does not now exist, any more than it did in 1899 when Hoar's incendiary speeches were made, but conditions are similar. The government is facing a condition that makes necessary a show of force on the isthmus. Gen. Reyes, the Columbian envoy, is in this country, and is doing what Aguinaldo did in 1899—sending Hoar's speeches to Columbia, as American sentiment.

Senator Hoar should go over to the democratic side, that is where he belongs, as either in his dotage, or has chronic indigestion.

Mrs. J. U. Emery calls the attention of the ladies to a fine line of samples of cloaks suits, skirts, waists and furs for the winter trade. She will be taken the agency of a reputable Chicago house, and solicits orders for their goods, which are among the finest made in market. She also wishes to announce that she has a few winter millinery goods on hand, that she will sell at greatly reduced prices. The ladies are invited to call.

That Throbbing Headache.

Would quickly leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers bear their testimony sworn for sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and build up your health. Only 25 cents, money back if not cured. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co. Druggist.

STRONGEST EVIDENCE OF FAITH

F. N. Chapel & Co Guarantee that Hyomei will Cure the Worst Case of Catarrh in Charlevoix.

When one of the most reputable concerns in Charlevoix guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure, it speaks volumes as to the merits of that remedy. It is in this way that F. N. Chapel & Co are selling Hyomei, the treatment that has made so many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic catarrh in Charlevoix and vicinity.

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon one teaspoon, but you breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit and healing will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with additional oxygen. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever germs or germ toxins contains catarrhal germs, there Hyomei will do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountains high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the air pure by giving off vitalific antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

A complete Hyomei outfit cost but $1.00 and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for several weeks treatment.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure you Chapel will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh by this natural method and prevent catarrh colds that are so common at this season. 2t.

—Will Marshall is home from Chicago on a visit.

—Miss May Emery, of Mackinac, is the guest of her cousin, Miss Grace Emery.

—Mrs M Mosily left Monday for Toronto, where she will spend the winter.

—Lottie Palow, of Atlanta, is the guest of Marie Mayne during the holiday vacation.

—The mill house of the Boyne City Chemical works was destroyed by fire last night.

—Miss Zella Fay, who has been a holiday guest of Miss Jeanette Campbell, returned to Ann Arbor Tuesday.

—New ads this week. A. T. Burnett & Co., J. L. Grant, Isac Hosenberg, M. Levenson & Co. Read them all.

—Hose Co No 1, Charlevoix Fire Department, will give a Valentine ball on the evening of February 12th, Remember the date.

—Eugene Higley, who is holding down a good job with the telephone company at Grand Rapids, spent the Christmas season with his parents here.

—At the weekly pins around of the bowling alley saturday, Joe Hosenberg lost the gentlemen's prize with a score of 107, and Terence Smith won the ladies prize with a score of 164.

—The contractors are putting in the heating plant at the new bank block, and superintendent Cameron has a force of carpenters at work fitting window frames and otherwise preparing to close the building for inside work, which will go rapidly forward on all floors. It is hoped that the K. P.s will begin holding meetings in the hall by April 1st and the bank people expect to move in by that time.

—The fishing tug "Alice C" arrived here Monday afternoon from Manistique, with deputy game wardens Gauthier and W. E. Brewster as passengers. The wardens had to enforcedly take the engineers of three of Coffey's fish tugs, who were arrested for fishing during the closed season. They were arraigned before Justice McCartney the same day. Entering a plea of guilty, they were fined $20 and costs each. The tug resumed fishing in the same afternoon.

—Married, Wednesday, Dec. 16th, at the residence of the bride's parents, in this village, by Rev. C. S. Harris, of Petoskey, Mr. F. H. Wilkinson, of Glenbrae, Mich., to Miss Edith Hawkins. Dr. and Mrs. Wilkinson will leave the first of next week for their future home at Glenbrae, where the Doctor has a very excellent dental practice. The groom is a brother of Dr. A. M. Wilkinson of St. James, and the bride has been stenographer to Judge Mayne since the days when the judge was a Charlevoix lawyer. Both bride and groom have a large circle of friends in Charlevoix, whose cordial good wishes will go with them to their Northern Peninsula home.

—The Kilties Band, who are announced to give two concerts at the Grand Opera House Petoskey Mich. Jan 5, 1904 have achieved a wonderful popularity throughout the United states, Canada and Mexico, and are today, beyond doubt, the most popular musical organization on the American continent. The Kilties have scored an instant hit wherever they have played, and it is noteworthy that both in New York and Philadelphia, the greatest audiences which ever greeted a musical organization attended their concerts. The musicians of the band are a fine looking lot of men, and beyond doubt splendid musicians. They make a delightful and picturesque picture, attired as they are in kilts, dark green tartan, bright red coats, and pirate aristocrat hats arranged in graceful folds. As a musical organization the Kilties are of the very first rank. The band is well balanced, and the playing is scholarly and spirited. Standard and classical music finds a place on their programme, as well as the more lighter and popular selections of the day. 2t.

—Horace Wakefield left Friday for St. Augustine, Fla. Mr. Wakefield's wife, who has been in Florida several months for her health, has failed so rapidly that he goes to bring her home.

—Fishing at the Beavers has been "postponed" until spring. Of the Charlevoix fishermen Somerville has laid up, but O'Neill and Gelken will continue business as long as they can get out.

—The home of Wm. Pooley near the park, narrowly escaped destruction by fire Saturday morning. Some of the children, in dressing in their room upstairs, threw a garment against a stove-pipe. A good big smudge and some blaze resulted, but an alarm was sent in and the fire department responded promptly, but the fire was extinguished with pails before a hydrant was opened.

—John Wessner, chemist of the Chicago University, who has been experimenting at Michigan beet sugar factories, believes he has invented a process by which sugar can be extracted from carrots and carrots more profitably than it is now taken from beets. He will conduct further experiments in Chicago. If Doctor Wessner's experiments prove of value, and his operation is a feasible one, the invention will revolutionize the sugar business in Michigan. It would also prove a boom to the farmers of the state, as carrots and turnips can be produced on soil which will not raise good sugar beets. The further experiments of Wessner will be watched with the very greatest of interest.

—We are surprised and grieved that the Herald issues to the East Jordan Enterprise of this week contained nothing of interest concerning the county printing and the board of supervisors. Considering the fact that both papers are printed on one press, we expected a sort of "one too" demonstration on the part of the "antis." We can only account for the failure in one way. The old man and the kid put their heads together to make the parental organ interesting for at least one issue. When there is a shortage of brains for an emergency twin journalistic effort at East Jordan, there is a merging of critical stock in trade. The old man possessing the greatest number of shares in the combination, gets the kid's proxy and runs the whole outfit. Never mind; the old man will give the kid something to play with later, if he is a good boy.

HORRIBLE HOLOCAUST.

From Four to Six Hundred People Killed in a Chicago Theatre Fire.

At midnight 830 bodies had been taken from the ruins.

GOOD ROADS.

George H. Van Pelt Tells Us a Few Things About Securing These

Chicago Dec. 30th, 1903.

MY DEAR SENTINEL:

This is the season of the year in which to form plans for the future. There are always more good resolutions formed at the beginning of the New Year than any other season. It is commendable so to do, and no doubt we will now hear it often said that after the New Year I will not swear, I will not drink, I will pay my debts, etc. These are all noble resolutions.

Now let every tax payer of Charlevoix say, this coming year we will devote more time and money to the building of good roads than ever before, and we will build them on a good solid foundation. Build them to endure, and there is only one way to where to do it, and that is to have good making machinery and an experienced road builder.

If three or four townships will unite and buy an outfit, viz: one crusher, roller, etc., hire a good road builder and each township raise $1,000 in cash to expend on the road agreeing among themselves for the length of time each township shall have the use of the machinery, and all keep the same superintendent and force of men at work, we can get more work and better work done than in any other way. This would do away with incompetent road commissioners and making the same piece of road over and over again each year, and still having no road.

Let us by all means get state Superintendent of Highways, H. S. Earl, of Detroit, to come and tell us how to do it. I cannot, but he can; that is his business, and if our State Legislature would only pass a good road act whereby the State would pay say 50 per cent, the county 50 per cent and the township 50 per cent, to build roads, such as are gravel-stone roads in the various states where these laws are in force, we would be the gainer and in this way really make more money than in any other manner possible.

I would suggest that one of the most excellent methods in securing legislation would be for every county in the state to secure good material for the next legislature, the same as we have in Charlevoix county, men who are honest, who cannot be purchased by fear or favor, or by any unworthy motives, men who will possess their conduct by a standard of scrupulous propriety, who would strenuously refuse to do any act, or put themselves in any position which would compromise their integrity, forfeit their independence, or impair their usefulness. Men who would remember always that public offices were not established to advance private interests, but to subserve public weed and promote general welfare.

They should refrain with special care from becoming in any wise obligated to those who may have a selfish interest in securing or providing legislation. The man who is not free to do what he thinks is right is unfit for public station. When we select this character of man to represent us in the legislature and to make our laws, we need not fear the lobbyist, we need not fear the result of their work.

Remember now is the time to act and that next year several thousands dollars of money will have to be backed to the sugar factory and the extra cost to the farmers in hauling these beets over bad roads will be more in a very few years than the entire cost of the road building machinery, and the cost of the building of the roads.

This is one of the facts we cannot get over, and if we with our county to be one of the big banner counties, we must do something to make it so.

When building roads do not allow any trees to be cut down, save all of them, they are worth money to us and will be worth more as time goes on. I heartily approve cultivating the sides of the roads and where one made smooth to be set out with a row of trees 21 feet apart, 2 inch saplings well cut back and set deep in the ground with half of it heavy stones on top the ground near the body to prevent the rootlets from being broken by heavy winds bending the body.

In this way 10 out of every 20 will grow and in 20 years we can have a nice row of shade trees the main drentage of every farm. If you do not think this will pay take a drive some nice day next summer to Mrs. Hilton's place opposite the Hilton school house, and I think you will change your mind.

On the score that any outlay of money for the permanent improvement of our roads cannot be my mind be termed an expense, but really an investment, which will enhance the value of farm property especially, and which will yield handsome results in as the years go on.

Yours Truly,
GEO. H. VAN PELT.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS.

Good sleighing for the past two or three weeks.

The schools closed Dec. 18, for the two weeks' holiday vacation.

The tugs Elder and Dodge are now doing winter fishing this season.

R. I. L. Co. saw mill will start up this week for the winter run.

John P. Maloney arrived on Island today on a visit to mother and sisters.

A large number of new settlers have been brought to the Island this fall.

W. J. Gallagher returned from a business trip to the main land last Friday.

There is a fine opening on Beaver Island for a charcoal and wood already place.

Ann Kennedy of Grand Rapids made a business trip to the Island on the last trip of the boat.

Sam Dow has been gathering apples. The Tug McIlson came over Tuesday to look after spawn.

Thousands of acres of timber land is being cut over and nothing but good sized logs saved. Facilities are plenty.

The tug Badger went to Garden Island Sunday with Miss Minnie Gallagher who is teaching school on the Island.

Mrs W. W. Hoyle and children who have been visiting friends in Harbor Springs the past fortnight, returned this week.

John Hand of Bloomingdale, Mich., brother in law of Charley Cross arrived Friday to lay land and locate on Beaver Island.

The Union Sunday school exercises will occur Thursday evening at this chapel. There will be songs recitations and a Christmas tree.

Death of Daniel H. Pierce.

In the death of Daniel Hosmer Pierce, which occurred yesterday afternoon, there passes away another of the early settlers of the Pine Lake region, and, in fact, a pioneer of the region tributary to Little Traverse Bay.

Deceased was born in Syracuse, N. Y., 78 years ago. At the age of 15 he came to Michigan, locating at Hastings. In 1860, while yet a boy, he removed to Little Traverse, now Harbor Springs, living there, and following the company's trade until 1867, when he located a homestead near Hortons Bay on the north side of Pine Lake.

Mr. Pierce was a professor of religion from his boyhood, and it was while living on the Pine Lake farm that he began preaching. For several years he had charge of the M. E. circuit which embraced Boyne City, Horton's Bay, Advance and Ironton. For two years following this religious work he was the settled pastor in Advance, under the Congregational Home Missionary Society. By that body he was later sent into Montmorency county for two years in missionary work. It was while on this work that the Congregational church authorities determined to ordain him as a regular minister, but owing to a delay in the appointment of a council, Mr. Pierce was compelled to return to his farm and the ordination failed, through no fault of either Mr. Pierce or the church.

Deceased removed to Charlevoix several years ago, and has been active in church work here. Besides a widow, who is the sister of Mrs. A. G. Aldrich he leaves a son and two daughters, Harris Pierce, Mrs. L. S. Ross and Mrs. Albert Holmes.

The funeral was from the Congregational church Monday afternoon, and was largely attended.

No Compromise.

As has been already stated in these columns, the Village of Charlevoix is in legal conflict with the Pere Marquette R. R. Co. in a suit to recover the payment of the tax of 1903 on the Lindsay Park and Inn property. The case was tried in the calendar of the December term, but was put over until next term.

The taxes as assessed were paid with a check of the company. The tax receipts were given the company's agent, and the check placed in bank to the credit of the treasurer. Subsequently the check was protested by the railroad company, and the claim is unstuffed. The suit at law followed.

At a meeting of the council held Monday night, a proposition to compromise the matter on payment of an amount $250 less than the amount assessed was received from the railroad people. Very properly the proposition was unanimously rejected. There can be no compromise whatever. The property was as fairly assessed as any property owned by citizens on interesting streets.

In proof of this statement is the fact that the company recently sold a lot in Lindsay Park for $1,000. The lot adjoining was assessed by the village at $600.

The assessment: dead island, and the tax must be paid as assessed, or it must be paid at all. It was not a promise with a rich corporation. It will be at the expense of the citizen taxpayer. Let there be no compromise.

For a number of years there was an undercurrent of hostility between Charlevoix and the Pere Marquette. On growing out of the bond deal. The Pere Marquette Co. seems to have taken the West Michigan grudge as an asset, and is evidently trying to realize on it in this tax matter. We accept the issue, and will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer.

In the assessment of the Pere Marquette property, the Village of Charlevoix must and will do what the tax commission did not do—appraise at fair value. It will be just to the railroad company, and at the same time just to itself. But it will not compromise!

It will collect from the P. M. Ry Co. the tax of 1903 if it has to go to the U. S. supreme court to do it! It will do just the same to the corporation that it would to the laborer, and there will be no compromise.

If there must be war between Charlevoix and the railroad company, let it be fought out now, and let there be no issue until it shall be decided, finally, whether or not the railroad company and the tax commission—joint or partners—shall make or control assessment rolls.

Compromise? Never!

NAILS A LIE!

Supervisor Payton Pays His Compliments to Editor Loraine.

EDITOR SENTINEL:

Last week the East Jordan Enterprise published an article under the head of, "The Annual Report of the County Board, Some Live Questions For Answers." After attributing the county officers, and trying to justify himself in attempting to squeeze a few extra dollars out of his printing deal, he wheels his infamous pen at the County Board, and charges me, with other members of taking excess of mileage. He says, "D. S. Payton, entitled to 10 miles $1.25 takes $1.50 across 12." My nearest route to Charlevoix, is to take a boat at Hipp's dock on the Arm, which is 12 miles south and east of my residence. This dock is 2½ miles southwest of East Jordan. Allowing 2½ miles from East Jordan to Charlevoix, and you have 12½ miles from the dock to Charlevoix, now add one and one-half miles from residence to dock and you have 14 miles which would allow me $1.50.

I presume if you would look up the mileage of the other members you would find that Loraine has laid on them, as he has on me. In the same article he said, "Payton admitted to us that had not Smith finaled, the board would have had finished up some paper and put the men fixed by law, but he chuckled, we run a little on our own and made it work." This statement is absolutely false. I have seen Loraine but once since the board met. I was then in his office on private business. No one was with us, or chuckled.

Loraine is a young man, of climatic gain that usually adorns his face had vanished and he was as solemn as the grave. The printing deal was not mentioned and I was about to leave, when C. L. Loraine said to me,

"Who told you that we wanted all bills itemized and itemized?" I answered, "Gus Loraine said, we want all bills paid by the county, to be audited by the county board, itemized and printed, even to the jury fees paid by the circuit court." He said, "this is the first time I have heard of it." I said, "I've seen papers and heard the conversation and demand, and you did not contradict it."

His attack on me is not a surprise, inasmuch, as his article was written before the facts are known. There is not a tax payer in Charlevoix county who could not read the proceedings of the board of supervisors and the treasurer's report if he had any desire so to do. A bundle of papers containing

PORTLAND GETTING READY

Plans Already Being Made For the Entertainment of National Grange.

Oregon and Washington are already laying up over the national grange a great reception in November next. In the city proper, Portland, Oregon, is making ready to welcome 1,500 delegates and visitors to the national session. Lewis and Clarke is to celebrate the 100th anniversary of their journey across the continent, which will be a strong effort to induce people to visit the Pacific coast. Portland is a city of 100,000 people, and is on that little known stretch of the Columbia river which is equal in scenery to the Rhine, and which is the Rhine of America, for national beauty and romance.

Portland, the grange No. 57 of Portland, one, is about to be the scene of a great gathering of the order, a grand meeting commencing with Master Jerome Cromwell, of Oregon, and ending with Master Aaron Jones, of Vermont, and a great reception will follow at the Portland Armory, at which the governors of the states will be present, and the mayor of Portland will be there to welcome the guests of the city. Thanksgiving day will be spent there, and the next day will be spent in the neighborhood some fifty miles, at the mouth of the Columbia, at the grange. A Thanksgiving dinner will be served there that will be long remembered by those who participate in it. The next day a special train will be taken for the Willamette valley, and a day will be spent at Salem, Oregon, and some prominent granges visited, and a reception will be given at the Portland Armory, at which the Portland Oregonian will be present, and a grange of 1,500 will be there, and the Portland Oregonian will be there to write up the occasion, and the next day will be spent in the Willamette valley, and some prominent granges visited, and a reception will be given at the

WAR IN TONTO BASIN

SHEEP AND CATTLE MEN AGAIN AT OUTS

Two Herders Killed in Renewed Outbreak of Cattle Men a Year Ago—Man Who Refused Release of Negroes Is Mysteriously Killed.

Another Tonto Basin outbreak is in progress, or there is every indication that such will be the case, unless the men who are ready to shoot on the slightest provocation can be induced to shake hands and bury the hatchet. Two men have been killed in the Tonto Basin region since Christmas, but their partners, who are known as good men and true, are acting sullen now. Last year a Mr. Hicks was killed by a cattleman, his partner and a possessed cattleman, and a man named Hancock was killed a few days later. The cattleman died a violent death in the same affair. The authorities in Phoenix believed they established the identity of the assailants, but no arrests were made, as the men are reported to have left the country after trouble.

IS IT NEGROES' REVENGE?

Man Who Refused Release of Convicts Was Killed Near Ashland.

Planned for vengeance some time ago, the death of Frank Ward, who was killed near Ashland, Ala., by a party of masked men, was the result of a scene Tuesday. Ward, who was a cattleman, had a number of negroes in his employ, and when the time came for their release from the Talladega county jail, he refused to release them, claiming that they owed him for time they had lost while in the jail. The negroes left the place, and Ward, who was a bachelor, was found dead on his farm, with a bullet through his head.

BLAMES HIS BROTHER'S WIDOW

Jilted Mississippi Man Following Murder with Effort at Suicide.

Jealous because his sweetheart, a widow, Mrs. Florence Lee, consented to marry another man, Samuel W. Lee, upon Dec. 31 he shot and killed the woman in her room in Hernando, Miss., and then attempted to end his own life. The woman was married a year ago to her brother-in-law, Mr. Lee, who died a few months after the marriage. Finally he succeeded in winning her, and she had told him she had decided to accept his offer of marriage. Lee, who is 40 years of age, is married and has a family. He is well known in Memphis, where he has been in the lumber business for many years. He was taken to the county jail, but was released on a bond of $5,000 pending the outcome of his wounds. He is shot through the lungs, and his recovery is doubtful.

FRIGHTFUL CATASTROPHE ENDS SIXTY-THREE LIVES

Dispatches Limited Details from Baltimore, Where Consolidated, Fast Vestibule Flyer Ploughed Through Daylight Passenger Coaches Filled to Smashing Capacity.

Sixty-three persons were killed and scores badly injured in a head-on collision on the Baltimore & Ohio road near Gunpowder, Md., which occurred about 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. The dead are almost all residents of Baltimore, and the list of the injured is composed of the same class of people. The wreck is the worst in the history of the road, and the worst in the history of the Gunpowder river bridge, which was the scene of a disaster in 1887 when a train fell into the river, killing 70 persons. The wreck occurred at the same or her adjacent bridge. The train involved in the wreck was the fast vestibule flyer, which left Baltimore at 8 o'clock for Cincinnati, Ohio. The train was made up of a dozen coaches, and was moving at a speed of about 50 miles an hour when it crashed into the local, which was made up of a dozen coaches, and was moving at a speed of about 25 miles an hour. "MARBLE CITY" IN IRELAND.

Material Used for All Sorts of Purposes in Kilkenny.

How many people are there who know that there is at least one town in Ireland whose buildings and streets are mostly of marble, whose mantelpieces and shelves are adorned with it? Surely not many. The town of Kilkenny in Ireland. This beautiful town has gained the designation of the marble city, because so plentiful is here the native black marble found in the vicinity now used for various purposes in the town, that as a matter of fact, the very streets are paved with it. Black marble is not the only one found and used, however, in the town. There are some superb examples of what Ireland can produce in marble to be seen in the cathedral at Kilkenny. Green specimens are observed even finer than the blue, ones, and the results lend to an opinion that examples of what Ireland can show in this way The exponents of the polish, too, are observed to be equal pieces of this green marble which is found, not about Kilkenny so much as in the farther district of Connemara.

PLEASANT MEMORY FOR KING.

Bismarck's Advice to the Ruler of Little Roumania.

King Charles of Roumania at dressed to his premier M. Sturdza, an affective telegram in acknowledgment of the people's congratulations on the anniversary of the occasion, while day dawn which, a quarter of a century ago, crowning the Roman-Turk. Oh, what! I had my much beloved wife not foot on the territory of her inheritance, which, for the blood of her heroes, has been joined forever with the heritage of Roumania. That is a "memory" which must have made King Charles think of the service that was given him by Bismarck when in the spring of 1866, the young scion of the Catholic hohenzollern, was serving as an officer at Potsdam, with no hope for action as he whose place should sweep the crown of Roumania, which then been privately offered to him. "Do as my all-aware" said the wizard, "the area if you don't take it will always remain a pleasant memory for you."

THE APPETITES OF BIRDS.

Feathered Songsters That Work Hard for Their Living.

If a man could eat as much in proportion to his size as a sparrow is able to consume he would need a whole sheep for dinner, a bushel of chicken fricassee for breakfast, and a horse for his evening meal. A tiny sparrow has been known to eat 250 grains seeds in a day. Birds can not do work far harder than human beings. A pair of house-martins when rearing their young on an average make in twenty minutes that is, each bird, male and female, makes eleven journeys to and fro to an hour or perhaps 1500 a day. It must be remembered that on each journey the bird has the added work of catching an insect. Even to one third as the work has been estimated to make 110 trips to and from its nest within, the minutes, and the grub it carried home consisted of insects much larger and heavier than were caught by swallows.

KOREAN WOMEN'S HARD WORK.

Labor-Saving Machines Unknown in "Hermit Kingdom."

At Chefoo, one of labor-saving machinery is known. Women's work is done by the crudest and barbarous methods possible, from hoeing rice with a heavy wood of stone pestle to washing clothes by beating them in the streams and leveling them with sticks. In order to iron the clothes man stands in ripped open and wrapped around a wooden roller while damp they are then beaten by either one or two women. It is surprising to see the linen on the white collar and the shirts, with the lines produced by this method of ironing, it surpasses the dressing one sees in this country on newly hedged linen. Since the people dress exclusively in white, the women's day seems often much of the night, too, is spent in washing from 'sun and sunset.

WHISKY, POISON AND PHYSIC.

Proof That There Is No Rule or Secret of Long Life.

All were off men cast about for an elixir or specific for lengthening life in the world. Two recently died all alike of old age and certainly was that he had smoked and drank liquor all his life. Another passing away at the age of 100 had for centuries been a lifelong drinker of whisky. Some of the hardest drinkers I know cannot bear the taste of whisky or brandy before breakfast. Outsiders think a man is drinking to "poisons" which must have made King Charles think of the service that was given him by Bismarck when in the spring of 1866 the young scion of the Catholic hohenzollern, was serving as an officer at Potsdam, with no hope for action as he whose place should sweep the crown of Roumania, which then been privately offered to him. UNNEEDED STRAIN ON HORSES

The strength required of an average blood team of horses and the strain on the horses to draw a heavy load over grades or out of a deep ditch or over roads other available obstacles is often greater than to draw the same load over a smooth surface city streets.

It would be a good estimate to say a teamster driver strained his team in that manner twenty times a day.

If a driver prevents straining his horses, never, there can not be will have blood marks of unnecessary straining on horses"—the Heath Journal.

THIEVES RARELY TAKE BIBLES.

Few Criminals Depraved Enough to Steal Holy Book.

Bibles are said to attractive to thieves, rarely stolen than any other objects. This is said because bibles are worthless to a thief, the reason for rarely "lifted" is probably because it is about the good book. A detective said recently that in an important case which of his followed up some years ago a thief had secured a bible, stolen some valuables, sold, and disappeared. A bible found in which was inscribed with presents. The detective obtained the thief and the man who had been robbed, a dealer in "curios," secured his competitor in jail. Look at bibles in the houses he had not taken the bibles and eventually informed him was not from a good job. "I know," the thief said, "that if I took that bible it would be no better, and if I didn't take it it might do me good. I let it alone and now think I won't do so bad and righteous."

The detective added that in another case where a thief had stolen a bible the book had been returned. "Another those few thieves will take" he concluded, "is a bible's saving back."

Worshiped the Cat.

The people of Egypt, also had more bible worshipers than any modern people. They worshiped cats, the sacred animals. SORTING OUT CORRECT T. M.

HOW IT IS OBTAINED AND DISTRIBUTED BY UNITED STATES.

Profit of the Telegraph Company—In 1896 Makes About $1,000,000 a Year Out of This Time Business.

The method of obtaining and distributing the correct time in the United States Naval Observatory is also followed by the Electrical Review. There are fixed clocks at the Naval Observatory, but those which are connected with the telegraph department are of most interest. They are so adjusted as to beat exactly the time spaces some beating to do with seven times, but the most important one with astronomy. This component is called the sidereal, that time upon which the astronomer with the transit circle is in consonance with a chronometer in the same room, and with the standard system of the observatory in order of a platinum rod and a solid pendulum of mercury. This latter is arranged on a metallic support made of such combination of the properties the precision point therefore the mercury when the pendulum is at the middle of its arc, passes the circle of the transit instrument. Some months ago it was discovered that the mercury could be rendered by an adjustment of the pendulum rod, so that the chronograph, from a continuous moving tape, on which automatically, the time of the observatory, in minutes and seconds, and the time of the transit circle, and the time of the Thomas chronometer, the time of the Naval Observatory, the time of the revolving top of the chronograph, above mentioned, and the time of the pendulum, above mentioned, and make a short line which automatically, the substitution of the mercury for the rod.

Now the official time record is compared by the observatory with the time taken which shows what time the observatory is ahead or behind, the chronometer, from an hour, because they not equal to correspond and one hour, and the time of the observatory, and the time chronometer record. The Bartholdi Company, in Philadelphia, is connected with the observatory, and the wires of the Western Union Telegraph Company. In the Commercial Telegraph Company, the time signals are sent out at 11 o'clock and signals all the time. And yet a week in and of United States, for the time, it takes time to make that time, and the time of the time, and the time of instruments.

The transmitting instruments are located in Washington, but out of five time stations, in which it is without a stop-and-start, the time signals are sent to any one who can utilize the principle the electrical company of Western Union Company. But that company does not use the time signal, instead, keeping about 10,000 clocks, correct, charging for so doing 50 per year for each clock. There are not at least each day in an hour, a clock, which responds to the hour of the clock, in the Naval Observatory, when its hands point to twelve and on the time current go. A minute before the hour, because even the Western Union wires is supposed, and signals throughout the country, put their instruments in order. For ten, no, ten minutes, from the observatory, or some place where there is a clock to be electrically connected, the time signals will go, the great periodic signals. Then the time signals, and the time, and the time, message, flashes over the wires, in an instant, exactly.

THE CUP OF COFFEE.

Our "Perfect" as Made in the Land of the Turk.

To make the perfect cup of Turkish coffee in the same way other things are easy when the maker knows how to do it, but follows the art has been learned in Turkey it is difficult.

No one can make a perfect cup of coffee unless he has been in Turkey, says the Boston Globe. There is an essential difference between the ordinary cup of coffee and the exquisite and stinging beverage with air in cappuccino drawn in smoke in the arise as there is between Arrabiata and the best English beef. The Turk's secret is simple. They have many little pots of brass, like a pitcher, that are to make two cups only; they use the smallest one, and if three cups a large one. When the water has boiled they let the little pot almost to the top with water, then put in three heaps of sugar and put the pot on the fire to make the water hot. They put in two compounds of coffee ground very fine, and then the water and it is thoroughly mixed with the water. The next step is to place the pot on the fire again, and when it begins to fully swell the coffee bubbles up to a froth, and before this froth comes over the side you take the pot from the fire and let the bubbles settle on the stove till the froth goes down. Once again the coffee is allowed to bubble over the fire, and the process of lapping the pot on the stove is repeated, twice.

When the froth rises to the surface for the first time the pot should be taken from the fire and the coffee should be poured first into one cup and then into another so that each cup contains a portion of the froth and the coffee.

The Englishman cannot make coffee at all. He cries Turk, and never goods either in making a perfect cup of Turkish coffee, but he meets with little more success than the Englishman. But this drop of water is forgotten, the coffee will be frothy reached and well treated and whether its of Brazil or Java or Mocha, it is the best in Latin America, so exceeding the Pressoaland the Pressoaland Cuba. It is mainly composed of full blooded Indians who are mostly pure Indian and so brave as to compel the foreign officers, men, men are actual to no other troops on account of their lightness, and so frugality and contentment they are far ahead of most of the world's soldiers. Use a proof of them, and they look upon life almost as a joke.

Sometimes his officials in Mexico City inquire his income, explicitly to decide a bounty point or sign some reciprocal pact. "What has been the President today?" they ask one another excitedly.

The answer is always: Much the same. He has herded of an odd woman, he mow-away the infantry was killed fighting for the independence of Mexico, who is living in poverty. Immediately the President has dropped everything and goes off to see her and to arrange for her future. He would never relegate such a task to a subordinate.

When he became President, a year back, in 1892, before his public life became known, his relatives and friends had to go to him for some place in the government. They expected to be allowed to plunder the treasury. He had old fashioned Mexico ideas, and they were very much disgusted when they found it plain that he neither intended to feed on his own money nor to allow anybody else to do so.

Since then they has dealt sincerely with many of his family and his friends, who, having been placed in public offices, cannot flout them.

Although Juan has been one same year for twenty-eight years, wielding enormous power over all the affairs of his country, he is unspoiled in power. His mind is broad and his views liberal. He is not given taking sides in the quarrels of his people, and he is not a proven whom we tremble at the bare mention of his name. He is not afraid of admitting that he has made a mistake. President Diaz is now 72 years of age.

Each day comes as a fresh gift. Next with a brave heart all that is in the day's portion, but shrinks not from the sunshine nor from "taboos that seem to blot the sun.

No man should be intimated until power who will not use it for good.

We should imitate the things we admire in other that our own nature may be blessed by that which we of late lose.

The depth from which our words are spoken is the measure of the depth at which they will be heard.—Ethan Hawthorne.

The only true knowledge of our fellow-men is that which we obtain as we mingle with them in the business among the fields, in school and the workshop, and wherever a market could be found. In a few minutes enough could be seen to enable the building now known as Mohawk Lodge. It is substantial one story and a half frame structure, with one large mansard roof, with Indian cactus and all manner of beadwork; another used as a workroom, and others reserved as apartments for the matron in charge and her assistants.

"Are their our greatest difficulty, was in finding a market for our beadwork; our trouble now is in supplying the demand," said Mr. Hoe. "Our best work finds a ready market from the atlantic to the Pacific, and some has been sold in Europe. The workmanship is as good as can be found anywhere, and the patterns are original and attractive. To save waste the superintendent cuts the leather for the moccasin arrows and furnishes the beads and sinew for sewing. The women are paid in the piece. About 100 workers find employment at a market, and the average earnings of each girl takes a good deal of thought, to earn it a day.

"The cost of the work is done by the women in their lodges in connection with the school. Several dollars Wanger frequently earn three-fourth a month. Most other beadwork sells in one month. Her industry is unsurpassed, when it is known that we ship at the rate of about 25 cents a square inch in our bead handling. Indian women are the most superstitious women on the land. In primitive days their life was one of constant toil, and in following civilized ways they are unskilled. Our outlook lodge we furnish employment at good wages to dozens that will add much to the comfort of their own children.

"Mohawk lodge has advance orders for more than $2,000 worth of bead work. Only about five years with annual is fully $5,000. The work need has been so successful that sub-stations and be established at other Indian reservations, and will of beadwork and the employment of Indian women in the business, is an average, the average cost and 50 cents per square inch. Our best work is done in the open air, and will argue other process in preparing the work.

SOFTENING HARD WATER.

Scientific Method of Removing the Objectionable Elements.

Hard water, which is obtained through the ground in that its issue in the surface, is deep strata, contains a large quantity of carbonic acid, by the presence of which the flinty constituents of the rocks are made to dissolve lithia and carbonate of magnesia, properties of the water, and the lime or components are enabled to dissolve and are best deliberate and remarkable of water, and of the water, says the Engineering Magazine.

Now it is a matter of operations of the softening of waters hard from the lime and by the addition of some substance which is much cheaper than the lime, and which forms an insoluble or easy, easy slightly soluble compound. Quicklime, the substance which carbonate dust with the lime, and forms a compound of the reaction is the double transformation, and the lime, and the lime, and the soluble of lime, and the lime, and the carbonate dioxide, but reduces the lime carbonate of lime and magnesia to the insoluble monocarbonate, and by three fall together in the form of a precipitate, and the water is softened. The bicarbonate of lime when subjected to the action of lime, and the chalk and magnesium carbonate in the form of red mud, the magnesium carbonate, and the lime carbonate, and soft. The potash and soda, if present, remain dissolved, but for use in any way harmful if present in any small quantity.

Death of Abel W. Chew.

Abel W. Chew, County School Commissioner, died at a Petoskey hospital last Saturday evening. Mr. Chew had been ill for two years. Last fall he was thought to be safely recovering, when he sustained an injury that rapidly sapped his vitality. He had been removed from his Hayes farm to Petoskey for the benefit of treatment.

Abel W. Chew was born in Blackwood, Camden county, N. J., Nov. 1, 1842. As a young man he removed to Indiana, where he acquired a well rounded education. He several years he taught school in that state. Twenty three years ago he removed to Hayes township, in this county, and bought a quarter section of wooded land. From that beginning he has developed his home into one of the best farms in Hayes township. As a farmer he brought with an intelligence that made agriculture a profession with him rather than a routine of labor alone. He was in all respects a scholarly farmer, and in the farmers institutes he was always conspicuous in all matters that involved the discussion of agricultural or pomological science.

Deceased was serving his third term as School Commissioner and there could be no greater tribute paid to his worth in that position than his last election while critically ill. As an educator he was progressive, well equipped, and clear in his supervision of the schools of Charlevoix county he inspired every teacher with his own energy, and was by them regarded as a worthy leader and friend. Mr. Chew was regarded by the State Board of Education as one of the best Commissioners in the State. He was not only an able educator and school official, but was probably as well versed in school law as the lawyers of his field of work. He not only saved and prudently guided the teacher and school officers in their work. He was a student, a teacher and a Christian gentleman. Not only has Hayes lost its foremost citizen, but Charlevoix county has lost one of the best men within its boundaries. He was an honorable, courteous, kindly and benevolent man, respected by all with whom he came in contact and beloved by his family and intimate circle of friends.

Mr. Chew was made a Master Mason at Charlevoix Lodge Sept. 12th, 1895, and was exalted to the degree of Royal Arch Mason in Charlevoix chapter May 27th, 1901. By his Masonic brethren he was honored, lately, and while confined to his home by his last illness, by being presented with a beautiful Masonic apron.

He leaves a wife and several children, most of them grown up.

The funeral occurred Wednesday morning from the home, with Masonic honors, interment at Charlevoix cemetery.

A New History of Northern Michigan.

We are pleased to call attention our enterprise undertaken by the H. F. Pearson Publishing Company, of Chicago, having for its object an authentic history of this region and of the men and women whose efforts laid a solid foundation for the present progress and prosperity.

A similar work has recently been completed for Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties, much of the information matter having been written by L. L. Sprague, the well known editor of Traverse City. He as well as many other local writers was called upon to contribute to this work and all who are able to contribute to historical fulness and accuracy are invited to assist.

Forty Sketches of settlement and growth, as well as anecdote and incident illustration of pioneer life and the personality of pioneers themselves, will be welcomed.

If S. Mullion who is at the Hanson Hotel is getting the matter personal attention and would be glad to interview any who may have material of interest along this line. Much attention will be given to the efforts of individuals as local history as wholly the result of personal effort. It is proposed to make this a volume of some history that will grow in value at time passes.

Let all assist in making it a valuable compendium that will mean something to the growing generation.

Another Pioneer Passed Away.

Seldom has this community received a greater shock than in that Saturday when the news came of the death of Robert Trimble, of Norwood township.

Mr. Trimble was in town Friday in his usual good health. About three o'clock Saturday morning he was taken with violent pains in the region of the heart. A physician was summoned and remedies given, affording some relief. Late in the forenoon he became worse, and at noon relief came again—the relief that comes with death.

Robert Trimble was born in Ireland in 1837. While yet a boy he came to New York city. After remaining there five years he removed to Michigan, which was in 1856. He bought the wild land upon which now stands his beautiful home and fine farm buildings, and began the herculean task of cutting the timber and clearing it for crops. The Trimble farm now is one of the best in Northern Michigan.

Mr. Trimble was one of the number who have proven the value of Northern Michigan soil and climate for agricultural pursuits. He was a successful farmer, and by laying aside he acquired a competence.

Deceased was one of our best citizens. Honorable and upright in all his dealings, a good husband and father, he was well spoken of by all in his neighborhood. The word of Robert Trimble was as good as his bond.

In 1865, the year he came to this section, he was married to Johanna, daughter of Joseph Clark, of Marion, who survives him. Six children were born to children, two of whom are living.

He was for many years treasurer of his township, and was trusting about as the time of his death.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Room, Jan. 7, 1904.

At the regular meeting of the council held on the above date there were present: R. W. Conifer and Trustees Washburn, Wilber, McMillan, Campbell and Miller.

Minutes of meetings of Dec. 17 and 28 were read and approved as read.

On motion the price for snow shoveling was raised to 35 cents per hour.

The following bills were allowed and by vote as follows the clerk was directed to draw a warrant for $1,500.

Philippine Tariff Reductions.

Senator Lodge has introduced a bill placing all imitation products of the free list, except sugar and tobacco, and on those a duty of only 25 per cent of the tariff imposed on like products from other foreign countries will be imposed if the bill becomes a law.

This would mean a reduction of one half! The duty on sugar, and it would be a more laborious task to the sugar beet industry than the proposed reduction of a cent per cent in the duty on sugar from Cuba.

There is no foundation for a claim that the reduction would be made on Philippine sugar. It would be made at the expense of an American industry that needs protection. If there is any merit in the protective tariff theory at all it applies in the case of the beet sugar industry.

The reduction on the proposed reduction of 50 per cent in the tariff on Philippine sugar, great sugar industries would be started in those islands and in addition great quantities of that sugar would be crowded through, permitting the importation of Chinese by the ship load, ostensibly for the purpose of working such plantations.

The Philippines are costing the people of this country millions of dollars every year, and it seems to the interest of the inhabitants of those islands rather than in the people of the United States. Certainly we should not be asked to go farther and destroy one of our industries in order to make the sugar plantations of the Philippines more profitable—Detroit News-Tribune.

WRENS SING A REQUIEM.

How the Birds Mourn the Loss of a Comrade.

"Did you know that wrens sing a requiem—hold a funeral service—over their dead" said a surgeon. "I myself once saw a requiem in progress. It was an early morning in May and an unusual twittering outside my window caused me to get up. I was under the sacred, yet curious impression that I was dreaming. Mockingbirds were two semi-circles composed of wrens—seven to the number of 20 or 25, that clung to one another with feet and wing. Thus they sang for two or three minutes, and all the while they twittered mournfully. Then suddenly, they broke form and flew away. On some down I found a dead wren lying just under the window over which the birds, in their strange cluster, had so sadly twittered. A naturalist to whom I described this episode said that what I had witnessed was called the 'wren's requiem,' an established fact, though a thing very rarely seen."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Give Contact by Nature's Own Methods When Bright of Business Being Better.

Nearly every one who has valued a down bile knows it is in its city and purity by dragging the stomach. Temporary relief may be given, but a true lasting option is Until recently any physician would have been considered a fool who would have ventured to suggest that the stomach of a human being could be cleansed by the use of a vegetable product. Yet Cascarets are now recognized as the most natural, gentle, and effectual means of cleansing the stomach and bowels, which we know, from personal experience, they do. Cascarets are a vegetable product, and are so pleasant to the taste, that children cry for them. They have attracted the attention of the medical profession, and are now prescribed by the leading physicians of the country, because they do not contain any mineral, or other injurious ingredients, but are purely vegetable, and act in the most natural way, according to the laws of nature, strengthening and invigorating the bowels. They are so pleasant, wholesome, and so easy to a person, that they are taken by the little ones, without a murmur, and the majority of those who use Cascarets think they are candy. Cascarets are sold by druggists at 10 cents per box, and we believe that the sale of this preparation is now greater than that of any other medicine in the United States—and it will make no friends for any medicine that does not deserve it.

Death of Abel W. Chew.

Abel W. Chew, County School Commissioner, died at a Petoskey hospital last Saturday evening. Mr. Chew had been ill for two years. Last fall he was thought to be safely recovering when he contracted an injury that rapidly sapped his vitality. He had been removed from his Hayes farm to Petoskey for the benefit of treatment.

Abel W. Chew was born in Rockwood, Camden county, N. J., Nov. 1, 1844. As a young man he removed to Indiana, where he acquired a well rounded education. For several years he taught school in that state. Twenty three years ago he removed to Hayes township, in this county, and bought a quarter section of wooded land. Upon that beginning he has developed his home into one of the best farms in Hayes township. As a farmer he wrought with an intelligence that made agriculture a profession with him rather than a routine of labor alone. He was in all respects a scholarly farmer, and in the farmers institutes he was always conspicuous in all matters that involved the discussion of agricultural or pomological science.

Deceased was serving his third term as School Commissioner and there could be no greater tribute paid to his worth in that position than his last election while critically ill. As an educator he was progressive, well equipped, and clear in his supervision of the schools of Charlevoix county he inspired every teacher with his own energy, and was by them regarded as a worthy leader and friend. Mr. Chew was regarded by the State Board of Education as one of the best Commissioners in the state. He was not only an able educator and school official, but was probably as well versed in school law as the lawyers of his field of work. He not only obeyed and prudently guided the teacher but wisely advised and directed the school district officials in their work. He was a student, a teacher and a Christian gentleman. Not only has Hayes lost its foremost citizen, but Charlevoix county has lost one of the best men within its boundaries. He was an honorable, courteous, kindly and honest-hearted gentleman, respected by all with whom he came in contact and beloved by his family and intimate circle of friends.

Mr. Chew was made a Master Mason at Charlevoix Lodge Sept. 12th, 1895, and was exalted to the degree of Royal Arch Mason in Charlevoix Chapter May 27th, 1896. By his Masonic brethren he was honored, lately, and while confined to his home by his last illness, by being presented with a beautiful Masonic apron.

He leaves a wife and several children, most of them grown up.

The funeral occurred Wednesday morning from the home, with Masonic honors, interment at Charlevoix cemetery.

A New History of Northern Michigan.

We are pleased to call attention our enterprise undertaken by the R. P. Rixon Publishing Company, of Chicago, having for its object an authentic history of this region and of the men and women whose efforts laid a solid foundation for the present progress and prosperity.

A similar work has recently been completed for Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties, much of the historical matter having been written by L. L. Sprague, the well known editor of Traverse City. He as well as many other local writers will contribute to the work and all who are able to contribute to historical fulness and accuracy are invited to assist.

Further mention of this enterprise and growth, as well as anecdote and incident illustration of pioneer life and the personality of pioneers themselves, will be welcomed.

C. S. Mellon who is at the Rixon Hotel is giving the matter personal attention and would be glad to interview any who may have material of interest along this line. Much attention will be given to the efforts of individuals as local history as wholly the result of personal effort. It is proposed to make the: a volume of local history that will grow in value as time passes.

Let all assist in making it a valuable compilation that will mean something to the growing generation.

Another Pioneer Passed Away.

Seldom has this community received a greater shock than it did Saturday when the news came of the death of Robert Trimble, of Norwood township.

Mr. Trimble was in town Friday in his usual good health. About three o'clock Saturday morning he was taken with violent pains in the region of the heart. A physician was summoned and remedies given, affording some relief. Later in the forenoon he became worse, and at noon relief came again—the relief that comes with death.

Robert Trimble was born in Ireland in 1839. When yet a boy he came to New York city. After remaining there five years he removed to Michigan, which was in 1856. He bought the old farm upon which now stands his beautiful home and his farm buildings, and began the herculean task of cutting the timber and converting it into farm. The Trimble farm now is one of the best in Northern Michigan.

Mr. Trimble was one of the number who have proven the value of Northern Michigan soil and climate for agricultural pursuits. He was a successful farmer, and by labor alone he acquired a competence.

Deceased was one of our best citizens. Honorable and upright in all his dealings, a good husband and father, his word was spoken of by all in his neighborhood. The news of Robert Trimble was as good as his bond.

In 1866, the year he came to this section, he was married to Indiana, daughter of Joseph Clark, of Marion, who survives him. To them were born six children, five of whom are living.

He was for many years treasurer of his township, and was deputy sheriff at the time of his death.

To the death of Robert Trimble Charlevoix county loses one of its most valuable citizens.

WELL, Agnes, said grandmother Mike, as she blew her nose behind her handkerchief, "he seems to suit your new."

"Yes," said Father, as he sneezed and wiggled.

"Not the least little bit," said Mother.

"Why, what's the trouble, Mike, dear? Aren't you well? Are you sick? Shall I get you a doctor?"

"Oh, no!" exclaimed Mother, sitting up and trying hard to look cheerful. "I'm all right, only I don't like—I don't like—I don't like—

A SAD FATE

Only by the strangest combination of circumstances did it become known here Tuesday that Melvin Cartier, a deaf mute, and a brother of Fred E. Cartier, of this place, had been killed by the cars in Chicago the Thursday previous.

On Tuesday village Marshal Jim Hawkins received a letter from Rose Cook's Morgan, Chicago, stating that there laid in his place the body of a young man who had been killed by the cars last Thursday. The only thing found upon the body from which to work out identification was a postal card addressed to "Fred Cartier, Fenwick, Mich."

Hobson had therefore written former in information, and received a letter in reply which better was also enclosed to Hawkins. Omnet stated that some days ago a deaf mute came to his house and asked for supper, stating that he had no money. After eating his supper he asked Mr Omnet for his name and address, and he was given a postal card. During the time he was in the house the young man had written that he was going to Charlevoix, Ohio, that he had been some time working with a brother in Charlevoix, and that he was now on his way to Canada. Omnet described his appearance and dress, which fulfilled perfectly with the appearance and dress of Melvin Cartier.

Young Cartier left here the day before Christmas to visit his relatives in Chatham, Ont. When he left he had about $10 in money. His brother is at a loss to account for his appearance at Fenwick, in his being without money in any other way than that he was robbed. Neither can he account for his going to Chicago, but thinks he stumbled on your Clyde Cartier, whom he knew to be in Chicago on a visit, and with whom he had been quite intimate here.

Aside from his infirmity the young man was bright, and had been well educated in a deaf mute school in Canada.

He had worked about three years in his mother's tailor shop here and was steady and industrious.

In the letter to the Charlevoix judge, Omnet states that the head was severed from the body, and that the body was badly mutilated in other ways. Advices from Chicago state that Clyde Cartier fully identified the body, at Rohrson's morgue as Melvin Cartier. Arrangements have been made to send the body to Canada.

Death of G. B. Hines.

E. D. Hines died at his home in this village Tuesday night, of this week, of catarrh, aged 72 years.

Deceased was the father of Frank G. Hines and Miss Belle Hines, of this place. His wife survives him.

Mr. Hines was born in Suffolk, England, and came to Canada when but seven years of age. As a young man he came to this country and learned the trade of carpenter. He finally located in Kentucky, and became a foreman in railroad bridge construction work. Later he was Superintendent of Bridges and buildings on the Louisville, Cincinnati & Lexington R. R.

When the Pine Lake Iron Co's furnace was built at Ironton, early in the '80s, Mr. Hines came here as foreman of construction for that concern. He returned to Ohio and engaged in railroad work for a time, but returned here, where he has since lived.

Mr. Hines was a courteous and kindly old gentleman, industrious but intelligent; a good citizen and a good man.

He was a member of Charlevoix Lodge of Odd Fellows, which organization will assume charge of the funeral, which will occur Sunday at 1 o'clock p. m.

Healthy Tortured.

A case come to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. Joe Gutshke of Colma, Cal., writes "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from rheumatism and nothing removed it till I tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just good for Liver and Kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Guaranteed by druggists F. G. Hines & Co. Druggist.

LIBEL DISMISSED.

Charlevoix Township Wins the Suit Brought by Schooner Hackley for Damages.

The U. S. court at Grand Rapids Monday, the case of the schooner Hackley against the township of Charlevoix for damages sustained by reason of the bridge failing to turn, handed down a decision dismissing the suit with costs.

It will be remembered that the Hackley, in tow of the tug Wheeler was found one with cargo. A stone lodging in the space between the bridge and the approach, prevented the bridge from turning, and the vessel ran into the structure. The township's defense was that the bridge whistle warned the tug in time to have held the schooner in control. This claim seems to have been sustained by the court, as the decision states that the damages were sustained by reason of negligence on the part of the tug.

There has been some criticism of the township officials for contesting this suit on the grounds that it could have been settled for less than one hundred dollars. The township board has held that there was a principle involved in the matter that was paramount to the matter of cost.

It seems clear now that the suit cost more than all the suit has cost the township, in establishing a precedent, and posting a warning to citizens who think the public money belongs lawfully to anyone who happens to be sued, or threatened.

Vessel Captain Stanislaus is to be congratulated.

Following is the text of the decision:

SCHOOL NOTES.

Miss Helen Ier has been engaged for the Central fourth grade in place of Miss Mellar resigned.

Miss Chilson is still absent this week and Mr. Bailey continues his work in earnest history.

A full house greeted the Atlinson lecture on the Fool in Politics. It was compact with wit, knowledge and statesmanship. It deserved a fuller appreciation than the majority of people can give at one hearing. Its information and advice ought to be made into a text book for the enlisted footmen of the rival political chief from politics and leave it to run by bosses and stupids.

Some students were conditionally promoted at the end of last year to the next higher grade. The probabilities are that a number of these will come to grief in math at the end of this half year. It is far preferable for a poor student to drop back at this point than to do so after another half year. Teachers are instructed not to promote any students conditionally unless they feel certain every condition removed before he will receive a certificate of promotion.

What is the ideal system of promotion? How would you teach the subject to a grade of which some write the vertical hand and others the horizontal? Some object to promote by the other, also all object if no system is taught. The system now adopted is neither vertical nor slant, and yet both vertical and slant. If that is not understood, just get one of the copy books, look it through, and see whether you could devise a better one for our pupils as they are. Don't criticise until you can propose something better than those who have made a study of the subject and of the existing conditions.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Coach Yost of the famous U. of M. football team has made public announcement that next season eleven will not have among its number Joe Maddock, the East Jordan wonder.

Mrs. Alma Kendall, wife of Rev. Kendall of Cross Village, died suddenly last saturday morning of heart disease. The bereaved husband is pastor of the M. E. church at Cross Village. Deceased was 33 years of age, and leaves two children.

The following from last week's Central Lake Torch voices the sentiment of the Republicans of this Congressional District: "The Torch has heard the name of Andrew H. Dougherty mentioned with the Chicago convention and hastens to say that it would be a pleasure to the rank and file of the Republican party in Antrim county to see Mr. Dougherty elected as a delegate to the Republican National Convention. Mr. Dougherty clearly represents the younger element of the party, is a progressive and aggressive Republican and would be an honor to the delegation the county and the district."

Petoskey News: The Petoskey Rug Mfg & Carpet Co. Ltd., of this city and Sault Ste. have been awarded the contract of furnishing the government contract officers at the Soo with their make of wool rugs, which in itself is quite a compliment. During the last season they supplied large quantities of the same make of rugs to the Gov. U. S. Pt. Brady located. They have just closed a contract also with the U. S. weather bureau offices at the Soo. Mr. A. T. Wadsworth has just returned from an extensive business trip to Chicago, Boston and New York in the interest of what will be the largest wholesale and retail carpet and rug house in the upper Michigan, of which he is at the head, located at the Soo.

Bellaire Independent: A farmer's telephone line from Bellaire to Torch River, via Clam River and Alden, will be in operation by the end of January, with 10 subscribers on it. The first load of line material went through here Tuesday. This will be a branch of the Traverse Bays Telephone Co., which has lines extending over the greater portion of the county. Each subscriber pays for the running of one and a mile of line and buys his own instrument. With his phone and half a mile of line as a share of stock the subscriber becomes a member of the parent company. The company assesses $2.00 a year from each phone and in return keeps the line and phone in repair. This $2.00 is therefore the total expense of the phone service after it is once begun. On the line from this place to Torch River the estimated cost of the instrument and half a mile of line was $17.00. Alden will be two miles between Bellaire and Torch River, can be run through line and the other the local line. The locations will be cut in three parts, one extending from Bellaire to Clam River, a second from Clam River to Alden, and another from Alden to Torch River. All the subscribers phones will be connected on these local lines. Then in addition, the through line will also stop at each phone, and by a switch the farmer can throw his instrument into the main line when he wishes to talk beyond the limits of the local line he is on. At Torch River connection will be made with the farmer's line by the west shore of Torch Lake through Milton. Service could then be obtained to the northern part of the county from this place either by way of the nearest line to Central Lake or by the farmer's line up the west shore of Torch Lake.

Atmosphere of Plants.

Owing to the each gravitation, the atmosphere of each planet as Jupiter and Saturn is very dense, and supplied with opaque particles that we cannot see through it to the body of the planet which is, in fact, hidden by its dense atmosphere. Our atmosphere is very thin in comparison, so we see the surface for if the solar system is formed (as is assumed) by condensation of nebula the heat of condensation must be proportionately greater and longer retained in a large world than in a small one. Thus for the purpose of life on these great planets, the energy radiating from within may be available and, instead, only depend on the energy received from the sun at so great a distance.

Catbirds Defeat Snake.

A writer in the Boston Herald says: "I witnessed a pair of catbirds making a joint attack upon a rattlesnake and succeeding in driving the reptile out of their yard. At first the snake was inclined to disregard the attack, but the birds were too nimble to allow him to get his fangs of their feet and bills long enough to strike. The birds would dart in and out, now on one side and now on the other, and the snake was kept busy trying to hit them. At last the birds had wearied the duel, the snake seemed to realize that he was no match for the birds, and he started to leave the yard, but the birds followed him and then out to the old stump, under which the baffled and beaten reptile took refuge."

Vegetable Long in Action.

The most recent observations show that Venus rotates on its axis as a consequence of attraction exerted upon the moon, as Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, which have moons, are observed to rotate in 24 hours or by a velocity equal to about six feet per second, which is an engine of Venus's orbit must have taken place in the length century before Christ. The rotation imparted a Green Dwyhal place, accurate before Christ and van Cop between and ever since.

The Hittite Alphabet.

If we the Hittite language, at least the alphabet derived by that warrior people is all over Asia Minor. Many of the 175 Hittite signs were pictograms—survivals of the picture-writing stage. It therefore stood intermediate between the Mesopotamian and the phonetic Phoenician. In Cyprus and Asia Minor the 56 Hittite signs left which the Phoenicians had taken from the Hittites, underwent a further simplification with the various languages of the Greek, Hittite and van Cypriot their cuneiform characters.

Dog Exercisers.

There are people in London who make quite remunerative things out of exercising dogs and some of them, who are fitted for the job, hunter alone, get paid in every London park those exercisers of dogs may be seen one in, and sometimes alone park like a week, let the effective use of valuable bulldogs, the young fellow who attends to the dogs further owns a dozen other employing bulldogs.

Saws Worth $5,000.

Probably the most expensive saws in use anywhere in the world are those in the factories of Tonyandia, Wales, where saws are manufactured of slate. In one of these factories there are 200 horizontal saws, twenty feet in length, each of which is fitted with seventeen blades, cutting at each being worth $5,000. The slate used which furnishes the material for these saws goes to work upon saw case no little valued and longer retained of a large world than in a small one. Thus for the purpose of life on these great planets, the energy radiating from within may be available and, instead, only depend on the energy received from the sun at so great a distance.

Applause by Hissing.

Hissing means different things, according to where it begins. In the Indies, in West Africa the natives hiss when they are astonished; in the New Hebrides when they see a veritable beautiful. The Russian applaud a popular orator in this assemblies by hissing at him. The Japanese, again, have their pronounce by a sign which has probably somewhat the force of the "boos" with which we command whom. In this country the line only one meaning—disapproval.

Side Light on Social Duying.

The Presbyterian church brought its fair to a close last evening. One lady, in purchase handkerchiefs, said to the lady in charge of the stall: "I always like to buy handkerchiefs at a church fair because the work on them is usually done by the hand, and my friends to whom I send them are sure to wonder how. How sweet of you, will act you have to do to spend the time you must have put on the beautiful handkerchief and so." Invention Dispatch.

Limits of Perpetual Snow.

In the Himmalayas the limit of perpetual snow is 8,500 feet; on Mt. Ararat, some hundreds of miles nearer the equator, it is 9,932 feet; on Popocatepetl, in Mexico, it is 12,500 feet, and on Aconcagua, in Argentina, it is 14,900. And as we continue south the the snow line sinks again nearer to the sea level—2,700 feet at Magellan's strait and 2,200 feet in Terra del Fuego.

Life in City of Mexico.

The City of Mexico is a wealthy capital; many people there live as do the most opulent in the United States, and money flows out all the time into the people. "No people like the Mexicans for liveliness," said a merchant with a cosmopolitan experience. Money factories, great industrial estates, fill with the money which makes this a city of luxurious shops.

White Soldiers Drink Most.

The official report of the army shows that out of 4,000 Filipino troops only three intoxicate were treated for alcoholism last year, while white soldiers were admitted to such report on account of the use of liquor at the rate of 24.75 per 1,000 and colored troops at the rate of 15.55. The Malay soldier showed the extremely small admission rate of 1.43 per 1,000.

The Port Jordan Enterprise says that one of northern members of the knapsack of our state are earnestly dates for county office, and that is why they have been so naughty. It is to be hoped Judge the boys have been to school enough to get the management of the county. It is a significant fact that one of the board already is mentioned for a county office. Hon. Wm Mears, supervisor of Jordan Valley. Mr. Mears was the lonely champion of the license resolution, and he was voted down by the board, and the other fourteen members of the board who arranged the newspaper trust.

Supervisors at Mr Mears was long ago eliminated from the board of supervisors, the Enterprise state which caused that time out of fourteen of the board are candidates for county office. Now we are not so much disturbed in identifying the also hopeful men as we are to know who are prominent men who have an ambition. There's Jimmy Adams, of Warren, Hans Wagner, of Scottville, Wm Fitzpatrick, of Pleasant, John Gray, of Every, Frank Freeman, of Springvale, Cooley, of Chandler, Cobbles of Melrose, Peter, of Charlevoix, Jim Gaffney, of Eveline, Jim Gillespie, having not been in many moments. Bennie Hill, Gallagher, of St. James, says the woods and lakes are full of men who are contemplating the office of sheriff and county clerk. Now, who are the men?

We hear that Jim Gillespie, of the boys, has been in the woods and lakes are worth more, who would be satisfied and happy if he could get a school district. Jim's ambition is to be a school teacher.

Immediately the man's face grew red and angry looking. He then answered in a tone of voice that was very unlike that used by him for the occasion. He said: "Well, I guess I can tell you what I want to know, for the information of my employer. I want to know if you are the man who was in the employ of Mr. Hamilton Bolton, and if you ever saw a man who was in the employ of Mr. Bolton, who looked like the man whose photograph I have in my pocket."

Mr. Dubois, I believe I could easily tell you the man you mean, but I do not think it is any concern of mine to answer questions of this character.

"Then nothing remains but to wait, or hunt up somebody who can tell us what we want to know."

"Yes, that is another way." Then he paused a second and a smile of satisfaction came over his face. He said: "I know of a man who can tell us what we want to know, and I will go and see him at once. Now, Miss Bolton, I will bid you good-bye for a few minutes while away from your side."

Then speaking, he walked from the plot but slowly kept down.

CHAPTER XVI.

The ground was covered with snow and when the sun shone again through the gray clouds, trees and shrubs and both sections of glittering crystalline purity. Nature was undergoing a change to banish the slow perishing process of autumn; for the sun had gone far enough toward the top and white fallow again commenced to cover the earth.

It was Christmas. The little sent out invitations time for this day organized in accord with the joyful colors of the merry bells and mistletoe. Mr. Dubois did not carry their merriment, though his heavy bells could not be partial gale in their happy songs.

Hemlinscher had begun to emerge from his office. Also Miss Allen had been over Centennial to Mr. Dubois, and he allowed his mind to wander on occasionally. It was a dream. All the blossoms of a year ago were there, and he was alone with his reasoning thoughts, he entered upon the beautiful scene of the past. Not one word of solace could be lost from the lips of those whose lives were so pleasant happiness—and now—Hemlinscher—he—he devoted—Miss Allen—he—he—he—he was not made the better than he—he—he—

A Lesson for the Dentist.

A little girl, after parting with toothache was in no wise to have the tooth removed. She refused to let ether administered for fear, being afraid of the pain. "It won't pain, you think, when you pull the tooth?" asked the dentist. "There, now, open your mouth, it won't hurt." Half a minute went, removed the tooth, and as the little girl cried softly the dentist said: "Well I told you it wouldn't hurt." What do you think of me now?" Looking up at him with her big brown eyes she replied: "I think you're the biggest liar in town." The dentist has not yet telling people tooth pulling doesn't hurt.

Deserving of Some Pity.

The frothing widow who gives the savings of her industry to a man whom she expects to marry in order that he may get well enough to be hanged before that lesson comes will probably continue to report to the police in response cities of the country lightly. Almost every second person who dies leaves their property to children in consequence of a verbal promise to take care of them as long as they live. Men who overlook relatives who have ever no claim on her estate is entitled to such pity as is due to the victims of the whole-hearted where men are out in the value of warning.

Not Properly Understood.

The Rev. Dr. C——, in a sermon in Pennsylvania, had lately added to the Sunday previous to Dogs Lee's Amen be ventured to include in his prayer a petition for the pretzels recovery. "Now I must have been misunderstood by my reference to the case," by only a friend later. "for after the service one of my parishioners said: 'Dogs who was the sick old man in Dresser for whom you prayed?' I said Judge ——— (a member of the church), wasn't it? I know he would be Dresser in June, but I hadn't heard that he was sick."—New York Post.

Early American Composers.

The Massachusetts Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution has placed a tablet in the Dorch public library in commemoration of early compositions of American patriotic music. The inscription states that the society, "in grateful recognition of the inspiration of patriotic verse and song, commemorates the following names: William Billings, the one hundred, John Howe, Oliver Pelton, Samuel Francis, Francis Scott Key, George Frederick Root."

Preserving Cork Trees.

So much cork is now used in the manufacture of linoleum and in ship building that the preservation of cork trees has become a matter of considerable importance. Italy is taking steps to that end in Sicily and Sardinia, where there are large cork forests, those of Calabria having been nearly destroyed in the making of corks. It is said that Spain is showing a like interest in preserving their trees, as the main reliance of corks in a large industry, there. Over two years and the exportation of wine bottle corks from that country amounted to about $2,000,000 annually.

Writer's Need of Isolation.

Thomas Bailey Aldrich, the poet, never other Vigilance regard as one of the most beautiful estates on the shores of Massachusetts bay. He has a house and a very fine study in this, his own place, but it is a little of two miles from his front gate to his house. There are trees, lawns, and large shade trees on the lawn. Although his house has plenty room, he has to go a few miles down near the water, that he might have an isolated place to write in.

Suffered Terribly—Doctors Failed.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Him.

Weak, nervous, fretful, poor children require a tonic and nerve food. Dr. Miles' Nervine affords. When neglected these conditions often develop into fits. Every mother should read the following:

"When my little boy was 18 months old he had convulsions his feet and hands. They would be drawn up and object for twenty-four days. At first I thought I would do help but the doctors said he would get well. The doctor gave him. We then decided to change to another which called I spend the days. By this time the child's body was covered with sores. Sometimes he was carried to one side and his hands and feet out of shape. It looked as if he would be crippled. I was loving from top to toe like a clay. I was in a state of despair. I had spent hundreds of dollars and suffered for the cost of him. He is now a strong, healthy, cut going to school. I have wanted to let you know the result, before writing. Yours truly, Mrs. Ella Hoover, Cedar Falls, Iowa."

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The total loss on the Horne Chemical works, which partially burned recently, has been adjusted and the loss agreed at $12,000.

Petoskey Record: Mr. C. A. Hoyt, the handsome man bought Mrs. Potter's resource, center Michigan and next weekend, on Saturday and will bring his family here from Chicago to a wind time.

Six men were instantly killed, two fatally injured and two seriously scalded Thursday by an explosion of the boiler in the Mason & Newman mill at Hooker lake, 10 miles southwest of Lansing in Ingham county. The mill was completely destroyed.

If Dows and family, now living at the Depot, will make Petoskey their home after February first Mr. Dows has been appointed general sales agent of the Depots for Our Crescent—and the Big Snow Lumber, and will moonlight on them in February. Petoskey News.

Carlisle News: Sugar beet culture in Wexford county is being actively encouraged by the Mount Pleasant sugar company and its representatives and it may be that the industry usually confined to the Saginaw valley in the matter of sugar beets production will be introduced in the Wexford county. The soil is adapted to sugar beets and the good beet-lifter at Mount Pleasant assures us that the sugar beet industry has usually been profitable.

An old resident informs the Petoskey News that twenty nine years ago there were only five Indian visits to Petoskey during the month of February. The incident was remembered in connection with Pontiac's team on the 9 A. M. 1, all of which arrived in the city after having been buried in the snow near Manistee. The Indian were presented by the snow plow in the road packed by teams in the morning—building up on the prairie covered with snow and ice, and with bells and whistles muffled showing the effects of the terrible storm with the snow.

Petoskey Record: Prof. Graves Normal school is favoring this winter with the largest attendance in the history of the school. It looks as if 50 would be crowded out of the present quarters of an early date and larger facilities must be furnished if the institution is to grow, by private or public enterprise. The better the facilities the more rapid the growth, and with such there is little doubt that several hundred pupils could be added to the present attendance with a short time. Leaving all prejudices out, a normal school with from 250 to 300 pupils would bring a large aggregate of money into Petoskey in the city during the year.

Petoskey News: A recent decision entered in the United States court at St. Louis is of more or less interest. The court decrees that our patented shingle machine will not be subject to a royalty of one dollar per thousand, as demanded by J. T. Wilcox of Minn. of Chicago, who claimed a patent on the machine and sought to collect the amount of one dollar for each and every one thousand feet of and shingle shingles in the United States. Mr. H. Hirsch of Petoskey, secretary of the Shingle Flooring Manufacturers' Association of the United States, was instrumental in a greater extent than any other single individual in securing evidence against the Wilcox claim.

Harbor Springs: Two pieces twice the size of our little city can boast of as fine an opera house as we are going to have. Salonga, Bellamy & Spring 20 expense to have it first class, and expense to have it completed in about two or three weeks. It is both comfort in every respect. The scenery will be raised straight without rolling, making it much easier and quicker to arrange. The best scenic painters in Chicago are now working on it. The front curtain will be a fine work of art, and be made of fireproof asbestos. The house will seat comfortably about 700 people, 500 on the main floor and 200 in the balcony. The floors have sufficient slant to give a good view of the stage from every seat.

Traverse City Record: South Manitou island enjoys a distinction which few communities can boast of. There are sixteen families on the island who make it their permanent abiding place. The number of inhabitants is something over eighty, and it is a fact that none of them owe a cent to any man. There is no mortgage upon any of the property, no chattel mortgage and not a note of any kind against an inhabitant. This is an enviable condition of affairs. The people are prosperous and happy. Many of them have substantial bank accounts and have money to loan. They manage mainly in agricultural pursuits and several very fine farms are operated. There are 2 "ox" who engage largely in cattle raising, many fine cattle being shipped from there every season. In addition to those who reside there permanently there are now about 40 men working in the Hodges & Nelson canning and salt.

Subscribe for the SENTINEL and get a chart of Charlevoix harbor.

The Charlevoix Lumber Company's saw mill will start up next week.

J. I. Berry was called to Vanderbilt, Tuesday by the serious illness of his mother.

Call in and see the new chart of Charlevoix harbor which we give to every new subscriber.

Grinnell Brothers will have a piano tuner here this week. Leave orders of their music from the bridge.

A coal fire delivery wagon will be established soon from Charlevoix to Boyne City. The civil service examiner is here to-day to examine applicants for the route.

A G. T. Oil office boy, with two others arranged to open a large restaurant and saloon at St. Louis. The restaurant will seat 2400 people and they expect to feed 7000 people per day.

—The stingiest man has been found in Missouri. He pumped water on his head, so his hair freezes, and then broke it off to save paying for a hair cut because the barbers raised the price to a quarter.

—Ernest Sharpe, a private in the Salvation Army, is here this week. He has been in Army work at St. Johns and will leave Magdiec for the Chicago Salvation Army training school, to perfect himself in his chosen life work.

—Wm. Holmes Jr. is working in a shop yard at Middle Ale Herbert Holmes, who is in a sanitarium treating between Middle and Havana, writes that he recently saw the schooner Olga at Havana. The Olga has taken many a cargo from Pine Lake.

—A meeting of the chairmen of the boards of all local societies of the several churchships in Charlevoix county has been called for February 4th at the county seat's office to select a school commissioner to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Asa W. Chase.

—Services will be held in the Episcopal Church on Tuesday evening Feb. 2nd by Rev. C. T. Stout. An historical lecture will be delivered on "Wesley and the Church of England." A cordial invitation is extended to the public to be present. Especially all those interested in historical questions.

—The SENTINEL has a great office to make to our subscribers. To every new subscriber we will give a correct local chart of Charlevoix harbor, free and. The chart embraces a radius from two miles in Lake Michigan to two miles in Pine Lake. It includes an accurate plat of Charlevoix village and surroundings. It gives soundings in both lakes, river and harbor, and shows guides to navigation. It is a great chart.

The Iroquois theater fire verified below and let home the dogs at war,
Everywhere in the matter of panic
Which Charlevoix joins hands with the balance of the world in providing against future trouble. As will be seen by the account proceedings, the regular council and special committees have reported with reference to conditions in Charlevoix, and an ordinance is in process of creation that will govern the safety of all assembly rooms, including churches. It is needless to say that the committees report brings serious issues to summonsed and dance halls in Charlevoix.

—Mrs. O. S. Washburn gave an "Axel Negri-Negri" party of her home last evening. About twenty and settlers were present, and the event was most enjoyable. A elegant banquet was served, after which the evening spent in conversation of a reminiscent character. The party was given to celebrate the birthday of Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Washburn's mother. Those present were Hon. John Nimo's and wife, Hon. E. H. Greene, Hon. A. Bertram and wife, D. C. Nettleton and wife, G. W. Crouter and wife, Mrs. C. Harris and wife, J. M. Bates and wife, W. A. Smith and wife, Mrs. F. J. Hunt, Mrs. Dart Blanchard, Mrs. McCartney and mother, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Draper, Mrs. N. Hitchcock.

—A postal card from Edith Mason states that she arrived at Manila Nov. 29th, and is in the U. S. Reserve Hospital as nurse.

—The ladies of the Episcopal church will give a ten cent supper at the home of Mrs. E. A. Jefferson on Friday evening of this week.

—L. D. Bartholomew leaves today for Atlanta, Ga., where he will join his wife at the home of his daughter Blanche. Later, Mr. Bartholomew will go to Florida, where he remains until spring.

Grinnell Brothers were unable to open their piano and organ sale Monday on account of not being able to get here. As a result of the delay they will continue the sale a week longer than announced in their ad.

—Dr. Phelan's house on the north side had a close call Friday evening. The door above the furnace caught fire, and an alarm was sent in. The fire department responded promptly, but the fire was extinguished with pails before the hydrant came into play.

When you get a catalogue from a big mail order house just look it over and see what state revenue tax it will cost you to sell your home ready cash. How much will they give in coupons on the sidewalks, just write and ask how much they will give toward the erection of a church, how much will they give to assist the poor. After you have done this and received a reply see if your home merchant doesn't treat you better in every way, besides being an important factor in the growth and prosperity of the little community.

—The high school pupils are in active and continuous rehearsal of the great cantata of "Esther the Queen" to be given some time in February. Reports are that the chorus is doing grandly, and the character parts will be fully prepared to present their work. This magnificent production by Bradbury is always popular, and affords vocal opportunities for chorus and solo work that not only charms the listener but develops high vocal talent as few other works do. "Queen Esther" has made many a good singer, because of adaptability to the work of the warm and capable vocal teacher.

—Joseph Pelsek, of Normand, lost his barn in the Thursday night with all its contents, except stock and implements. The origin of the fire is unknown as it had made considerable headway when discovered. The barn was large and convenient, with ample room attached. Mr. Spritek carried insurance in the Farmers' Mutual Fire on barn and contents. He notified F. F. Booth Friday morning and Saturday he received a check for $240.00. Prompt payment of the insurance by the companies need not discourage Mr. Spritek in much degree at this evidence of insurance methods on the part of the Farmers' Mutual.

Fraternal orders are as a whole national blessings. They engender a spirit of charitiness and promote economy and sobriety, and they do much to relieve the sick and the sufferers, so to say to the case in the almost universal rush for wealth and social position. These Orders being modelled into closer unitar relations and help cherish those feelings that grow and get into fraternal blossoms of interest in each others welfare. They are instrumental in making standard thoughtful and helpful to one another, expanding the sentiment of virtue, charity and brotherhood. They bind in a religious that exhibits to the world the true philanthropy and fraternities and hand the torch of water to the thirsty, watch by the bedside of the sick, visit those in illness or trouble, look after the fatherless and the widowed—duties that many of our unorrous neglect.—The Knight.

The Big Burnett Sale.

C. C. O'Neill of the Star Building, Chicago, who needs no have their opinion of Mr. Alden Smith's influence over the entire business of A. T. Stewart, is in the city. The big sale of stock is advertised to be sold in 10 days by mail to Charlevoix some time during the time the firm is in sale, as Mr. Burnham contemplates that Charlevoix is people who come to town into stores around, since they always take their goods to sell for 25c to the dollar. The merchants will undoubtedly take advantage of this opportunity that they are early allowed to do their big big in the evening. This is a very good idea, as it will see to it that the public during this busy season is the day time. Lots of clerks will be there, in that be no bitters need work. Their attention will be expected to the employment of this issue. Our readers should take over the money bargains it offers on.

LITCHFIELD-STEVENS CO.

Facts Concerning Difficulties of that Cross Village Firm.

Detroit News: Various rumors concerning the reported sale of the Litchfield-Stevens lumber interests throughout Emmet county to Charlevoix parties have resulted in the following facts.

Owing to a disagreement on the part of some of the partners as to the sale, on the motion of Mr. Stevens a receiver was asked for to wind up the settlement and the Union Trust Company of Detroit was appointed the same by Judge Shepherd of the circuit court.

This step is taken just on account of financial difficulties but it can be the fact that the Litchfield interests desire to retire from the lumber business.

The Cadillac Handle-Co. have the first option on the stock, which if carried through will result in no small loss to Emmet county, as the purchasers intend to discontinue the plant at Cross Village and ship up the logs to Cadillac where they will be cut.

Judge Shepherd of Charlevoix appeared in the interests and Mr. Bedford and Judge Pattibone for the Litchfield Lumbered. Judge Hatchard and appear owing to the fact that he is the attorney for the firm.

The work was not held equally by William Stevens, and Lorenzo Litchfield of this city, Harrison Bedford of Charlevoix and Dr. Lawrence Litchfield of Petoskey.

The assets of the company are said to be ample to pay all creditors, the liabilities are about $85,000.

The Mail Order Business.

Traverse City Eagle: The season is drawing near when the mail order concerns of the country will send out their spring lines and catalogues. Some of these concerns will send very anything from a needle to an automobile.

But it is true, as an exchange remarks, that these establishments take no more interest in any country town than they do the money they get all the money they can out of it. They pay none of your taxes. Your merchants does. They aring nothing to help pay the expense of your community. Your merchant is.

The mail order business has grown to the proportions of an occupation. Hundreds like that of A. Montgomery Ward in Chicago that employs about 40 more clerks at Montgomery Ward grew up at the expense of country merchants. Their profit are no better and no cheaper than those in the stocks of the country stores. Why should any persons who has pride in his community help support these mail order merchant princes, or help pay for their automobiles, summer vacations at sea side resorts or European trips while the local merchant neglected, has nothing to do but eat the dinner.

Traverse City Record: A person in Traverse City is patronizing a mail order house, but we wish to bring home to the people the fact that the business is not in the interest of any merchant, for every cent that goes into the safe of one of these concerns comes out of some merchant's pocket, or out of his children's mouth.

Times like the anti trust committee, the Standard Oil octopus and other combinations of that ilk are begotten in the Evil One. The mail order monsters that are seeking to swallow the merchants of the country are of the same class. It matters not whether they are put in the guise of sanctimonious philanthropic harpooners who charge a million dollars a piece for the oil in his lamp that they may give millions to charitable institutions, or whether they paint at watch dogs of the lake front in Chicago.

Let the country merchant live. When a mail order catalogue comes to you and you see anything in it that you want, take the catalogue to your merchant, the merchant duplicate the article at the same price quoted by the mail order house and pay for freight. Let the Letter From Van Felt.

CHICAGO JAN. 20 1904.

MY DEAR SENTINEL:

The last issue of the Sentinel Jan. 14th, is at hand. It has good clean cut type and lots of news. I was pained to know of the death of three of our oldest and best settlers. Your article on Page 1 second column "Duty of Road Supervisors" is fine.

It is for the great interest of every farmer that the roads should be kept in the very best condition possible, that the Rural Free Delivery service may be kept up. It is queer how little attention some people pay to keep Road Roads and the fact is Good Roads are absolutely of more importance to a good farmer than any other thing. I say good farmers because it is this class of farmers who have things to haul to market and of course the better the roads, the larger loads they can haul.

Thank you, Mr. Editor, for the pamphlet sent me issued by the Hon. Walter F. Brownlow, member from Tennessee, and as you can get additional copies of same on application, you are just the fellow to push the good work along. By all means accept the Congressman's offer and send a copy with the Sentinel to a few of the leading farmers in each township of this county. There are more statistics and proofs of what Good Roads will do for a County in this pamphlet than any I ever saw.

Let us hurrah for Congressman Brownlow and invite him to come to the Farmers' Friendly Association Picnic next August the 25th, (the last Thursday in the month) and ask him to talk on Good Roads. He and our own Ex-Senator H. S. Earl, State Highway Commissioner would make a good team, and with the Hon. Wm. Alden Smith and wicked in between to tell us of Primary Election Reform, would make a drawing card so strong that extra boats would be run from Traverse City, Harbor Springs and Petoskey, and of course Wilber Campbell will be over from Northport with a big car ferry boat to accommodate.

If we do our duty Charlevoix county will surely be one of the lion tamers of the state and good Good Roads will do more to make it so than any other thing.

The next thing in order will be nice rows of sugar or hard maple trees, which seem to be the most satisfactory and easily grown shade trees we know.

I notice in another article that Charlevoix has appointed a committee to examine all public halls, opera houses, and churches to see that same are made safe. This is very commendable and in fact positively necessary, and it is being done not only in all parts of this country, but in all the large cities in Europe.

Chicago paid a horrible price for its criminal carelessness in this respect, and now we are trying to locate the responsibility with a view of administering proper punishment upon the officers who ever they may be.

The Chicago Record Herald this morning (January 20th) published a full account of the action of the council had night which passed most drastic laws regarding the interior arrangements and mechanical appliances for the prevention of fire. It is to be hoped that your council will do the same.

One of the Managers said, "I wish to comply in every respect, even to the minutest detail with the requests of the new laws, for the knowledge of that by the public, will ensure for me the largest audience."

Yours Truly,
GEORGE H VAN FELT.

NORWOOD NEWS.

Two degrees below zero, the coldest this season at Norwood. The Sentinel of last week made it 20. The degree sign was mistaken for a cipher.

Joe. Spitek's barn was destroyed by fire on Thursday evening last with all its contents. There was no insurance on the building of 200 dollars and the same amount on contents. Cause of the fire known.

Another lime company for operation in Northern Michigan is being organized in Grand Rapids and it is to be known as the Antrim Lime Company. Lands in Emmet and adjoining counties are to be leased by the new company and a factory may be built in Petoskey. Nathan Jarman of Petoskey holds ten hundred shares of the stock—the capital is $25,000 and the stock shares are scattered all around Northern Michigan.

Absence of Nile.

A devout and worthy man is the Hengipman of a parish not twenty miles south of Chicago. His coffee cup was somewhat disturbed at the singularity of one of his sermons almost one evening recently, which was as follows: "Remember one Time angels never sent money from heaven. The Lord will be with us during the morning service, and the Bishop in the evening."

Montana's Petrified Forest.

Nearly every one has heard of the petrified forests of Arizona, but that of Montana, which Dr. Merrill, curator of geology of the National Museum at Washington, has been exploring is rapidly known, though it is believed to be at least equal in extent. The northern forests have, curiously enough, turned to opal instead of agate by the action of the elements.

Gibraltar.

What is commonly called the island of Gibraltar is not an island at all but a promontory connected with the mainland of Spain by a flat sandy isthmus. It is a solid rock of limestone, stretching north and south, three miles long, from north to south and wide at its wide part and the highest point is 1,299 feet above the sea.

Output of Diamonds.

During the last twenty-three years the mines in south diamonds of the South African mines have been approximately $470,000,000, the value of these diamonds when cut amounting to $850,000,000. This output is approximately 95 per cent of the total product of all the diamond-bearing countries in the world.

Hotter Yet.

An electric fan that blows the air current that it delivers has been invented by M. de Meritens, a Belgian electrician. The apparatus consists of an electric motor and a rotating fan, the blades of which are of mica. Upon these mica blades are deposited round spots, which are heated by the passage through them of a current of electricity.

Two Million Italians in France.

There are 2,300,000 Italians in France, chiefly engaged in artistic, educative, or laboring pursuits. Most of them are found in the eastern, especially in the southeastern, departments, but they are scattered all through the country. On the other hand, there are only 10,000 French in Italy.

For the Invalid.

A raw egg is one of the most nutritious of foods, and may be digested easily if the yolk is not broken. A little sherry added upon an egg, or a few drops of lemon juice shaken with salt and a dash of cayenne pepper, or the flavor and tint to make it more palatable when not taken as a medicine.

Cook's Menu Tablet.

You guess card placed on the table—the Cook Tablet—is red letters on a pale blue tablet, surrounded by the outline of a hot red oven.

Phonograph Next Door.

My neighbor's phonograph that has a brassy voice:
And I'm thinking sometimes that its owner
Is a man who lives in the window and listens
He's waiting to tip me about the gold

It rants and wheezes dismally whenever I hear
A sentiment of anarchy it seems to me
I might end somewhat better if the thing
Ran over the man who invented it
Or, if one chose, fell upon the trumpet
I know before the blessed machine had
A chance to blow a note
A big boy sneaked up behind it and smashed
it by bang "tonight."
I might, I think, have a sweet voice make
Of simple things, I might to its soft music
Sing
Or, if I chose, I might to its soft music
Sing
The kind of a song I like best of all
But I'm sure I'd be lonesome, if I had
Some day, for my pains, a smacker and wouldn't Care to sing
Or, if I sang, I'd be a miserable, blight
A
Poor man had the good newsmonger,
Any one who knows the ropes
Can take the phonograph
Or, if I chose, I might
Through this tube of mischief, blow
Some day, for my pains, a smacker and wouldn't Care to sing
Or, if I sang, I'd be a miserable, blight
I shall write
Some day, for my pains, a smacker and wouldn't

"Rays Stored in Paper."

M. Monetier, in a paper to the Academie des Sciences, Paris, announces that what are now called X rays can be emitted by an ebonite holder and other sources of light can be stored in a variety of substances, for example, glass, quartz, gold and other metals, plain wood, sandpaper, brush, and some kinds of stone, etc. The phenomenon seems analogous to phosphorescence.—London Globe.

From Herbert Spencer.

The power of self-government, the self-adjusting power, can be developed only by exercise. Whoever is to rule over his passions must at some cost, at some cost of pain, be made to rule over them.

Olive Oil for Croup.

A timely warning of cross-infection made in the Jacksonville (Ill.) Journal: Olive oil is a good remedy for croup, but a little of it goes a long way. Two years ago a little girl died of diphtheria, and her mother, who had taken care of the child, was herself taken down with the disease. The mother's sister, who had taken her place in the sick room, was also taken down with the disease, and the mother of the child died. The sister recovered. The family physician, who had attended the child, was also taken down with the disease, and he died. The family of the child had used a bottle of olive oil for the croup, and the physician had used the same bottle of oil in his family. The bottle was found to be infected with the germs of diphtheria, and the family of the child had spread the disease to the family of the physician.

Regulation for Track Walkers.

Track walkers for certain Massachusetts railroads are now required to wind a registering clock at certain points every hour. The records are kept, to be examined weekly by the superintendent.

Eclecticism in Politics

By GEORGE MAY POWELL,
Prominent Reformer, Explorer, Etc.

The eclectic physician is one who is not too much learned in any particular school of medicine, to use either allopathy, hydropathy or homeopathy, as the case may require. The time has come for eclecticism in politics. True politics is Christian patriotism and nothing more or less. President Roosevelt has well said: "That man is a dangerous citizen, who so far sinks his manhood for ends, as to be servile to party and afraid to brave it." At the one hundred and fifty-first anniversary of Princeton university, ex-President Cleveland said: "Where party organization should be the servant of intelligence and patriotism, it has come, and attempts to bind them, hand and foot, to the service of those, who of all the intelligence and education of the country, are the most condemning party ties, lost only a sense of manhood, and all self respect, lost only a sense of honor, that thoughtful and patriotic citizens are all called to arms."

There are little doubt the foremost man in each of the political parties of our country, are aggressive. The fall of an unappointed body is not more certain than that if honest men do not attend to politics rogues will. There are annually hundreds of millions of dollars of public money to be handled. "Where the carcass is, there will the vultures be gathered together." Legislation is sure to be enacted in the interest of thieves, unless honest men practice "Eternal vigilance," which, we have been told, "is the price of liberty." In many great cities we are too stupid and blind to see the difference. It is time to wake from sleep and realize that license is the very essence of anarchy! License of the liquor trade; license on the Sabbath question; license respecting so-called "liberty of the press," etc. No man has a right to do as he pleases unless he pleases to do right. The voice of the people is not the voice of God, unless it be a godly people that speak.

If the masses can be driven and manipulated as the polls, by party whips, like sheep, the flag is a farce. Because of following of parties and of party leaders, rum and kindred forces of evil are to-day in the saddle, hoofed and spurred, and riding us with cruel "curb bits" forced into our teeth.

It costs the people more to let this thing go on, than to stop it by the means suggested by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Cleveland. Let good men of all parties give party leaders to know that parties are servants, not masters, that votes will be lost to any party that ignores its high and holy trust. In this connection the words of Lincoln sound like prophecy: "We shall both save, or meanly lose, the last, best hope of the human race."

There are times when to be servilely bound to party is treason. It is time for good men to vote. To vote as they pray, and work as they pray, this will continue to be proved on.

Preserving the Permanency of the Church

By REV. W. A. BARTLETT,
Pastor First Congregational Church, Chicago.

THE Christian church is to keep alive and be a power in the world, must be an enthusiastic fellowship. People are not attracted and interested by mere metaphysical and definitions theories. There must be underlying the theological statement and changing principles which shall appeal to men's consciousness and which will retain throughout their non age, authority and vitality as their numerical strength. Now, there are certain sensational and temporary effects which have produced which attract the attention of the papers and create a ripple on public attention, but it is gone and in the Evils of Government Ownership

By N. W. HARRIS,
New York, Chicago and Boston Banker.

THERE are few Americans who would care to see America as a nation composed of men of the standard of intelligence of your Russian cousins. This all comes from the system of government that prevails. The intelligent are forced to remain in the removal of the people and in consequence of the indifference of their conditions. Under that beneficent system of government ownership which is certainly worked out to the broadest extent possible in the land of the Slavs, you have not heard of any great achievements in any of the departments of the sciences or the arts. No great inventions bear the name of a Russian artisan; no great work of art attests the handiwork of that country's genius.

The system tends toward breeding a class of indifferents which is quite contrary to the spirit of Americans.

Government ownership may tend to foster a spirit of Arcadian simplicity, but that is not for the American of to-day. There is more glory for him to face the stern, hard realities of life and as long as that fascination prevails America's commercial supremacy will remain unchallenged.

DEEP MURDER PLOT.

REVELATIONS FOLLOW DEATH OF SAN FRANCISCO MAN

Body Found at Base of High Cliff—Brother-in-Law Has Insurance Policies in Pocket When Arrested—Prizes for Long-Nose Idea.

Long ago, I imagine, when a Napoleon, Bismarck, Roosevelt or Lincoln took the world in his hand and said, "Let there be a nose," he was not thinking for an instant of the nose of the commercial man. Nose was made for smelling, and for little else in modern times. Some scientist has discovered that the nose is the seat of the sex sense, and that the olfactory nerve is the nerve of love. Perhaps it is. Perhaps it is not. Perhaps it is not the nose that makes the world go round, but the heart, the liver, the kidneys, and the other little organs within the human body. The nose may be the guide, the director, the pilot, but it is not the motive power. Perhaps it was not intended at first that the nose should be the guide, but it is notable in history. He said a famous statesman addressed in the city and held important meetings in Fortuna street. He had learned that Frank Harrison, who is a college chum of Brown, who drove the deceased to the place in question, on the morning of the murder, Dr. Mitchell, McKinley, Sullivan to visit his sick father, who had to Michigan, where he died. Father Ryan, who was called to the place, recited the prescribed rites while preparing to administer the last sacrament. The case is being strongly guarded.

COURT SCORES TICKET PEDDLERS

Hands Bald "Uncleanly" in Decision on Railway Coupon Sales.

The matter, He who comes out-nose may come with clean hands" is cited by the Superior Court in Columbus, in a recent case a decision that forbids the right of ticket brokers to deal in scrip issued by railway companies. The suit was that brought by John M. Johnson, the prominent Lake Shore Railroad. The court holds that this has no such right, that the plaintiff may sue for profits of an admissible nature, in a court of law, and that the defendants are liable for the amount of the profits.

FAMILY SHAKEN BY EXPLOSION.

Hurled from Bed and Then Dazed by Cellar Fire and Burns.

THE ALL WRONG

To Think That Northern Michigan is Without Great Land Opportunities.

Many people believe that there is no opportunity for taking up land and making a home except in the far western prairies or in the Canadian northwest, while as a matter of fact there are thousands of acres of good land to be had close at hand. The importance of the lumber and mining industries of northern Michigan have some what obscured the opportunities awaiting the homeseeker and the farmer.

The lands in northern Michigan are rich in timber and the soil is peculiarly fitted for the growth of every crop known in the temperate region. The health and strength the climate is all that could be desired. The small farmer can live comfortably and good wages while he is clearing and cultivating his farm. The soil means every requirement of agriculture in general. Great grows upon the wheat oats, rye, barley, buckwheat and corn. Apples, peach, plums and prunes yield prodigious returns. All kinds of vegetables including sugar beets, can be profitably grown. Good pastures and meadows are to be had on every hand.

Some assert that the time has passed when writing hands can make a home in the United States, and the cohorts of loafers continue to cry that the country is going up fast rapidly. A good deal of such assertions they point to the overgrowth and overcrowded cities where masses of the population are forced to endure a hand to mouth existence. They assert that all this misery is due to the fact that the poor man no longer has a chance to make a home in this country.

The truth is that every wide-awake man with good sense has the means of making himself independently rich. Capital is not necessary, savings, even, to any great extent, are not required. —Farm Life.

FREE HIDES.

The Free Raw Material Period vs. the Protective Period.

Senator Lodge, it is said, is to do his utmost to secure a repeal of the duty on hides. That is what New England interests undertook to do in 1897. The chairman of the Ways and Means committee did his best to prevent the imposition of the hide duty, but it was found necessary to acquiesce in the demand for the protection of Western produce. If Western votes were to be given to the protection of Eastern products. When we come to revise the tariff in 1905, if at that time revision is deemed necessary, these problems will come up again as they came up in 1897. It will be found that New England interests will have to yield some things to Western interests. There is no other way of securing a tariff system protective of all interests should be yielding narrow selfishness to broad self-interest. There is no type of any modification of the tariff now to the presidential election, but it may be in 1905. Let those who feel that the duty on hides was important for their interests may change their minds. If their support can be secured for New England manufacturing and agricultural interests by putting hides on the free list New England will be delighted.

Few critics of schedules appreciate the difficulties of securing tariff legislation. The critics of the Wilson-Gorman tariff by the Dingley tariff was an easy enterprise, and the New England shoe interest was never more generous than since the tariff was revised by the enemies of free raw materials. Our foreign trade in shoes was but a little until the Dingley tariff was enacted into the present protective form.—Boston Journal.

Effects of Nile Dam.

Sir Benjamin Baker, who built the Nile dam, has been given out some new figures concerning the dam and its consequences. During the critical periods for the crops—March to June—the supply of water for irrigation was doubled by the dam. The irrigation of rice, prohibited in previous years, now allowed, and the increase in value of land for conversion to irrigation is calculated at over $25,000,000.

Presence of Arsenic.

M. Richard reports to Annales de Chimie Publique that he finds that arsenic is a constant constituent of the organism and that all juice of a human egg contains appreciable quantities of arsenic, the yolk containing the greater part. In the 1,000 of a millipedes form in one egg, from one-half to two-thirds is found in the yolk.

Capt. M. J. Bonner has a number of traps set around Garden and Hog Islands for foxes. The captain tells a good one on himself. He was out looking for tracks on sled and found a fresh trail leading into a hole. He was armed with a shovel and a bundle of woven wire fencing. After making a cage around the opening of the den he proceeded to get into it and commenced shoveling out the snow, after four or five hours hard work they got down to the bottom of the hole, shoved up, and made a box line for a small hole in the cage and escaped. Imagine the exclamation points which pierced the air for the next while.

The contract between Jack Frost and Lake Michigan seems to be working of a winter postal road between St. James and Drummond Island has been carried out to the letter. In justice to Jack, we will state that the job was done instead of time and exactly according to specifications which is more than can be said of some parting contractors we have had about. The minutes of Jan. 7th were read and approved as read.

The following report of the special committee on public buildings was read and on motion was accepted and placed on file:

To the Honorable President or Members of the Common Council of the Village of Charlevoix.

We, the special committee appointed by your honorable body, to inspect and report on the safety of the several public buildings and halls of the Village of Charlevoix, do hereby recommend the following:

I. Lewis Grand Opera House: This hall is a "Class C Fire Hazard" in a very unsafe condition. We find the following: 1. Only one door. 2. Stairways too narrow. 3. Stairs and exits obstructed by the power and fire escape. 4. No fire escape that does.

II. Wilber's Hall: We recommend that Wilber Hall be provided with fire escape and exit door, the entrance that the old door of exit.

III. Masonic Hall: We recommend that the Masonic Hall be provided with fire escape and exit door.

IV. Odd Fellows' Hall: We recommend that the Odd Fellows' Hall be provided with fire escape and exit door.

V. Marsha Building: We recommend that the Marsha Building be provided with fire escape from hall access or leaving that building be provided for another door.

VI. Bank Building: We recommend that the Bank Building be provided with door at rear of hall to the Hall and to the Bank, and that the door at the rear of the Bank be kept closed and locked and be used for an exit only in case of fire, and that the door at the front of the Bank be provided with a door and fire escape, and that the door and fire escape be provided with hose and ladder.

VII. Clark's Hall: We recommend that the Clark's Hall be provided with a door and fire escape from the hall to the Bank.

VIII. Clark's Hall: We recommend that the Clark's Hall be provided with a door and fire escape.

IX. Hotel Eaton: We recommend that the Hotel Eaton be provided with fire escapes from third story to balcony that serves as fire escape from second story.

X. Town Hall: We recommend that the Town Hall be provided with a door and fire escape, that all exit doors open out.

XI. Clark's Hall: We recommend that Clark's Hall be provided with platform and fire escape from second story.

XII. McKinley School Building: We recommend that the McKinley School Building be provided with two fire escapes on south side, from the second story to the ground, that the two fire escapes be provided with doors from each building and leading to fire escapes, and that the doors be provided with spring to close and lock and open to north, that at least four fire escapes be provided for each room in both buildings, that all such doors be kept open during school hours and unlocked during school hours.

XIII. Baptist Church: We recommend that the Baptist Church be provided with two fire escapes on south side, that the door be provided with spring to close and lock and open to north, that at least four fire escapes be provided for each room in both buildings, that all such doors be kept open during school hours and unlocked during school hours.

XIV. Congregational Church: We recommend that the Congregational Church be provided with fire escapes on south side, that the door be provided with spring to close and lock and open to north, that at least four fire escapes be provided for each room in both buildings, that all such doors be kept open during school hours and unlocked during school hours.

General Recommendations.

We recommend the following:

1. All exits to be clearly marked.
2. Exit lights sufficient to be provided with hand extinguisher.
3. All exits in public buildings to be kept open during school hours.
4. All exits in buildings to be provided with fire escapes and exit to lock to the outside.
5. All well-dressed public buildings to open outward.
6. Fire escapes to be provided with electric lights.
7. Fire escapes to be made of iron.
8. Fire escapes to be provided with sufficient fire protection outside.

On motion the chairman of the ordinance committee was directed to submit an ordinance, at the next meeting of the council, covering the public safety in all public buildings.

The following bills were allowed and by vote as follows the clerk was directed to draw a warrant for $[illegible] for the payment of the same.

Ayes all.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Gage, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that I thought I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wonderfully cured me and I gained 25 pounds." It's simply grand for coughs, colds, la grippe, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Free bottles free at F. G. Hines & Co. drug store.

GRINNELL BROTHERS

BIG SALE,

PIANOS, PIANOLA, ORGANS, SHEET MUSIC, and TALKING MACHINES

FOR ONE WEEK,

----COMMENCING----

Monday, January 25th, 1904.

GRINNELL BROTHERS, of Detroit, Michigan's leading Music House with branches at Traverse City, Saginaw, Bay City and eight other leading Michigan cities, will have an Exhibition and for Sale at

McKINNON'S
BUILDING NEAR THE BRIDGE,
CHARLEVOIX, -- MICHIGAN.

A Full Line of New and Second-hand Pianos and Organs, every one to be Sold at Bargain Prices.

In a large business like ours there is often an accumulation of stock, some new with cases a little damaged in shipment, sample instruments, some taken in from Conservatories and Music Schools during vacation, that have been tested. Second-hands that have been taken in exchange, all fully repaired at our factory in Detroit—all guaranteed, and will be taken back on a new instrument, within one year, at full price paid, if not found perfectly satisfactory. We have over of this sort, and included in our BIG FALL CLEARING SALE, samples of which we will have here on sale the coming week, to give the people of Charlevoix and vicinity a chance to take advantage of this great sale. Remember, you take no chance in dealing with us, as every instrument, no matter how low in price, is guaranteed exactly as represented by us, the largest and strongest Music House in Michigan. Being the largest dealers, as well as manufacturers of Pianos, you save all middlemen's profits when you buy of us.

500 Pianos and Organs

New Organs, $45 and upwards.
Second-hand Pianos, $25, $0, 75, 100 and $175.
Good Organs, in fine order, $15, 18, 20, 25 to $60, (3 and 6 octave)

No such chance was ever before offered to residents of Charlevoix to secure a fine instrument for so little money.

Cash or Easy Payments,

To Suit all.

No one need be without a good Piano or an Organ in the house. No one entering in buy within five years can afford to miss calling and take advantage of this great sale, as you will regret it if you do not buy now.

Don't Forget the Date,

FOR THE WEEK, COMMENCING JAN. 25th

—F. E. Lorrell, of Bellaire, was in attend Grand Master of the F. & A. M. of Michigan for the ensuing year at the meeting held in Lansing last week.

—Hatter Beach has now been moved in two weeks. Not a train has arrived at or departed from the town in that time. The people are bemoaning their isolation.

—We pay attention to the large ad of the A. T. Bennett Co. in this issue. It pays to read the ads.

—The Petoskey News is renamed the Daily News. Some of the Petoskey springs have disposed of their stock in that city to the B. Dyke, the consideration being $2,000. The deal was an even one, mostly land, and the one at which the Northwest and Northwest and the farmer land.

—Dr. Lorenzo Isbell correspondent writes: "The citizens of Traverse City stop exalting the numerous benefits of a good road through the center of the island. The people of Charlevoix are planning for a meeting of the last points, and it was unanimously carried to extend the road to Lake Bennesaret, at least. Raymond McDonald and W. H. Green are the committees, and will begin the work at once.

—Last Friday night was an event at the K. O. T. M. meeting. It was the annual installation night, and after the ceremonies it being dispensed on the gathering, and there were about 100 in the way of eating. The following officers were installed: Com. Lee Hamilton; Lieut. Com., Wm. Sesselt; R. K., Art. Hodges; F. R., Wm. Pinney; Chap., H. A. Wilber; Master at Arms, Albert Smith; at at A., A. Mervain; Picket, Alex Hamilton; Ist Master Master, Wm. O'Neil.

—It may not have occurred to you that all the winter is just imported P. Northern Michigan. Over 100,000 people in the counties of St. Clair, Sanilac, Huron and Tuscola are benefited by the show three and four first days on the level. The snow is drifts at moderate high in places and has stalled trains and cut the circuit off from the world except by telegraph and telephone. Yesterday, a snow plow on the Pere Marquette was stalled and Sunday telegraph of the Huron. Not in twenty-five years has the northern part of the state been so at the mercy of the elements as it now is. Crowds come to Charlevoix—people can't get out even in emergency. It is feared that there will be great suffering in the sections before the blockade is broken.

Levinson makes a special announcement in his advertising space this week. Read it.

—E. L. Johnson has finished the L. J. Peters house on Mason street, and will make its final week.

—In this issue is a special new advertisement of the big A. T. Bennett & Co. sale. It is worth reading.

—Grant Squires is back home again, and at work, after a three weeks lay off and a visit to St. Lawrence Co., N. Y.

—Hon. W. O. Gilson and wife, of Sioux Falls, S. Dakota, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs E. S. Stacks the past week.

—Special communication of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282 F. & A. M. next Tuesday evening, for work on M. M. degree.

—John Hyen, father of Mrs. L. H. Bartlett, returned home to Ashtabula, Ohio, with his grand children, this week Tuesday.

—Sunday, Feb. 14th is the date when Lonly, the Optician will again be here, will remain three days. See ad in this issue.

—If in need of glasses see Lonly, the Optician, at Hotel Bartlett Feb. 11, 15 and 16, as he comes prepared to fit any eyes that can be fitted.

—W. E. Wallenden district passenger agent of the Pere Marquette with headquarters at Grand Rapids, has been promoted to general western passenger agent of the road with headquarters at Chicago.

The Tennis Club will have an other of its popular assemblies at the Beach Hotel Friday evening of this week. The Grand Rapids pianola will furnish the music, under the direction of Messrs. Lindsay and Jennings.

Entire Hostelry of the Petoskey Resorts, has been "rigged" for his out speaks way of saying things. The parrots will be uncovered and the bridge hall begins to ring again. But there is nothing like a crisp morning in January, when your whiskers get frost laden between the wood sled and the wood pile. We would not exchange a warm fire in the sitting room on a cold winter evening for the balmiest Florida day that ever came out of the calendar. This is no joke.

We are in receipt of a letter from our friend John M. Felts, who is at his home in Indiana.

The tone of the letter indicates, unfortunately, that Mr. Felts has joined hands with the Indiana anti-Roosevelt crowd, so he expresses himself in no uncertain terms concerning the President's alleged weakness as a statesman.

Mr. Felts gives reasons for his opinion, in several acts of the president, and certain of his well known strenuous opinions, indicating that of necessity, the friends of Peter Cottontail on Roosevelt are well grounded. He rather commended him to the good graces of the Hoosiers.

And now for the benefit of "the gentleman from Indiana" we will explain. Mr. Roosevelt will be renominated by the Republican National Convention, and he will receive the votes of the Indiana delegation. Further, he will be re-elected by as large a majority of the electoral vote as Mr. Kinley received, and it will include the electoral vote of Indiana.

The people know from whence comes this opposition to Roosevelt, and they will rebuke it in no uncertain manner. But there are already unmistakable evidences that such opinions has spent its force.

It was only a big bluff of Wall street and the trusts, aided by a number of the Pop Republicans of politicians, who could not use the presidential office, and are sorry to see our friend Felts trailing in their ranks. When "the gentleman from Indiana" comes to Charlevoix next summer we hope to see evidences of a change of heart, for by that time Roosevelt will be the nominee. In fact, we expect to see John M. Felts in the field with his coat off for Roosevelt.

The War Clouds.

Advices this morning from the East state that war is inevitable. Russia's concessions are not likely to suffice and this is the last phase of the negotiations before a resort to arms. Intimidation Japanese of them in Europe have advised the government at Tokio that now is the time to assert itself.

Before another issue of this paper the Russians and Japs may be hitting each other.

The M. E. church of Barnard will have an oyster supper and program, Friday evening, February 12th. All are invited. Admission, 25 cents.

—Secretary Lumpher requests us to state that all members of Hove Co. No. 1 are requested to be present at a special meeting on Monday on Monday evening, February 8th, for the election of officers.

—No Detroit papers or mail of any sort for two days up to the present writing. And it is not the fault of Northern Michigan weather, but of snow drifts two hundred miles south of Charlevoix.

The ice harvest has been in full that the past week, and it is safe to say that the amount put up will exceed that of any previous winter. Excepting what goes into the cold storage on Round Lake, the supply comes from Pine Lake, and is of super excellent quality—being fifty two feet thick, of the solid blue sort.

—The verdict is that the winter of 1903-4 is one of "the old fashioned sort." The writer of this can remember when the temperature registered 40 below zero in Charlevoix, but it was back in the 70s. Many winters have passed since the mercury reached the 20 mark, and, for the past ten years if we round the bulb down to 10 we put it down as very cold. The past two weeks has been in several evenings with 15 below, and more than once it has registered 20. Round Lake is entirely frozen over. This is unusual, as the current has kept it free in spots as winter. Lake Michigan presents a broad and unbroken sheet of ice. Sailors say navigation will not open before May 1st. This will surely make us think of old times.

—You, on those beautiful winter mornings, when the temperature is 15 below zero, we think of those Charlevoix people down in Florida, among the magnolias and the palms. While Morris Stockman is digging oysters in Indian River, and Geo. Brown is building with Vanderbilt, we are toasting our shins, and counting the days for the time when the Kitchitiki Inn will be uncovered and the bridge hall begins to ring again. But there is nothing like a crisp morning in January, when your whiskers get frost laden between the wood sled and the wood pile. We would not exchange a warm fire in the sitting room on a cold winter evening for the balmiest Florida day that ever came out of the calendar. This is no joke.

That evening Heaton entered a new design for his work, and in the morning when the company with Julia a score to purchase the expensive material of the exercises, Mr. Hayward and his wife and pupils left with the six and nine-years-deserted for home—Heaton, Hunter and Vivian remained behind to work out their ideas. Vivian was very thoughtful and quiet, but Heaton was in high spirits on the morrow, when she brought the manuscript and the sketches to the studio. Hunter was very strange to Vivian, and she felt that he was not in sympathy with Heaton's work. Strangely enough, Hunter was not in sympathy with Heaton's work, and he was not in sympathy with Vivian. He was not in sympathy with Heaton because he was in love with Vivian, and he was not in sympathy with Vivian because he was in love with Heaton. Hunter was a man who was not easily deceived, and he was not easily deceived in Heaton's work. He was not easily deceived in Vivian's work. He was not easily deceived in Heaton's work because he was in love with Vivian, and he was not easily deceived in Vivian's work because he was in love with Heaton. Hunter was a man who

IT IS NOT TRUE.

American Farmers Are Not Represented in the Cuban Reciprocity Scheme.

"From the action informed third party circumstances that no harm will result to their business if Reciprocity with Cuba is consummated."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

This would be pleasant news if only it were true. But it is not. Not a single interest that has at any time criticised the Cuban treaty—excepting, of course, the beet sugar industry that have been bought up by Havemeyer—had limited statement that no harm will come to their business if the provisions on the contrary, they contend, to assert that great harm will result to them and to present against the wrong and the injustice of the proposition. To assert that "not an American interest is sacrificed," that "it will do no harm, it is believed" is to assert an opinion that only by long odds outweighed even though found upon a total misappreciation of facts. In stating as the Commercial Advertiser does that all interests represented in the Ottawa Senate are reconciled to the adoption is to state a palpable error.

Really for Revenue.

As a matter of fairness to its readers and the safeguarding of its own reputation for veracity, the Burlington Gazette ought to correct its previous statement that "the bulk of the revenue of the country is raised from a tariff and always has been." The revenues from customs for five years of the Dingley tariff, 1896-1900, were $1,487,764,000. From internal revenue taxes during same period, $1,347,000,000, or over in the ratio of two dollars from the tariff.—Burlington Hawkeye.

More Important.

"The treaty hitherto has been opposed by selfish interests. It is high time to compare the fact that 'there are more important selfish interests to be served by ratifying it'—Buffalo Express.

The treaty has been and still is opposed by the general body of American farmers—farmers in the southern states who grow sugar cane, fruits, oranges, lemons, pineapples and early vegetables; farmers in twenty northern states who are looking towards sugar beet culture as a profitable change from wheat and corn. These are the "selfish interests" that oppose the Cuban treaty. Are the selfish interests to be served by ratifying really "more important"? Do they cut a bigger figure than the farmers do in production and consumption in adding to the country's wealth, and in the votes that "determine political results"? We are the opinion that in the matter of "importance" the American farmer comes pretty near being "it."

Oldest Living Musician.

Probably the oldest musician in the world is Manuel Garcia, now aged 98 years. He has given up teaching and lives in a villa in Northwood London. His memory is still excellent, his wit sparkling and he is proud of having recently learned to play "Bridge." His hundredth birthday is due on March 17, 1905.

British Potato Famine.

The Yorkshire Post, Leeds England, says that to find a parallel to the serious outbreak of disease in the potato crop one must go back to the black years 1845-1846, or even to the years of 1845-1847, when the regular potato, upon which many growers had made their fortunes, utterly failed.

NATURE'S OWN CURE.

Hornet Cures Catarrh Without Douching—Sprays—Or Use Of the Stomach.

Not until Hornet was discovered has it been possible to truthfully say that a remedy for catarrh was known. This remedy is breathed through the Hornet inhaler for a few minutes three times a day and during that time every particle of all taints with the air and lungs is thoroughly cleansed. [illegible] Hornet is a dissolving effect upon the catarrhal deposits, which are soon either thrown out or absorbed by the system. Hornet not only kills the germs in the throat and nose but penetrates to the tubercular sores in the lungs and secures the blood with the oxygen, acting as a powerful tonic. It frees the throat and nostrils of all [illegible] and gives perfect health.

A prolonged cold means but $1.00, and humanity has suffered from catarrh sufficient Hyomei for several years. Hyomei is sold by druggists everywhere, or by Mail from the Hyomei Medicine Co. Buffalo, N. Y.

F. N. Chapel & Co. have so much faith in the merits of Hyomei that they agree to refund the entire money to any purchaser who may be dissatisfied.

Growing Glass

A Russian physicist, Mr. Gutchkoff, has succeeded in producing a glass which, after being heated to a certain degree, can be bent, twisted, and drawn out like a piece of wire. The glass can be made into a rod, or into a thin sheet, and when cooled it retains the form given to it. The material is said to be very cheap, and it is thought it may be used for many purposes.

Virus is Fatal to Rats.

A new virus, called "virus" is made at Frankfort and is claimed to be harmless to domestic animals. Let float to rats from impregnated with it was scattered in docks, various railway stations and schools. In Marseilles, only over a thousand rats were destroyed, in a single night. The final results of the experiments will be eagerly awaited.

Former British Soldiers.

At the close of the Boer war 24,000 British soldiers sought employment as mechanics, grooms, gardeners, carmen, etc., and placing themselves on record in England for 15 days. Lately the number of unemployed former soldiers has increased, owing to the primary destiny of these men with the others dismissed of some years ago.

Colombia's Commerce.

The commerce of Colombia has not been reduced to figures for several years, because of the state of turbulence that has prevailed. The total volume of commerce in 1897 was about $20,000,000. Of this about one-half came to the United States in the form of coffee, hides and other raw tobacco and drugs.

Little Corrosion in Steel.

The disinclination of a steel building three years old in New York City was searched by the experts of the bureau of buildings with reference to corrosion. They report "that no other corrosion of consequence could be discovered than that usually found and noted immediately after the building was completed."

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

East Jordan was pretty busy town a week before the first of the week and $2,000 gas coal was cleared for dry stock wood Monday.

It is reported that Supervisor M. E. Hyers will stay in Georgia and make his home there, and his family will soon follow, going with the Wilkinson party. Avson Sanford also expects to go at the same time.—Central Lake Torch.

The canning factory at Central Lake packed 100,000 cans of different kinds of vegetables, and paid out $11,000 for labor and nearly $15,000 for produce the past year. Its pea pack for the season in 1904 are pronounced exceedingly good.

F. L. Dennison of East Bay has an ostrich farm on the single idea of season which he prizes very highly. It was started on his grandfather during 18 years' campaigning in the army of Napoleon I. Mr. Dennison's grandfather was to nearly all the great battles fought by Napoleon.

East Jordan Herald: The trans formers for the Argo Milling Co's flour mill arrived Tuesday and the power from the Deer Creek electric plant was turned on the 'big motor' for the first time Friday afternoon. Everything went as smooth as could be for the best grinding machinery was tested to the fullest capacity. The flour making machinery is really all in place and we hear it is equal to the New Ways. They intended their first car load of wheat today.

Gaylord News: Whether or not the Gaylord Handle Company is to be one of the timber and mill of the Lobdell Stave Company in Emmet county is yet undecided, but it is more than probable that the option held by the Gaylord company will result in a transfer of title and ownership. Most of the logs to this city for handle purposes, like handles. Eighty-five thousand dollars is mentioned in the option, but it is said that the real value of the hardwood timber and the mill at Cross Village will approximate not less than two hundred thousand dollars or more.

On Sunday, Jan. 17th, mail was carried over the ice from St. Ignace to Mackinac Island by dog team. Last week also a mail trail over the ice and mail was carried between Beaver Island and Cross Village. Notwithstanding the exceedingly cold weather the ice in the straits is usually when heavily blanketed with snow. Where the wind has carried the snow away there is 1- to 16 inches of blue ice, and probably a distance of a few miles where a heavy covering of snow has been left as it fell and added to by the drifting winds, but this sheet of ice exists, and the is being undercut by currents in places.

Central Lake Torch: The Atwood Creamery Co. held their annual meeting of stockholders last Monday after a very successful season. During the past year the company built a fine large ice house and also a feed grinding mill to run in connection with the machinery. The years business was satisfactory and the prospects for the coming year are even brighter. The old board of directors, consisting of Jas. T. Bently, John Parsons, Lilian Cobbs, J. B. Smith, Owen Wood, H. J. Wilkinson and A. W. Hartwell were re-elected and T. Bently was then elected President, John Parsons vice President, Ethan Jordan, Secretary and J. H. Smith Treasurer and Manager.

The little 8 year old daughter of Mr. Hodgman and the 9 year old daughter of E. S. Noble, both of Elk Rapids, were playing on the ice near Ironton Saturday when one of the children suggested that they walk to Old Mission. They set out on the journey across the bay and trudged through the snow eight miles till they reached there. Their parents were much alarmed over their absence as it was known that they had been out seen on the ice. The children went to the home of W. M. Bagley of Old Mission and they were cared for over night. Next morning they were taken home. They were fortunately not affected by the cold and suffered no ill effects from their dangerous adventure.

Traverse City Eagle: The mail boat from North Manitou island came to Leland last Saturday expecting to return in the afternoon. The wind came up so strong that it was thought best to stay in Sunday the land narrowed, snow was blinding, thermometer had fallen about 40 degrees and the last was shaky go. Monday the wind went down, the mercury fell still lower, and Tuesday found the lake frozen half way to the island. Today the lake is frozen to the island and there is no hope of reaching the island for perhaps several weeks. The school teacher, director of schools, lighthouse keeper and several other island residents come over on business and extend go home. This time of year travel on Lake Michigan is the most self built is an uncertain proposition.

F. E. FRAZIER'S.

For Congress.

Both the Traverse City Record, (Rep.) and the Eagle (Dem.) have come out for Geo. G. Covell for Congress. We believe there is a candidate or two further down the line, and we presume Mr. Darrah is a candidate for consideration.

If the precedent is to be considered unwritten law, and the two term principle adhered to, we hope Mr. Covell is the winner. He is a man of ability and has had large experience in public affairs, moreover, he is a good fellow.

But we cannot forbear expressing our opinion in print here regarding the "time honored" idea in this or any other congressional district. It seems to us that the retirement of a successful Congressman after serving four years is a mistake; and Mr. Darrah has been successful. There may be exceptions to this rule, but this is not one of them.

The East has exemplified this principle in many districts, and the West may well profit by their experience. A member of Congress gets, beginning acquire strength and accomplish large results in his second or third term.

Mr. Darrah is now in his prime, he has done good work for his district, and can do better work in a third term.

We are for discussing men in this connection, but an abstract principle. We do not believe in the two term limitation, and we see no reason why a change is especially desirable at this time.

We say it not in disparagement of Mr. Darrah, but we made a mistake when we endorsed Mr. Mesick's services to two terms. That gentleman was stronger in Congress than Mr. Darrah was in his first year as Mr. Darrah is stronger now than any man would be in second time at the close of his second term. With reasonable contentions, this is true, and it gains every time the longer a Congressman serves.

Mr. Darrah has served the district well, has made no serious mistakes, if we bar the claims of aspiring postmasters, who, like the poor, are always with us, and he deserves much to commend him to the people.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and bitter fight with my mother in my behalf, but I got well in spite of them," writes J. F. Hughes of Lynchburg, Va. "Now I cure my everybody thought my time had come. Also had asthma. I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was startling and I was up on my feet. Now I can entirely regained my health." It conquers all coughs, Colds and Throat and Lungs troubles. Guaranteed by F. G. Hines Co. Drug Store. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A remedy for the nerves and brain, a tonic for the system, or despondency is certainly provide sunshine and something has been found that will prevent this condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of such destruction take Electric Bitters. It strengthens the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great Stomach, Liver and Kidney regulator. Duty fully satisfactory guaranteed by F. G. Hines Co. Druggist.

Some Have a Pocketfiler.

The Washington correspondent of the Grand Rapids Press has the following misinformation in Monday's issue:

"Bayshore is a fourth class postoffice in Bay township, which is in Charlevoix county. This county is a part of Representative Darragh's district. The township, according to the last federal census, has a population of 262. At the election in 1902 the total vote for governor in the entire township was 93. Yet there are on the hose in Washington today petitions purporting to be signed by over three hundred citizens of Bayshore, a part of whom want Sam Long appointed post master of the village, while the rest are asking for the appointment of Homer Sly. The office is worth about $250 a year. Long is a brother of the former Michigan chief justice, Thomas H. Long, and Sly is one of the owners of a big cement and lime plant in the village. Why they are scrapping over the petty job is not clear. Neither is it clear where those 300 citizens of Bayshore came from. The village is close to the border line of Emmet county, and Emmet county is in George Lamb's district in Congress. There is a suspicion that some of Lamb's constituents came across the county line and signed the petitions. Anyhow, there's sure to be an investigation."

In the first place Bayshore is not in Bay township; it is Evangeline township. In the second place, its vote in 1902 was 179 instead of 93, and since the election of 1902 the population has largely increased. In the last place, as the postoffice is within a few rods of the county line a large proportion of the patrons of the office reside in Hayes township, Emmet county, Pensoney Record. Neither the correspondent of the Record is right. Bayshore is in Hayes town-ship.

FRANKFORT GOT IT.

Congressional Committee Selects That Town.

From Cleveland comes the word that Frankfort has been selected for the Congressional Assembly grounds, out of dozens of applications, at the meeting of the meeting of the local committee.

The Ann Arbor Railroad company donated $10,000 in rebates, 100 acres of land on the lake and promises to build handsome frontages that will make it the finest assembly grounds in the country.

The city donates $2,000. Interests from all over the country coming up into the hundreds, will attend the assembly, as it is made the permanent assembly grounds. The Rev. J. H. Huth of Bartlesville, Ohio, presided at the meeting, making the site announcement.

We will think Charlevoix presented greater advantages than Frankfort or any other point in Northern Michigan. But we congratulate Frankfort.

—A. T. Burnett & Co. have a special announcement at their square this week.

—Tuesday the coldest weather of the winter was Tuesday morning, when the temperature registered 22 below zero.

—Mr. A. B. Spinney, proprietor of the Hotel Pine announces will be at the Hotel Bartlett Friday, Feb. 12th from 1 to 5 p. m.

—A Lodge, the Optician, has moved his main office to Hotel Whiting, Traverse City, Mich., and will be there for the first 10 days of each month.

—Word was received Ice Saturday of the illness of Miss Lucia Wilber who is attending school at Albion. Accompanied by Mrs Ramsay, Mrs Wilber left the same day for Albion. Friends advise us that Miss Wilber is out of danger.

—S. A. Maring, general manager of the Lindstrom Sugar Co., left yesterday for Detroit and other parts, to confer with the other stockholders with reference to future operations. It is confidently expected that he will return with good tidings.

—There is nothing so important that it concerns Charlevoix county more at the present writing than the connection of Congressman Darragh. Our future is the only father in the Tribune, will Mr Darragh not do more for us and a new man. There is room for all.

—Charlevoix has another fad. Some time back had introduced the town, and it is now a determined effort is being made, and now that by the wonders, "a tea house of bearing old dog tray, or the opera house. Wednesday evening, and some of them was defeated legislatively.

—One thing is certain. The cold weather has been favorable to the Beaver Island mail route. Two trips per week are made between St. James and Cross Village and there is good prospect for a profitable mail route of good sleighing between these two points for a month yet at least.

—Young Hamilton extended the hospitality of his home and family to a half-one evening last. The invited guests were Miss Hamilton's friends. It should be stated that this thing is stopped, and a couple more of the young men. It is not creditable to Charlevoix that such a thing should be permitted. Let these people know it is unfashionable.

—Samuel W. Salyer died at his home in this village early Saturday morning, after a long illness, aged 66 years and 10 days. Deceased was from the home Monday afternoon, under the auspices of Hunter Post, G. A. R., of which he was a member. Deceased was a soldier of the 10th New York Infantry during the war of the rebellion. He was a member of the M. E. church. His wife survives him.

—The following from a Mobile paper will interest our readers only because thereon Homer of Charlevoix is a member of the crew. The American schooner Vida V. Harrison, Capt. Wm. J. Clark, arrived up to the city yesterday morning, in ballast, for a cargo. The schooner left Mobile 10 days since for Havana, with a cargo, and spent 20 of the number in the bar, or of that city. The return trip from Havana to the outer bar of Mobile Bay was made in 36 hours, and needed no sailing masters to be round time for a three masted schooner. The fastest time, heretofore in the outer bar, by a seamanship was 12 hours, then giving the record to the Vida V. Harrison. When 24 hours out from Havana sight Clark discovered a runaway, who first hailed and say, sickness, was compelled to crawl out of the hold and come on deck. He was a white man, about 25 years of age. He stated to Captain Clark that he was an American, and wanted to get to his home. On arrival here yesterday inquiring the address, was reported at the Boston House and after proving his citizenship was released from custody.

—In this issue we begin the publication of the delinquent tax list. The publication is for four weeks, or five publications.

—Sunday, Feb 14th is the date when Lenly, the Optician, will again be here, with remains three days. See ad in this issue.

—Joe Hesselden, general passenger agent and Capt. Mellyler of the steamship Manitou, were happy actuated in the interest of trade last week.

—Mr and Mrs. M. E. Hyers of Hayes township are his proud parents of a bright eight pound boy, which arrived at their home Tuesday Feb. 2nd. Mother and child doing fine.

—We learn that Charlevoix is the town in which concerning weather appears. They form in concert of and then raise the game Wednesday morning the temperature registered 24 below zero, will 6 below the record.

—There will be a social meeting, evening next Sunday evening at the Methodist church, under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. An excellent program will be presented. All are invited.

—Charlevoix Hobnob Lodge No 240 will hold their anniversary and entertaining wives and friends next Tuesday evening, Feb 16th. All Hobnobs and their families are cordially invited to attend. Supper from 6:30 to 8:30.

—The Dunlap of the estate of Mr. Estate of late Dennis Sullivan, is advertise a public sale of the stock and their appurtenances belonging to the estate, will be on the premises on Wednesday, Feb. 17th, at one o'clock p. m. See bills.

—At the meeting of stockholders of Lindstrom Sugar Co., held in Detroit Thursday, D. M. Dow, of East Jordan, was elected school commissioner to fill the vacancy caused by the death of A. W. Chase. In point of educational equipment Mr. Dow is well qualified for the position.

—The publisher of this paper is in receipt of a longhand from Congressman Darragh stating that he has introduced a bill for the establishment of a weather bureau station at Charlevoix. Beaver Island will be entitle to the main land. Such a station would be a great benefit to marine interests, especially to commerce passing through the north straits.

—Down in central Rapids the sidewalk men are talking of Gaylord parties. "The cold weather has had its effect on the public market and the retail price of the tubers has fairly advanced ten to fifteen cents since the beginning of the mild snow" said yesterday's noted. Yesterday the price was fairly steady to slightly weak.

—A Chicago paper states that Jones of Spry, of Chicago, has sold to the South Arm Lumber Co. timber land adjoining a large part of his holdings in Chippewa county, somewhere on Lake Superior. It will be remembered. This gentleman is interested in which Mr. Johnson is interested and which is managed by W. A. Whitman, formerly of South Arm.

—So far as the production of the article is concerned, R. S. Simpson may be considered the admiral of the fleet, as he has cut and put up every one of ice stored in Charlevoix this winter. He has been at it about a month and has cut and stored 700 cords, or 2500 tons. Mr. Simpson has his contracts for cutting the East Jordan crop, and has his outfit and men there now.

—Anyone among the order the painting things of Michigan's record, breaking where has other the right to a view of the best sugar bushes. In fact, it is claimed that county pride of the Sugar State goes in the direction of Antrim. Mr. Wm. Wilber, of Antrim, arrived up to the city yesterday morning, in ballast, for a cargo. The schooner left Mobile 10 days since for Havana, with a cargo, and spent 20 of the number in the bar, or of that city. The return trip from Havana to the outer bar of Mobile Bay was made in 36 hours, and needed no sailing masters to be round time for a three masted schooner. The fastest time, heretofore in the outer bar, by a seamanship was 12 hours, then giving the record to the Vida V. Harrison. When 24 hours out from Havana sight Clark discovered a runaway, who first hailed and say, sickness, was compelled to crawl out of the hold and come on deck. He was a white man, about 25 years of age. He stated to Captain Clark that he was an American, and wanted to get to his home. On arrival here yesterday inquiring the address, was reported at the Boston House and after proving his citizenship was released from custody.

—W. H. McCartney, Village clerk, while descending the steps in front of his house Wednesday, fell and broke his right arm above the elbow.

—If in need of glasses see Lenly, the Optician, at Hotel Bartlett Feb. 14, 15 and 16, as he comes prepared to fit any eyes that can be fitted.

—Central Lake Torch: "Michigan Hotel" is still remaining in northern Michigan and was in Charlevoix last week. The hotel on Pancake Lake is of the "Dolly" by brewing the reminiscence of the last reception that was held in its honor at this place will long be with him.

—It is definitely announced the high school preparatory of the cantata of "Esther, the Beautiful Queen" will occur Feb 26th and 27th, at the high school hall. Preceding these dates solicos rehearsal will be given to which children below through school will be admitted free of charge.

The regular admission for the cantata will be 25 and 35 cents. It and be a good musical event, and should be well patronized. Costumes will be secured from Detroit.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Lumber Supply company, held in Grand Rapids last week, the following directors were chosen: Henry W. Lamont, Chicago, Wm. H. White, Boyne City, Henry N. Lund, Au Sable; William T. Cutler, Lansing; Edward Barker, Manistee, John F. Gee, Traverse City; Herman Bowers, Alpena; William Porter, Alpena, L. Von Phelps, Boyne City. The directors met and elected the following officers: President, Henry W. Lamont; Manistee, vice president, Henry N. Lund, Au Sable; William T. Cutler, East Jordan; secretary, William T. Cutler; treasurer, William H. White, Boyne City; William H. White was chosen treasurer to succeed Horatio Lewis of Elk Rapids, who resigned to go to China. Co Van Pelsen succeeds Mr. Lewis on the board of directors.

The death of Mrs. E. W. Coulter.

It is with profound regret that we are compelled to announce the death, at her home in this village last Friday afternoon, of Mrs Emma, wife of E. W. Coulter, resident of Charlevoix.

Mrs Coulter had been in poor health for some time, but was thought to be improving, when she contracted a cold which developed into pneumonia, which in her home somewhat enfeebled constitution, she was unable to withstand. Therefore a decided has had she leaves two young children, Deceased was 38 years of age. She was the daughter of the late W. C. Byers a pioneer of Bartlett township, Boyne county. She was a lady of unexceptional qualities, and had many friends.

The funeral services from the Congregational church Sunday afternoon. The attendance was large, the village council attending in a body and in a sincere manner and deepest sympathy for their departed sister. The Rev. Hall officiated. Mrs. Hall sang beautiful, and elegant piece entitled "Nearer Home." Charlevoix lodge, Knights of Pythias, of which Mr. Coulter is Chancellor Commander, attended in a body.

The publisher of this paper takes this opportunity to express the deep sympathy with the deeply bereaved husband.

Not a Better Time.

Speaking of the situation in the 22nd congressional district, the Petoskey Journal says:

"Before the election of 1902 the state had not issued instead of the congressman and the counties now attached to the eleventh district were differently arranged. Since that time, however, Mr. Darragh has regularly every four years a new name on the ticket in the district and after a new face to the delegation at Washington. Dr. Avery, Mr. Mesick and Archibald H. Darragh have all served in turn. When an unreliable Democrat is poor uncle gets into congress, he can't be got rid of too early, but in the case of a good man four years isn't enough to enable him to be in a position to recommending influence on committees or on the floor of the house. Mr. Darragh is a very useful, industrious and popular member and if that two term rule is ever to be broken, there could not be a better time for doing it than at present."

Fort Lordon Herald: Wm. H. Healey, an old settler of this region died Saturday at the home of his son Will in Lansing. The funeral was held in Fort City Tuesday morning until his body brought to this place for interment.

REPUBLICAN FACTIONS TO BE CONCILIATED.

Wm. Alden Smith to Quit Senatorial Fight.

Stearns and warner Only Candidates for Governor.

Washington, Feb. 9.—There is reason to believe that there will be some highly important political developments about the time of the Lincoln birth banquet in Grand Rapids this week. There will be a meeting of the Republican state central committee and also a meeting of the State League of Republican clubs, and these, with the banquet, will attract prominent politicians from all sections of the state. Aside from them, however, there promises to be doings of even greater political interest.

A well known Michigan man here predicts that within two weeks the political situation in Michigan will be so well cleared that there will be but one candidate for United States senator in the field and but two candidates for governor. The latter will be Justus S. Stearns and Fred M. Warner, while Senator Burrows will be alone in his field. The further important prediction is made, too, that Congressman William Alden Smith will not only announce himself as not a candidate for the senatorship at this time, but will openly declare for Stearns for governor. Together with Mr Smith, it is said that both the Michigan Senators will declare sympathy for stearns, but because of their positions will take no part in the fight.

HARMONY THRU ALL AROUND.

Much influence has been exerted here lately to bring about harmony in the Michigan Republican camp. In a presidential year it is highly desirable that there be no internal dissensions such as have been threatened for some time. With Senator Burrows and Congressman Smith lined up against each other in Michigan, instead of a battle royal for the governorship on, there would have been a lot of political blood spilled and no end of trouble. It is declared now that the harmony efforts have prevailed, and very satisfactorily, too.

The visit of Mr Stearns to this city last week was not much to do with bringing about the conditions. For months the Federal machine men have been booming Smith for the governorship. Friends of the congressman insist that he never seriously considered the proposition, and that his eye is firmly fixed upon the senatorship. The friendly notices he received in connection with the governorship, however, were by no means annoying to a target naturally so eminently secure in popularity. To accept the governorship, however, would put Mr. Smith out of the senatorial running for four years, and it is by no means impossible that a vacancy might occur in the senate during that period, and in such event Mr. Smith would have to appoint another to the place he so greatly desires for himself. Another feature which had a bearing in the matter was the complaint of Washington that all social life with that of life in Lansing.

It is said that a perfect understanding now exists all round, and that a large for what to-able Fred M. Warner may succeed in winning on the dove of peace will have five insurrh Michigan about the time of the Lincoln banquet, when Mr. Stearns issues his formal declaration.

War News.

Advices from the far east up to date are that Japanese are winning victories.

On Tuesday night off Port Arthur they sunk a first class Russian cruiser and badly disabled two Russian battle ships.

In a naval battle Wednesday the Japanese captured two Russian cruisers, their crews surrending.

The Japanese have invested Port Arthur by land and sea and show great vigor and courage.

Everything thus far favors the Japanese.

LATEST BY WIRE.

Advices this (Friday) morning state that the Japs are in full control of Port Arthur.

Mathilde Victor was sobbing in a fit of hysterics. At the first sign of her husband's return she had rushed and exclaimed a few words.

"Of course you will stay in your rooms, and dine and sup in your rooms."

"As I have already explained to Isabella, the sole impossibility of quitting my rooms."

"Why, Victor, what—"

"I quarrel with Isabella, and she orders a gentleman friend to escort me to another room, where I have been insulted another man, who, about then, was coming to a hotel, where I was a guest, stopped to assist me."

In the excitement he could articulate only after twenty minutes, and then was able to relate the disappointing adventure. Isabella was pacified when her son was driven from his home to a room and supper was served.

"Victor, I'm sorry. I'm a nervous wreck. Can I be excused?"

"Yes, Mathilde, I'm sorry, too. I'm sorry I ever married you. Good night."

An Early Morning Ride and Its Consequences

The Earl of Wymouths was particularly—some statistics, in fact, Dan has had hours and hours within the last two years taken his wife's death. The disappointment centered nearly one day morning at that period of the year when—according to Shakespeare—a young man's fancies turn out to Tennyson in the direction of love.

Lord Wymouths had seen more than a lifetime of contentment, so, perhaps, that was why his eyeballs were rolled into excavation of such commodious size. Moreover that may be just himself into the saddle toward town and cantered off in the direction of Neuilpetite.

Miss Nevile paced the terrace alone. Looking indignantly in the Mail coach. She found the heavy weight of spurned love hitched and noted the astonished glance of a lonely hunting crew. Half the length of the terrace was traversed, when she stood still—waiting for her visitor to approach.

She could wait one minute more, so, for the black tree point, her eyes dark and penetrating.

Lord Wymouths walked with the a cran of his boots. He was getting more hard for each wrinkle than the majority of country gentlemen.

"Good morning!" she said in that clear voice which never had a touch of petulancy in it.

"Good morning."

"Why are unfashionable hours of manner, he pulled off his riding gloves before touching her extended hand.

"Where is Mr. Heredith? she asked, turning to read his expression.

Lord Wymouths's two hackles were up. He walked and his white collar and tie ruffle was—he was a Hussar, half an era on the back.

"Darling, Cuddie—he interjected only, "the best of my fellows had been trained to break horses."

"Poor old Vivo, cancer of the liver."

In a fall for his yahoo I told him a month ago that that sick groom had seen Hammond shaw was good for nine."

An Early Morning Ride and Its Consequences

This Earl of Wynnemoe was perturbed—more shaken, in fact, than he had been any time within the last two years since his wife's death. The disturbance thereof occurred early one fine morning at that period of the year when—according to Shakespeare—a young man's fancies turn not lightly to thoughts in the direction of love.

Lord Wynnemoe had seen more than a jubilee of springtimes, or perhaps, that was his sympathy with those shifted into consideration of such commonplaces. However that may be, he got himself into the saddle toward noon and canter-off in the direction of Nottingham.

Miss Neville passed the terrace alone, looking delightfully in the May sunshine. She heard the heavy jangle of spurred heels turned and passed the antered figure of a heavy bachelor close. Half the length of the terrace and between them, she stood with weeping for her mother to deprecate.

She quite made the drive turn aside for the hoofs tame scant. Her eyes dark and penetrating.

Lord Wynnemoe walked with her a man of his years, he was nearer forty than one means twenty than the nobility of morally gentlemen.

"Good morning!" he said to the clear voice which never had a sound of sadness in it.

"Good morrow!"

With an old-fashioned, courtly courtesy, he doffed his riding gloves before touching her extended hand.

"Have we met lately?" she asked, letting a cool, lily congeniality.

Lord Wynnemoe's own hollow eyes, his mouth and his wine cellar, and Miss Neville knew that a meaning was in the way in the sun.

"Time set! Your master of the horse."

"It is fair for her mother's life to a month and that that new groom took more knowledge than was good for him."

"Things have been going wrong in the stables—then?"

"Do the same?" he asked fairly. "Are good Diana? Do I?"

"Miss Neville, how am I to protect my motherless girls?"

"Ask her what I wrote, and I will tell you what you to make."

Miss Neville passed the terrace alone.

Neither spoke of an attempted compromise.

The little lady spun quarter with scream.

"Poor young sinner!" she commented. "There is this in their favor, that they did not mean it."

The earl still no least to her words the wrong.

"Poor, of it! and I was only two years in the saddle. Jewel Phoebe has worried me a dull coal. And I look long enough for her."

"Not sorry!" quoted Miss Neville, a little impatiently.

"The trifle to excuse the record! but I am already!"

"Well?"

"I fell for back to the house and up to my room and bade my valet there let I not for her. And she is there still."

"Poor little Nora! did you call try to calm her confidence?"

"The valet's telegraphic to him there is a little pale. I am glad to say. At breakfast Miss Diana inferred to me that she was sure suffering from headache. Birth said she had been crying. Nora—why never shall I know her mother disconcerting for a group?"

"You were not cruel—tears will do less harm, my friend."

"A Wynnemoe and a groom! What could she see in the fellow?"

"What he can in a lover. The child is a dangerous age."

"I know."

And she is lonely, emotional, strong—very good to stay with her age."

"She has Edith to play with."

"A company-old lady."

"Miss Nowes?"

"Too old, my friend."

"Governess?" So clever was of said who would to see alone the day saw Diana's. It is not a question of age, but of taste. I hear she is fine and good. Nora's Nora."

"What is to come?" Lennox said the earl's to handle the wrong effect in the column quite Pindi was not—Nora's—Nora's."

"Can see to me for a while."

"You are too good, but I sincerely thank you."

"Young people are so—Nottingham gaol."

"Let the way day the power and the stock of a fresh-selling table. A low minister that she handed him an ear—

"Ah—yes—I—and—"

"Why don't you?"

"My dear Diana, I am all worn out rather cold. Do you think your father would be—I—I—I

FARM HELP IS SCARCE

MANY NEBRASKA FARMERS SELLING OUT ON THIS ACCOUNT

Omaha (Neb.) Dispatch to Chicago Inter-Ocean, Sept. 29.—Many farmers of Western Nebraska are selling out their farms because they have failed to secure help for harvesting their crops.

BLOWN UP.

[illegible] Pipe Line Company in Mexico, left. The explosion occurred at the Tepetate Hacienda, near Tampico, Mexico. The Beaux Arts Building, one of the finest structures in the city of Mexico, was destroyed by fire. The Beaux Arts Building was the property of the Mexican Government and was occupied by the Ministries of Public Works and Agriculture. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a defective electric wire. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

PRISONERS ATTACK OFFICERS.

Warden and Watchman of Jail at Scottsboro, Ala., Badly Beaten.

Western Auxiliary Records and Night Watchman Samuel Bell, both of the Montgomery County jail in Scottsboro, Ala., were badly beaten and were compelled to turn the keys of the county jail over to prisoners, who made a desperate attempt to escape. Four of the prisoners escaped, but Jailer Dodson succeeded in quickly surrounding them and they were all captured. The warden has a bad wound on the head, some of the men had their faces cut and bruised, and Night Watchman Bell was badly bruised and bore evidence of having been beaten with a club. The prisoners had secured a club from the woodpile and used it on the officers.

SHOTS CUT DOWN MEAT

Independence Storekeeper Shows Kansas City Thieves Fight.

A number of our Independence merchants have been robbed and have been forced to suspend operations owing to the loss of their goods. The dangerous criminals are supposed to be members of the gang of safe robbers who blew open the safe in the Sears-Roebuck store in Kansas City, Mo., last week. The robbers are said to be armed with rifles and shotguns and have shot down a number of citizens who have attempted to stop them from carrying off their goods.

STOLEN MONEY MAY BE HIDDEN.

Cleveland Police Now Hopeful of Recovering Contractors' Money.

The Cleveland police department is now hopeful of recovering the $10,000 in money and checks taken from the office of Contractor Frank Sullivan, in the Cuyahoga Building, Cleveland, Ohio, last week. The money was stolen by a masked bandit who entered the office and ordered Sullivan and his bookkeeper, Miss Mae Ryan, to hand over the money. The bandit escaped with the booty, but it is believed he will be apprehended and the money recovered.

BAD BAD MONEY MINT.

United States Marshals Capture Alleged Counterfeiters in Kansas.

A band of men suspected of being engaged in the manufacture of counterfeit money was captured near Ottawa, Kan., by United States Marshals Jack Cross and Harry Fisher. A small quantity of counterfeit money was found in their possession. The men were taken to Topeka and lodged in the Shawnee County jail on charges of having in their possession counterfeit money with intent to pass it.

COUNTY BRIDGE IN FRONTIER.

Final Consolidation of Two Counties Will Cost Nearly $100,000.

Two counties in Western New York are to be joined together in the spring when New York is started in the direction of Buffalo. The counties are Niagara, in the northeast corner of the state, and Erie, which is the second county west of Niagara. The two counties are separated by the Niagara River, which is the boundary line between the two counties. The Niagara River is a deep, swift stream, and for years the people living on the Erie side have had to take a long ride to reach the county seat of Niagara County. The nearest way to get from one county to the other is by the Niagara Falls bridge, which is a long way from the county seat of Niagara County. The people living on the Niagara side have had to take a long ride to reach the county seat of Erie

SCHOOL NOTES.

The Scientific American and Inter ary Digest have been added to the high school reading table. The Digest saved seventy five cents by subscribing for these through the agency represented by Archibald Hattrick Jr.

It comes hard for some students to be sent up at noon on account of the measles, but the orders of the health officer are explicit that no children should come to school from families that have measles until the sick room has been thoroughly disinfected and a physicians' certificate to that effect sent to school. Only by such care as this can the disease be kept out of the school rooms that have not yet been closed.

Merely signing the students' monthly report does not represent the interest that does towards the subject that the school if the students generally go to on class work and deportment, pupils should find out why this is the case. If the pupils do not grasp enough of the periodic results that the report and determine the case the diagnosis is necessarily left to teachers, school visits, etc.

For several weeks the school notes have been suspended, mostly because our instructional matter has been left out by overcrowding. Our contributor Mr. Ray Dandy of Hadley, Michigan, graduate of the high school with two years mathematical work at Albion college, has been temporarily engaged to carry on Miss Clement's classes. Miss Clements condition is improving too we can say but how early she can resume her work.

There are now sixteen students enrolled for typewriting in the commercial department. This overtakes the payment of the new Remington machine for practice work, and some extra cases must now be made for additional typewriters in order to give students a proper amount of work. Some members of the advanced class in shorthand are now prepared to take practical dictation exercises and transcribe them on the typewriter. The school notes this week are taken this way and prepared for the printer.

Fire drills have been instituted in the Central Building, and the upper rooms have been railway opened by one outlet and three fire escapes. The drills in this building are especially designed to empty it in the shortest time in case of fire, cutting off exits at the east entrance, the main stairway, on the north and south entrances. These drills will be thoroughly effective before the end of this week. At present a fire on the main stairway of the Michigan Building would force no exit for the upper rooms, but the chance of such a fire is of course, very improbable.

Death of Austin C. Newman.

Austin C. Newman died at his home in Charlevoix township at 10 o'clock Wednesday, age 70 years, after a long illness.

Deceased came to Charlevoix in 1866 "squatting" on a fractional 80 acres of section 27, this township. Then a part of the Ed. Railroad grant. Several year after, when the lands came into market, Newman filed his claim, and has owned and occupied it since. He was never married, and lived somewhat a recluse. The Newman place now consists of about 70 acres, joining the corporation line on the west.

Mr. Newman served three years during the war of the rebellion in the 5th U. S. Infantry, and at the time of his death was a member of Hadley Post, G. A. R., by which organization he will be buried to day.

Deceased was a brother of Jesse Newman, of Marion; Henry Newman of Charlevoix; and of the late W. C. Newman.

The Judgeship.

Soon after this early date there is talk of re-election for the Circuit court judgeship, an office that will expire filled till April next year. The names of John W. Fletcher and Wm. G. Foster are freely bandied about. Of Mr. Foster of Manistee—Traverse City Eagle.

It is too early yet to talk about that matter, but there is not one single political reason why Judge Mason should not succeed himself when the time comes. That he has made a good judge in all essentials cannot be gainsaid, and that he will be more and deeper and more efficient in a second term is equally true.

But it is the old story of a political score, the possession of the judgeship combine a condition in American politics that places the bench on a level with ward politics, and is a reproach to our institutions.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and tedious fight with an abscess on my left lung," writes J. F. Hughes of Safford, Ala. "and gave me up to death. Through my time honored friend, I was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The first dose I received was relieving and I was on my feet. Now I am entirely regained my health." It does not kill the germs but destroys the germs. Cures all throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed by F. E. Hines Co. Drug Store. Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

Burnett & Co. Explode Their Clothing Sale.

We wish to say to the public that we are again in possession of our business, having terminated the contract with E. O. Neff & Co., which did not prove entirely satisfactory to us. It is perfectly true that we are going out of business, and wish to close our entire stock. The contract with the firm which was to close at the stock, placed everything connected with the business in their hands during the sale, and we had nothing to say as to methods used. We found that while a great many people were brought to town and bought of them, and a large amount of the stock was disposed of, there were features of the contract we did not like, and we took advantage of our privilege, and terminated it Monday night.

We are now conducting a closing out sale, genuine in every respect and guarantee that all goods are as represented. Will cheerfully refund money to anyone not satisfied with their purchase, either during the previous sale or at any time until the stock is closed out.

This is no more a advertising humbug than a genuine go-out of business sale, and if you want to get more for your money than you can at any other place in the region, come and see us.

Very Respectfully,
A. T. BURNETT & CO.

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a preventative of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A trial by town system, or compulsory introduction of this remedy into all suitable people suicide and some lung loss been found that will prevent the coughing which makes suicide likely. At the last thought of suicide from lung trouble Dr. King's great lung and nerve will strengthen the nerves and lung to be steady. It's also a great remedy for Liver and Kidneys—guarantee every bottle guaranteed by F. E. Hines Co. Druggist.

DO NOT DOSE THE STOMACH.

Cure Catarrh by Nature's Own Methods—Every Breath of Hyomei Bring Relief.

Nearly every one who has catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it by dragging its stomach full of poisonous drugs, but a cure not from cause.

Until recently no physician would have said the only way to cure catarrh would be to have a change of climate, but now with Hyomei you can carry a health giving climate in your vest pocket and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day soon cure yourself.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and if one bottle of Hyomei fails to relieve catarrh or bronchitis Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most concentrated of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that actually claims to be a method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

F. N. Chapel & Co. have sold a great many Hyomei outfits and the more they sell, the more convinced are they that they are perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomei does not cure.

—It is a settled fact that Mr. Paul Dock will succeed himself as representative, consequently there is no talk on the subject. Mr. Paddock is worthy and deserving of a renomination. He did well at Lansing last winter; he will do better next winter. Mr. Paddock is already renominated so far as public sentiment is concerned.

The passengers were brought here by the Rev'nuers, and the train was not released until eleven last night. The Monday afternoon train, going north and south, were cancelled. These men in Uncle Sam's postal service cannot be driven into the ditches by the roadside, or squeezed against the fences in towns without violating the United States mail law. If, by the recklessness, or backsliding methods of some members, a collision occurs and the mail is delayed, it will not be long thereafter until a deputy United States marshal will be looking for the man who offended, either because he was ignorant of the law or presumed wanted to stretch the limit of Uncle Sam's endurance. Either is sufficient to convict. —A Glen Haven special says: The small carrots from South Manitou came over today, there is open water in the channel which they crossed in a boat, coming the balance of the way on foot; they found the ice in channel two to three inches in thickness; near year this shore it is about ten inches. He reports to the westward of South Manitou it is all open water, no ice being in sight. Eleven below zero is coldest it has been on the island this winter. The wreck of the steamer Frost is still intact but frozen in, and the islanders are getting large quantities of her corn cargo out of her.

—This is a question which is worrying the farmers and horticulturists, not only in this county but throughout the whole state. During the past six weeks the mercury has reached levels which under ordinary conditions would most assuredly prove fatal to all the fruit buds with the possible exception of the most hardy varieties. The one hopeful feature is the fact that there have been no thaws and therefore practically no sap in the trees while the roots have been amply protected with a covering of snow from two to four feet in thickness which has kept the frost out of the ground. On this authority and observing of a remedium. He did well at Lansing last winter; he will do better next winter. Mr. Paddock is already renominated so far as public sentiment is concerned.

LOST IN STORM.

Terrible Experience of a Man on the Lake Saturday Night.

A report came to the News office this morning from Harbor Springs from our regular correspondent at that place, bringing the news of a case of terrible suffering.

Saturday afternoon, so the information goes, a man started to walk from Hog Island, one of the Beavers, to Cross Village 20 miles. A snow storm came on and becoming bewildered the man wandered about aimlessly, finally being found 27 miles point Sunday in an almost frozen condition.

The News called Cross Village by phone but nothing was known of the man's experience there. Owing to the intense cold of today, and the fact that 7 mile point can not be reached by 'phone, the above could not be confirmed, neither could further information be secured—Petoskey News. The man was Frank Sherman, of this place, who has been working at Hog Island, lumbering. He arrived here Monday, but says he came without much trouble with the aid of a compass.

A later account says: Frank Sherman of Beaver Island is the man who was saved from a horrible death by freezing on the ice early Sunday morning. Charley Wright of Harbor Springs was on his way to his fish shanty Sunday morning when he found Sherman wandering around in a bewildered condition, almost frozen.

H. Ivan Swift who afterwards talked with Sherman gave the following correct account of the affair to our Harbor Springs reporter.

What might be called a very narrow escape and was surely a very anxious experience is reported here by Frank Sherman of St. James. Mr. Sherman who is a cobbler on the Beavers started Saturday morning from Hog Island to go to Charlevoix to buy some leather. He began his journey about 10 from Cross Village, the nearest main land point, but finding the weather fair decided to walk straight across the lake to Charlevoix, a distance of 30 miles. Early in the evening the long traveler having reached within five miles of his destination was overtaken by the blizzard which made outdoor life uncomfortable, even on land. The blinding and dense snow made a definite course impossible and the darkness rendered his pocket compass of little use.

He continued to walk, inclining towards the inner bay rather than the open lake, and hoped to strike the Petonkey shore at some point. He traveled the entire night, having been on the lake for 24 hours with no food or rest, and daylight found him on the north shore of the bay near Emmet Beach very much off his bearings.

Now that the mill is shut down the people who have been depending on it for wood will have to dig for the woods or freeze, till the mill starts again at least.

Frank Sherman left Hog Island Saturday morning for Charlevoix on foot across the ice, a distance of nearly 40 miles. It has not been learned whether he reached his destination or not.

Mrs. Annie Gatliff gave the Valentine Ball Feb. 15, at Gatlagher's hall. Although the mercury hovered around 20 degrees below zero a good-by-sized crowd reported a pleasant time.

Prospects bid fair at present for a combination of school districts No. 1 and 2 of Peaine Township and a new building being erected about the site of the new St. Jaime school, near Owen McCauley's place.

The Tug Margaret McCann has been assessed up this week for the purpose of pumping out the water which has been leaking into her this winter, and requiring daily bailing, the leaks in Charlevoix, a distance of 30 miles. Early in the evening the long traveler having reach ed within five miles of his destination was overtaken by the blizzard which made outdoor life uncomfortable, even on land. The blinding and dense snow made a definite course impossible and the darkness rendered his pocket compass of little use.

Charlevoix Should Protest.

A Chicago special says: Authority has been received at the Duluth customs house for the charging of tonnage at the City of Charlevoix, owned by the Northern Michigan Transportation company, to Roscoe. The company announced last this season time lags of changing the names of its vessels to represent the different states of the union instead of cities. Only one other vessel of that fleet is enrolled at the port of Duluth, the Illinois.

BLOWN FROM TRACK.

TRAIN TIPPED OVER BY GALORA IN HURRICANE.

To Cross Ties, Baggage and Lumber Are Scattered and Five Passengers Injured—President Eliot of Harvard Speaks of Football as Evil.

A catalogue fault on the Colorado and Southern Railway, on account of a hurricane, was responsible for a train being blown from the track near Galora, Colo., on Friday morning. Four of the cars were badly damaged and five passengers were injured. The train was made up of a baggage car, two coaches and a sleeper. The baggage car was thrown from the track and the coaches were blown from the track and tipped over on the embankment. The sleeper was left on the track. The baggage car was demolished. The ties were scattered in every direction and the baggage was scattered for a mile along the track. The injured were all passengers in the coaches. The injuries were not serious. The train was bound for Denver.

Thirty Minutes' Discourse.

President Eliot of Harvard University delivered his annual address before the university on Wednesday afternoon. The address is a long one, and President Eliot occupied thirty minutes in delivering it. The address was largely devoted to the game of football. President Eliot said in part:

"Football is evil. Its one main defect is that it is a game played by young men in their early manhood, when they are susceptible to the influence of the spectacle of a contest between opposing teams. The game is not a game for boys, but for young men. It is a game which should be prohibited by law for all students under 21 years of age. The game should be played by students who are physically able to play it, and who are not injured by playing it. The game should be so modified that it will not be a game for spectators, but a game for players. The game should be so modified that it will not be a game for professional players, but a game for students. The game should be so modified that it will not be a game which requires a large outlay of money for its support. The game should be so modified that it will not be a game which requires a large number of spectators to make it pecuniarily profitable. The game should be so modified that it will not be a game which requires a large number of spectators to make it morally toler

BLOWN FROM TRACK.

TRAIN TIPPED OVER BY COLORADO HURRICANE.

Two Coaches, Baggage and Smoker Go Down Embankment—President Eliot of Harvard Speaks of Football as at Eve.

A passenger train of the Colorado Southern railway was blown off the track near Longmont, and two coaches were overturned by a gale. The engine and baggage car did not leave the rails, but the two coaches were tipped over and considerably damaged. The train was bound for Denver. There were about 50 passengers on the train, but none of them was seriously injured. The train was in charge of Conductor Ryan and was in charge of Engineer Hoyt. The accident occurred at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The train was blown off the track by a hurricane. It was not thought at first that any lives were lost in the wreck, but it was later ascertained that a man was missing from the train. The name of the man could not be learned. The train was made up of two coaches, a baggage car and a smoker. The wind was so strong that it blew the coaches over like toy houses. The baggage car and the smoker did not turn over. The train was in charge of a special crew on account of the regular crew being tied up in Denver by the strike. The train was bound for Denver when the storm struck it. The wind came from the west and blew with great force. The train was blown over while it was standing still. The engineer had shut off the steam and was waiting for the storm to abate when the train was blown over. The engineer and fireman were not injured. The train was in charge of a special crew on account of the regular crew being tied up in Denver by the strike. The train was bound for Denver when the storm struck it. The wind came from the west and blew with great force. The train was blown over while it was standing still. FOOTBALL, GOOD AS EVER.

In his annual report President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University says the game of football as it is now played has been improved so materially that it should not be abolished. He says: "The game of football as it is now played is not a game for boys under 16 years of age, but it is a game for young men who are in no way injured by it." He says the

When It Is Bad Form To Question Poker Luck

"There's almighty queer people comes abroard of these boats sometimes," said Caleb Mix, the veteran bartender on the Mississippi river packet City of Natchez, that ran between Vicksburg and New Orleans. "Here now you see 'em sometimes, an' those is trips now an' again which we'd take the best for a bagfleeta with pickaninnies, but somehow we don't seem to see so many on 'em as there was a good many years ago.

"For one thing the gamblers was travelin' the rivers then there and nowadays there ain't none on 'em, or none to speak of. Then another thing was there was more fightin' men more in' bound than there is now.

"I ain't saayin' they was braver'n fine fraulins. Maybe they wasn't. But they was the kind of men that wouldn't never feed one or the way if they seen any trouble comin' to hold 'em.

"I remember a feller that come down the river on the Crescent Belle that I was workin' on, long in the low, he got on at Helena, Ark., an he didn't half to tell nobody. I don't know quite recent I'm in Ozark mountains.

"To begin with he was a fine tall'n an' nice lookin' feller, an' tall to be Mostly those men that live in the mountains be tall. I reckon they have to, to pass over the tops of things. He was outrageous tall.

"Then he were dressed toothsome, even for those days, when there was right smart o' homespun worn in a good many parts o' the South. An' then was the tall of the trousis. You ever hear it?

"Well, they say they cin tell people by the different states by their tails, an' I don't know but there's lissen that kin do it. I was tell a Northerner I'm a southerner myself, but I don't swear I'm right out an' particular saayin 'cept'n' 'ur' thanks. An' you can't make no mistake about a man for there.

"Then he were big goes an' mighty. I'd guess the suit of it sittin' out of his trousis pocket looked, 'Twas'nt no surprise. However we ain't come upon there yet. He'd a'ave a double barrelled corkscrew an a good one. An he were a bashy an his head that he wasn't cowardy, if I know about head.

"I looked at him fo' a fine chaw when he come down, thinkin' to myself that he was a chaw fer, an' wondered what sort bed turn out to be. Jubilee I'm the usual run, I reckoned it wide most thirty bed goes to be a finder an' I guess to myself it to be bed for the other feller. He had arms on him that 'peared to be a yard an' a half long, an as big as a man's leg in fo the shoulder, an he carried his self slightly straight' an' moved like a cat.

"Well, he didn't seem to be none conversisome the first day or two. He seemed like he'd ought a good deal an' bin fo' a good deal.

"But he didn't seem to take no hold on him, only to make him sociable.

"Well, he sit about toward an' his family an' his little place up in the mountains, just like a boy would tell things an' he told me what a'pleasy me considerable, that he was rich. Not like rich fo a commissioner, but very rich. Owned he owned two sugar plantations down the river that had come to him by will from his uncles, an' lived up where he did just because he like bad.

"I reckon he might ha' told some others on the boat, for I didn't tell nobody but when we got to Arkansas City there was considerable rousin' round on shore by some that didn't have to call to go ashore, an' when the Belle belle pulled out I'm there there was two of the Arkansas City poker players a-scurrin' along with us.

"I don't know whether you ever run up against that crowd or not. Likely not, for this were when sixty year ago, as I was saym', but they was the all-desirest poker players anywhere up an' down the river, on'y they didn't need to go on the boats much.

they says on that he learned to be bartenderpower fast an' maybe didn't hand an extra fourfinger.

"Slingsby, he laughed an' he says was, if thats the way I'd feel about it, maybe bimeby better take limit money limit. He'd look out what he'd bet, an' he pushed the stack over toward em across the table.

"Well, that seemed too fair fair, an' Bassett an' Blue what he bested, an' Slingsby says he ain't care about takin' money that's made just like that.

"You aayem't think, gentlemen he says, dasty and nowsome a man don't liberalmind draw poker very well, he don't know how to handle cards.

"Then Bassett seemed to get a glass of that same white light, an' he lost his temper.

"You was cheatin' them, he says, very nasty like.

"Slingsby was very cool.

"Cheatin did you say? he says, very quick. An' what do you say about it? he says turnin to Winterbottom, because he was a great old sledge player. Pegged there was a half a dozen old fellers that played old sledge where he come from an' they used so well with him, they backed him. Look the fellers in there he asks him.

"An Slingsby went back on playin' old sledge after they'd interesting the settlers. Tried to blamer 'em lain a game, but I seen was lookin' at each other kind o' curious when he proposed it, an' Bassett he cayed

"'We don't know nothin about old sledge, gardner' name as you don't know nothin about poker. We'd like to play keeno euchre well both on us, but takin we can't mean to be rude.'

"O' course that were a bluff, an' we'd no time to tell them they was all three anything about whether they'd play poker or old sledge. An' this naturally upsets them now we fo two was the one in give it.

"He said he was thirty minuts in home, long as he couldn't get nobody to play his game. So they put the cards and chips from me an' set right down to a little back room that I had for players that didn't care about playin' in the main saloon. There was three men there, I remember, I don't reckon those three cared, on'y 'twas lonely right where they was.

"Well, say, it was more fun than a monkey to see that Slingsby learn his instructions. He had to be told some things half a dozen times.

"'Two's' nowadays' thought, to tell him but since about the time that Bassett lost the fifth game, Slingsby wa't no more's can which thing he 'ought to kiss.

"But when it come to his game, he 'peared to be mighty an' active. He who he were with all and he jabber an' kept the pages' laughin' to him to look at. After that he got tired tire, but he kept gettin' [illegible] in the pack, an' made the same mistake so often that I begin to think still a smart'n' man was wrong. Bassett also say man that knows how to play cards at all wouldn't have trouble a bit with that game.

"Bassett an' Winterbottom, suggestion enthusi, thought. Look there was an old old fellers in there, an' if they didn't stop to eat.

"Anyway, they kept on playin' an' as much edification as they thought good for Ike, and accuse him. Bassett title an' that is a wan'n' [illegible] crowe. An' in the close room there gettin' in, and [illegible] et cetera, Slingsby fifty-to-a-[illegible] The Didn't seem to be anything to deal, an' Bassett, an' Winterbottom, an' Blue, an' Slingsby, an' 'em if they didn't stop to eat.

Waste of Millions.

Dalinay harbor, near Port Arthur, built by Russia for an ice-free terminal port for the Siberian railway at a cost of 17,000,000 rubles, is a dismal failure. Ever since the breakwater has been built it freezes over as did Vladivostok. The nearest possible ice-free bay is on Korean territory.

STRONGEST EVIDENCE OF FAITH

F. N. Chapel & Co. guarantee that Hyomei will Cure the Worst case of Catarrh in Charlevoix.

When one of the most reputable concerns in Charlevoix guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure of that and refund the money, it speaks volumes as to the merits of that remedy. It is in this way that F. N. Chapel & Co. are selling Hyomei, the treatment that has made so many permanent cures of both acute and chronic catarrh in Charlevoix and vicinity.

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or wineglass. Just breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes to every outfit and it will accomplish the good effect in case of that and refund the money, if it fails to cure. It is in this way that F. N. Chapel & Co. are selling Hyomei, the treatment that has made so many permanent cures of both acute and chronic catarrh in Charlevoix and vicinity.

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or wineglass. Just breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes to every outfit and it will accomplish the good effect in case of that and refund the money.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and purifies and purifies the blood with additional oxygen. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever morbid secretions collect and ferment, there Hyomei is sure to do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountain high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make one air pure by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrant oil that is healing to the respiratory organs.

A complete Hyomei outfit cost but $1.00 and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for several weeks treatment.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure you though will refund your money. This is a good time to commence by this natural method and growing catarrh odds that are so common at this season.

SUPPLEMENT TO

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1904.

ANNUAL TAX SALE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, } ss.
County of Charlevoix. }

The Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

In the matter of the petition of Percy F. Powers, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for sale in forfeiture of land for the use of the State of Michigan.

On reading and filing the petition of the Auditor General, by Edward C. Rogers, Assistant Attorney General of the State of Michigan, praying for a decree of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on such each parcel of land and that such lands be sold to the State of Michigan, for the use of the State.

It is ordered that said petition be made returnable for hearing and decree at the March term of this Court, to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the 16th day of March, A. D. 1904, at which time and place all persons who have filed their appearances herein with the Auditor General, and all persons interested in said lands, and all persons desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for the amounts of taxes, interest and charges set forth therein, may appear and show cause why such petition should not be granted to the State of Michigan, for the amounts of taxes, interest and charges, set forth in said petition.

It is further ordered that in pursuance of said decree the lands described in said petition, or such part thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the amount of taxes, interest and charges, with the costs of sale and of this decree, shall be sold at the Court House in the Village of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 16th day of March, A. D. 1904, at 10 o'clock a. m. on said day, or such other place and time as may be set by the Circuit Court Commissioner, of which sale the Auditor General and every person interested in the lands to be sold, or any part thereof, at the discretion of the Auditor General, shall have notice by publication of a copy of this decree, posted in the Court House in the County of Charlevoix, and published in the Charlevoix County Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County of Charlevoix, at least four successive weeks, the last publication to be made not less than twenty days before the time of such sale, and that such notice be given to the owners of such lands, or any part thereof, as shall appear upon the records of the County of Charlevoix, by a notice in writing, to be served personally upon such owners, or

From Inflammatory Rheumatism

Would Have Killed Our Son.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills Saved Him.

"We began to use Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills six years ago. My wife had liver trouble and a neighbor gave her some of your liver pills to try, after which we bought a bottle of them and my wife and three sons all cured. Since then I have used them and I can say that I have never used any pills that gave me such satisfactory results. I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills with greater satisfaction. Three years ago our son Harry had inflammatory rheumatism. He had suffered so much that I believe if we had not given him Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills which relieved him almost instantly he would have died. I am glad to rely on the recommendation of Dr. Miles' Remedies."—James Lewis, Adrian, Ills.

"I was afflicted with neuralgia for years and never found any permanent relief till I began using Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They are a sure cure for headache and neuralgic pains. One day one morning I remembered then to a friend with a severe headache and in a half hour he came into the store feeling fine. He said he had taken one dose of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and had then started for the store in buggy. This high testimonial from very person. LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a very valuable medicine for all liver troubles. It relieves the system of all impurities, and I have found it a most valuable family medicine."—WILLIAM WAKITE, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and procure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the stomach, regulate the digestive apparatus, the kidneys, bowels, or liver, clear the complexion, drive out the poisonous matter which causes so many sickly women to resemble a Decayed Sunflower. Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

Sold by druggists. Thedford's Black-Draught, per pint or quart, 25 cents and 50 cents. Manufactured only by THE CHAS. H. MERRELL CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE OLD RELIABLE SPECIALIST

DO YOU WANT FREE CONSULTATION AND CORRECT OPINION OF YOUR CASE.

If you are poor your treatment is free. If you are discouraged and we can cure you, we will wait for our pay until you are well.

Come and see us: this is your last chance.

We live to do good, are honest with all. Forty-five years' experience free. This trip and today only.

The above is the opinion of the only Dr. B. Spinney in this town. He honors a few days only at the office of Dr. Bartlett House, Charlevoix, Friday, February 19th, from 4 to 8 p. m.

Three Facts.

Fact No. 1. The price paid for sugar beets at factories on the Pacific coast has been reduced since the agitation for Cuban reciprocity began.

Fact No. 2. Not a single new factory for the production of beet sugar has been built on the Pacific coast since the agitation for Cuban reciprocity began.

Fact No. 3. The area planted to sugar beets on the Pacific coast has decreased since the agitation for Cuban reciprocity began.

The significance of these three facts in relation to the approval or rejection of the pending Cuban treaty should be obvious to Republican representatives in Congress.

The Hay Crop.

The American Agriculturist estimates the hay crop for 1902 at 57,836,000 tons. At $10 per ton the value would exceed $578,000,000, more than either the cotton or wheat crop. The American farmer certainly has reason to be thankful for prosperity. Also he has reason to object to a reciprocity treaty which would admit free of duty the cheaper hay of Canada, along with the cheaper grain, potatoes, eggs, butter, etc.

Labor's Double Gain.

In 1870 the wholesale annual cost of necessaries for one person was $159.47; in 1902 it is less than $100, and yet to-day skilled labor is getting twice what it was in 1870. Even on a gold basis the index number of prices in 1870 was 5124. Part of the matter to cost of living is less to-day than it was in 1870, 1875, 1880, 1885 or 1890, while wages are very much higher.

Prosperity Under Republican Rule.

The people of the United States consume the equivalent of 90 per cent of all we produce, and upon this fact Secretary Shaw declares that "so long as these conditions continue will prosperity cease." Can there be a reasonable doubt as to the soundness of this view?—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

LABOR'S SHARE.

Tremendous Increase of Deposits in Savings Banks.

People are said to sometimes pinch themselves in order to prove that some particularly pleasurable sensation is not due to a dream.

The recent annual report of the controller of the treasury admirably serves the purpose of a pinch to ensure the public that the prosperity of the country is no dream. It proves that the country is wide-awake and that the pleasurable sensation of prosperity is real.

From the section of his report dealing with the funds in savings banks it appears that there are in the United States 6,666,612 individual depositors, with an aggregate accumulation of $2,763,577,000 on deposit. Taking the year 1896 as a point of comparison it appears that since that time there has been an increase in the number of depositors of 1,401,072, and an increase in the total deposits of $441,177,000.

This exhibit shows the remarkable increase in seven years of 26 per cent in depositors and 40 per cent in total deposits.

There is no dream about all those cold millions in the banks, mostly placed there by and belonging to working people.

The total deposits in all the banks amount to about $5,000,000,000, of which the savings fund, the money of the common people, make $2,750,000,000—more than half. Clearly, not all the money in the country is owned by the great financiers.

This showing of money saved by the working people of the country becomes all the more remarkable when we take into consideration the prevailing high prices. Wages have not gone up in proportion to the universal increase in prices. With only a little more money to buy with, labor pays far more for all the comforts of life. Yet the savings report shows that their share in the benefits of prosperity is no small one.

Another important fact is to be gleaned from this report. Of the $2,750,000,000 savings deposits the New England and Eastern States possess $2,300,000,000, leaving only $450,000,000—less than a sixth—for all the Central, Southern and Western States.

This proves not that the people of the Central Southern and Western states are making less money than those of the East, but that in their younger and more thriving condition they are more industrious in investment. Throughout the great West farms are being paid for, homes are being built, natural resources are being developed and new industries established.

None of this can appear in a report of the controller of the treasury. The savings thus invested are most important of all indeed—they furnish the foundation of the country's prosperity.—Grand Rapids Herald.

Infanticide?

In the National Republican platform of 1896 one domestic industry only, was made the subject of a final and specific pledge—namely, sugar industry, as follows:

"The Republican party favors protection as will lead to the production on American soil of all the sugar which the American people can use, and for which they pay either duties or bounties to foreign countries."

On the strength of that pledge the Republican party placed the protective schedule in the Dingley tariff law.

As the result of that union of promise and performance a child was born—Root sugar.

Is the father (the Republican party) about to strangle his seven-year-old child?

More Cotton in Their Ears.

It is not at all likely that any part of the country held by the Republican party will chance a repetition of the experience of the years between 1892-6. Whatever the Northwest contributed to the election of Mr. Cleveland was paid for in the comfort of the years that followed. It is eminently true that the conditions have changed, brought about by the protective tariff policy of the Republican party, which has spread ploughs, prosperity over the Northwest, as the rest of the country. All the Western States that ran amuck on Popism have returned to the Republican party, and it is not reasonable that they are now going to stand for Chevalier and other men who "has a double leaning toward tariff revision" not at this time, at any rate, if they refuse to interfere with the progress of Republican leaders, there would be well to stuff more cotton in their ears. Wheeling Intelligencer.

Sparrows in Tunis.

In France and, in fact, in most European countries, sparrows are commonly considered useful to the agriculturist on account of the quantities of caterpillars and other insects which they destroy.

In Tunis, however, this is not the case. There these little birds have been found to be so destructive to the crops that they are declared by the government to be "outlaws." The French government in Tunis has gone even further than this, and has issued proclamations to the effect that not only sparrows are destroyed by everyone, but that they must be exterminated under penalty of a fine in the case of those who neglect this public duty.

Varying Temperatures.

The sending up of self-registering instruments with kites at the Blue Hill observatory, near Boston, has shown that a temperature fifteen degrees in excess into the upper air would need a variety of clothing. If it chanced to be a normal summer day on the ground, with the temperature at 75 degrees F., yet the breeze blowing freshly at twenty miles an hour, he would need to take his furs and mittens, for by the time he had reached an elevation of 15,000 feet the thermometer would register nearly 40 degrees lower and the wind would be blowing a hurricane.

DR. SPINNEY will be at the Bartlett House, Charlevoix, Friday, February 19th, from 4 to 8 p. m.

The Farmer Is Satisfied.

The silent farmer of the exports seems to be giving considerable comfort to the free-traders, as they will come anything that will serve as an argument against the Dingley law. They do not note that the falling off is in agricultural products, while our exports of manufactures are increasing. High prices naturally have the tendency to check exports and increase imports, and exports of agricultural products will always fluctuate. But it is no argument against protection, when our farmers can market at home more easily all they produce and at profitable prices. The table of the prosperous American is loaded three times a day, and full stomachs—full dinner pails and full fuel bins—are full testimony to the efficacy of protection.

When to Revise the Tariff.

The fact is that the tariff will be revised when the people at the polls demand it, and not before.—New York Times.

Right, for once. That is precisely when, and only when, the tariff will be or should be revised. When the people, being tired of prosperity, or for any other reason satisfactory to themselves, want the tariff revised, reduced or removed, they will say so, and it will be done. But until that time comes, until the people have said so, the proper thing to do is to let the tariff alone.

Helpless Without a Tariff.

Here is a little lecture on protective tariff, from the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Post: "America attracts our skilled workmen by the larger wages that are possible under protection and men, year by year, a larger helping of the limited supply of potter's clay, and so a more prosperous industry is approaching starvation point. Having no tariff, we are helpless to check these processes." Higher wages and the development of home industries cause no complaint in the United States.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Original Blaine Idea.

Colonel Hepburn, the author of the Iowa delegation in Congress, delivered a speech before the Republican convention of Union county a few days ago that is attracting considerable attention. It was strong in its support of the Republican principle of protection, to strengthen, rather than weaken its provisions, and also was strong against competition reciprocity, or, in other words, reciprocity that would invite competitive goods. It is the original Blaine idea.—Vinton (Iowa) Eagle.

A Contrast.

Fully 85 per cent of the imports of the free-trade United Kingdom of Great Britain are food products or materials in various stages for use in industry. Contrast with the protection United States, which exports so largely of both!

How It Will Last.

The Springfield Republican reluctantly admits that protection has brought prosperity, but wonders if it will last. Yes, if we continue the protection and do not inject any reciprocity.

A Great Thanksgiving.

The next holiday will be Thanksgiving, and what a boundless Thanksgiving it will be if we return thanks for all the great multitude of blessings protection has brought to us.

An Effective Shield.

War in 1854, drought in 1901, strikes and slump in stocks in 1902, and yet protection enables us to weather them all without any apparent difference in our prosperity.

Needs a Free Trade Puncture?

The protection gas with fills the great prosperity balloon is too thick to escape through pin holes. It will need a free trade puncture to let it out.

Confidence.

The firm which is spending half a million dollars in advertising one brand of cigars evidently believes we are going to "stand pat" for a year or two longer.

Nine in Sight.

The free trade press is out of all patience with this unevenfing prosperity. There is not an argument against protection in sight.

Three Facts.

Fact No. 1. The price paid for sugar beets at factories on the Pacific coast has been reduced since the agitation for Cuban reciprocity began.

Fact No. 2. Not a single new factory for the production of beet sugar has been built on the Pacific coast since the agitation for Cuban reciprocity began.

Fact No. 3. The area planted to sugar beets on the Pacific coast has decreased since the agitation for Cuban reciprocity began.

The significance of these three facts in relation to the approval or rejection of the pending Cuban treaty should be obvious to Republican representatives in Congress.

The Hay Crop.

The American Agriculturist estimates the hay crop for 1902 at 57,836,000 tons. At $10 per ton the value would exceed $578,000,000, more than either the cotton or wheat crop. CHAPTER XXI.—(Continued.)

Beatrice again ventured on the street. Exhausted, almost fainting her nervous steps did not fail to attract the attention of the observant. Once more she ventured out lagging energy and timidity to seek a little warm sunshine. Mrs. Kenneth Lockington carriage, she believed, passed out and enter the mansion's sections. Mrs. Lockington made her appearance at the door of the box and beckoned as to the window of her chamber.

Beatrice had her fate in the cabinet her mind was the fair lady into the carriage, where she was soon enough gets out. She viewed the old Lorimer room which she had occupied and a few minutes ago so lonely and sorrowful and alone in the company of the gayest kind of a companionship and enthusiasm, she fell upon the bosom of the girl. "Oh, The expression of surprise is terrible!"

"Why, what is the matter, Miss Beatrice?" asked the lady, as she gently laid her hand on her shoulder.

"Oh, I am so happy—so happy!" sobbed Beatrice, as she lifted her head and looked into the face of her friend.

"Why, what has happened, Miss Beatrice?" asked the lady, with a little more anxiety and a little more sympathy than she had yet shown.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The Macedonia Village Council has condemned the opera house in that town.

Chalmers Curtis of Petoskey, cashier of the First National bank of that place, by a recent purchase of stock has become interested in Gel-Royne City State bank.

Central Lake Torch: Nelson Updegraove went out one day last week with a spear looking for big game and found what he went after. He brought home a mammoth suckerfish, which weighed 38 pounds.

The state editor of the Grand Rapids Press is led to remark, "Pine Boyne train young men say they saw a gigantic wild elk a few miles up Boyne river the other day. Whitmans that live young men in Boyne Falls ought to take the pledge."

East Jordan Enterprise: George Otis, of Grand Rapids, is in town this week and is arranging to open a business house here to handle harness, buggies, etc., adding a full designed harness shop for the manufacture of new and repair of other harness.

Boyne City has organized a Board of Trade which is being supported by practically every business man in town. The annual dues for individuals are $5, and for corporations $25 and upwards. The fund derived from the dues alone, if wisely expended will do much for the town.

Thirty-five cars loaded with potatoes left the Ann Arbor railway freight yards, Friday in Cadillac bound for Washington, Florida and Virginia—probably the largest potato crate and probably the largest single day's shipment of potatoes from any city in this section of Michigan in recent years.

The party that has been waiting at Ireland to cross to North Manitou Island have succeeded in crossing the ice on foot. The fact of their reaching the island in safety was signaled across by heliograph. Miss Emma DeLong, the school teacher on the island, was plucky enough to make the journey on foot with the men.

Manistee Herald: Sixty-nine years ago to-day the first white child was born in what is now the city of Battle Creek. The advent of that baby into the world created something of a stir in that locality and the localities came from miles away to see the "little white papoose." That child is a child no longer, but is now Manistee's honored mayor, the Hon. Hiram D. Hudson.

A heavy damage suit is starting the American Soo in the face. About one year ago the Fort Brady barracks burned, and the United States government decided that the failure to extinguish the blaze was due to inadequate fire protection. Hence, the loss of $65,000 has been presented in a bill to the city. The Soo council has disallowed the bill, and if the government pushes the claim the suit will be a long drawn out contention. When Uncle Sam becomes arrayed against a municipality, and hangs on, there's usually a long fought battle. The case will be watched with great interest.

Traverse City Eagle: Milton W. Newkirk, postmaster at Central Lake, and a member of the legal profession, died at the Northern Michigan Asylum this afternoon. Mr. Newkirk was brought to that institution about a week ago for treatment and his condition while there has been very pitiful. Mr. Newkirk leaves a wife and his aged parents to mourn his loss. Mr. Newkirk was comity clerk for eight years and was regarded as one of the brightest attorneys in Antrim county. He is well and favorably known throughout the county and his friends will regret to hear of his fatal death. Mrs. Newkirk has been an invalid a number of years and her bereavement will fall upon her with great force.

The Northport car ferry is showing its ability to go through any ice that may be encountered. One day last week the trip to Manistique, 70 miles, was made in 12 hours. The car ferry has six boilers. Four of these are in constant use, but two of them have never as yet been fired up, so that the power in reserve is just exactly one-half of that in use every day. The captain told a Record correspondent that he had power enough on the boat "to run her into a flue," he said, "no think that it would be impossible to break through, but so strong are my engines that they would force the boat ahead until her bows were crushed in, and they are built of the best steel." The captain said that if it weren't for the expense, splitting the ice on the bay and running starting and ice boating, that the boat would make a Saturday excursion to Traverse City, make a landing, tie up at the dock, discharge freight and passengers, and then return as easily almost as though it were summer time and there was no ice on the bay.

Central Lake and a disastrous fire Tuesday evening in which one of that local business blocks was entirely destroyed. The fire started about nine o'clock from an overheated chimney and in spite of the heroic efforts of the fire department, the building was soon enveloped in flames. The first floor was occupied by McFarland with a general store. The Knights of Pythias lodge rooms were on the second floor, the lodge being in session when the fire broke out. The loss is estimated at $10,000, being partially covered by insurance.

Cadillac News: Other towns in northern Michigan are being afflicted, in addition to snow drifts and a scarcity of wood, with fuel famines. In several towns wood prices have gone to three and four dollars a cord for dry beech and maple heating stove lengths, and green wood speculators are in the neighborhood of two and two and a half dollars. Dry beech and maple prices in Cadillac range around two dollars and the green speculators are and a half dollars. Not only are the prices reasonable in Cadillac, as compared with neighboring towns, but the supply is equal to the demand.

Traverse City Eagle: The train which was abandoned on the T. C. & St. Louis Wednesday night, stuck in a snow drift, was liberated yesterday by a relief train from this city. The relief train consisted of two engines, a caboose, a car of coal and a snow plow. Three hours' work was necessary before the imprisoned train could be reached, in the cuts west Keswick the drifts were as high as the tops of the coaches and were packed so hard that it was impossible for a person to kick a foothold in the banks, the section men having to dig foothold with their shovels to get out of the way of the snowplow. The resistance of the drifts was so great that five spikes in the driverheard on engine No. 45 were broken.

The G. R. & I. has been short on motive power for a long time past. In fact, it is said that at least 25 more locomotives are needed to properly handle the rapidly increasing freight business. As it is, the engines are not allowed to cool but as soon as one crew completes its day's work a fresh crew takes charge of the engine and the work moves right along. Locomotives need feed the same as human beings, but the supply this year they are getting on the G. R. & I., with the result that more of them are more or less disabled and are frequently seen limping into town when they ought to be in the south yard's hospital. But they are kept on the go, notwithstanding this sore condition makes it absolutely necessary to send them to the repair shop.

Michael Gray, the first white settler in what is now Traverse City, died Tuesday at his farm home in Whitewater township. He was aged 85 years and was one of the best known farmers in the county. Mr. Gray came to Traverse City in June, 1846, with Hiram Boardman, and assisted in building a little residence made of wooden blocks, the first house on the present site of the town. Mr. Boardman soon after built the first mill in the village. Mrs. Gray followed her husband in July, 1847, and their daughter Josephine, born in 1849, was the first white child in the region. She is now Mrs. Neil Munro, her husband being a prominent farmer of Whitewater township. Mrs. Gray died some years ago, after forty-seven years of married life. Four children survive.

Manistee Herald: The Herald learns that enough support has been pledged to farmers along the route to practically insure the building of the proposed line from Alden to Antrim and work on the same will be begun early in the spring. Some two years ago Arthur Williams, living near Central Lake, established a short line phone line of his own. He didn't go to the expense of setting poles and stringing wires, but bought a couple of cheap phones and strung a barbed wire fence for his line. From this small beginning has grown the Tri-State Day Telephone Company, with a line extending from the Norther district in Jordan township, to Central Lake, Eastport, Elk Rapids, Ingold City, Alden and Bellaire and connecting over 400 farmers subscribers en route. This line will be into Charlevoix in the spring and into East Jordan during the summer.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, bruise, insect sting or puncture has gone the death penalty. It is also to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Scalds, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c. at F. G. Hines & Co. Drug store.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The evening rehearsals of the Queen Esther Cantata are putting the finishing touches to the production. The costumes have been ordered from Detroit and the concert promises to be one of the best ever seen in Charlevoix.

The school buildings are not troubled any longer by frozen steam-pipes since arrangements have been made for keeping up steam all night so long as the cold weather continues.

The University of Michigan has expressed its willingness to send a visitor at some time "mutually convenient," with a view to continue the high school on the University list.

Mr. Arthur the janitor of the Washington and Lincoln schools, has graduated 25 polished specimens of wood native to Charlevoix and variously for use in nature study.

Strong Support.

"That Hon. A. B. Prescott will be renominated, if not unanimously, at least by a very large majority is generally believed by the working Republicans in nearly every county in the eleventh district. In Montmorenci county, Hon. A. L. Brown, of the Garden City Gazette, is a consistent advocate of abandoning the two terms farce in the eleventh congressional district. Four years ago he fought most strenuously for a third term for W. S. Mesick, today he is equally strong for the renomination of Hon. A. B. Darragh. Here is what he says:

"Hon. Geo. L. Covell, United States District Attorney, has announced his candidacy for congress from the eleventh congressional district. Mr. Covell is an able man and from a personal knowledge of his many good qualities the Gazette would rejoice in any political preferment that may come to him. But when in the attempt to stop this nonsense of killing off a Congressman every four years and putting in a new man! The good name of the republicans in this district will surely prevail sometime and why not now? A congressman can do but little for his state and nation in a term of two of four years. He just begins to get his acquaintance and only begin good work work that will, yet, by the time we turn him down. He is an element in congress only a moral force to be passed around among the good fellows of the party? Surely the leaders of the party in this district will not adopt such a view. Our present Congressman, Hon. A. B. Darragh, has done us credit so far and the Gazette sees no reason to stop his congressional career at this time."

We think all interested may rest assured that no change will be made, unless the department should see fit to do so, in spite of reality of making with its limits of proposed change. R. F. D. may be all right in some cases, but this is not one of them.

Mrs Dave Spaulding died at the residence of Frank Richardson Saturday evening and funeral service was held at the house on Monday. Deceased was a sister of Hamlet and Harmon Stafford, and was the youngest of a family of 12 children all of whom have passed away except one sister living in N. Y. Anna Ott, was born in Jessey county, N. Y. in 1826 moving from there to West Troy, in early life. She came to Norwood with her brother Daniel Stafford in 1856, and was married to Eugene Spaulding in 1877 or 8, who died a few years ago. She lived and died loved and respected by all.

Twelve degrees below zero is the coldest it has been for many days this winter. Some other places in the village it has gone to 24 below. There has been half a dozen winters since 1856, that the mercury has been lower than this, and twice it has gone to 24 below even at Norwood, and it was 22 to 40 below all over the state, at that time. Yesterday of 1872, was much cooler than even this cold January reaching 24 below even here and a number of days in succession running from 16 to 20. But this winter has been a record breaker in one respect. Snow came about the 17th of November, and it has persistently enough for snow to pass the store. So the average would be low. We have also had several winters in which the snow was deeper than this.

COLLEGE WILL CLOSE.

TRUSTEES OF ALBERT LEA INSTITUTION GIVE UP.

High Grade School Started by Prohibitionists Is Forced Into Bankruptcy by Competition—Business Has Proved to Be Heir to $100,000 Fortune.

A year ago it was generally the opinion of Albert Lea people that the Methodists had taken good care of their interests in the location of the Institution. The dollars are estimated to number about $100,000. Now, Bishop Kingsley has started another proceeding for the sale of the property in the Ninth Judicial District, without, they say, consulting some of people in the western part of the Upper Peninsula building and the entire equipment for the college work. The college had an endowment of $60,000 that they will probably revert when the institution is permanently closed. The college was operated financially differently when it was in the hands of the Methodists. In the last year the people of the city got up the money to keep it open. The college was high grade, and when it opened was had the best teachers obtainable. The college was established by the Methodists soon after the Civil War, in the same building it now occupies. Two years later Mac-Master was established, and while the latter has had its ups and downs, the College was for years. After a few years MacMaster became a Methodist institution, was conducted and has controlled the sough local of Albert Lea.

BUTTER AT HIGH PRICE.

Average 33 1-2 Cents a Pound During Year 1903.

The Minnesota dairy commissioner in his report of the dairy interest of Dodge county, Minnesota, for 1903, shows that 11 factories have manufactured butter in creamery form, producing for the entire year, during 1903, the creamery butter product of 1,000,000 pounds, which, at an average price of 33 1-2 cents per pound, gives a total product of $330,000 in creamery butter. Dodge county is the 11th in the state in butter production, and the 11 factories in that county are the 11 largest creameries in the state. The average price of butter was 33 1-2 cents per pound. Dodge county produces annually an 11-cent load of butter 27 cars to the 11 factories, which are the largest creameries, perhaps, in the state. The average price of butter was 33 1-2 cents per pound, and the average number of employes was 11, 1,000,000 pounds

HEAVY TAX BURDEN

PERE MARQUETTE AVERS ONE IS LAID ON IT.

LEVY THIS YEAR AMOUNTS TO 7 PER CENT GROSS.

METHODS OF ASSESSORS CLAIM TO BE UNFAIR.

ARRIVE AT VALUE ON THEORY OF COST TO REPRODUCE.

Strong Protest on Part of Counsel F. W. Stevens.

From the Detroit Free Press.

When the state tax commission made its last assessment of railroad property and increased the total valuation by over $20,000,000 the road that was given the biggest share of the increase was the Pere Marquette, being jumped, in round number, from $26,000,000 to $37,000,000, an addition of $11,000,000. The Pere Marquette, like other roads in Michigan, is fighting in the United States courts the law under which railroads are taxed on the value of their property, and they are paying only such amounts as would have been assessed against them under the old assessing them on earnings. Nevertheless they may some time—when the courts decide the question—have to pay taxes under the new law, and they would then have a very pretty sum to turn into the state's coffers.

The Pere Marquette people feel that they are particular hard hit, and their officials say they are being treated unjustly, with the prediction that if the policy of the present tax commission is followed it will hurt the business interests of the state.

Frederick W. Stevens, general counsel of the Pere Marquette, in talking about the situation yesterday said:

Excessive Taxation.

"The general public does not understand how the railroads of Michigan are being treated in the matter of taxation. Public sentiment will not sustain the high assessments recently made for the method of reaching values, when the facts become known, for public sentiment when well informed, is just and fair. If the assessment for 1903 against the Pere Marquette is sustained, the road will have to pay more than $634,000. In addition to the sum it has already paid, for 1903, over $195,000 taxes on property assessed locally in cities and villages, on the ground that it is used for railroad purposes.

"It is now obliged to pay a further large sum on account of state taxes against the depot property in Detroit, as to which there is a separate assessment by the state board against the two companies which own the Detroit terminals, and the taxes against these companies as fixed by the state board will amount to over $50,000 for 1903, of which the Pere Marquette now pays its proportion as between it and the Wabash. In short, the Pere Marquette is assessed by the state board and by local assessors in such a manner that its total state taxes for the year 1903 alone, amounted to upwards of $670,000, which is practically 7 per cent of its entire gross earnings for Michigan. Mind you, its gross earnings from all sources, and its net earnings.

"I do not believe that any fair-minded citizen considers that the Pere Marquette is justly chargeable with any such taxes, nor that any one can fail to see that it necessarily restricts the company in the improvement of its property and its service and the extension of its lines in Michigan, and it is certain that capital will consider long and well before it builds more railroads in Michigan so long as there is a prospect of such excessive taxation.

An Unequal Burden.

"Are not railroads assessed in the same way as other property? Mr. Stevens was asked.

"No sir. The city that resulted in the enactment of the present law in 1901 was 'Equal taxation.' It is said: 'Let railroad property be assessed and taxed like other property.' But instead of equal taxation we have unequal taxation; and instead of railroad property being assessed and taxed like other property, it appears that it is assessed and taxed on a basis entirely different from that followed, and at a higher rate than levied, in the case of other property.

"In 1901, under authority of the state, Prof. Cooley, with the aid of skilled men, made an exhaustive detailed examination of all the railroad property in Michigan, and valued it on the basis of the cost of reproduction, including right of way, station grounds, yards, grading, embankments, bridges, culverts, ties, rails, station buildings, shops, tools, rolling stock and everything in the way of tangible property nothing was omitted and additions were made to cover all possible elements of cost of reproduction. In the case of the Pere Marquette this method resulted in a total of a little over $28,000,000, and we were able to satisfy the board of assessors a year ago that in some respects that valuation was high.

Methods of Assessment.

"Now, what would the manufacturing and business interests of the state say if their property were assessed on this basis. Suppose the assessors should employ a force of men to go to each business institution and take an inventory of every article and structure and value everything on the basis of the cost of reproduction, and assess taxes on the valuation. I appeal that there would soon be such a public sentiment created by that course as to bring about legislative relief very quickly. But the board of assessors for the year last valued the Pere Marquette as over $37,000,000, and if we allow for the small calculation to our line during the past year and the additional equipment purchased, it follows that, on some theory, several millions of dollars have been added to the valuation fixed by the extraordinary detailed method which I have mention. We are not informed as to the method by which this last valuation is reached. The state board is not required to state its method, but it seems clear that it must have been by following some method not followed in the case of any other class of property.

"Although it is now acknowledged that assessments indicate that the board must have adopted the so called net earnings theory, that is, capitalizing at some arbitrary rate the net earnings of the railroad and calling that the value of the property, which is an income tax, not a property tax. Does anyone know of any such method being followed in the case of private property? Has any manufacturer or merchant been asked to produce his books or to disclose how much he has made in a given year? Has the property of any manufacturer or merchant been assessed by capitalizing the earnings of the last year? The constitution of the state provides for uniformity in taxation, yet railroad property is now assessed on a plan materially different from that followed in assessing private property.

More Money Raised Than Needed.

"And what are the results of it all. The railroads are asked to pay into the primary school fund a total of $1,000,000 in taxes for 1903, and, if I am correctly informed, many of the school districts of the state already have more school funds than are needed to meet the ordinary obligations of the district and are loaning their funds. Does any one feel that its taxes are any less on account of this new method of railroad taxation? I have not found that any one recognizes any such relief.

"The system adopted in 1901 is peculiar in its operation that if, for example, a municipality in the upper peninsula decides to build a court house, a school house, a bridge or any other public structure, it increases the taxes of every railroad company in the state, wherever its railroad may be situated, whether its line enters the upper peninsula or not, and there is no provision in the law, according to the decision in the Detroit school board case, whereby the rate of taxation applied to railroad property may be equalized.

"Now, in what I have said I do not wish to be understood as questioning the good faith of the members of the state board of assessors. Nevertheless, I believe that their assessment of the Pere Marquette is grossly excessive, and on a basis that violates the spirit of the constitutional provision as to uniformity of taxation and that the result is unjust to the Pere Marquette and harmful to the business interests of Michigan with which it is so closely connected and that sooner or later public sentiment will demand a modification of the law so as to bring about more moderate results."

CACTUS LIKE A PORCUPINE.

Wild Cattle Eat Razor-like Spines With Seeming Unmitted Mouths.

The most novel species in America is the cholla, pace Amazon Lily in America. Two Mexicans say that if you see a cholla bear it will jump at you. Certainly if you touch one it will stick, and when you try to free yourself it will pierce your other hand as well. Each pointed tuber seems to reach out for the passing, and the ground beneath the broad cholla trees is strewn with lathe-like insets, many of which take root and grow.

After one has felt the sharp spines through heavy boots and even thick textile gloves, it is a source of continual wonder to see the wild cattle of Arizona quietly browsing on cholla. The phrase "tender feet" as applied to Arizona, is not a figure of speech. During the years of drought thousands of cattle died themselves over until the last grass by eating cholla. With their leathery tongues and lips they strip the jump joints from the trunk and leave the bare spreading cactus whole and woody skeleton. It is only the range cattle, whose mouths have been hardened in the thorny mesquite and tornacord browse, who will undertake to eat cactus, and cattlemen, therefore, often turn the thorns from cholla and sopaln in order to permit their more fastidious animals to eat.

A Slight Consolation.

Wright Lorimer, who plays in "The Shepherd King," tells this story of his experience abroad:

"I was speaking a few days in Strathaven, Scotland, and at the inn where I was stopping there an oil painting was being prepared for a visit to the United States. Naturally enough they questioned me at some length about the trip, and the old gentleman was anxious to know if it was very dangerous to cross the ocean. I assured him that it was not at all hazardous, although it was often very rough. His sister listened intently, and then remarked with a sigh of consolation:

"'Aweel, aweel it's been a wet dry summer, and I think the sea'll no be very deep.'"—New York Times.

A merry company assembled at Gen. Raymond's residence. Everybody felt happy and united in love and forgiveness. Victor was in sunshine with his patients and friends on a furlough of six weeks. Harold Raymond had only recently discovered his brother's new abode. His argument in a letter his deep sorrow at having been separated from him, and congratulations his upon the glorious achievements of his sire. This letter was handed to the old general at breakfast, and was silently read by all present.

"Do you intend to answer?" asked Victor.

"I shall only render my thanks in a few lines."

Although the general's letter was neither unfriendly nor reproachful, Harold Raymond was painfully silenced by its calm tone. He felt that it would be small honor fully retrieve in his replacing of his sire, that he was still duly bound to seek his brother and control his baser nature, and that those so kind the pleasure given him were encouragement. Thus they remained estranged.

Victor and Edith continued on friendly relations they seemed to be inseparable, rode, walked or drove together, and yet their mutual relatives fancied there to exercised—anything than to become betrothed or married lovers. Nevertheless Victor never once called such a thought, and did not believe Edith enjoyed the beauty and grace with which he was surrounded. Yet he was blind to the old general's anxiety

CHAMBERLAIN'S POWERFUL ARGUMENT AT CARDIFF.

Upon the Consuming Capacity of Their Own People All Producing Countries Must Mainly Depend for General and Permanent Prosperity.

Among the speeches delivering Joseph Chamberlain in his campaign for protection in Great Britain that of Nov. 29 at Cardiff is one of the ablest and most interesting he has made upward was so impressive that it is from its pithy statement that a country must mainly depend for substantial and enduring prosperity. In this he dwelt on the necessity of the home market, pointing out that a war of 20 years duration to find a market for our goods would be a disastrous thing. The consumers of our goods are our own people. The home market is the best market we have. The home market is the market that should be secured for our own people. If we can secure the home market for our own people we can afford to compete in the world for the trade of the foreigner. The home market is the market we have to secure for our own people. We

"Perhaps they have each other," remarks Bobbie, sympathetically. "Edith you know, is extremely fine looking. Have I hope for my country, Miss Hazlitt? You said Edith."

No, the resemblance was remote. She also had the thought for night, and was a successful operator. Therefore, I did not concern myself with her. She is tall and graceful, with a pleasant face, and a remarkable, rangy disposition at her side.

"Edith will make a splendid companion, perhaps." Mr. Tobias, who was a man of few words, had spoken at last. "Edith is a good girl."

"Edith will make a splendid one." she echoed, pensively. "Mr. Tobias, do you think I can be excused for the rest of the hour?"

"Yes. I do not know whether Miss Stanwood is fond of dancing, however, I can answer in her behalf."

"Oh, no, indeed, Edith! I am sure she would not care to be bothered."

"Nonsense! I will inform her." Jerkily. "I will inform her." Mr. Tobias spoke. "Miss Hazlitt, I am a successful man. I am a successful man, and I am a successful man."

"Yes, I know it." Mr. Tobias, who was a man of few words, was unable to find a fitting response to this remark. "

CANADA AND AMERICA

WHAT CHAMBERLAIN'S TARIFF MEANS.

It is In Our Power, by a Reciprocity Treaty, to Secure the Canadian Markets—Worth Prompt and Serious Thought.

"Mr. Chamberlain's scheme," President Schurman, of Cornell told the New York Manufacturers' association, "would inevitably reduce the volume of agricultural products now sent to Great Britain, and the volume of manufactured products now sent to Canada and other British colonies."

That such would be the effect of Mr. Chamberlain's policy there can be no doubt. Mr. Chamberlain's plan is to enlarge and make more loyally self-sufficient the British imperial industrial plant. To do this he must force greater food supplies from within the British empire. This he proposes to do by giving British colonial agriculture a tariff preference in the British market, thus stimulating its extension.

Then he proposes to protect British manufactures at home by a tariff on foreign manufactures. With the home market thus secured, British manufacturing will be strengthened for competition abroad, and especially in the colonies. Canada has already given British manufactures a tariff preference. With a reciprocal preference for her agriculture she would animate the preference, and perhaps increase it, while British consumers would begin to feel the stimulus of a tariff preference. The result would be curtailment of American exports of both agricultural and manufactured products to the British empire.

It is true that the success of this plan involves a sacrifice by Canada of her aspirations to economic independence. If the scheme of Mr. Chamberlain succeeds

County of Charlevoix.

The Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

In the matter of the petition of Perry F. Powers, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of the State of Michigan, for the sale of certain lands in said county delinquent for taxes.

This cause coming on to be heard on the petition of the Auditor General of the State of Michigan, praying that a decree be entered in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land hereinafter described, for the amount of taxes, fees, and costs thereon to be due for taxes, as the same appear from the records in the office of the Auditor General, and from the records in the office of the Treasurer of the State of Michigan, to be delinquent in said County of Charlevoix, for the year or years hereinafter set forth, and for the sale of said lands and premises, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay said taxes, fees and costs, and the expenses of this suit, and for such other and further relief as the nature of the case requires, and the court shall deem just and equitable in the premises, and it appearing to the court that the Auditor General, by his petition, has made all the parties who have or may have an interest in said lands, or who may have an interest in the taxes thereon, or who may be affected by the decree herein, or who may be affected by the sale of said lands for said taxes, or who may be affected by the application of the petitioner for a decree of sale of said lands for said taxes, parties to this suit, and that the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is the proper court to decree the sale of said lands for said taxes, and that the Treasurer of said County of Charlevoix is the proper officer to execute such decree of sale, and that the Treasurer of said County of Charlevoix is the proper officer to execute such deeds as may be made in consequence of the sale of said lands for said taxes, and that the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is the proper court to confirm such sales, and to order the execution of deeds to purchasers, and to do all other and further things in the premises necessary to carry into effect the decree which may be made in this cause, and it appearing to the court that the Auditor General has made and filed in this cause his certificate, showing the amount of taxes, fees and costs upon each parcel of land hereinafter described, and that the same have remained wholly unpaid for the space of three years next after the same became a lien upon said lands, and that the same are now wholly unpaid, and that the amount of said taxes, fees and costs upon each parcel of said land, as shown by said certificate, is a lawful charge against

KEEP UP COAL PRICES.

NO DISCOUNT FROM LIST PRICE FOR THIS SUMMER.

Operators Find Consumers Entitled to Concession such Put Large Stocks in Store. Demand of Coal Monopoly Must Be Segregated or Chicago Schools.

A different ruling from that followed during the last two years in the matter of discounts to be allowed on the price of coal to consumers in Chicago is expected to be made by the coal operators in Central Illinois, in view of the fact that the demand for coal for the coming year promises to be much greater than for the past two years. The operators have been thinking that the concessions granted the consumers under the ruling in force during the last two years were too generous, and that they should be more conservative in the matter of discounts for the coming year. They claimed that they were forced into the ruling, however, and were not the ones who made the concessions. It was the action of the coal dealers in cutting down the price of coal to the consumers, which forced the operators to make the concessions. The dealers, however, made the cut in price on their own initiative, and the operators were not consulted in the matter. The dealers, however, made the cut in price because they were forced into it by the action of the coal monopoly in Chicago, which was the result of the action of the Chicago Board of Education in refusing to pay the price for coal which the monopoly had been charging the public schools. The board of education had been paying $4.75 a ton for coal, while the monopoly was selling the same coal to other consumers for $4.50 a ton. The board of education refused to pay the $4.75 a ton for coal, and the dealers in Chicago, who were not in the monopoly, began to cut the price to the consumers, in order that they might be able to compete with the monopoly. The dealers were able to do this because they had been buying their coal from the operators in Central Illinois at a price much lower than the price they were paying the Chicago coal monopoly for the same coal. The operators in Central Illinois have been selling coal to the Chicago coal monopoly at a price much lower than the price at which the coal has been sold to other consumers in Chicago, because they have been compelled to do so in order to keep the Chicago coal monopoly from importing coal from other fields to compete with the Illinois coal in the Chicago market. Republican Caucus.

A Republican caucus for the village of Charlevoix, Charlevoix county, Michigan, will be held in the court room of the Court house in said village, on Monday, the 7th, day of March, at 7:30 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of nominating candidates for the several village offices, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before said caucus.

Charlevoix County and Darragh.

Not only Charlevoix but Charlevoix county has the only government harbor in the 11th Congressional district. Charlevoix county has no public interest that approaches, in importance, to harbor. Its shipping interests are its chief commercial asset.

It goes without saying that Mr. Darragh can do more for our harbor than can a new man. He has familiarized himself with its needs and has an influence that no man can acquire in less that term. Our harbor interests demand that Mr. Darragh shall remain in Congress.

Another matter, this of only second to harbor interests in the border is land cable project. Cable primarily, the cable will be for weather bureau purposes, secondarily it establishes telephone communication between the main land and Beaver Island, which is now rapidly developing porkers of Charlevoix county. It will be of great advantage to both the main land and the island.

If Mr. Darragh succeeds in passing the bill this session of Congress, we owe it to him to send a Darragh delegation to the convention. If he fails this session, we certainly want him here to finish the work.

Mr. Darragh is competent in his work at Washington, and has been faithful to the interests of his district.

It is certainly for the interests of Charlevoix county that Mr. Darragh succeed himself.

Our Local Company.

And that the old Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Charlevoix, limited, and Cheboygan Counties, whose policies now stand for the value of more than $4,500,000.00.

During the year 1903 there were 539 new risks taken, aggregating $[illegible] 77,000 of good, clean, free stock, which represents a good-sized company of itself.

Of the above number of new members there were 120 taken from a company called the Chinese Insurance Company, and very many more from the same company joined the "Farmers Mutual Fire Ins. Co." (Limited.)

Note.—The said Chinese Company in the statement just issued for the year 1903, defined to have taken 24 new risks, and to have cancelled 86 Chinamen in insurance.

The old Farmers' Mutual will be seventeen years old in December, 1904, and is today one of the very best mutual fire insurance companies doing business in the state.

The free policy written, July 25, 1903 (the date of commencement of the reorganization of the company) was numbered 3,256. The last one is numbered 3,299—a fairly healthy increase, for a period of less than nine years.

On the 15th day of April, 1903, at the adjourned annual meeting of the stockholders of this company, their Charter was amended, by the unanimous vote of all the stockholders present.

On the 9th day of May, 1903, the amended Charter was received at this office, having been approved by the Attorney General and State Commissioner of Insurance, since which time all new risks taken, as also those previously held by the company are written at three fourths of the actual cash value of the property insured, which amount is paid in full for total loss.

Partial loss on buildings to the amount of $50 or less is paid at the full actual cash value of such loss.

On threshed grain and seeds the actual market value is paid in full, less cost of transportation, if any.

On all other personal property three fourths of the actual cash value is paid for any and all losses by fire or lightning up to the full amount of such insurance.

Live stock is insured against loss or damage by fire or lightning anywhere in Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan Counties.

The new policies are now being issued as fast as the work can be done.

Those wishing to join a good, strong, healthy and live insurance company, that is doing its business in a safe, up-to-date and manly way, will, come, compare the facts between us, cash, and also examine the amended Charter of this company with that of any other company, doing or seeking to do business in the same territory, and they will then be better able to judge fairly and intelligently of the individual merits of each, and to know their risks where the business and safest protection is guaranteed.

In the Mackinaw straits now 26 inches of the solid ice covers the water in addition to the wind rows of the rough ice that has been washed up. In view of the correct through the straights this is very unusual and marks a late opening for navigation.

Central Lake News: The Wilson and Rivers families left for Georgia Monday morning. If it were not for the fact that we expect their good people to soon see the error of their ways and return to Central Lake we should feel grieved to see them go, for they are just the kind of people that are a benefit to the community in which they reside.

Four thousand acres of seed peas and 1,200 acres of beans, cabbages, squash, pumpkins and cucumbers have been contracted among the farmers about Traverse City by the Cooper for the Jerome B. Rice Seed Company of Detroit. Mr Cooper has just recently returned from the west, where he has been making contracts in Oklahoma for watermelon seed, farms for melon seed, Colorado for cucumbers.

Traverse City Record: The body of Joe Aney, an Indian whose home is at Peshabatown, was found frozen to death yesterday afternoon by Daffy Martineau and Phillip Rasch, two boys aged 10 and 11 years respectively, while they were returning home from school. He was found on the farm of Peter Lavigne, about six miles south of the city and one mile from the Brimley school house.

Bellaire Independent: Elsewhere in this issue will be found an election notice which every tax payer should read. It provides for the raising of $20,000 by a tax, spread upon the taxable property of this county for the purpose of building a new court house. The county now has some $4,000 on hand and if this money is voted we will have $24,000, for the purpose specified. It is proposed to raise $5,000 a year for five years, commencing with 1904.

Petoskey News: Andrew Foley, father of Mrs. Samuel Wilson and John Foley of this city, died at one o'clock this morning at his home in Mrs Wilson at the age of 79 years, 4 months and 25 days. For many years Mr. Foley has been a respected citizen of the city and well known to a large number of Petoskey people who will regret to learn of his death. Mr. Foley's death will be mourned by six children, Mrs Frederick Wilson and John Foley of this city, Reuben F. Foley of Alma, W. A. Foley and Edward Foley of Chicago Heights, and Miss Mary Foley of Macatawa, all of whom are expected to be here for the funeral services, with the exception of R. F. Foley of Alma.

Petoskey News: Yesterday's News editorial relative to the situation in the Litchfield-Stevens Lumber Co. matter has created considerable interest, and there has been considerable comment. The News cried slightly, but unintentionally, in saying that Cobb & Mitchell held an option on the property. What the Cadillac firm did do was to make an offer for the property. This, however, does not change the situation in the least. The fact remains that if Cobb & Mitchell make an offer which is accepted by the court the will be the buyers, and a loss of thousands of dollars will be Emmet county's portion. Receiver Jay H. Miller is in charge, and the operations are being conducted as heretofore. Just how long this will continue is not determinable, as can be seen from the following abstract of Judge Shepard's order appointing Mr Miller receiver, now on file at the office of the county clerk. In which receiver Miller is empowered. To take charge of and manage the affairs of the company until the further order of the court. Not to contract any new liability without first providing funds of court. To raise funds to operate the saw mill, and to deliver the logs necessary to be cut at the present winter. To operate the business until sold or otherwise disposed of. To pay taxes owing by the company. To use all diligence in collecting all the assets of the property, and report same to court.

Republican State Convention.

The Republican State convention is called for Wednesday, May 18th, at Grand Rapids.

In accordance with the resolutions of 1876 and 1880, every county will be entitled to one delegate for each five hundred of the total vote cast therein for Governor at the last election in the Presidential year (November, 1900), and one additional delegate for every fraction amounting to three hundred, each organized county being entitled to at least two delegates.

Charlevoix county is entitled to six delegates.

ROCKET SPOILED THE SCENE.

Result of Leading Lady's Insisting on Limelight.

The lady who was to star Juliet at the little provincial theater had insisted on insisting "not slow" there was no apparent on the premises then a happy thought struck the manager. He would procure a ship's blue light.

And it would have done equally well, no doubt, had not the careless crap chandler given the lad from the theater a signal error by substituting "The prompter did not notice the difference, and when Romeo cried "Ye fleets at stars who never feel a wound," and Juliet appeared, the great gas streaks a satire.

Romeo (exultingly) "But, soft, what light through yonder window breaks?" (This was the match lighting the fuse.) "Arise, fair sun!"

The fuse—or rather the rocket—did rise, with a terrific hiss.

Juliet was knocked off the balcony, the fly borders were set on fire, and the audience had fitted with powder, while the audience, which was forty-seven a small one, made a stampede for the door.

Since then "Romeo and Juliet" has always been looked upon in that town as a dramatic work that could not be witnessed without caution.

Better Left Unsaid.

Dr. W. J. Tolmie of the institute of Social Science tells this story of an incident that befell him during his recent trip abroad.

"I was invited to a dinner in London and my hostess introduced me to take a certain lady to the table. There was a woman there whose husband, a somewhat noted man, had recently left for India. I thought this one was my partner.

"After we were seated I started in on the weather as a safe icebreaker.

"'Been a very mild winter,' I remarked affably.

"This respond to the effort that it had been too hot to suit her.

"'Yes,' said I, musingly, 'but it doesn't looks with the place where your husband has gone.'

"She looked astonished and offended. Afterward I learned she was a widow."—New York Times.

—A cable to Beaver Island will work wonders for the land across the water. Heavy boats bring of great lumber to shipping interests, it will increase by a bound the desirability of the Island as a summer resort. The chief objection to the Island as a resort has been the absence of any telephone or telegraph communication with the main land. When that is secured, we may expect to see cottages build, and a big revival of resort business there. There is no more beautiful spot on the chain of lakes than Beaver Island.

—The Charlevoix band has made a financial statement showing liabilities embracing rent, music and instruments of $295. It was to her father that Lenora confided her story. Mrs Trueblood, meanwhile, has been taken to a daughter's home in Windsor today. Trueblood has a good reputation in the neighborhood.

—A St Louis special says: The Supreme Court of Missouri today handed down a decision construing that of Judge Woods in an important pending suit (suit vs. St. Louis in which the Warren Brothers Company of Boston is largely interested. The decision, which is by the highest tribunal in the state, confirms the legality of contracts aggregating about $1,000,000 for the Warren municipal pavement, in accordance with petitions of taxpayers on 15 streets, including several of the principal boulevards leading to the exposition grounds. The against trust, through the plaintiff, W. H. Swift, contested the legality of the contract the specifications for which called for the "Warren" patented bitulithic or its equivalent meaning pavement. The decision is a signal victory for the Warrens, and confirms Judge Woods in the position, which held that the authorities in the interest of the public are not bound to wait until a patent has expired, so that competition may be secured, but may in the exercise of the legislative discretion, for the benefit of the public, select the patented article."

The Beaver Island Cable.

On the 8th Representative Darragh introduced a bill entitled "A bill to establish seven weather stations at St. James, Beaver Island, Mich." The bill was referred to the committee on Commerce and Foreign Commerce, and ordered printed.

On Tuesday morning Mr. Darragh received a favorable report from the committee, and the bill stands a good chance of passage in its order.

The bill appropriates $20,000 for cable and signal stations.

A Mountain Climb in Charlevoix County.

To The Editor:

For all who have not grasped the significance of the epithet of Charlevoix "the beautiful" an ascent of Mount McSauba at this time of snow and ice is recommended by two gentlemen who climbed it on 28th of February.

The ascent was made from the Lake Michigan side and was if not perilous, yet trying to no small extent, and so was the descent on the eastern slope and the subsequent walk of a mile to the nearest road.

There is a low ridge from the lake shore, as many know, from their summer excursions, leading directly towards the mount. But as this were no snake whatever to discover this special ridge from other parallel ones, it took some vain efforts in the three feet deep snow to find the right.

Finally this was struck, and after the cumbersome overcoats had been taken off and placed across the shoulder, the ascent was begun. Every step became marked by three feet deep holes in the snow and frequent halts had to be resorted to on the steep and narrow ridge to catch breath.

At last the top was reached and with a spontaneous reward for the efforts of the last hour. In the first place there was a twilight atmosphere in an atmosphere so pure and transparent that nothing but the remotest hills on the one hand and the big islands of Lake Michigan could intercept the view. A panorama of indescribable beauty in the chaste colors of white and dark, softly illumined by the rays of a farewell winter afternoon sun, stretched from the hills beyond Little Traverse Bay to those of Banks township, from the dark sloped of the Boyne river valley, in the east, to the dim lines of Beaver and Fox islands in the west. Petoskey and Harbor Springs partly covered by the curves of the bay, partly by the tops of trees in the one of view were seen in the horizon. Boyne City far across Pine lake could only be imagined from a darker line in the air, and human dwellings on the Beaver and Fox islands were wholly lost to visible precepition. The lakes deceive the eye by a seeming ripple of their one frozen surface, and bring effects from the groves, the farm houses, from the lower hills and from dear old Charlevoix in the deep blend with the green of the place and the magic white mantle of winter's enamelledness to a picture that the eye is not competent enough to interpret in all its meaning.

The decline of the east side is very steep, as every one knows but one who has filled coat and shoes with an half a bushel of snow. Mount McSauba afforded in the memorable winter trip, a will never and the recollect of working hard to get himself home with an experience never to be forgotten.

Quickly she entered the room where Victor was engaging a quiet, refreshing sleep. Reclining with little in his bed, clasping her hands as expressive of regret pretty and happiness, stood on their fairness. Even the last shadow of a doubt came to rest the suffering lover. Heaven was innocent as ever what had happened. HER approached the girl kissed her fondness and intended to withdraw when Victor turned and raised her large form upon. Both were united again.

When Victor returned its companion, Mrs. Haskell, he was pleased that he had seen Beatrice kneeling at the side of the bed. Her arms embraced him and words of forever have come from her lips.

"Victor, Victor! I am yours! I love you! I love you! I love you! I love you!"

"Yes, Victor, I am yours! I love you! I love you! I love you! I love you!"

"Then suppose the time of your engagement should be shortened? Suppose I ask you to be my wife? Suppose I ask you to be my wife? Suppose I ask you to be my wife?

EFFECT OF CANADIAN RECIPROCITY UPON OUR AGRICULTURE

Would Free Access to The Market Give Competition of Cheaper Wheat Grown on the Northwest Would Drive American Farmers Out of Business.

The cost of transportation from Montreal to Liverpool is no more greater than that of fare from the Western Dakotas states to the same port that there is no need to expect low. That is why Canadians are asking for reciprocity. It is not to benefit American miners or any people but to aid Canadian farmers. Manitoba wheat, Canadian grain because it can buy it cheaper than Americans, and message it will cost to ship it to Liverpool competition. If reciprocity is Manitoba could sell their wheat in American markets, take it cheaper to Montreal ports and ship it to Liverpool in competition with Minnesota, Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas are selling their wheat in Montreal ports across the ocean. Why buy in the Saskatchewan Valley land at old and prices superior to our fairly have left in the United States. They could buy with cheaper and experience. With the Russian they form the backbone of the European market.

Between the barrier between the two countries is gone for the benefit of Canadian farmers, and we shall see the Canadian Pacific by hundreds of thousands selling out and moving into Canada. Without these markets and the supply of grain becoming larger than ever was prices getting lower so as to allow shippers a chance to do business at a profit the inducements for American farmers to become Canadian settlers will soon disappear. Reciprocity simply means the building and enriching of a foreign land at the expense of our own.

As to the Minneapolis millers, there is no doubt of their business going prime and selling a game for their own benefit. With a free market for their products of 80,000,000 of people instead of 70,000,000 of people they can afford to ship their flour and feed to the Canadian farmers for their use. The Canadian farmers will soon disappear, Reciprocity simply means the building and enriching of a foreign land at the expense of our own.

Those in another point of view to this question. The Canadian Northwest is an immense territory in which wheat could be grown to supply the whole world's requirements, but it could not compete in the time and distance in the United States and Canada. Time is very much in the business world. Time has become so valuable that people are willing to pay a premium for the saving of time. For instance, people in Liverpool and the middle states in the great and fertile Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas are willing to pay a premium for the saving of time. The Canadian Northwest comes in which the Canadian Northwest could not compete in the same market with the Dakotas and other spring wheat growing or cannot them to produce it to a price which would serve their own profit.

Those on the eastern stands over the great lands of the Canadian Northwest are attractive. American farmers who will out on the sale of land and come over to obtain cheaper land and better taxation with the home that when reciprocity comes they will have the same markets to sell in as they have had remained in the United States. Take the following extracts from the Toronto Mail and Empire as to reciprocity to the Canadian Northwest and the question of reciprocity taken on its merits of foreign phase:

SUPPLEMENT TO

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, MARCH 10, 1904.

ANNUAL TAX SALE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, In County of Charlevoix.

The Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

In the matter of the petition of Perry F. Powers, auditor general of the State of Michigan, for sale of the lands delinquent for the taxes of 1902.

On reading and filing the petition of the Auditor General of the State of Michigan, praying for a decree of this court for the sale of the lands and premises therein specified and delinquent for the amounts therein specified for the taxes of the year 1902, and the affidavit of service on each town, parcel of land and tract, and that such lands as will be sold for taxes and charges, thereon as may be found necessary to be sold, be sold at the usual place of holding tax sales in the village of Charlevoix, in said county, on the second Monday in May next, being the 9th day of said month, and that said sale be made by the treasurer of said county, and that the notice of said sale be given by the said treasurer of said county, in the manner and for the time provided by the laws of the State of Michigan, and that the said treasurer do and perform all the duties required of him by the laws of the State of Michigan, and that the said lands be sold free and clear of all other taxes and assessments accrued or to accrue, and that the said purchaser be put in possession of the premises purchased by him, and that the said purchaser pay the purchase money, and the fees of the officers, and the expense of the sale, and the charges thereon on the day of the sale, and that the said treasurer do and perform all the duties required of him by the laws of the State of Michigan, and that the said lands be sold subject to the rights of redemption

DRIVEN TO SUICIDE.

REVERSES FOR WIDOW OF ROOT'S FORMER PARTNER.

Fortune of HELENA Sweet Away in Ill Advised Speculation—Rich Lost by Collapse of Wool Stock Was Wiped Out—Suicide.

A fortune of HELENA Sweet swept away in ill advised speculation, her home sold over her head, and a suicide's grave as the final scene in the tragedy, is the story of Mrs. Marie Louise Root, widow of Oliver Root, and for years prominent in New York society. According to Thomas Fulton, who was a close friend of the family, and who was associated with Mr. Root in the business, the news came as a shock to the friends of the family, who had been ignorant of the extent of the loss. According to Thomas Fulton, the widow was left with comparatively modest means, but was induced by her brother, Oliver Wolcott, to invest the bulk of her fortune, the holdings in large measure in wool stocks. The speculation was fearfully unfortunate, for the wool stocks went down and down, and when the end came, the holdings were worth but a small fraction of what they had cost.

Mrs. Root, who was a woman of fine presence, and who had been a leader of the social life of New York, could not survive the ruin of her fortune. She died in her home, which she had purchased when she came to New York. Were Gossipy Society to be taken into account, the story would have been much more sensational than it was. Mrs. Root was a woman of fine presence, and was a leader in the social life of

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS.

Taxes are nearly all rounded up in the township so we hear.

The Garden Island boys are doing good work in the line with hook and line.

Sam White returned to Manistowaq last week after a weeks visit with friends on the Island.

Fred Lardenbing made a trip to Cross Village, returning Saturday with over a ton and a half of hay and feed.

Our mail carriers are doing valuable service this winter in getting our mail to us twice each week since they began on the ice route.

An amateur theatrical is being prepared to be given on St. Patrick's day in the evening. Good music is also under way both instrumental and vocal and a fine program may be confidently looked for. Particulars later.

John Dalmer returned from Buffalo last week where he has been visiting his father and incidentally doing a stroke of business for himself. We understand John purchased a tug for fishing purposes. He will bring it to the island soon after navigation opens.

James Wineter, light keeper of Gibson Island and an old resident of the Eastern is visiting relatives and friends on the island. Jim was promoted several years ago from Squaw Island light to his present position. His many friends are glad to see him looking so well.

Sunday February 28th, witnessed the first soft weather in nearly three months but our thaw promptly took cold Sunday night and Monday forenoon we were treated to some more standard winter weather great chunks of it blowing through the atmosphere of any one venturing out of doors. Several teams who got started for Cross Village for hay as well as the mail carriers were compelled to turn back.

The true story of Frank Sherman's adventure in crossing the ice in my prepaid below as related by that worthy upon his arrival here. Leaving Hog Island saturday morning he made his way in the direction of Charlevoix, afternoon a snowstorm came up and darkness came on. Having no matches he trusted to the direction of the wind, soon after dark it shifted and after wandering all night he went ashore thinking he was between Bay Shore and Petoskey While sitting on a stump explaining over prospects for a morning repast Charley Wright came along on his way to his fish shanty. Sherman then learned he was on Dr. Cook's farm in Emmet Beach, and Cook's residence was pointed out to him. Sherman got his breakfast here and drove with the family to Harbor Springs from there he took train to Charlevoix where he obtained the supplies he went after. On the return he took train to Petoskey, walked across to Harbor Springs and from there to Cross Village where he fell in with Mr. Winne who had a team there for hay. Together they started for Beaver Island. They traveled all day and spent portion of the night the team finally becoming exhausted necessitating leaving the load of hay five miles out in the lake. The two men arrived here with the team at three o'clock this morning. Sherman will make the same for wear.

ATWOOD NEWS.

Wm. Waldruff is very sick.

Phil Emmott is at Alba taking care of his sick brother.

Lewis Brown smiles and says it is a girl 9 pounds.

Miss Susie Erlings is very sick with the measles.

Max Mars Bissett went to Boyne City last week.

Henry Erlings will send to the Atwood Creamery, next from 50 cows and Green Wood 21.

T. E. Niles of Mancelona, Deputy State Speaker for the Hennery, visited Atwood Grange last saturday evening.

The annual meeting of the Atwood Mutual Association will occur on Saturday at two o'clock p. m. at the Atwood Town Hall.

John Parsons who left last fall to visit relatives in Missouri, Iowa and Wisconsin, returned last Saturday. He says Atwood is G. S. yet.

School Commissioner's Column.

County Public Schools: In assuming the duties of Commissioner of Schools I speak for myself the greatest possible amount of cooperation from you. I shall be ever ready to answer any school correspondence to the best of my ability, and in any way further the interest of the schools.

Tennyson says that "In the spring a livelier iris changes on the burnished dove." Can we not in the spring take a livelier interest in the schools we love. Everyone concedes that there is no institution more potent for good than the public schools. It is also true that a school ideals are very little higher than its environments. For this reason the public school should be made the most attractive place in the whole neighborhood. To this end, etc making the school attractive, the publishers of Youth's Companion make the following offer to the schools of Michigan. This proposition is ably seconded by Supt. Pike.

PROPOSITION.

Let us try to secure some of the prizes for our own county.

CONDITION.

In order that a better professional spirit may prevail among our county teachers we are planning a series of conventions, or more properly speaking teachers' and patrons' rallies. It is hoped and expected that not only the teachers but officers and patrons will avail themselves of the opportunity of becoming better acquainted with schools and school work. There will be local rallies held in different parts of the county and a regular meeting held in Charlevoix. All teachers will be expected to attend at least one of the meetings. You are urged to attend some each local rally and the final meeting in Charlevoix.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

John S. Hurst, for some two years past the energetic and efficient manager of the Hurst-Jordan Lumber Co.'s plant, has resigned the position and returned to his old home in Grand Rapids.

Frank C. Andrews, of Detroit, recently pardoned by Governor Ross from Jackson prison, is one of the principal stockholders in the Municipal Steam Company, formed, of Mackinaw Island, which filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state February 24. The company has $100,000 capital, and has obtained some sort of a franchise to construct a sewer system on Mackinaw Island.

Joseph Bendheim, general passenger agent of the Mackinac Steamship Company, has notified The Traverse City Eagle that beginning with the season the magnificent steamship Manitou will call at Northport both on the voyage up and down from and to Chicago. According to the schedule arranged for the coming season she will arrive at Northport northbound on Friday mornings at 5:30 and on Wednesday southbound at 5:30 in the afternoon.

Wexford county is fifth among Northern Michigan counties in potato growing. Grand Traverse, Antrim, Oceola and Leelanau taking precedence in the order named. Last season's potato production in Wexford county 116,941 bushels from 4,050 acres. Grand Traverse county grew 86,202 bushels from 3 822 acres, Antrim county produced 734,184 bushels from 2,771 acres, Oceola county produced 690,000 bushels from 7,666 acres and Leelanau county produced 403,192 bushels from 6,950 acres.

At a joint meeting of the Board of Trade and the city council last night it was decided unanimously to put a tax at the spring session a proposition to bond the city for $50,000 for public improvements and to provide bonus for new industries. There is no doubt that the matter will carry at the election as the people are all alive to the opportunities that are available for building up the city. A number of factories were secured last year and all the money that will be at the disposal of the Board of Trade after election the city will be in a position to get some of the best factories that are to be had.—Petoskey Resort.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Rev. James Hyslop, Ph.D. Pastor.

The attendance, was large Sunday morning, at the close of which the bi-monthly communion service was held and was the most fully attended of any communion in the history of the church, excepting in the funeral season. Three new members were received into fellow ship, two of whom also received the rite of baptism.

The committee of the church for the securing of the new pipe organ reports good success in canvassing for funds. They have been gratified at the way in which the business people have helped nearly all of them claiming it a good public improvement and one that ought to be aided. Nearly three fourths of the amount proposed to be expended is now in sight. The committee has not yet definitely decided upon the builder, but they have several very excellent specifications and estimates.

The Sunday school attendance was fine on Sunday and the school is growing quickly.

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Alone that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly regulate this. 10c gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at F. G. THE FATAL OLD ISSUE.

Will the Democrats Again Attack the Protective Tariff?

While the avowed intention of the Democrats is to make tariff the issue in the next presidential campaign, they are finding it difficult to bring the several advocates in the party to agree on the question of protection and free trade. Thousands of Democrats are not in favor of opening the gates of this country to the competition of the world. They remember this was tried some years ago with disastrous results to American industries, and that tariff for revenue only—which is really free trade—from the government to borrow money on bonds at exorbitant rates of interest, because the revenues were insufficient to meet actual expenses.

During his last term as president, Grover Cleveland, while favoring such measures in a message, which to his credit, was an avowed free trader and is so today. Not a word mentioned by the Democrats for President is a protectionist to the extent that he would vote a free trade law were he the chief executive of this nation, and such a law was passed by a Democratic Congress. Grover Cleveland has voluntarily withdrawn from the presidential race and W. J. Bryan has been virtually forced to do so, but the two wings of the party led by those gentlemen, while they differ on the money question, would unite on the passage of a measure similar to the Wilson-Gorman bill.

It is doubtful at this time whether with such an issue the party can be united. It was tried in several states this year, notably Iowa and Ohio, and the results were overwhelmingly against it. But it appears that our democratic brethren never learn lessons from past experiences and are going ahead charging the same thing has cost their party on the ticket so often. If the Democrats can find no better issue it will be a happy for republicans next year.—Davenport Republican.

Wrong Then, right Now.

Mr. William Vernon Harcourt, late home minister under Gladstone, has done a great thing in during up so overwhelmingly another delivered by Joseph Chamberlain nearly nine years ago. It speaks that in 1885, in the course of a speech delivered in Birmingham, Mr Chamberlain said:

"It is impossible the working classes of this country will ever again consent to the sufferings and privations imposed by the corn laws. If this is the policy of the Tories we have only to recall the history of the times when protection caused the poor and the country was brought to the brink of revolution."

The fact that a man was wrong in 1885 does not necessitate that he should be wrong in 1904. The world has moved mightily in those nineteen years. Events have abundantly proved that the Chamberlain of 1885 was mistaken and that the Chamberlain of to-day is right. Several millions of British people have completely changed their views regarding free trade and protection in the past two decades.

An Object Lesson.

If Brother Chamberlain wants an object lesson showing what protection can do for, and did for, the industrial institutions of the United States. We are not only manufacturing a great deal more than ever before, but we are exporting that quantities. The report for October proves that last month we sold abroad goods valued at $108,000,000. The October sales have been exceeded but once before and the average for the year promises to beat the record. Yet there was a time when we manufactured practically nothing and when our only exports were agricultural products. Protection built up our industries and gave us the chance to compete in the markets of the world. The stupendous figures relating to our commerce and foreign commerce tell the story and a better argument could not be presented by any champion of protection.—Troy Times.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Maudie hastily returned home with no having accomplished her desired object, the course had offended him shame fully, but resented his anger vehemently, and threat for revenge occurred his soul.

Repeatedly he meditated upon scoring him at trial, perhaps months if he could do so without incriminating himself, and, in the morning, after court hour carefully reviewing all the details which was transactions, he concluded to consult Edward Fuller, in whose services he had once before sought counsel. He intended to engage him in this occasion, but—

Something extraordinary must have occurred as the hack. The clerks were gathered in groups, conversing in low tones, as he entered he asked for Fuller, but in an abrupt manner the reply was:

"I called for Fuller—Harlowe was for you. Where is he?"

"Mr. Mendenhall" he replied, "a detail is wanted, a very quiet in nature. Mr. Hendrik Hammel discovered in his home against employment on to-morrow afternoon, and I wish to engage Fuller you immediately upon your arrival."

Mendenhall in turn finds the speaker, proceeded for the first time to observe the man. A large dark man scowl on beneath from the bent brows of large black eyes, the lower part of his face was hidden by a black beard, the hands of the speaker, the extremities of the hands were hidden in gloves, and that fellow seemed to be in the attitude of one who would be inquired, anticipated, and the doctor frankly addressed, desirous—

"Mr. Hammel," he begins, respectfully, "I am usually indisposed to undertake assignments of duty compelled me to arrange a retreat from your, but I hope that you will pardon me, as the circumstances were so continuing, that nobody, who never had the pleasure of knowing you, could be induced to do so, and I will engine one to call on your friend."

"Where Mr. Hammel's friends are my friends, sir," she interposed. "Tense but for the warmer acquaintance, and I would be concerned if I did not have consulter for as such."

"And what can you tell me concerning this Hammel?" the Maudie inquired, for his curiosity demanded a hearing, carried.

"Very little, I fear, sir, I discovered Lulie' deserted Hamel, in the hotel, in the town, and I was in the hotel, and I was in the hotel, and I was in the hotel

TEN SAILORS SAVED.

ARE RESCUED FROM WRECK OFF CAPE HATTERAS.

Schooner in Sun Down by Unknown Vessel and Officers and Crew Almost Reason Foul for Prison Attempted to Steal Washington's Will.

Penniless and almost destitute of clothing, six members of the crew of the wrecked schooner David B. Tartes of Bath, Me., who were picked off Cape Hatteras during a gale by Diamond Shoals lightship No. 82, have arrived in Norfolk, Va. The Tartes was sunk and dismasted off Hatteras by an unknown schooner. The crew of ten was manned the three masts and worked up all exhausted. Finding the crippled derelict, Captain Edwin Gilliland, U. S. N., abandoned and a boat was launched and manned. Meanwhile the dismasted wreck had been sighted by Diamond Shoal lightship, which sent a boat to take off the survivors. The lightship's boat had to abandon the effort to join the adventurous crew, with the six survivors, and Captain Edwin Mace Dennis, Second Mate William Herman and Seamen William Hughes were left in the rigging while the other six scrambled into the lightship's boat. While then were scanning the return of the lightship's boat, a large schooner bore down upon the helpless hulk and the officers and crew of FISH LAWS.

Game Wardens Nael and Blue to Force a Universal Bill.

A meeting of general importance to the commercial fishing interests of the Great Lakes in Detroit last week. It was attended by the game wardens of Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York, and representatives were also be greeted from the district of Ontario. The convention was called some time ago by S. T. Baxter, Ontario commissioner of fisheries, and is for the purpose of endeavoring to make the commercial fishing laws of the various states and of Ontario more uniform. There is at present a wide variation among the laws of the states themselves, as well as with the laws of Ontario, especially with regard to closed and open seasons, size of fish caught and size of meshes of the nets used, as well as in respect to minor details.

As a result much trouble annually ensues, and the feeling in Ontario is general that the district is getting one sorely of it. The nets seized either in one three are strictly enforced, and it often happens that on account of the difference in closed seasons, the Ontario fishermen are forbidden to land on and see American fishermen make the best catches of the entire season only a few miles across the lake.

It is proposed that the game wardens shall unite on a universal bill and later work for its passage on both sides of the lakes.

In this connection Game Warden Chapman of Michigan favors a somewhat closed season for commercial fishing at the discretion of the wardens. He explains that the variations of seasons in different localities vary almost annually the time of spawning and spawning and that on this account the spawning season is sometimes far advanced before the closed season for commercial fishing begins. The result is disastrous.

As every commercial fisherman in Michigan can be readily verified Mr. Chapman would have the game wardens given power to vary the closed season at any time he deems it necessary in order to properly protect the fish. It is probable that steps leading to a law of this sort will be taken at the next session of the legislature.

That body will also probably be asked to provide a patrol tug for the game wardens' department. At the present time, with nine shore area than any other of the Lake states, the department has not even a steamer at its service, unless hired, and as a result it is working under considerable disadvantage in its inspection of commercial fishing.

Progress of The Good Roads Movement.

The movement in favor of a National appropriation to aid in the building of roads appears to be making great headway. This is proven by the number and enthusiasm of its supporters, and even more strikingly by the consternation of those who are openly or secretly opposed to the scheme. When the agricultural bill came up in the National House of Representatives recently, remarks were dropped by a number of speakers which indicated that letters, petitions and resolutions demanding the passage of the Brownlow road bill are coming in from all sections. The same thing happened again when the bill came up in the Senate. Senator Bailey of Texas, who is opposed to National aid, said it was time we were receiving, and addressed this significant remark: "I will live, if I live as long as my father has done, to see a Federal officer probably supervising all the county roads in this country."

While none of the so-called good roads bills have come up for action in either end of the Capitol, the friends of the road office in the Department of Agriculture have scored an important victory in securing in the Senate an increase of $45,000 in the appropriations for road investigations and experiments including the building of object lessons roads.

This is National aid on a small scale. But it is of great importance from an educational point of view. Heretofore this object lesson work has been conducted in the following manner: An application is sent in by some experiment station or agricultural college, or by road officials or public spirited citizens of some progressive community asking the Government to cooperate in the building of a short stretch of road. The Government usually furnishes nothing more than an engineer or an agent to make plans and supervise the work. Road making machinery is usually furnished free of charge by the manufacturers for the sake of the advertisement it gives them. The railroads also take a hand and transport the machinery free. The institution or community making the application has to feed the men for labor and materials.

Among the benefits flowing from such work are (1) that it gives an excellent opportunity to investigate and test the various local materials, (2) that it gives the people of the locality a lesson in the methods of road building and in the use of good materials and machinery, and (3) that the building of a short piece of good road usually leads to the letting of a large mileage of improved roads in the vicinity. To have Uncle Sam come into a community and help build a good road, be it ever so short, seems to arouse great popular interest and popular local effort. It is claimed by those who know most about the results of the work already done, that its influence in other directions than the Government accomplish so much with so little outlay.

But the appearance of National aid roads are afraid that object-lesson roads are only a stepping stone to National aid of vastly greater dimensions, and in this they are probably quite right. Improved roads, it appears serious that object-lesson road building will be carried on next year to a larger extent than ever before. Many applications are pouring in for the Department of Agriculture and many more are expected.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS.

Mary Cadenow aged 2 years died on High Island March 2.

John Money age 101 years died March 24, on Beaver Island west side.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jensen of Gaudin Island March 15, a fine baby boy, all concern doing nicely.

Three teamsleft for Cross Village March 24, for hay, making seven loads of hay from across the pond last week.

Fred Nackerman is making a visit to his family and numerous friends. He has been steadily employed ever since his last visit here at his trade of expert brick layer. Fred says he is looking to build a house here on this spring for a permanent home for himself and family.

A meeting of the fishermen of Beaver Island was held March 1, the object of forming a association, thirty two members were secured at the first meeting and W. J. Gallagher was elected president. Next meeting of the union occurs Saturday evening March 12, at Gallagher's hall.

C. O. Butler writes us as follows. For fear the Charlevoix people will not get the news of Mr. Beahan and Mr. Hoehe's adventure on the lake from Charlevoix here (the best of the Island), will give you the following information for publication.

The nursery men left Charlevoix Sat. March 27, for the Beaver waiting all day. When they were out a short time their compass failed, so they pushed on until time to the day they came in sight of the Island, but as darkness came on their compass not working and don't not see the Island, they concluded to make for an inlet by a bluff found a cake of ice which they were able to set up for protection from the wind and there lay in for the night suffering from the cold although the night was the warmest since Nov. All are afraid that object-lesson roads are only a stepping stone to National aid of vastly greater dimensions, and in this they are probably quite right. Improved roads, it appears serious that object-lesson road building will be carried on next year to a larger extent than ever before. Many applications are pouring in for the Department of Agriculture and many more are expected.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Petoskey News: Mrs Chas Wright is in receipt of a letter from her brother, Capt. W. H. Chrysler, who is now at Seattle. Mr. Chrysler likes the west quite well and is thinking of locating at Seattle. If he does, he will soon enter into some kind of business. He says that he had met a number of his Harbor Spring and Petoskey friends in the west.

Quincy E. Boughey, ex-city treasurer and son of Traverse City's leading citizens died in his home Sunday of typhoid fever and a complication of diseases after an illness of six weeks. When the news of Mr. Boughey's death went about the city during the day there were many expressions of profound regret and sorrow. He was widely known not only in this county but throughout this section of the state and when the fatal illness came upon him he was beginning the active campaign in Mr. Gerrish's election for the congressional nomination as his manager in the district.

St. Ignace Republican. Capt. Hart of Green Bay was arrested in this province on a charge of attempting to kill his uncle, Capt. H. Hart, president of the well known steamboat firm. He denied being implicated in the attempted assassination. He is a son of the late Capt. Hank Hart, who was the original president of the line. Capt. C. B. H. seems, was interested in the venture with his brother Henry and it is stated that an understanding existed between the two brothers that the survivor should remain in charge, or control of the Hart line. Capt. Ed. Hart did not sail a Hart boat last year, and report credits him with feeling sore over the turn of business affairs. He desires, so it is supposed to supplant Capt. H. Hart in the presidency of the line, or at least, to vindicate his inheritance rights.

Traverse City Eagle. John McDonald one of the oldest residents of this section, died yesterday afternoon suddenly after a dinner with his daughter. At that time he was in good health but shortly after the meal he was seized with spasms and a strangling fit and died in a few minutes. Mr. McDonald had lived in Yuba, Acme township, for 53 years and was one of the most prosperous farmers of this district. He was born in Scotland in 1826 and moved to this country in 1852, settling near Ithaca, Gratiot county. There he operated a saw mill for several years, later purchasing a farm in Acme township, where he has resided every since. He was last year he was county agent for some time. He leaves two children, Mrs. Hope Dodge of Yuba, and Mrs. William Lavey of Traverse City.

LOCAL NEWS.

—Beautiful warm spring weather today.

—A young son arrived at the home of Rev. T. H. Hughes Tuesday.

—J. L. Crane has a new display in their advertising space this week.

—Capt. Comfort expects to begin work soon on the completion of the north pier walk.

—Arthur Gillham & Co. have an announcement in their advertising space this week.

—Rev. W. J. Tilden, many years ago the M. E. pastor here, has been in town the past few days.

—Evan McKenzie, of New Haven, Conn. a florist of experience, has accepted a position with S. L. Insley.

—Judge Mayne will hold an adjourned term of court for Charlevoix county, beginning Tuesday, March 29th.

—M. A. Levinson & Co. announce that they have extended the time of their advertised prize awards to May 1st.

—Among the attorneys here last week attending court were W. A. Norton, of St. Johns, and W. S. Merrick, of Petoskey.

—The republican township caucus to nominate township officers will occur at the court room tomorrow Friday evening. Let every republican be present.

—Robert J. McNeill, who is Haber & Watson's manager in the upper peninsula, has been here for a week. Mrs. McNeill and Belle, who have been in Grand Rapids several weeks, returned home Saturday.

—Died, Saturday, March 19th, the mother of Jerry Moulton, at the latter's home on the north side, aged 87 years. The funeral was from the house Monday. Mr. Moulton desires us to express his thanks for sympathy and kindness shown by neighbors and friends.

—Chauffeur reported. The pavement remaining in Boyne City which recently retained from a two weeks' trip around the state, has made its report to the board of public works. The report favors awarding the contract to pave Mitchell street to the Central Bituminite company.

—It is expected that the paving people will resume work on the Bridge street job as soon as the frost leaves the ground. Inspector Gillett, the authorities, which have the crushed stone contract, will begin crushing stone as the frost leaves the ground, so that no time will be lost when the snow leaves the ground.

—There are several stretches of old wooden sidewalk on Bridge street that we hope will be displaced by cement walks this spring, especially those fronting business places. With first-class pavement and unbroken lines of cement walks, Bridge street will indeed be a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

—We take pleasure in noting the fact that Bert Burnett, who is a student at the Experiment Station of the State Agricultural College, is getting along finely. On his recent preliminary examination he stood 98 and the director writes that the young man is making very satisfactory progress. He is taking the best sugar course.

—Weather conditions have taken on more of a spring aspect the past week. Yesterday and today the sun shines warm, and water is running in the streets but the conditions remain unchanged. Lake Michigan and Pine Lake report the same appearance they did in February. The ice is absolutely unbroken in both lakes. The only water in sight in Round Lake is the upper channel.

—H. E. Bane, president of the National Construction Co., of Detroit, is here with two camera expeditions on business connected with the sugar factory. Mr. Bane says that matters are looking promising, that several new men with capital have come forward and that more are coming. He says, with emphasis, that the factory will be operated. An inspection of the plant yesterday disclosed the fact that two weeks, with a dozen men will put the factory in shape to clean sugar, and this will be done at once. The gentlemen accompanying Mr. Bane are very much pleased with the outlook.

—Read M. Cohen's new ad. in this issue.

—Mrs. H. A. Carr has an Easter opening announcement in this issue.

—Rev. J. B. Kaye, of Scottville, Mich., is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. A. H. Hunters.

—Mrs. A. T. Barnett left this morning on a visit trip to Grand Rapids, Lansing and Albion.

—We hope the council will pay the memory of the U. S. engineers as to the condition of the channel, beside near the inside end of the north pier. A revetment should be constructed there early this season to prevent the possibility of a lost at that point.

Charlevoix Township and Mr. Darragh.

We have said in previous issues that of all the counties in this congressional district Charlevoix county is the last one that should help turn down A. B. Darragh. It requires no argument to demonstrate this fact. Charlevoix county has interests that have been well cared for by Mr. Darragh, and can be better protected the coming two years by him than by a new man.

We now desire to add the suggestion that of all the townships in Charlevoix county Charlevoix should be proud to send a solid Darragh delegation to the county convention. At Charlevoix is the gateway and outport to sixty miles of inland coast. Here is the harbor which is asking for appropriations commensurate with our large and growing marine commerce. Mr. Darragh's influence at Washington must be greater and more potent in the next congress than one that of any new man. Another strong argument in favor of Charlevoix favoring Mr. Darragh is the fact that he has practically secured a $30,000 appropriation for a cable from the main land to Beaver Island which embraces two townships of Charlevoix county. We say practically—the bill has been unanimously reported to the House by the committee.

Mr. Darragh has secured unreservedly, the co-operation of the Weather Bureau, and the writer of this has positive assurances, from that department that the bill is sure of passage by this congress—if not this spring then certainly after the recess. We mention as confidence when we say that the Weather Bureau consider the matter so important that they suggest, in order to expedite it, that the amount be included in the regular weather bureau appropriation. This conditions of affairs has been brought about by Mr. Darragh.

The project means much to Charlevoix county, and very much to Charlevoix township, but still much more to Inland township. We consider that it would be the greatest logistic tube to Mr. Darragh for Charlevoix county from personal experience the sufferings and sacrifices of the boys who followed the flag from '61 to '65. When the three Michigan regiments now serving in Congress are retired from public life, it is safe to say that their places will be filled by younger men, of a generation unborn in '61. Let the old soldiers ask them serving his emeritus we have this belief they will then be so faithfully served. If their peculiar claims upon the country's gratitude will then be as well understood, and their interests as carefully guarded.

OLD SOLDIERS.

Has Secured 80 Original and 104 Increases of Pension.

Ben Harker, of the Reed City Clarion, sounds the call to old soldiers to rally to the support of Comrade Darragh for congress. He says:

"The contest now on in the 11th district for the nomination of Member of Congress should be of especial interest to the old soldiers. There is no class of citizens whose interests depend to a greater extent upon congressional action, and upon the individual efforts of the Congressman. Every year measures which directly effect their interests are presented for action, and the expedition with which their claims are considered and settled in the Pension Bureau, and the success or failure of such claims depend in a large degree upon the personal attention given them by their representative in Washington.

Congressman Darragh has been particularly attentive to the wants of the old soldiers, and takes especial pleasure in this part of his work. In no case has he failed to respond promptly and courteously to their many requests, and he has spent much time and effort to promoting their welfare.

During his first term, Mr. Darragh secured the passage of 81 private pension bills, a record unequaled by any member serving his first or second term. He has now a large number of bills pending, and hopes to secure favorable action upon them before the final adjournment of the 58th Congress. His success in aiding those who were prosecuting claims in the Pension Bureau has been no less striking. Of the cases to which his attention has been called, and in which his assistance has been asked, during the three years of his service, he has secured 80 original pensions and 104 increases of pension for soldiers and their widows. In considering these figures, it is to be remembered that only the most difficult and complicated cases are brought to his attention, those in which the soldier or his attorney has encountered some difficulty which he does not understand, or some obstacle which he is unable to surmount.

The ranks of the Grand Army are each day growing thinner, and their representation in the Halls of Congress is constantly decreasing. Of the 357 members of the 57th Congress, 45 were veterans of the Civil War, while of the 356 members of the 58th Congress, only 38 wear the button. In the 57th Congress one quarter of the Michigan delegation were representatives of the old soldiers. In the 58th Congress only one quarter of the Michigan members are able to understand from personal experience the sufferings and sacrifices of the boys who followed the flag from '61 to '65. When the three Michigan veterans now serving in Congress are retired from public life, it is safe to say that their places will be filled by younger men, of a generation unborn in '61. Let the old soldiers ask them serving his emeritus we have this belief they will then be so faithfully served. If their peculiar claims upon the country's gratitude will then be as well understood, and their interests as carefully guarded."

VALUABLE PUBLIC DOCUMENT.

Report of Senate Hearing on National Aid to Improved Roads; 12,000 Copies Printed for Free Distribution.

Account of the Hearing With a Summary of the Main Arguments Presented.

One of the most important documents issued from the Government Printing office in recent years has just appeared. It is the report of the hearing on Roads and Road building recently given by the Senate Committee on Agriculture to the representatives of the National Good Roads Association. At its meeting in St. Louis last April, that Association appointed a committee to lay before Congress the subject of National aid to road improvement. The committee consisted of one representative from each State, and representatives of several important commercial and industrial organizations. The hearing occurred on January 26, and the members of the good roads committee presented the subject ably and eloquently, but of course rather briefly as the time was limited. At the close of the hearing, however, the Senate Committee asked the good roads committee to prepare some additional statements containing statistics, a discussion of the road laws of States, and of the roads and road laws of foreign countries, and other matter throwing light on the subject.

Under this general "leave to print," the good roads people prepared a number of valuable papers which make up the bulk of the report, and the most valuable part. As the report contains 115 pages, no more than a very brief summary of the arguments can be given here. Among the most important arguments presented were the following.

During the first quarter of the last century the right and duty of the Government to make internal improvement was fully discussed and finally settled. It was a dead issue at the time of Henry Clay, and the general store of Amos Fox. The Indian knew little of the value of it. Very little has been bought here in the last fifteen or twenty years.

Ginseng is said to be the world's most valuable herb crop, and the ginseng is peculiarly interesting because of the ginseng possibilities in Charlevoix county and other counties tributary to Charlevoix. Present quotations on ginseng are five dollars for a pound of the dried root and eighty dollars a pound for seed. Twenty dollars and thirty-three cents a square foot, thirty dollars a yard, three hundred a rod, forty-five thousand dollars an acre—these are the present quotations placed on ginseng fields, and they indicate the wonderful money-making possibilities of the little root once despised in this country and in the fair with Canada thistles and other objectionable adornments on Mother Nature's face. Ginseng is grown in Northern Michigan more as an experiment than anything else, but a fuller knowledge of the root's nature to the grower and information as to its cultivation will result some day in larger fields and more growers. "At present prices, which of course will drop when the market becomes glutted, as it is likely to do in a few years, more money may be made from a few square rods of ground than from the average farm and with one-tenth the labor," said a Boon township farmer, who has experimented a little in ginseng, to an Evening News representative a day or two ago. "At a safe estimate eight hundred roots will grow on one square rod of ground, which allowing one hundred and twenty eight thousand roots to the acre. Estimating four roots to the pound, which is low for two years, one square rod will produce two hundred pounds, or when dried sixty pounds. At five dollars a pound, the average price for the cultivated root, it makes three hundred dollars. At the same time the wild root will produce at least ten pounds of seed, which, are now worth eighty dollars a pound." Ginseng is said to thrive best in the shade and because of this popularity of the herb its cultivation is assigned to mothers Michigan. Every year dozens of woodland hunters, the "sang diggers" as they are commonly known, from around Boon and Harrietta and Mesick and along among over Lake Wheconte, scour the land from Frankfort and pass a month in every by Federal State forests digging ginseng. Some day, perhaps, the

About Ginseng.

Time was when ginseng was a staple product in Charlevoix. Indians brought it in by the bag full, to the drug store of Philo Beers and the general store of Amos Fox. The Indian knew little of the value of it. Very little has been bought here in the last fifteen or twenty years.

Ginseng is said to be the world's most valuable herb crop, and the ginseng is peculiarly interesting because of the ginseng possibilities in Charlevoix county and other counties tributary to Charlevoix. Present quotations on ginseng are five dollars for a pound of the dried root and eighty dollars a pound for seed. FEARS ENTERTAINED THAT WASH. IS NOT SAFE.

Town Lies only Four Feet above Creek which May Now Sweep, Her Away—Residents Appealed to Atlantic Wants to Hear from Explorer Tolt.

A Tacoma special says: Little Wash. is in the middle of the Wenatchee, the idea seems and as a result the residents along Mad Creek bottom have been supplied in the form of notices in the bills. Communications with Tacoma and Seattle have been cut for days. Fears are entertained for the safety of the town. The Seattle Post-Intelligencer says that the water is now flowing in such a manner that it will take a tornado. Details of the damage are scarce to demand. The creek at Wash. Wash. is only five feet in elevation, and there is every fear it will inundate Rainier-avenue. Dispatches from the county to the town cause to an earlier Board meeting.

OHIO MOB SETS FIRE.

Burn Negro Charter in Springfield Because Man Married White Girl.

Following a night of rioting in which one man was killed, the Ohio Negro Baptists Union, a negro institution of Springfield, was set on fire by the guard of six companies of State militia ordered to the city by Governor of Ohio, which, nearly all of their arrival, made quick work of the rioters. Some of the leaders, Theodore and Good what reclaimed of the rioters, were taken to the jail. Two negroes were lynched in the city last night. Two negroes were lynched in the city last night. CHAPTER I.

There had been a radical sensation in the village of Ballinafad and it was thought more than one could remember that had occurred for some years. There were several attendant circumstances that rendered it remarkable, and perhaps it weighed and at times pressed on them, this an unbearable thing, preceding with his family to a passage north, from among the indians.

Colonel Cheyne-Hunt had been engaged with his family in a business but a few months when he was thrown into the midst of a sensation which was to change the current of his life, and which was to be the cause of his leaving the country, and his family leaving the country, and his family leaving the country, and his family

The New Steamship "Missouri," of the Northern Michigan Transportation Co's Line. She is 200 feet long, and will accommodate 300 cabin passengers. She will have a speed of 20 miles per hour. The "Missouri" will be commanded by Capt. Wm. Finucan, of Charlevoix, and will be out about May 15th.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

William Henry Foster, one of the leading attorneys of Traverse City died suddenly last Friday at his home on Washington street of neuralgia of the heart. The news was a great shock to his many friends, as he had not been ill but had been down town the day previous.

The 5th annual meeting of the Northern Michigan Beekeeper Association is to be held in Traverse City, March 30th and 31st. Good speakers will be present. Northern Michigan has become an important factor in honey producing and a large attendance is predicted. All who are interested are invited to attend.

Bellaire independent: A. E. Webster, formerly a jeweler at this place, turned out at Hart recently. Mr. Webster went to Georgia a year or two ago from Charlevoix, as it was whispered, and this is the first information to many here that he was unable to get away from Michigan and stay. He saved the most of his stock from the fire.

Antrim county will vote at the annual spring election on the proposition to build a $10,000 court house at Bellaire. The county seat town offers a site and $1,000 in cash. At a meeting of the citizens of Central Lake last week, it was voted to give a site and $12,000 for the court house there, which of course leaves the matter up to the county seat. It is a nasty war in Antrim county.

The question of bonding the village of Bellaire for $2,500, to be used in dredging the Intermediate river from its mouth to the village, was voted on at the special election last Monday and was carried by an overwhelming majority. This will make a thirty-foot channel, six feet deep, and permit steamers to run up to the business portion of the village. Heretofore they have had to cut Bellaire from their routes on account of lack of water.

Detroit Tribune: As a result of the foothills through the Petoskey newspapers between country people who claim the city fools all the hot air their products and the meat merchants who allege that they buy all the county beef that is desirably offered, "A Farmer's Wife" winds up the rural spat of the case with the conclusion that there are only three honest business men in Petoskey, she doesn't state who they are, but whatever, of the firmament, shine he the one, and Wright, of the Lyre, that he is the other two.

Petoskey Special: A deed filed with the county register yesterday foreshadows a contest for the title to the beautiful semi-public parks so long maintained in this city by the Grand Rapids & Indiana railway. Shaw and MacMillan, who platted Petoskey, set aside certain blocks for railroad and park purposes. The Grand Rapids & Indiana obtained a deed to Shaw's undivided half and when maintained parks which are the pride of the city. The deed filed yesterday conveyes Archibald MacMillan's half interest to his sons, Colin and Dougal, who will now try title with the company.

Cadillac News: Now comes the suggestion that the best sugar beets in Michigan are not as profitable as their promoters and boosters had good reason to expect and several kinds of industrial difficulties are said to be behind and ahead of the Charlevoix institution. Where the trouble begins or as to why it should have begun at all is not included in the reference to the plight of the Charlevoix factory, but the fact that beets in bonds is discouragingly viable, even to the naked eye. It has been suggested by some committities that the refusal of farmers to abandon potatoes or bean or corn or fruits for sugar beets, to supply at least an equivalent, is responsible for the best sugar factor. Then it is, too, that in many quarters, doubtless, prejudice exists against sugar beets, but just why anyone seems to really know. Sugar beets are a profitable farm crop if intelligently handled, even more profitable than many other crops, but the farmer doesn't seem to think so. If this opposing sentiment is overcome industriously best sugar plants will surely go out of commission.

—The old Beauvais boat factory building has been sold by its owner, J. W. Harris, to J. M. Heath, who is tearing it down.

—Revival services will commence at the Baptist church Monday, April 4th, at 7:30 p. m. Rev R. N. McNemer, of Petoskey, will preach every evening except Saturday. All are invited.

—B. W. Miller received a telegram Monday that his son Miley was very ill at Fort Orange, Fla. He left the same day for that place. The young man is afflicted with a severe attack of rheumatism.

—Advice have been received here that Miss Lillian Vowles died at her home in Mt. Pleasant last Thursday. Miss Vowles was formerly a Charlevoix teacher, and had many friends here.

—Next Sunday being Easter Sunday services of special interest will be held at the Baptist church. The ordinance of believer's baptism will be observed in the morning, and in the evening a gospel service will be held.

—Headache, dizziness, indigestion and constipation are symptoms of dyspepsia—the remedy is a pair of glasses specially ground to fit. See Leahy, the Optician, when he comes April 9th, 10th and 11th, as he comes prepared to fit any eyes that can be fitted.

—Southern and Central Michigan is suffering from one of the greatest floods in the history of the State. Railroad traffic is almost entirely suspended on some of the roads. Trains on the northern division of the Pere Marquette are compelled to go around by Muskegon and Holland. The trouble began last Friday, and since that time half the trains each way have been cancelled.

At the republican caucus last Friday evening the following excellent ticket was placed in nomination: Supervisor, J. L. Price; Treasurer, Harry Widdifield; Clerk, A. H. Burns; Highway Commissioner, Wm. Scroggie; Justice, (full term) H. S. Harsha; Vacancy, Andrew Hoss; School Inspector, H. M. Ross; Board of Review, John M. Ackerr.

—Mrs. James Hyslop, Ph. D., begins the fifth year of his pastorate of the Congregational church next Sunday. We do not know whether or not the Doctor is satisfied with his job, we assume that he is but it is a fact that the church and public are satisfied. The Doctor has wrought well from the day he came. His work has been of the natural grind sort; it has needed no putty or paint. He has preached and taught Christian common sense, and Christian religion. He has lost no friends, and has made many.

—Henry C. Cooper is in receipt of a unique and valuable present from his brother in law, Gurley Blair, now living in Oregon. Primarily, it is a cribbage board, but the value and rarity of the article is due to the fact that it is a walrus tusk, and of the purest white ivory. It is two feet long, and beautifully etched in India ink by some unknown person, who indeed was an artist. On one side is a panoramic view of Nome City, Alaska, on the other the sketch of an Indian spearing a walrus, with other bits of scenery commemorative. Mr. Blair secured it while on a recent trip to Alaska. Gurley is a marine engineer in Oregon.

—Halting today, and snow rapidly disappearing. Lake Michigan has remains apparently unchanged.

—The Carnation Club met last Friday evening with Mrs. Wright Hyzer and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

—It is considered probable that Mrs. Gilbert, the well-known St. James landlady, is seriously ill. Her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Gill, of Harbor Springs, accompanied by her husband, went there via Cross Village last week.

—Sheriff Billy Pearson was a dead victim last week. He left here Thursday with a prisoner, King, for Ionia. The train got as far as Saranac, when a 60 foot piece of track went into the river, and soon after that another strip in the rear of the train. The Sheriff succeeded in getting "ashore" with his prisoner where he engaged a boatman to row them across the river into the country. He then hired a farmer to drive him and his man sixteen miles to Ionia.

—Supt. Cross, of the Ferry Warehouse completed his pea picking campaign last Friday. Since the work began last fall, there has been picked 20,100 bushels of seed peas. The company has paid in wages to its pickers, who were all women, the sum of $4,100. Mr. Cross and his men are now getting the stock seed ready for distribution and shipment. Over 15,000 bushels will be sent out. 5,000 bushels of which will go to Beaver Island.

—An Easter Service will be held at the Episcopal church by Rev. C. T. Stout on Tuesday evening, April 5th. With other Easter music Miss Cora C. Burr will sing for the offertory "Holy, Holy, Holy" and "I Know That My Redeemer Lives," from the oratorio of the Messiah. On Wednesday morning, April 6th, at 9 o'clock there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion. A cordial invitation is extended to these services. The annual election of officers of the Mission will take place after the Tuesday evening service. The report of officers of the Mission and ladies guild are expected for this meeting.

—Art Hughston met with a very serious accident Tuesday. While at work at the saw mill he fell into the "sump hole," or hot water log tank, in which the water is almost at a boiling pitch. He became mixed up with two logs in the tank in such a way that it was fully half a minute before he was extricated. When his arms were grasped in putting him from the tank, the skin rolled up in bunches, and when taken home and undressed, the skin followed the clothes. The physicians say it is a very serious case, but have hopes of his recovery if no complications ensue. Later—Just as we go to press we learn of the death of the young man at eight o'clock a. m. Arthur Hughston was the eldest son of George and Polly Hughston and was aged 21 years. He was a young man of exemplary character and habits. He was a member of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M., under the auspices of which he will be buried. He was also a Maccabee.

—The railroads leading to the upper end of the state have inaugurated a campaign to colonize Northern Michigan. The new land agent in it is understood, under the auspices of the Michigan Passenger association and every railroad tapping the upper portion of the Lower Peninsula is in it. This includes the Michigan Central, Pere Marquette, Wabash (Ann Arbor), Grand Rapids & Indiana, Detroit & Mackinac, and it is said one of two smaller roads. The direct supervision of the matter has been placed in the hands of J. S. Sherrett. It is understood the colonization movement will be in the form of a new bureau of the Michigan Passenger association, of which Mr. Sherrett will be chief. It is the purpose of this organization to make it easy for prospective settlers to reach the different portions of the upper end of the Lower Peninsula, and that every facility will be given to examine the lands to their every aspect so that a man who wants to locate upon a northern farm may look at any number of pieces of land before making up his mind which to take.

Mrs. Henry opens her millinery store today, with Miss Kathryn H. Lantz, of Detroit, as head trimmer. Also taking orders for Chas. S. Stevens Bros., Chicago, for suits, fancy and walking skirts, his sample work, etc.

The Brief Returning Twinkle of a Lost Star.

The uncharted stellar luminary that disappeared from its orbit in the vicinity of East Jordan some years ago, after lasting for a short period reflected a strange and uncertain light, was again discovered by East Jordan observers last week, out of its former track and orbit, and plainly showing a recessional movement.

On its former and first appearance this star, from some cause unknown to Charlevoix county astronomers, had thrown itself into one of the greater stellar systems, displaying some borrowed light, and moving with a velocity out of proportion to its size and effulgence. Its recent appearance however, disclosed the fact that during its absence in some unknown region of the celestial kingdom, it had lost much of its lustre and shrunken in proportions that suggested to the scientific eye a transformation from stellar classification to a rapidly disappearing nebulous atom.

To bring the significance of this stellar phenomenon to the more comprehensive grasp of terrestrial intelligence, we shall explain. An alleged journalist named C. L. Lorraine, living at East Jordan, several years ago flashed into public notice as a candidate for the republican congressional nomination. Of course his name was only used by the Charlevoix county delegation much with the same purpose as wooden guns are mounted in mock earthworks. His pretensions were indicious from the start, and had there at any time been a remote possibility of getting a vote outside his own delegation, everyone of the latter gentlemen would have stampeded to a dark horse, a vent horse, a dead horse, or any other old horse, though for his twinkle.

Last October C. L. Lorraine was the chief adviser and backbone of a newspaper combination that attempted to "shake up" the board of supervisors in a public printing proposition. The history of the transactions and the connections of the parties of this paper with it, is well known to our readers. It is only necessary to say that after the board had rejected the proposition, the city twin exercised its lawful and moral right to tell on the work, after due notice had been given the others that such was its intention. The Sentinel was given the work. Then followed, on the part of this man Lorraine and echoed by his satellites, a bitter attack on the Sentinel, publisher and the board of supervisors. These latter profligate servants of the people must be reprobated in their township, county and state, and the taxpayers must learn that the public money must not be squandered.

Especially deserving of punishment were Paxton, of Eveline; Briley, of Evangeline; Adams, of Marion; Gray, of Hayes; Price, of Charlevoix, and Graff, of South Arm. These were the perpetrators of the iniquitous act—men must feel the lash of an outraged public opinion.

Well, last week Price was unanimously re-nominated in Charlevoix, Adams was placed at the head of the ticket in Marion, Bailey is as good as elected in Evangeline, Paxton is elected to come back from Eveline, and Graff will represent Lorraine a term again.

A beautiful story is attached to the latter's nomination. Of course Mr. Lorraine could lay out Graff at home. Certainly. And again came about that certain citizens of East Jordan, with a wink out of their eye, indorsed Mr. Lorraine to be a candidate for Graff's job. On Saturday, the day of the caucus, Mr. Lorraine purchased a whole box of oranges and distributed them among the voters. The aforesaid working citizens said Lorraine he was a sure winner. He could endorse himself say "Mr. Chairman," as a fact during his after dinner nap he dreamed, no doubt, that he was to fill a place in the coming session of the county legislature.

But how fickle and treacherous are all life's fond hopes. At the caucus, notwithstanding the oranges, and the whiskers, Lorraine was snowed under by this corrupt Graff by a vote of two to one or better. And, as if to add to his already bitter cup of misery, Mr. Lorraine was nominated——goondmaster. As South Arm has adopted a local primary election system, both Graff and Lorraine are elected already Mr. Lorraine must, for the next year, care for the stray cattle and hogs that trespass on the public domain. What a fall was there, my countrymen! From a congressional aspirant to goondmaster! From a place among the greater planets, in company with Uranus and Mars and Jupiter, to a common tramp meteor or bolide molecule is far—far! This atom, now roaming in space, and known to no stellar system, must, in the nature of natural things, soon be sucked into the corona of the sun, or else gradually spoken out.

There is very little that is desirable below poundmaster.

Death of Capt. Bontecou.

Capt. Bontecou adopted journalism as a profession about twenty years ago, when he bought the Record. He was a veteran of the civil war, having risen to the rank of Captain in an Ohio regiment.

The late Record editor was an honor to journalism. He was an able and forceful writer and one who had the courage of his convictions. There was no sneak in the nature of the man. He fought in the open, fought hard, and when battle was over he was as ready to found in the open, as ready to renew the fight on the same ground as he was to begin it. He was an honorable editor and an honorable man. In all our long experience we have never encountered an editor from whose blade we have considered it a greater honor to receive a thrust than from the bright, clean cavalier of J. C. Bontecou. He was a chevalier in newspaperdom—a knight errant of common humanity. Neither have we ever neighbored with an editor with whom it was so great a pleasure to fraternize.

Not only has Petoskey lost one of its most valuable citizens, but Michigan journalism has lost a pillar of strength.

Capt. Bontecou leaves a wife and one daughter, whom the sincerest in sorrow today salutes.

We say it in sorrow, indeed our eyes are moist as we write these lines. The Shiftless Shipmasters' Society, founded by the editor of this paper, and by him led in the ways of virtue and morality for the past four years, has gone dead.

It was mentioned in early winter, but we hesitated to acknowledge the fact, hoping that by a little nursing on the bottle and some hypodermic treatment it might be saved to the cause world, but it was vain.

The cause of the demise is Atkeson's swelling. When meetings of the Society were due, Finnand, Wilbur and Campbell were invariably thumping the cushions down at the alleys, and an entry had to be made in the records accordingly.

Remonstrance was of no avail, indeed, when kindly reminded of his duty, Pete Campbell resigned the Society and its founder to the region between which and here there is no ice. And so we have decided to let the charter lapse and the members go to the everlasting dog dumps if they so choose.

We have done our duty as an honest and philanthropic spirit, with an eye single to the moral uplifting of marine society in this town. We now wash our hands of the whole dod gasted business.

The legalities of this precious bunch of skippers is enough to drive a man from the path of rectitude.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Rev. James Hyslop, Ph. D. Pastor.

The Palm Sunday Services both morning and evening were enjoyed by large congregations. In the evening the church was almost full, and the responsive and musical service was considered a "beautiful and helpful" one.

Passion tide services are being held each evening this week with very fine attendance and interest.

EASTER SERVICES.

Everything will be done to have the services on Sunday expressive of the Rising of Christ from the dead, and it is hoped there will be large audiences both morning and evening. There will be special music and other features of interest. The pastor's plans for illustrated service in the evening have failed through lack of mail connection from the south and east.

School Commissioner's Column.

The recent examination held in Charlevoix, was not very largely attended, only about twenty being present. The number of certificates granted was larger than common in proportion to the number of candidates. The following is a list of pupils receiving certificates: First grade: J. H. Milford and John R. Roy, second grade H. L. Wiebers, Louise Marshall, F. H. Ross and Jessie Lewis. Third grade Ray I. Click, Archie Pringle, Archie Belding, Kelsei Murphy, Louise Short, Lillie Wardrop, Fred A. Murray and Ruth Dillman.

The next examination of teachers will be held in East Jordan June 16 and 17th. Only pupils who have completed the third and second grades can be issued at that time. The Cutler's Saturday review will be used as the basis for the examination in reading.

Eighth grade examinations will be held in different parts of the county, places to be announced later, on the second Friday and Saturday of May.

Longfellow's poem "Paul Revere's Ride" will be taken as the basis of the examination in reading. If teachers wish a set of questions on the above named poem application should be made at this office.

The eighth grade diplomas should mean something. It should stand for the ability to think. When a pupil has received one he should be able to enter any high school and do the work satisfactorily.

Every school in the county has had at least one set of the circulars relative to the school decoration. We are hoping to see some hearty response.

We hereby call your attention once more to the liberal offer by Perry Mason and Co.

"To the five hundred schools in the State of Iowa and to the five hundred schools in the State of Michigan showing the greatest interest during 1904 in the setting out of trees shrubbery and vines, and improving their grounds in other ways, we shall present a set of six historical pictures, namely, "Washington," "Lafayette," "Signing the Declaration of Independence," The Commission," "Surrender of Cornwallis," and "The Landing of the Pilgrims."

"To the ten schools in each state doing the best work we shall present a large American Flag."

UNION MEN DEPORTED

MOB OF CITIZENS LOADS THEM ON TRAIN

Armed Members of Citizens' Alliance in Telluride, Colo., Escort Men Into Kansas—Factories in Chicago Too Crowded Since Strike Started.

Two Hundred Members of the Union Affiliated in Telluride, Colo., Are Given Twenty-Four Hours' Notice to Leave Town—Armed Members of Citizens' Alliance Escort Them Out of Town—Factories in Chicago Too Crowded Since Strike Started.

Two hundred members of the Union Miners in Telluride, Colo., notice twenty-four hours' notice to leave the town, escorted the men and took them out of the town, under guns and bayonets. In some instances the men had their homes ransacked and their effects destroyed. The men were hunted in a variety of places. Some of them had been concealed. They were then marched to the station. At the special train the men were lined up and guarded the men into the cars. A J. Floyd, head of the Citizens' Alliance and also a former Mayor of Telluride, was one of the captors. The men had no chance of the trial and as the prisoners were escorted through the streets of the town they were cheered by a large number of citizens. The men were taken to Ouray, where they had gone to their homes. Governor Peabody is said to have sent the Sheriff of Ouray county to Telluride to investigate the matter.

Chicago.—In Chicago the demand for workers in the factories is so great that the employers are beginning to feel the effects of the strike. Hundreds of men are being taken into the city. A. J. Floyd, head of the Citizens' Alliance and also a former Mayor of Telluride, was one of the captors. The men had no chance of the trial and as the prisoners were escorted through the streets of the town they were cheered by a large number of citizens. HUDSON TUNNEL FINISHED

Thirteen years and one month elapsed between the first shovelful of earth in the Hudson and Hudson River Tunnel company, Chief Engineer Parsons, now Mayor of Jersey City, and the last shovelful of earth was taken out at the foot of Morton street, New York, when the Jersey City end met the workers of the Manhattan end. The tunnel is 2,500 feet long and started from the Jersey City end and ends in the Manhattan. There the first time two parties met face to face and shook hands. The men were hoisted in a bucket and were lowered to the tunnel. Mayor Mitchel of New York, President Bedell of the Hudson Tunnel company, Chief Engineer Parsons and Chief Engineer Charles M. Jacobs were among the first to cross the tube when the men met. The tunnel is lined with tiles and is illuminated by electric lights. The tunnel is 2,500 feet long and has cost $8,000,000 to build. The tunnel is for the use of the Hudson Tunnel company, which is a subsidiary company of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. The tunnel is for the use of the Pennsylvania Railroad

UNION MEN DEPORTED

MOB OF CITIZENS LOADS THEM ON TRAIN

Armed Members of Citizens' Mobs in Telluride, Colo., Ordered Away by Sheriff—Disturbances in Chicago To Notify Factory Hands.

Two hundred members of the Western Miners' Federation were loaded on cattle cars and given a hasty ride out of Telluride, Colo., early Monday morning by a mob of citizens who had been deputized by Sheriff Mahoney to do the work. The men were loaded on the cars at the point of rifles and were given a ride of about 15 miles to the town of Ilium, where they were left to shift for themselves. The men were not molested in any way after the mob had started with them on the cattle cars.

Sheriff Mahoney had ordered the men to leave the town on Saturday and they had been given until Monday morning to do so. The sheriff had been urged by the citizens to take the action he did because of the fear that there would be a repetition of the dynamite outrage of last Fourth of July, when the union men blew up the Smuggler-Union mill, which had been the cause of much bloodshed in the past.

Sheriff Mahoney, in ordering the men to leave the town, said that he was acting under the direction of a committee of 100 citizens, who had been deputized to do the work. The committee of 100 was composed of the best men in the town, the sheriff said, and they had been deputized because they had been unable to get any other men to do the work.

The men who were loaded on the cattle cars were given a ride over the same road they had taken when they first came to the town. The road runs through a very rough country, and it was over this road that the union men had been hauled when they first came to the town to take up the work of organizing the miners of the district.

Sheriff Mahoney said that he had been in fear that there would be a repetition of the dynamite outrage of last July if the union men were allowed to remain in the town, and he had ordered them to leave for the sake of peace and quietness. The sheriff said that he had been in fear that the union men would blow up the mill of the Smuggler-Union company, which was the cause of much bloodshed in the past, and that the mill was the only one in the district that had been left in operation during the strike of the miners last summer.

NATURE'S OWN CURE.

Not until Hyomei was discovered has it been possible to truthfully say that a remedy for catarrh was known. This remedy is breathed through the Hyomei inhaler for a few minutes four times a day, and during that time every particle of air taken into the air passages and lungs is impregnated with the germ killing and health giving Hyomei. It is the only treatment that cures catarrh.

Stomach drugging often causes disordered digestion or brings on some other diseases and never makes a permanent cure of catarrh. Hyomei not only kills the germs in the throat and nose but penetrates to the minutest air cells in the lungs and cures the blood with the oxygen, killing the germs in the blood. It frees the system completely from poisonous excretes and gives perfect health.

A complete outfit costs but $1.00, and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for several weeks treatment.

F. N. Chapel & Co. have so much faith in the merits of Hyomei that they agree to return the money to any purchaser who may be dissatisfied.

Meanwhile, the brother and sister had followed the signal light to a convenient buttonhole, but they found themselves in one of the prettiest parts in the house. Thus the general gradually sidetrod down an old lane, finding a large bush in the center of which there was a point. The house, some of the windows of which twinkle overgreen with the adorable ivy, and there the couple upon a long bench, full beside, engaged in filling a row with the repast of the interior. Jones and Lydia were not at same mess, and watched the lovers.

"What harmony is she picking?" the lovers inquired of her brother. "Are they good to eat?"

Peace, with all the consequence of a spoiled boy, bestowed to the girl who had counted in her tatters, and was slowly scattering them.

"Is some bees, young sir. How are you, pa? Is you ever tasted pigeon food?"

She put the box behind her, but quite long enough some fine branches that lay on the bench, and Jones, who was a bit, and proof of doing as she was bid she's been spoiling on the bench, and I wish wah her and mend her! Ain't it enough to injure anything good and natural?"

The general cast one swift glance at the dusty ruined flower before him, and frowned in vigorous fashion.

"Lydia's child! Good heavens!"

"Why, sometimes I think so, too," said Mrs. Price hauled her adopted away, reduction her progress in the direction of ruffs, to which the broken-spirited girl attempted to cling.

CHAPTER III.

Before the close of another week the unknown and his lady had departed, Miss Hill had returned to her friends, charmed at being free from the whispered axes from Wyatt that she should have from him; and Mrs. Lennox was left in solitary possession of Mrs. Price's apartments.

To one fresh from a public school in a big metropolis, the country seemed to be a secluded farm-house. Neither was Mr. Hayden the most cheerful of companions for an invalid. He would disappear for hours on exercise bonds for an hour at a time, but these were subjects to gall and fret, and Lydia was state. However, Dary had a fund of amusement in his own active mind. He read a great deal, thought as much, and when he grew tired of both, he contrived to draw out of an excellent comforting magic approach to defending the rear.

"It's hard on me, he sets in the end right one evening, when she for was so lonely that a half-dozen door bellies in the garden, and a quiet, playing at large, hide-and-seek proposition, which had been the delight of Lydia's life. The man had been in the house, and Dary, who was a little fellow, was in the garden, and he was a little fellow, and he was a little fellow, and he was a little fellow

"Yes, and too shy," she replied. "They were blushing about it the emphasis on my name that I got into a sweating rage. I'm sure I'm not the first, nor shall I be."

Miss Dove's original, and old Mrs. Pyne had dared—and once in their lifetime, too, at—Cleemore was proclaimed sufficiently commemorated to procure a meeting-place, there to settle his strength before crossing the sea.

Meanwhile, at home, Mr. Hudson was to accompany him, but Wrath, on a moonlight night for the young people, a departure, with noisy expressions of regret, accompanied by both in the lovers' family. A brother to whom he was strongly attached was dead, and had left his affairs in great disorder. The loss of the family head to Wrath is serious, and he had already sent on to Central Glenargtire explaining the reason he was compelled to dismiss his attendants.

There was noisy, and he quickly said Wrath had been very attentive to him and he was still one week out to visit the site of his mission. But more than one lady for it, and after confidant there had long been sound talk on this subject, was prevailed for his guidance, and said Mr. Hudson to his wife was away from the old farm house.

Wrath stood in the porch, lingering as if at a distance from the sun was ready, suddenly, hesitatingly, as if the wearer's mind was made up, and he was about to leave regime with a sweet frank smile, and he said, in a voice—

"Now, I'm called triumphantly at the door."

"Did I not tell you so? Which one?"

"That is just the last time I have to bother about the lady's maid."

"Well, I'm sure, I'm very glad to hear it. Now, mind, you shall be treated as a friend."

"Yes, and I will soon excuse me for my whether—although I'm sure I ought to be the best judge of what I ought to do—I'm sure I ought to be the best judge of what I ought to do."

"Well, she—I'll talk to her in time now; and now you had better let me go."

Wrath kiss his wand so far that the lady in question in the door to a place he stood he questioned her concerning Eddie's parentage, and received the sweet account—that she had given to General information. He let her [illegible] her complaints of her own cruelties in recollection with the effect before he made any comment upon it.

"Well, I'm sure strange that you gained no one to the real name of the actual who took Eddie's cradle image. Were there no letters, no papers found after the event?"

"Why, where should they be found? Did you ever hear of a person keep with nothing but what he stood upon? Is There was a little black cardcase in his pocket when she fled, but there were letters in it—not of a kind to be made any use of, or even transferring that the master couldn't make nothing out on them. I'm sure I'm tired of the sight of them."

"Will you show me the contents of this cardcase?" asked Wrath. "It is the other of the pin could be found; perhaps some be a clue to be in it. Dad."

"Dad," said the young amazement, "Dad, what's the matter?"

Application of Fertilizers.

Charlevoix Mich. 26, 1904.

To THE EDITOR:

Since the farmer again will be called upon to prepare his fields for spring crops. Among things that will require his attention the question of fertilizing will be many or has paramount. He is no longer of the old time opinion that it must be left to the soil and the weather to grow what they like to. He now knows that he himself is a factor in the growth of crops. He has power to think and comprehend the benefits of science, and subsequently to apply them in his farm work, in case produces of such crops as he has in mind when putting the plough in the ground.

Also there are still a good many farmers who, although perceiving very well the utility of applying fertilizers, leave it to others, think too farmers, to do their thinking as to the kind of fertilizer.

The manufacturers of fertilizers being well aware of the shortcomings of of such farmers, do all they can to make a sale (too easy for them, and in really good faith). They know that crops need three principal substances that must be contained in a plantfood, nitrogen potash and phosphorus and they also know that these must be in a form soluble in water, as they assume crops, though all dependent upon a combination of these three substances, yet appropriate them in proportions to each other widely different. Then they make compositions particularly rich in potash and put it on the market branded Potato fertilizer, and other brand rich in nitrogen is called Grain fertilizer, and other rich in potash and low in nitrogen is particularly suited for legumes. A fourth with a more narrow ratio of all three elements may only be called Seed fertilizer.

The manufacturer knows still more, namely, that there are soils that enter by nature or from some other reason have a native treasure of one or two of the constituents of plantfood, but are deficient in another. So he composes fertilizers out of proportion for the requirement of any crops.

Then there are on the market the pure home made fertilizer, strip Peruvian, high percentage of phosphate of lime, nitrate of soda, a pure nitrogen fertilizer, and kali salts a high grade Potash fertilizer. Being honest in his dealings with the farmer, the manufacturer not only guarantees a fair analysis of his brands but invites counter analysis.

With an expert criterion on the part of the manufacturer and the agents one would think it very easy to select the proper fertilizer for any crop. But there is none. The manufacturer may know all about fertilizer and crops, but he can not know the state and condition of your field in. Its a knowledge of your field alone will enable you to avoid mistakes in selecting fertilizers especially in regard to the question of time economy.

Telling you that for potatoes you should use 400 lbs per acre of a special brand can be no more than a guess work. The figures do not rest on scientific principle and the best that can be said of them is that they are backed by some stray experience where they worked all right from exercise has that may or may not be present in your case.

Remember that a crop must find its food in available form in the 1 to 1 foot of native or surface soil. If there is not enough of it in a year to feed a crop as may be reasonably expected from half soil, the science of fertilizing enables you to furnish that food and furnish it in the right proportion of its elements.

The deal attention therefore, in deciding upon a fertilizer for a special crop should be given to the state of fertility the field is in. There are four ways to ascertain this more or less approximately: 1. By chemical analysis of the soil. 2. By experiments. 3. By estimate, and 4. by figuring based on previous experience. The two last ways are at best fallible but inpracticable on the average farm, the third is more guess work, the fourth affords some reliability in so far as experience may be expressed in figures that can be benefited by every intelligent farmer.

To illustrate: A 10 acre plot of an average sandy loam in Northern Michigan bore corn in 1903, wheat in Oats in 1903, and for some reason is intended to again be seeded with corn in 1904. Except a meager application of rain washed and ill treated barn manure for wheat in 1902, nothing was done to disclose the latent natural fertility of the land, neither by the way of careful ploughing in fall and deeper ploughing, nor in that of correct potation and judicious manuring. The outlook for the 1904 corn crop therefore is the same as previously in 1903—50 bu. per acre at most from 500 lbs. coba and 2000 lbs. stalks.

Now let us make those figures have a native treasure of one or two of the constituents of plantfood, but are deficient in another. So he composes fertilizers out of proportion for the requirement of any crops.

Then there are on the market the pure home made fertilizer, strip Peruvian, high percentage of phosphate of lime, nitrate of soda, a pure nitrogen fertilizer, and kali salts a high grade Potash fertilizer. Being honest in his dealings with the farmer, the manufacturer not only guarantees a fair analysis of his brands but invites counter analysis.

With an expert criterion on the part of the manufacturer and the agents one would think it very easy to select the proper fertilizer for any crop. But there is none. The manufacturer may know all about fertilizer and crops, but he can not know the state and condition your field in. Its a knowledge of your field alone will enable you to avoid mistakes in selecting fertilizers especially in regard to the question of time economy.

Telling you that for potatoes you should use 400 lbs per acre of a special brand can be no more than

CHICAGO LAWYER FILES BILL FOR INJUNCTION.

Wants to Keep All Vessels Back—Claiming Illegal Dumping of Bottoms Into the Lake—Also Wants Damages for Twenty Thousand Persons in Texas Town.

Chicago, Ill. (Special.)—A novel suit was filed in the United States circuit court here yesterday by Attorney Thomas Prentiss Kennedy of Kansas City, representing the Texas town of Port Arthur, Tex., in which the city of Port Arthur asks for an injunction against the city of Chicago to prevent the dumping into the lake of the bottoms of the Chicago drainage canal, which, it is claimed, will eventually find its way into the Texas port. The suit has been in the making for some time, and has the largest team and equipment ever used in the city of Port Arthur for the purpose of bringing the suit out of town. It consists of a team of twenty-four horses, twenty wagons, one carriage and twenty men, who have been traveling through the country for the purpose of serving notices on the people of the intention of the Port Arthur people to bring the suit. The suit is for $20,000,000 damages, and is brought in the name of the city of Port Arthur, on behalf of the 20,000 people who live in the city. The complaint in the case is very long, and it takes the team and twenty men to carry it. The complaint alleges that the Port Arthur people have a right to the water in question, and that the dumping of the bottoms of the Chicago drainage canal into the lake will so pollute the water that it will be unfit for human beings to use it. The complaint also Wyeth could not suppose the departure till the train actually Mrs. Grice saw on that had been in vain and. Not a creature had sent Lance from the children were sent off to school and Mrs. Grice was pregnant. At last Wyeth remembering that he had to write to her upon Lady Jane's birthday, he "combed business office. When he had taken his seat in a corner and was busily engaged in writing some kilkpence and Mr. Price's appeared.

CHAPTER IV.

"Those are for the children to buy sweetties with. You'll send me a letter about those papers when you've found the girl, won't you?"

"Yes, I think I can will find her. Mr. Wyeth" said the solicitor, with white lips and trembling smile. She had been disturbed by a bad dream on the previous night, and was conscious enough in consequence of a nervous headache.

Wyeth insisted. "Not that, sir, I'll do the business."

Mr. Price chuckled but hastily. "I'll thought then I'm too fine into written work."

The clerk of the solicitor's trip was the same off as a time before the train finished by the time Wyeth had gone up to his lodgings to pay an old woman who had been his landlady.

Thereafter, Lance was left to himself to be motured. "My dear sir," said the office will consider any fate preferable to sending anyone down here."

He did not relish the sullenness shown after the letter was delivered. Perhaps it was not another day the two knew that he knew it was with nothing resembling

"Why, sir?" he stood sullen to ask.

"Look here, Lance," said the lawyer, "I'll wash you to the next station."

Lance was sullen, with his hands and some little schoolboy in the other. He was sullen and sullen, and was sullen of the first time of rising present to him with cast his eyes upon the lawyer. He was potentially begun to descend the hill and approach the Lestelle Arms, and from from which skirted the hotel.

And not the sullenness of having already one of Dacre Lennoxe's favorite horses. After a good deal of trouble and carnoisy sound from. The rites gave so nearly together as to have a dark shade on over the subdued spot, and he did not perceive it was from a cabriolet. He saw but vaguely at his approach from the opposite direction emerging the from that grew fortuitously beside a large dark. But on the the dark spot emerged, he was aware of a tall form and a pair of profound eyes looking down on him.

Her Whose face looked enough in this moment to be a pretty face—a face that long ago so he could forget—looked down on him with a pitying smile. Her hand was held forward to the cabriolet, and the hand was a pretty one, too, and looked well in the glove. Lance, embarrassed with dread at the sight of her, was conscious of a sense of pleasure, pain, pathetic and amusing for pleasure. A dream of making her pay for the sight of her, and of making him take a child and mending for him some of the lost years, flashed through and Dacre to his mind in current per and he was aware of a sense of shock and shock.

"I don't know now are one of them. I would suppose feeling like that, as you, my dear boy, not to remember when you are a child for your elder and wiser. Ask me any question, sir, and I will answer you and have my conduct assent to your wishes."

"You think, then, that I do not know what I want, and need a full change?"

"I think that marriages are hastily contracted and repented in the sober light of day. Better that you should wait for a year, and then, if you still offer of your should repeat my here offer."

Dacey admitted that there was justice in the proposal, and that he was not quite be very much troubled at the prospect of a long delay.

"If this is your decision, sir, I think that the kind of coaching in England with you I shall pass some friends, who are proposing a tour in France. We may go further, and penetrate into Tartary or Kamtschatka, if you wish so, for the reason we shall."

"An excellent idea" should this Percy to accompany you, but on another point I must be firm. I will not take a penny from her boy. And how long do you propose to be gone?"

"This was a question Dacey could not answer. He confessed he attached these notes to an experienced savant, who was planning a tour in Central Asia, and he should, if the general refused him the offer, be sure to accept it. He said he would rather spend the greatest part of the interval in safety, and he was little inclined to leave the country, little disposed to be out of the reach of his friends, and to be in a place where he was not known to be a rich man."

Dacey was ordered on. His greeting was cheerful, as well as cordial, and, in a few minutes the pride and hollow were nothing together as rough as of old.

"And so you come from the Hibiscus? From the mountains of Asia to the West End of the metropolis in the height of the season?" the general observed with a smile. "Thus the sublime to the ridiculous, truly. You will find London society very tame after tiger shooting and elephant.

"Not if the fame of old friends were a welcome one." Dacey replied. "Mrs. and Miss Grice—they have and well?"

"Ha! quite well. I have seen your second, sir, on one her without a pang of uneasiness since if you have not grown your hands tanny. She is very gay and much admired."

Dacey made no direct answer to this, contented himself with repeating his inquiry for Miss Gloucestershire.

"She has gone to Brighton for a few days taking Ida with her." the general replied, with a frank sigh. "Her health has been impaired of late by so much and gaiety."

Dacey was surprised to hear this, for he was one of those people who see what they want, and Miss Grice was the cynosure of all eyes.

"Are she not ask after Percy?" smile, the general. "We neither see nor hear of him. He has taken chambers in the Albany. He contact of late his varied on the greatest assurance. His mother's letter to him, I suppose, surprised him, and he avoids us."

"I suppose I can guess what is amiss," said Dacey, cheerfully. "Percy has been extravagant, as lads will be who belong to smart regiments and are fond of fun and sport. You must pardon a few lad sins in consideration of his warm heart and noble generosities for you."

The general was a courteous host, and it should his guests to remain, and use to persuade how deep his entrapment from his only son was troubling him. But Dacey Lennoxe was one of the few in whom men intuitively respect, and who inspire had hidden his anxiety till they grew intolerable.

"If you knew all!" he sighed. "He is impulsive, and I suppose generous and confiding. If in these two qualities that are exhausting him to such a well that I needless for to think of it, I have been too fond of my boy. Dacey—you are a man of the world—tell me if you quite me?"

"I suppose we I can conclude from what you have been saying, that Percy has contracted a secret for attorney?"

"Yes, his extravagance has been so great that I have been obliged to meet the greatest assurance. His mother's letter to him, I suppose, surprised him, and he avoids us."

"I suppose I can guess what is amiss," said Dacey, cheerfully. "Percy has been extravagant, as lads will be who belong to smart regiments and are fond of fun and sport. You must pardon a few lad sins in consideration of his warm heart and noble generosities for you."

"Yes, I do." said Wyeth, "for she is one of the girls of the time. Mr. Price, I'll wash you to the next station."

Lance was sullen, with his hands and some little schoolboy in the other. He was sullen and sullen, and was sullen of the first time of rising present to him with cast his eyes upon the lawyer. He was potentially begun to descend the hill and approach the Lestelle Arms, and from from which skirted the hotel.

And not the sullenness of having already one of Dacre Lennoxe's favorite horses. After a good deal of trouble and carnoisy sound from. The rites gave so nearly together as to have a dark shade on over the subdued spot, and he did not perceive it was from a cabriolet. He saw but vaguely at his approach from the opposite direction emerging the from that grew fortuitously beside a large dark. But on the the dark spot emerged, he was aware of a tall form and a pair of profound eyes looking down on him.

Her Whose face looked enough in this moment to be a pretty face—a face that long ago so he could forget—looked down on him with a pitying smile. Her hand was held forward to the cabriolet, and the hand was a pretty one, too, and looked well in the glove. Lance, embarrassed with dread at the sight of her, and of making her pay for the sight of her, and of making him take a child and mending for him some of the lost years, flashed through and Dacre to his mind in current per and he was aware of a sense of shock and shock.

"I don't know now are one of them. I would suppose feeling like that, as you, my dear boy, not to remember when you are a child for your elder and wiser. Ask me any question, sir, and I will answer you and have my conduct assent to your wishes."

"You think, then, that I do not know what I want, and need a full change?"

"I think that marriages are hastily contracted and repented in the sober light of day. Better that you should wait for a year, and then, if you still offer of your should repeat my here offer."

Dacey admitted that there was justice in the proposal, and that he was not quite be very much troubled at the prospect of a long delay.

"If this is your decision, sir, I think that the kind of coaching in England with you I shall pass some friends, who are proposing a tour in France. We may go further, and penetrate into Tartary or Kamtschatka, if you wish so, for the reason we shall."

"An excellent idea" should this Percy to accompany you, but on another point I must be firm. I will not take a penny from her boy. And how long do you propose to be gone?"

"This was a question Dacey could not answer. He confessed he attached these notes to an experienced savant, who was planning a tour in Central Asia, and he should, if the general refused him the offer, be sure to accept it. He said he would rather spend the greatest part of the interval in safety, and he was little inclined to leave the country, little disposed to be out of the reach of his friends, and to be in a place where he was not known to be a rich man."

Dacey was ordered on. His greeting was cheerful, as well as cordial, and, in a few minutes the pride and hollow were nothing together as rough as of old.

"And so you come from the Hibiscus? From the mountains of Asia to the West End of the metropolis in the height of the season?" the general observed with a smile. "Thus the sublime to the ridiculous, truly. You will find London society very tame after tiger shooting and elephant.

"Not if the fame of old friends were a welcome one." Dacey replied. "Mrs. and Miss Grice—they have and well?"

"Ha! quite well. I have seen your second, sir, on one her without a pang of uneasiness since if you have not grown your hands tanny. She is very gay and much admired."

Dacey made no direct answer to this, contented himself with repeating his inquiry for Miss Gloucestershire.

"She has gone to Brighton for a few days taking Ida with her." the general replied, with a frank sigh. "Her health has been impaired of late by so much and gaiety."

Dacey was surprised to hear this, for he was one of those people who see what they want, and Miss Grice was the cynosure of all eyes.

"Are she not ask after Percy?" smile, the general. "We neither see nor hear of him. He has taken chambers in the Albany. He contact of late his varied on the greatest assurance. His mother's letter to him, I suppose, surprised him, and he avoids us."

"I suppose I can guess what is amiss," said Dacey, cheerfully. "Percy has been extravagant, as lads will be who belong to smart regiments and are fond of fun and sport. You must pardon a few lad sins in consideration of his warm heart and noble generosities for you."

Cure For Mail Order Habit.

Dawn in Manchester, Ohio, they have found what they consider a cure for the mail order evil. The farmers about that town got into the habit of sending to Montgomery Ward & Co. at Chicago for all their supplies, such as machinery, clothing and in fact everything that was used on the farm.

Meanwhile they continued to bring their butter and eggs to the Manchester merchants who bought them and paid cash for them.

So the Manchester merchants held a meeting. They had lots of time to devote to meetings for there was nothing else doing. No trade, no business, no crowds on the streets and in the stores Saturdays, and not a thing to interfere with a three days meeting if they wanted it. The only work they had to do was to weigh butter and and count eggs that were brought in by the farmers when they wanted money to send to help Mr. Ward pay for a new automobile, or to help Mr. Roebuck to pay his son's expenses for a season in Paris.

The Manchester merchants who bought the butter and the eggs and dried apples and other produce they could hardly afford to let the farmers go to the county fair. Besides, he needed him at home to help count eggs.

The merchants talked over all these things among themselves. They decided that there was no money in buying butter and eggs, and they told the farmers that in the future they would have to send their produce to Mr. Ward and to Mr. Roebuck. Now of course capitalist of these astute gentlemen has any use for butter and eggs. All they want is the cash. So the farmers disheartened this and they realized that they had no market and there was no way to raise cash to pay for goods from the mail order house. It was unkind and unpatriotic in the merchants to refuse to buy their butter and eggs, they said, for were they not neighbors?

That was the point. After the farmers had thought a while they discovered that the merchants of Manchester were neighbors too and that they had some right to live. Then they commenced to go to town and buy a few things. The mail order catalogue was pitched into the kitchen stove and in a few days the merchants had money to buy eggs and butter with again.

Now the mail order house is forgotten in the vicinity of Manchester. The merchants buy all the produce of the farmers. The farmers do all the buying at the Manchester stores. This is tough on Mr. Ward and Mr. Roebuck but the Manchester merchants are not worrying. They have no time to worry. They are too busy counting eggs, weighing butter and selling goods to the farmers—Traverse City Eagle.

Annual Township Meeting.

At the annual township meeting Monday the electors took action as follows:

Alex. Ross was elected Overseer of Highways in Dist. No. 1, and A. M. Ross Poundmaster, in Dist. No. 2. George Dennis was elected Overseer and John Wakefield Poundmaster. The sum of five dollars was voted to each district with which to build pounds.

Money to be raised for the several funds as follows: Contingent, $1,000; Bridge, $800; Bond interest, $900; Cemetery, $200; General Highway, 1 of one per cent.

The sum of $200 was transferred from one other fund to library fund.

The sum of $50 was voted to improve the road skirting the lake of Mr. Michaels, $50 for the road between sections 14 and 23, and $100 to improve Norwood road from Chamberlain corners to township line.

NORWOOD NEWS.

There is a strip of open water between here and Fox Island.

At the L. A. S. social Wednesday evening the sum of $7.00 was realized.

There will be no vacation in the school this spring.

J. W. VanDuzen who has been absent all winter in New York on a visit returned last week.

C. W. Smith, of Bay City, son of Mrs. Thomas Wardrop is here and arrangements are being made to erect a lot for $40 at or near the state bridge. Mr. Smith thinks coal will be dumped down through since ease.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Two of our high school students from Dent-n have been obliged to suspend school on account of measles quarantine. They will probably be able to keep up their school work to the end of the year.

The members of the High School chorus recently presented their director, Miss Burr, and their pianist, Miss Miller, with a token of their warm appreciation of the work done in their behalf in connection with the giving of the opera Esther Lindista. Miss Burr received a fine silver mounted toilet set and Miss Miller a silver brush.

Miss Mikonan attended the county conference of county normal students held in Lansing, as a representative of Charlevoix Training School. On account of the floods in southern Michigan she could not return until Tuesday. It was decided not to begin the two years normal course until the one year course had been in operation one or two years longer. By that time it is expected that there will be a sufficient number of candidates to start a strong normal year class.

Obituary.

Mrs. Foster died at the home of her son Mr. W. J. Dunham, in this village Thursday night, of tuberculosis.

Ella Ludington Foster was born in Waukesha Co., in 1850 and was married to Mr. Norris Foster Aug. 20, 1866. She came to Michigan several years ago where she has resided until the time of her death. Deceased was aged 54 years, and leaves a husband besides a large circle of friends and relatives to mourn the loss of an affectionate wife and loving friend, who had ever by her kind and gentle ways lived the love and respect of all who knew her.

On November last she was called to Charlevoix on account of the illness and death of her mother, Mrs. Ludington, and since that time has gradually failed in health until death came to relieve her, which she quietly fell asleep. She was only waiting and watching for the angels to bear her to that home beyond the skies. The funeral services were held from the residence and were conducted by the Rev. Nagler and Hyslop. A large procession followed her to the Charlevoix cemetery where she was laid to rest.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Cooling factories have proven their worth as well at Central Lake and Traverse City that the capital stock of the factory at the former place has been increased from $10,000 to $12,000, while the Traverse City Canning Co will more than treble its business the coming year.

John Cummings of Torch Lake died last Friday of appendicitis and was buried at Traverse City on Monday. He had been sick for some time and an operation was performed but to no avail. Mr. Cummings had been in the employ of the Cameron Lumber Co at Torch Lake for several years as foreman about the yard, and was held in high esteem.

A movement is on foot to establish a sand brick manufactory at Traverse City. It is designed to form a company with a capital of $10,000 and it is stated that with the machinery proposed the capacity would approximate 20,000 finished brick in ten hours. The brick are made with sand and lime and in any color desired, the facing brick being especially fine. It is declared that this brick can be produced as cheaply or cheaper than the ordinary clay brick and in the case of the facing brick at a much less cost.

Petoskey News. While the excursion train which arrives in the city from Cadillac about noon, was approaching Boyne Falls Monday, several of the crew noticed two female running a deer towards the track. The deer on approaching the fence tried to jump it, failed and became entangled in the barbed wire, and before the crew could arrive the hounds had made short work of the deer's large doe as it proved to be. One of the hounds was killed by the crew but the other escaped. The deer was heavy with fawn or it undoubtedly would have escaped from the dogs.

Hooke Lists His Horse.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Rev. James Hyslop, Ph.D. Pastor.

The Easter-tide services were well attended and very helpful.

Easter was appropriately celebrated with interesting services both morning and evening. The music was exceptionally good according to current remarks, and the congregations were large.

The pastor made special reference at the morning service to his work during the four years of his ministry in Charlevoix.

The funeral of Arthur Eaglerton was held in the afternoon and hundreds of people could not be accommodated, so great was the public interest in the sad event and sympathy for the bereaved parents and friends.

The Y. P. S. C. E. will hold a warm Maple sugar social in the church parlors next Tuesday evening from 7 o'clock to 9 o'clock. Ten cents will be charged. A pleasant time anticipated.

Saves Two From Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. E. Hood, of Atlanta, N. Y., "but, when all other remedies failed we saved her with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our sister, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and to day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1 at Bulkes drug store. Every $1 Bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free.

Republican County Convention.

A Republican County Convention for the County of Charlevoix will be held at Boyne City on the Tuesday next succeeding the publication of the call for the primary election, to be held on the Tuesday next succeeding the first Monday in May, for the purpose of electing delegates to attend the Republican National Convention, to nominate a candidate for Representative in the state legislature, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention. The primary election will be held at the several places of voting in the several townships and wards in the county, for the purpose of electing delegates to the Republican county convention. The apportionment of delegates to said county convention is as follows:

Eastport 2 Boyne Valley 3 Hudson 2
Charlevoix 6 Evangeline 3 Norwood 2
Hayes 3 Marion 1 Nowland 2 Melrose 1
Newstead 2 Peaine 2 South Arm 12 Wilson 1

Excess in any township or ward to be apportioned to the Boyne City County Com. Chairman.—Clerk.

DO NOT DOSE THE STOMACH.

Nearly every one who has catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it by dragging the stomach. Temporary relief may be given, but a cure seldom comes.

Until recently our physician would have said the only way to cure catarrh would be to have a change of climate, but now with Hyomei you can carry a health giving climate in your vest pocket and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day soon cure yourself.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1 and will convince of its labors that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and if one bottle does not cure an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows nature in her method of curing diseases of the respiratory organs.

N. Chapel & Co. have sold a great many Hyomei outfits and the more they sell, the more convinced are they that they are perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomei does not cure.

A NIGHT IN THE TELEGRAPH ROOM ABOARD A LINER.

Young Marconi Man Has Now Come to Be a Recognized Feature of Sea Travel—His Status on Shipboard Is That of a Subaltern Officer.

Under a quiet sky, in fair weather, a steamship of the French line plows from this work. Now hardly a week goes by that we do not hear of a new ship equipped, or a new line installing, and the Marconi man finds himself a thing more than a novelty. I have traversed with him and will show describe a voyage upon with him aboard the ship.

A hot wind blows in from the south-west, all the windows and the ship sailing slowly through seas so still that it hardly rocks at all. Still in midstream Hilaire on the promenade deck, the sun almost hazed now and then a gulf stream cloudlike that seemed to come from somewhere in the air above the ship, a gentle breeze ruffling the water, and the Marconi man had his experiment. He had fitted up a corner of the staff of barracks which has been assigned to him, and made them acquainted with the ship, and made them acquainted with the ship, and made them acquainted with the ship

DISTRICT DEPUTY SYSTEM.

Some Facts Relative to This Important Feature of Grange Work.

The district deputy system is in operation in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Maine and Michigan. In New Hampshire and Massachusetts the district system has been in use for several years and has proved its great value in promoting the growth and welfare of the grange. In comparison, east in Michigan and Maine is more recent, but the results are very satisfactory.

New Hampshire has a general deputy, two Pomona deputies, four special deputies and thirty-three district deputies, each of the latter with eight subordinate granges in charge. The system has been in use longer than the subordinate grange is visited once each year by the district deputy and instruction in grange work. A different report of each institution, for which special blanks are furnished, is made to the general deputy, in which the efficiency of the officers, work and literary work of the grange is reported to the deputy on the work of the Pomona deputies in addition to the general deputy's report to the grange.

The state grange offers annual prizes to the Pomona and subordinate granges for excellence in literary work. A series of competitive examinations is arranged in which the subordinate granges in each district elective compete in picking such grange being represented by two members at alternate meetings. The district deputy acts the work. Prizes are also offered for degree work in both Pomona and subordinate granges. The deputies are paid $2 for each of the two days they make annually in each grange, the pay being their only expenses. The state grange pays the deputies' actual expenses for their share in 1894 general conference, one day in January and one in October, for hotel, etc.

Master Lelah says of the deputy system in Massachusetts: "I consider our deputy work as a very essential part of our grange work. We have one general deputy, three Pomona deputies and twenty state deputies, who have the entire charge of the secret work. My deputies make the work very much better perfect but we must omit a year or two, as the high deputy is engaged in a new and difficult grange to be set up, the state assessor making the assessment. The principal feature of our system is having the deputies and state masters know the secret work of the work used to have years ago, so in this system because we have two in the state could give the work alone. You would indeed be surprised I think the improvement of the work of granges since we have begun to go through in our direction work. At our state session I have four of the deputies give the secret work by degrees."

Master Horton says of the deputy system of organizing in Michigan: "We have had such a large growth of degrees and subordinate granges in our state, and it has demanded the work of a large number of deputies, which is entirely free and clear from the expensive part of it. This new department is such a supervision of supervising department. The state is divided into three districts and a sufficient deputy selected for each, and the whole is also the charge of one general deputy. These district officers are to visit their charges, giving necessary attention to the work and to perform such other duties as may be required by the constitution."

Master Gardner of Maine, in speaking of the district system says: "The district system is force in our state, and does degree work in the subordinate granges in a very creditable manner. Our deputies are instructed to visit each grange once a year, and report to the state master, making the

DAY OF A THOUSAND YEARS

And one star falls to earth!
The bell strikes!
Tell the people of upper zone why its star fell!
And echo it till time
And whirling out of the silence
A world of million angels
In an upward rush, through the curious
Inside
And in day, is a thousand years

And one star sings to another
And one holds speech with star,
Wonder the darting star of a million years
Shows another world begun
But we come time for a dawning
Or mark it in twilight fall,
But the star sing on where the years are gone
And the star sing on.

The words and hopes and doubting
The pot and the pleasure and grief
And the pine dew of a million years
Where a star fell or time ha lasted
A star is born and a star is lost
Or the beginning and end
A star sing a song by the light
Are what time are after all
And one star calls to another
Song was one and song was all
Calls a distant star in a long ago
As far apart and far
And so many time in a minute
And commonness and commonness
Are the same song on when the sun
Sing and sing
And a day is a thousand years.

Does she realize what he is suffering? Does she know that he is sacrificing everything for her? Does she know that he is ready to give up his fortune to waste, and—

"Ned, I love you."

"Ah, I shall go liberal and marry Vicki Vanderpool and irrigate." Is he sure he meant it? Is he sure of himself? Is he sure of his strength? Does she know what he is suffering

A Paper Read Before the Academy of Science at Ann Arbor Michigan, April 29th, Chas. S. Wheeler, Chief Deputy Game and Fish Warden.

I take it as a great honor to me personally, as well as a compliment to the department with which I am connected, to be called upon by your society to discuss the very important question of the fishes of our great lakes—their protection and perpetuation—and while it would not be possible to fully cover the subject in the limited time at my command, even were I competent to do so, I sincerely trust I may be able to advance some new ideas on the subject of the fish depletion in these waters—its cause and the remedy.

The improvidence of man has seldom if ever been more clearly shown than in his handling of the food fishes in the great unsalted seas of the northwest—A natural asset of a value so great as to be almost beyond computation.

When the redman was moved westward to make way for the white, they left the waters of these lakes teeming with white-fish and trout, and for nearly a hundred years the supply remained apparently undiminished, notwithstanding nothing was done in the way of protecting them. They did however, was practically confined to the positive conclusions to these waters, and it was not until the advent of the railroads made rapid transportation possible, and the cold storage plants which have solved the problem of preserving the fish in their form of state for an almost unlimited period of time, that the work of depletion began, and was carried on without legislative restraint for a score of years, and it was only when the rapid advance in the price of that valuable article of food attracted the attention of our citizens, that the legislatures of the various states bordering on these waters took up the question and commenced to enact laws for the protection and preservation of fish in the waters of the Great Lakes.

In the framing of these laws they were confronted with two theories for the protection of fish and the replenishing of the water.

First—By protecting the fish by prohibiting their being taken during their respective spawning seasons, and by prohibiting the taking of immature fish at any time.

Second—By artificial propagation.

The first named theory is based upon the assumption that nature will take care of her own, and that if the fish are left unmolested by man until they have arrived at an age that will insure their having spawned naturally at least once, and prohibiting the use of any fishing appliance whatever during the natural breeding season of these fishes, they would themselves eventually repopulate the waters now nearly if not quite barren of fish life and where formerly they were found in almost limitless numbers. Along these lines Michigan now has a law in force, prohibiting the marketing or having in possession of any whitefish weighing less than two pounds, or any lake trout weighing less than one and one half pounds, and another section of the same statute prohibits the use of nets in the waters of the great lakes within the jurisdiction of this state from October 20th to December 15th of each year. Canada and most of the states bordering on these waters have similar laws on their statute books.

In behalf of the second theory it is claimed that owing to the very loose and curious manner both whitefish and trout have of casting their spawn, a very small percentage of the eggs from natural spawning become fertilized, and are therefore lost entirely, while if these eggs could have been taken and manured by the fish hatcheries, a very large proportion of the eggs so handled, (usually 85 or 90 per cent) could be artificially fertilized and returned to their native waters as live and healthy fish fry. All of the states bordering on the great lakes have Boards of Fish Commissioners, provided with hatcheries, and supplied with large sums annually for the artificial hatching of fish, and the federal government spend several hundred thousand dollars each year to the same work.

The first theory assumes that natural laws cannot be improved upon. The second theory, that they can.

The Department of Game and Fish Wardens of this state is endorsed firmly by the theory of natural propagation, and a careful, practical protection to the gravest as well as to the spawning fish, believing the work of artificial propagation is of secondary importance, to be confined to the hatching of only such species of fishes as has been demonstrated by actual and positive experience will live after being planted.

In order that it may not be misunderstood on the subject I mean to state that personally I very much doubt if the artificial hatching of the fishes, or the planting in the waters of the great lakes is of any value whatever, and in support of this contention would say that twenty five years ago the owner of the whitefishing industry on Lake Michigan was off the point of Grand Haven. The use of small meshed nets and the consequent taking of immature fish had entirely depopulated these waters of whitefish, and there has not been a single whitefish taken in the waters of Lake Michigan south of Manistee during the past five years, and within the boundaries of this state, notwithstanding the United States and State Fish Commissions have for the past fifteen years annually planted in these waters millions of whitefish fry. I believe there is a reason for this. The whitefish is a very delicate fish in fish propagation in hatcheries, and fails as many pass to almost every other species of fishes. And so far as my observation goes, and I have taken considerable trouble to inform myself upon the subject, the smart fry are never planted on the natural spawning grounds where it is fair to presume they would find suitable food and be protected with shelter from their natural enemies, but are taken out a mile or so from whatever place they are to be planted, iced, and dumped into the water to shift for themselves.

My friend Clark, then whom there is no more affable gentleman on earth, and whom from his long continued service in the work of the artificial propagation of fishes was thought by Hawaiians with the birds, "knows their ways and all their secrets", will undoubtedly endorse a strong protest against this proposition, but it is my honest, candid opinion, based upon careful observations made during the years of service in the work of planting game and fish in this state, that absolutely no results have been obtained from the artificial hatching of whitefish and planting in the waters of the great lakes, and I ask any gentleman who may differ from me on this point to show me a single fishing ground where the whitefish have evidently disappeared, and where the planting of artificially hatched fry has resulted in the enlargement of a single adult whitefish.

I may go further and say I believe it will be claimed by the advocates of artificial propagation that whitefish are migratory in their habits to such an extent that they will not return year after year to the same spawning grounds to deposit their eggs and yet notwithstanding the United States hatcheries have each year for the past ten years planted in the waters of the Detroit river more than one hundred million whitefish fry, where net fishing is absolutely prohibited at all times, last year the United States Commission were unable to take enough whitefish to supply them with sufficient spawn to fill their hatchery, and the reason they give is that during the extreme warm weather in the early fall the fish did not rise during that period, while the sudden change to extreme cold caused the fish to rise so rapidly they did not have time to get to their spawning grounds, and compelled them to cast their spawn where they happened to be, but gentle men that is not the reason.

The fish have disappeared. From their spawning grounds to their feeding grounds takes them outside of the protected zone, and they have been taken by the Dominion fishers under natural reproduction has repopulated the waters and they have been year by year steadily gleaning the cream of the Canadian waters, and I am willing to concede that if you somewhere find it possible to secure enough adult fish from which to take spawn.

The excuse of the whitefishing industry on Lake Michigan is to-day the Beaver Islands, where notwithstanding all that has been said about the enforcement at this point violating the fish laws, I assure you they have in some respects done more to protect their own industry than have the fishermen in any other locality of which I know. They have never allowed the use of small mesh nets, for any purpose, and regardless of what the statute law may be, the fishermen who make pickerel or catch for trough fish set a small mesh gill on the whitefish or trout grounds off the Beaver is dead. I can tell you, I will offer one interview with these hardy islanders are usually willing to serve to some extent as a society.

To conclude, I have discussed the question assigned me from my individual standpoint, and while in the theory advanced I have undoubtedly antagonized the pet theories of some of my personal friends, what I have said is my honest view, and is given for what they are worth. I believe if we would perpetuate this great industry and leave to coming generations a share of this most valuable natural asset, we should protect spawning fishes at all times, and allowing their respective spawning seasons spending less money in artificially hatching out, and more in properly planting the fry and protecting them after they are planted, planting only such species as experience has demonstrated will live and thrive. I thank you gentlemen for listening so to much of your valuable time.

MARINE NEWS.

The steamer Pine Lake has been brought down to the bridge from her winter moorings, and her fitting out is rapidly progressing.

Engineer Sherman began fitting out the steamer Beaver Monday morning, and it is hoped to make a trip to the Beaves within a week.

The steamer Islander opened navigation for seven Mackinac Island and Petoskey. The ice in the straits is not moving much but is pretty soft.

Capt. P. H. Campbell has been in Manistee this week arranging for the shipment of a new boiler for the Harbor Springs ferry steamer (since spring.

The ice in Pine Lake shows no signs of breaking up, but it is thought to be in good shape for a quick collapse after a few days of warm weather.

Of the fishing tug fleet the following masters were appointed: Minnie Warren, Capt. Ed. Martin; J. H. Green, Capt. Nordrum; Peerless, Capt. P. McCafferty; J. W. Parmelee, Capt. Wm. Cross.

The schooner E. B. Maxwell, long engaged in the lumber trade between Chicago and northern ports, has been sold by her owner, Capt. Jas. Hansen of Milwaukee, to Lake Erie parties. The consideration is said to have been $4500.

In the midst of the heavy gale that swept the store Monday night from the west the log John Canfield was broke of Point Sable and three lives were lost. They were Capt Henry Smith, engineer Chas. Kepler and cook William Jostmann, all of Manistee.

George G. Scott is prepared to trim and preserve trees and shrubbery, address him at Charlevoix, post office. Michigan. 26.

SCHOOL NOTES.

A reproduction of Guido Reni's celebrated painting, "Aurora leading the Dawn," in the original colors has been hung in the High School room over the principal's desk. It was purchased from the fund derived from the cantata of Queen Esther. Taken good look at it when you hear the Hawthorne Club Thursday evening.

A committee consisting of F. J. Mosch, Dr. Andrews and the Board of Education to suggest some plans for improving and beautifying our school grounds. This is no time with recommendations recently sent out by the State Superintendent. It is expected that a beginning in this direction will be made in connection with Arbor Day.

The students of the High School and of the seventh and eighth grades were entertained on Monday evening after school with a number of phonograph selections, a similar entertainment being given to the other grades in the Central Building on Tuesday evening. This music was supplied through the courtesy of Mr. Hall who is here representing the interests of the International Correspondence school of Scranton, Pa.

The Charlevoix Choir farted at Appleton as expected last week. A subsequent telegram and letter from the leader, Professor Brown explains that the company were injured in a wreck and notice of this fact had been sent out by a letter as early as January 5th. For some reason Mr. Howe never received this notification. The Harris now offers a number of substitute attractions to all their contracts this year, with the possible of giving the Kaffir Hops next year.

LESTELLE

By the Author of "The Rose and Shamrock," Etc.

"Two years ago, one very balmy evening, I strolled to Hurst, the Hills and I were old friends and I wanted to have a little quiet my pets. I am so much obliged to you. What should I have done if you had not been here?"

Then, startled into remembrance that the cause of his visit was still more pleased, she moved towards the bell, saying, with some embarrassment, "I have detained you unnecessarily. Do you want to see Miss Hilton?"

"I am here to beg a full account concerning with Madame Lestelle. Mademoiselle is indisposed, and the beautiful face glowed and paled, the color he never wanted of stimulating placed at him shyly, and the very moist eyes opened on him a velvet noise in which there was evident recognition.

Mr. Lennox—the neighbor of Gertrude—was a very handsome man, tall and stalwart, and, whose soft, murmuring letters in the newspapers. Ah, no one have heard of you otherwise, either."

"I believe, sir, I have had the pleasure of meeting—Pardon, I forget your name."

"Mr. Lennox, Miss Hilton, I hope you are well."

"Mr. Lennox—the neighbor of Gertrude—was a very handsome man, tall and stalwart, and, whose soft, murmuring letters in the newspapers. Ah, no one have heard of you otherwise, either."

"I believe, sir, I have had the pleasure of meeting—Pardon, I forget your name."

"Mr. Lennox, Miss Hilton, I hope you are well."

"Mr. Paulton, and I, in his place, which she had said in may heart and begin the at was beautiful, and I was so happy, I was quite, quite happy."

"I am sure I am very sorry, and sincerely too, sir, I am."

"Mr. Paulton, sir, said but now that we could not afford an assistant but at present."

He nodded

"Him, sir, quite withdraw your opinion, so find assistant Hurst. I do not intend to play the charmer. Hubert! I have plodded my will to cease, because I felt that I owed my existence, sir, when my heart told me that your mother for me." Hubert! I have plodded my will to cease, because I felt that I owed my existence, sir, when my heart told me that your mother for me." Hubert! I have plodded my will to cease, because I felt that I owed my existence, sir, when my heart told me that your mother for me."

Hubert had not done more than listen to the voice of Lestelle—it possessed that sympathetic charm and gently which distinguished the singing of Jenny Lind, and Percy Lennox entranced. Percy, sir, the sound that had brought him to the house with a sober footpace, and he sole mistress she exercised over him looked to the sudden time wandering charmingly the wings she lured into the enchanted enclosure, of his heart had passed away, and still Lestelle sang on and Percy Lennox leaned on the piano, dwelling his eyes with its hand, his thoughts carried back to earlier days in the Scotch and Irish ballads. Lestelle never glanced towards him. Had she done so, the spell would have been broken. She knew well her power over the musical or much, and wrote with unknowing letters in the newspapers. Ah, no one have heard of you otherwise, either."

As a result on the village hotel some of the young men placed wires across the business street Thursday night and hung lanterns in imitation of arc lights, and for the first time in its history, the business portion of Isle Dayids was artistically lighted. After the lanterns were placed Knox was celebrated by an impromptu display of fireworks. Preparations have been completed to continue this system of lighting for the present, in hope something better may develop there soon.

CANADA AND AMERICA

WHAT CHAMBERLAIN'S TARIFF MEANS.

It is in Our Power, by a Reciprocity Treaty, to Secure the Canadian Markets—Matter Worth Prompt and Serious Thought.

Mr. Chamberlain's scheme," Prophesied Statesman of Council, told the New York Manufacturers' association, "would inevitably ruinous the volume of agricultural products you now send to Great Britain, and the volume of manufactured products you now send to Canada and other British colonies. That such would be the effect of Mr. Chamberlain's policy there can be no doubt. Mr. Chamberlain's plan is to enlarge and make more compact and sufficient the British imperial industrial plant. We do this by more and greater food supplies from within the British empire. That is proposed to be done by giving British colonial agriculture a tariff preference in the British market, thus stimulating its extension.

Then he proposes to protect British manufacture at home by a tariff on foreign manufactures. With the home market thus secured, British manufacture will be strengthened for competition abroad, and especially in the colonies. Canada has already given British manufactures a tariff preference. With a reciprocal preference for her agriculture she would maintain this preference, and perhaps increase it. Other British colonies would facilitate toward a similar exchange of tariff preferences. The result would be enrollment of American exports of both agricultural and manufactured products to the British empire.

It is true that the success of this plan involves a sacrifice by Canada of her aspiration to economic independence. If she accept the Chamberlain plan she must be content to let Great Britain be the mill and Canada only the farm. While farseighted Canadians may see that it would be better in the long run to reject the Chamberlain plan, its adoption offers large immediate profit to the agricultural interest, which in Canada is everywhere lusty enough to dominate the manufacturing interest. It also involves an economic turning away from America, and an economic turning toward Europe, with all the world and political implications of such a change of attitude, which the Canadian spirit is more American than European.

Nevertheless men are want to prefer immediate to remote advantages, and the Canadians are no exception to the rule. Tuesday's news will cheer those eyes to their highest fatuity, welcome to obtain present profits will shown in the line of resistance of the accredited agents to the policy of retaliation. Even to the point of taking up arms the Canadian preferred immediate profit to remote advantage, and the world over it has been demonstrated that the Canadian is no exception to the rule. That being so, unless all evidence will fail Canada's agriculture will prefer the Chamberlain plan. Because it offers immediate profit to agriculture

LABOR FIGHT IS ON.

DETROIT EMPLOYERS REJECT THE CLOSED SHOP.

Six Hundred Patternmakers Are Out and Union Carpenters Also May Strike—Editor and Former Police Officer in Fierce Street Duel.

Negotiations over the open shop question, which have been in progress for weeks between representatives of the Employers' Association of Detroit and the building trades, came to a close on the other night. It is understood that the answer of the employers to Business Agent Frank Feigenbaum, representing the building trades council, was a flat refusal to grant the closed shop demands. Some of the employers' representatives stated that they would be willing to recognize the unions, but that they would not sign any agreement with them. Mr. Feigenbaum, representing the building trades council, said that the men would be willing to work in the shops without the closed shop if they could be assured that the employers would not discriminate against the men who had been active in the strike. He said that the men had been told that they would be taken back, but that several of them had been discharged since the strike had been declared off. He said that the men would be willing to work in the shops if they could be assured that they would not be discriminated against.

Nearly 600 patternmakers went out on strike last week, and it is expected that the building trades will follow suit. If the carpenters quit work, it will be the first time in many years that the building trades have been unanimous in a strike. The carpenters have been working under a contract which expires on May 1, and they have been preparing to demand a new contract. Some of the other trades have been working without contracts since the panic of last fall, and they have been preparing to demand a return to the old wage scale. The building trades council represents 27,000 men.

Editor and Officer Fight Duel.

Detroit's police department was stirred to its depths by a duel between Editor Frank Doelker, of the Abend Post, and Sergeant Frank Hecht, of the police department, which occurred on Sunday morning. The men fired six shots each at a range of about 20 paces, but no one was hurt.

The trouble between the two men is said to have been caused by a series of articles in the Abend Post, which have been critical of the police department. The sergeant was in charge of the police department during the absence of Acting Police Commissioner Vernor, who is in Europe. The sergeant is a good shot, and is said to be a crack pistol shot.

Editor Doelker was accompanied by his brother, who is also a newspaper man, and Sergeant Hecht was accompanied by Lieutenant Jeffries, who was in charge of the police department during the absence of Commissioner Vernor. The officers had been informed that the editor was going to fire at the sergeant, and had come to the place to prevent a fatal affair. The men had been warned not to fire at each other, but to fire in the air, or else to aim at the ground. The editor fired twice before the sergeant had time to draw his revolver, and then the officers had to run for their lives, for the sergeant began firing as fast as he could pull the trigger. The officers had to run for a street car before the sergeant had fired his second shot, and they had to jump on the car to escape the sergeant, who had emptied his revolver at the editor. The sergeant had fired six shots, and the editor had fired two. The men had been separated by their friends before they had time to reload their guns, and they had been taken to their respective homes. The sergeant was not seriously injured, but the editor had a bullet through his hat, which had been aimed at his head.

Mayor Maybury Suspended Chief Jeffries and Lieutenant Jeffries, Richard Gardner, Inspector of Police, and Officer Hecht for a time, pending a trial of the affair before the police commissioners, which will be held next week. The officers will be tried on charges of being present at a duel, being drunk while on duty, and conduct unbecoming officers. The charges against the editor have not been made public, but it is said that he will be tried on charges of being a party to a duel, and of being drunk and disorderly.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

The Next Governor.

Without much doubt the next governor of Michigan was in town Monday night, and registered at the Elston.

Hon. Fred M. Warner arrived here on the late evening train and left at 9:30 Tuesday morning, after having held a conference with leading Charlevoix county republicans.

The SENTINEL has been for Osborne for Governor, primarily because we have considered that gentleman eminently worthy and deserving of the nomination, but secondarily we favored him because of the triangular factional contest, in which Justus S. Stearns has seemed to be the most aggressively disturbing element.

But the atmosphere has been clearing within the past two weeks, and it seems evident that Mr. Stearns is no longer a possibility. A careful observation now discloses only Warner and Warren in the field with any degree of strength, with the chances plainly favoring Warner. Therefore it looks as if Mr. Warner would be the next governor.

There can be no mud thrown at Frank M. Warner that will stick. He is a clean, brainy man—a man who will need no apologists either as candidate or governor. Moreover, he is a cultured, pleasant gentleman, who makes friends, and never stops over.

And Now For Darragh.

The republican county convention which, among other duties, will be called upon to elect delegates to the congressional convention, is close at hand.

The SENTINEL has several times called attention to the relation of Charlevoix county to the congressional district, and its duty in this congressional canvass. We repeat that Charlevoix county will not do its full duty if it fails to elect a solid delegation for Mr. Darragh.

We have nothing to gain and everything to lose by throwing our vote to any other candidate. Mr. Darragh has proven himself faithful and active in guarding the interests of his district; he has done good work for Charlevoix county, and has begun new work that he should be permitted to finish.

Republicans of Charlevoix county should see to it that "gum-shoe" methods do not prevail in dealing with this matter. We believe that if the honest sentiment of Charlevoix county republicans is represented in the convention Mr. Darragh will have the delegation.

The Charlevoix township caucus occurs next Tuesday. Let Charlevoix do its duty by electing a solid Darragh delegation to the county convention, and let every other interest take care of itself.

Newspaper Law.

Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to continue their subscription.

If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until arrearages are paid.

If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the post office to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

If the subscribers move to another place without informing the publishers and the papers are sent to the former directions they are held responsible.

The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the postoffice, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice to the publishers at the end of their time, if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it, and subscribers will be responsible until an express notice with payment of arrearages is sent to the publisher.

The latest postal laws are such that newspaper publishers can arrest any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under this law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time, unpaid, and then orders the postmaster to mark it "refused," and has a card sent notifying the publisher, lays himself liable to arrest and fine, the same as for theft, etc.

A PIPE ORGAN.

The Congregational Church Society Have Closed Deal.

At a business meeting of the Congregational Church Society Tuesday evening, it was voted to accept the proposition of the Barckhoff Organ Co., of Pomeroy, Ohio, for the installation of an organ at $1,200. The specifications include an electric motor.

The organ will have a registration of thirteen speaking stops, and numerous mechanical accessories for varied musical effects. The Barckhoff organ has an established reputation for excellence of tone and mechanism. It will be installed about June 1st. It will be placed in an alcove to be built on the west side of the church, back of the pastor's desk.

The society also voted to purchase an entire new supply of hymn books.

We congratulate the pastor and members of the church on the spirit of progress demonstrated in this action.

Another Score For Darragh.

Mecosta county yesterday elected a solid delegation for A. B. Darragh. This gives Darragh 42 instructed delegates, with only four more to get for a majority.

Those who know say that Antrim county will send a solid Darragh delegation.

The renomination of Mr. Darragh is now practically assured. Let Charlevoix county swing into line with the rest, and make Mr. Darragh's nomination certain on the first ballot.

Darragh is already as good as renominated.

LATER.—Osceola county yesterday elected a solid Darragh delegation—making 40 votes for renomination. This settles it.

Late Current News.

The most disastrous fire in the history of Toronto occurred yesterday—40 acres in the business section having been swept by the flames.

The latest from the seat of war is that the Japanese are making rapid progress. The remnant of the Port Arthur fleet is successfully bottled up, and scores of Japanese transports are landing troops, some of them north of Port Arthur. Viceroy Alexief has been recalled.

New York democracy has in convention declared for Judge Parker for President. The Hearst boom, which has so worried honest democrats, has practically collapsed.

School Appointments.

The Board of Education last night made the following re appointments for the next school year.

F. W. Howe, superintendent.

Misses DeVoe, Hall, Burr, (music and drawing) Schank, House, Monroe, Iler, Baumgarten, Clemens, Gorthy and Crego, (south side) Gerard and Scranton, (north side)

Miss Eleanor Greenway, of Fowlerville, was elected principal and Miss Ruth Smith, of Charlevoix was elected to the seventh grade.

There are three more vacancies yet to fill.

Kill Him!

There is a blasted fool in Charlevoix somewhere who sends "news" to the venal Rapids Evening Press. This is the last one:

"There is no sign of a break-up of the ice in Pine Lake, and if the cold weather continues much longer it will be a month before the ice moves out of Pine lake. The thermometer last night stood at zero."

Whether or not the idiot does it maliciously, or whether or not it is done because he is an idiot, it is difficult to determine.

Republican Caucus.

A republican caucus for the Township of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, Michigan, will be held in the Court Room of the Court House in said Township of Charlevoix, on Tuesday, the 26th, day of April, 1904, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of electing delegates to the Republican County Convention to be held at the village of Boyne City on the 29th, day of April, 1904, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the said caucus.

Dated, April 18th, 1904.

A. E. CROSS,
A. L. FITCH,
A. B. ANDERSON,
Republican Township Committee.

Testimony of a Minister.

Rev. Jas. S. Cox, of Wake, Ark., writes: "For 12 years I suffered from Yellow Jaundice. I consulted a number of physicians and tried all sorts of medicines, but got no relief. Then I began the use of Electric Bitters and feel that I am now cured of a disease that had me in its grasp for twelve years." If you want a reliable medicine for Liver and Kidney trouble, stomach disorder or general debility, get Electric Bitters. It's guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. Only 50c.

SEOUL A PICTURESQUE CITY.

Sights in the Korean Capital of Interest to Westerners.

Seoul is a picture place. Most of the houses are one story in height and are built in a style unfamiliar to Occidental eyes. The more wealthy residents usually build with very heavy timbers, and the greater part of the walls is of clay and mud. The roofs are often steep and picturesque. They are built over a lattice work filled in with clay and dirt. Clay tiles are laid over the roof.

Poorer residents have houses resembling those of the rich, except that the timbers are lighter and the roofs are thatched with rice straw instead of clay tiles.

Photography is an art which interests thousands of Koreans. Over ten years ago photographers were well patronized in even the smaller cities of the peninsula. In the larger towns the photographers were well advanced in their line.

Northern Curiosity.

When the train rolled into the station at Knoxville an old darky bore down upon it, balancing upon his finger tips a tray neatly covered with napkins.

"Got anything to eat, Bossus?" queried a passenger on the platform.

"Yes, sah, captain, anything you want," replied the darky, as he removed the napkins, exposing to view a variety of sandwiches, with their crusts trimmed off, a large plate of fried chicken and some carefully selected apples and pears.

"Why, where did you get such fine fruit?"

"Up to Jones'. Dey have nice fruit in dese orchard."

"And who made these sandwiches?"

"Me ole woman. She's a good cook."

"Where did you get that chicken?"

"Say, boss, yeh from de North—ain't yeh?"

"Why do you ask that?"

"Why, no Southern gentleman would ask a pooh ole niggah whar he got his chickens from."

An Inventor's Triumph.

Once an inventor sought to transmute iron into gold. He had worked in a small, three-sided shop in Canal street, which was then an uptown section of the city.

The man was Joseph Francis, and the device upon which he worked was a non-capsizable lifeboat.

One day he found himself in need of a dollar. He also began to feel the demoralizing ravages of hunger. He had but 10 cents. His desire was for the dollar only—but he realized that bread also was necessary to finish his work.

Suddenly he hit upon a compromise. He remembered that there was a hardware shop away up in the country above Fifty-ninth street, where he could get the bolt for 5 cents.

Late at night he returned to his shop with the bolt and a loaf of bread. He worked until sunrise, when the boat was completed. He had built the Francis lifeboat. It may be seen on sale at any ocean steamship. On its first trial it saved three hundred lives.—Boston Journal.

Briefly Told Hard Luck Story.

The teacher of a primary grade in one of the public schools in the Eighteenth ward was made the confidant by a young pupil of the following hard luck story. The little chap is noted for a stretch of speech, which is offset, however, by a directness of statement that goes straight to the marrow of any subject. He said:

"Miss Jones, my ma's leadin' a horse race to-night, an' he dropped dead."

"That's too bad, Johnnie. I——"

"Yes, ma'am, an' he ad jest paid fifty-one dollars for him." Interrupted and completed the youngster.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Borrowers.

The habit of borrowing is something that grows on people the same as warts, says the Hewitt Green (O.) Press. It seems to become necessary to borrow a tooth comb A borrowed day and a tooth brush to get his a month ago paid on the chin shaff because they are going to have company. Then they borrow salt, borrow pepper, borrow fresh meat, borrow salt pork and borrow to eat. Then they borrow a couple of quarters so that they can see the show girls. The last week of borrowing they are clambering about to borrow a sheep and good get divided livery. To borrow a reputation and a pair of fan.

—Vice Admiral Makaroff, of the Russian navy, who was killed in the wreck of his vessel off Port Arthur, was in Erie Haven in 1898, when he visited Great lakes to inspect its model lifebreakers. While there he was entertained by Captain Thomas Hooker, United States inspector of hulls district, who was then captain of the steamer Wisconsin, now the Noronic, of the Crosby line. Vice Admiral Makaroff made the trip from Milwaukee to Muskegon on the Wisconsin, for inspection purposes. He also inspected the steamer Muskegon, now one of the Pere Marquette boats, and spent an entire week at Mackinaw as the guest of Captain Boynton, of the ferry Ste. Marie. Captain Boynton remembers him as a quiet, soft-spoken, gentlemanly man, of exceptional education and much charm as an entertainer.

Saves Two From Death.

Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and branch cough, which all other medicines failed to cure. We saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our neighbor, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and to-day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. Trial bottle free.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS.

The B. I. L. Co. have again resumed operations—the roar too sounds natural.

The fishermens' union have their charter with membership of sixty two.

Jos. Donlevy sustained a serious accident from the kick of a horse, the animal being sharp shod. The blow was received below the knee on left leg.

Officers of Peaine township elected Monday as follows: Supervisor, W. D. Gallagher; clerk, Phil C. Gallagher; treasurer, Dan P. Boyle; highway commissioner, Francis McAfferty; Justice Peace, Dan P. Gallagher. A lively contest resulted.

Mr. and W. F. Gill of Harbor Springs and Will Gibson of Petoskey, came over on the ice last week on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Julia Gibson. Mrs. Gibson's remarkable vitality overcame the disease and at last report is very much improved. Messrs. Gill and Gibson returned leaving Mrs. Gill with her mother. Miss Ida Gibson who was nearly overcome by the long vigil is also much better.

The female population of Beaver Island is rapidly increasing. A fine girl arrived at the homes of each of the following families within 12 hours of each other during the two days preceding Easter. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Poole, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McDonald and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hulell. Mothers and babies all doing nicely.

Charley Rodsky had the misfortune to dislocate his thumb last Monday. Prompt reduction made Charley a happy boy once more.

Hon. B. T. Gallagher of Peaine township met with an accident at his barn by falling from the loft to the floor beneath, the result being a fractured collar bone.

An Easter program given by the Beaver Island Union Sunday School Sunday evening was attended by a good sized audience.

NOTICE.—All outstanding accounts due Arthur Oldham, of Oldham & Oldham, are payable to me, as I have bought the business and accounts.

NORWOOD NEWS.

Ed. Scott has moved over from Essex and will work Park McIntyre's farm this season.

Wilber Cline, of Charlevoix, was here over Sunday.

G. V. Nash, who has been here the past week, returned to Manitowoc Friday.

Ole Valentine, of Thompson, C. P., has been visiting here the past week.

They have a little baby girl at Isaac Atward's, born last Friday.

The Illinois arrived Thursday afternoon opposite here about 6 or 8 miles out, but was unable to go into the bay and went back, part way at least.

Mrs. Elsie Clark is sick, and not expected to recover. Mrs. J. M. Harris, her niece, is over from Boyne City taking care of her.

The Saturday's Herald of Grand Rapids says it was 7 degrees below zero at Charlevoix Friday. How is that for high, or low rather. It has been so cold all winter at Grand Rapids that the editor's head of the Herald must have been affected by zero or something else. He had better come to Norwood and be cured by our mild climate.

—A. T. Burnett & Co. have an ad. in this issue that contains information of importance.

—Ladies free Monday night to the Hunt Stock Co. when accompanied by a paid 30c ticket.

—The board of supervisors will meet next Monday, and will probably be in session several days.

—Rev. Father Zugelder, of St. James was a passenger over on the Beaver Monday, on his way to Grand Rapids.

—The steamer Beaver took nearly a full load of seed peas to Beaver Island Wednesday.

—Antrim county elected a solid Darragh delegation Tuesday. Charlevoix county convention occurs at Boyne City tomorrow, and will do the same.

—Prof. Cox, the Chicago Weather man, and family will spend two months on Beaver Island the coming summer, and while there will decide on the points for display stations.

—Capt. Wm. Finucan has bought the Jefferies home on Clinton street, and Mr. Jefferies have bought the property known as the Tim Smith house, on the same street, and will improve the house and premises.

—The W. C. T. U. will hold a "Mary T. Lathrop" memorial meeting next Friday P. M. 2:30 April 29th, at the home of Mrs. H. B. Jacobs. A "Lathrop" program will be given, light refreshments a thank offering. Visitors will be cordially welcomed.

—The paving of Bridge street by the Central Bitulithic Co. with J. H. Crammond as local superintendent is again fairly under way. The grading was begun Tuesday at the end of last year's work, and stone bottom, from the city crusher began to go on in the afternoon. Everything is expected to be in full blast today or tomorrow.

—Read the new display in Levinson's space this week.

—The mining season opened Friday when the tug Gelken came in with over a ton of fish.

—Among the passengers from St James on the Beaver's first trip were Supervisor W. J. Gallagher and Anthony Molloy.

—There will be an important business meeting of members of the Baptist church at the church this evening. All requested to be present.

—For "His Brothers' Sake," Mr. Joseph Clifton's Masterpiece in five acts will be the opening bill of the Hunt Stock Co. next Monday night.

—Wm. Scheggie leaves Monday for Grimfask, upper peninsula, where he will be foreman of camps for Rader & Watson, for whom R. J. McNeill is manager.

—The Masonic hall has been thoroughly overhauled and renovated. The Lodge proposes to make the old quarters answer for a time, but one of these days we will see a fine building arise on the south west corner of Bridge and Mason street.

—Alva L. Coulter, of this place, has been appointed Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, in place of A. B. Dougherty, who lately resigned to resume law practice at Ft. Rapids. Mr. Coulter's territory covers eleven counties, including four in the upper peninsula. It is an excellent appointment.

—It is with profound regret that we announce the death on Wednesday, of Mrs. Abel W. Chew, widow of the late School Commissioner, at her home in Hayes, of apoplexy. While Mrs. Chew has been in rather poor health for some time, her death was unexpected and is a sad blow to her children and friends, to whom the SENTINEL extends its heartfelt sympathy.

—The Charlevoix Concert Band made its appearance on the street Saturday evening, and gave a very enjoyable concert. The weather was beautiful and the street was thronged. It really was a taste of midsummer. The band has made remarkable improvement in its instrumentation, and executes its work with distinct taste. The organization is worthy of our aid, and we hope to see it still further improve, under the encouragement of the public.

—Chas. Noyes left yesterday for Sheboygan to fit out the steamer Gill, of which he is chief engineer.

—Commander M. O. Graves, of the Petoskey K. O. T. M., has invited the Charlevoix team to go to Petoskey next Tuesday night, and initiate a class of novitiates. The invitation has been accepted.

—The north bound passenger train, due here at 3.30, was ditched near Comfort station, south of Bellaire, Wednesday afternoon. The accident was caused by a broken axle under the tender. No one was injured. The south bound train turned around and brought the passengers north. The track was not cleared until three o'clock this morning.

—Bishop Gillespie has been compelled to postpone his visitation to Charlevoix for Confirmation until later in the season as the severe weather during the winter has put him behind in his visitations throughout the diocese. The next service in the Episcopal Church by Rev. C. T. Stout will be on Tuesday evening May 10th, one week later than the regular appointment.

—The Beaver Island Lumber Co. at St. James, has about two million feet of hardwood lumber on the dock waiting for shipment, and a large cut is yet to come. It is indeed a strange sight for an old settler who visits Beaver Island—a fine looking locomotive coming to with a train load of logs. There is a large quantity of fine hardwood timber on Beaver Island, and much on adjoining islands, that will keep the St. James saw mill at work many years to come.

—Herbert Lennox, aged 24 years, a son of Capt. Wm. Lennox, and a fireman on Pere Marquette car ferry No. 4, was drowned at Milwaukee last Thursday. The remains arrived here Monday in charge of two brothers, Wm. and George, and the funeral occurred from the home of Capt. Wm. Lennox on Tuesday afternoon. The cause of the young man's death is something of a mystery. He had been in the hospital for a time during the winter and had not fully recovered. On the occasion of his death he had left the cabin, complaining of feeling faint. Soon after he was seen by a cabin boy sitting on the outside rail of the boat. It is supposed that he fainted and fell. It was in the daytime and boats were lying all about, yet no one saw him fall.

—Capt. Wm. Hulme Jr. has returned from New Orleans, where he spent the winter. He will sail the Port Huron schooner Howland again this season.

—M. J. Stockman and wife arrived home Saturday, after having passed a pleasant winter at Port Orange Fla. Every time Morris returns from Florida he is younger.

—Manager Lewis of the opera house is fast putting his house in fine shape and the work will all be done in time for the opening which takes place Monday evening May 2nd at which time the ever popular Hunt Stock Co. will hold the boards for a week.

—On Friday evening, April 29, the Charlevoix Historical Society will meet with Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Chapel, north Bridge St. In addition to the usual program, Mr. F. W. Howe and Mr. De Voe, of the Charlevoix public schools will give a practical demonstration of wireless telegraphy, with a complete apparatus. All interested, whether members of the Historical Society or not are cordially invited to attend.

—J. L. Crane opened up in his new dry goods store in the new bank block this morning. It is safe to say that it is one of the finest stores in Northern Michigan. The furnishings are of highly polished oak, and the deep show windows are especially fine. Modern appliances prevail throughout. Below, are large, well lighted rooms for carpets, linoleum, etc. The store fronts on both Bridge and Clinton streets, and both fronts have capacious show windows. The grand opening will continue all this week, and the ladies already swarming.

—Bellaire Independent: The Charlevoix SENTINEL, started by its present publisher, Willard A. Smith, when he was but a few months over 21 years of age, has just begun its thirty-sixth year of existence. For three years the little paper, printed on a small hand press, was the official paper of six counties—Charlevoix, Emmet, Manitou, Cheboygan, Mackinaw and Chippewa. Charlevoix county and Northern Michigan has been the burden of its song for more than a third of a century. Its veteran editor is now on the shady side of life, but it is earnestly hoped that he will live many years to wield the pencil on what is one of the best weekly papers in this half of the state.

—Flag day exercises at Barnard will be held at Barnard church May 6th. The program will appear next week.

The Kalkaska county republican convention yesterday elected a full delegation for Darragh. Charlevoix county will do the same thing at Boyne City to-morrow.

—At the Republican caucus held Tuesday evening the following delegates were elected to the county convention which meets at Boyne City to-morrow: F. J. Meech, H. M. Enos, E. W. Coulter, R. W. Paddock, Arthur Fitch, B. W. Miller, W. J. Pearson, L. S. See, Andrew Ross, Archie Alcock.

—By a trackage agreement with the Pennsylvania railroad, effective Monday, the Pere Marquette gains a new entrance to Chicago, shortening its present route from Grand Rapids to the metropolis by 11 miles and its former route by four miles making it the shortest line between Grand Rapids and Chicago. Instead of entering Chicago by the round about route of the terminal company, the Pere Marquette trains will cut across the city over the Pennsylvania tracks from Clarke Junction to the present Pere Marquette depot at Harrison street and Fifth avenue, which the railroad will continue to occupy. Passenger trains will stop at South Chicago, Grand Crossing and Englewood or Sixty-third street.

—A Lansing dispatch says that the state tax commission has made arrangement to visit as nearly as possible, every county board of supervisors in the state. One of the objects of its visit will be to urge upon the different boards the necessity for bringing the rate of taxation to what it should be. Of course, it goes without saying that the supervisors know nothing whatever of real estate values in their several townships. They are just elected to look after the poor, quarantine small pox cases, and get the election tickets printed in the spring. Of course a man from Kalamazoo county or the city of Detroit knows more about the value of a Marion farm than does the supervisor of that town. The Charlevoix county board meets May 2d, and the commission should look up its Pere Marquette passes and come at once, or the tax rolls will escape its wise scrutiny, and then the heavens would fall. By all means the commission should come up and see that the Charlevoix Improvement Co's property is not assessed too high.

ROBBERS ARE KNOWN.

MEN WHO COMMITTED CHICAGO POSTOFFICE ROBBERY.

Inspector Mark Hennessy, that it is Highly Improbable that The Men Who Blew Up Postoffice Safe Escaped.

Postoffice Inspector Stuart of Chicago declared that some of robber bills had somehow gotten into the money which has accumulated the theft of $7,000 in stamps from the Chicago postoffice in 1901, and that he had a clue to the perpetrators of the robbery. He said that the money had been traced to a gambler, thence to a Chicago postoffice clerk, thence to a Chicago postoffice inspector, thence to another inspector, thence to a Chicago saloon, thence to Chicago, and returned to the Chicago postoffice. Mark Hennessy, Postoffice Inspector, confirmed the statement that the robbers had left Chicago for the south. Chief of Police Collins said that the robbers had left Chicago for the south. After a short service at the house on Wednesday morning the body was taken for burial to Mason, Ingham county.

John Pulcher, Jr., will soon move to Grand Rapids from Central Lake for the summer, so says the Central Lake Herald, to be manager of the new sawmill that the Cameron Lumber Co. is building there. The new mill will not stand on the site of the old one but will be located where the slough mill stood, with a long train to the high ground. The track will run north of the store instead of on the south side as formerly.

With the completion by July 1, of six miles of track into Cheboygan, the Detroit & Mackinac railroad will this summer make an energetic bid for traffic which has thus far been held by the G. R. & I. in the western part of the state and the Michigan Central in the eastern. The roads expects to get into Mackinac, but before that time it will run through trains from Detroit to Cheboygan besides pulling on through sleepers from Cincinnati and Toledo with a boat service from Cheboygan to upper peninsula points.

Six or seven prominent Antrim county citizens are making preparations to go to Georgia next fall, purchase farms and make their homes there. They will not go by rail but will drive through. Among the party are Frank Blakely, who will engage in fruit culture, Eugene and William Byers, who have already purchased farms and will also engage in raising fruit and other products. About three years ago Robert H. Wilkinson went from Antrim to Georgia, where he purchased a farm and made a great success. Last summer his son also went and purchased a farm of 1,000 acres. He will raise cattle and fruit. Hubert Hoe is another Antrim county man in Georgia, he having a farm of about 500, or 600 acres. Cyrus Richmond, also of Antrim, has purchased an improved farm of 80 acres on which he will reside. The Antrim county people are all setting in the southern part of the state near the Alabama line.—Traverse City Herald.

Evening Service for Morning.

One of Rankin Diggs's sermons is about a young man a native of Corkscrew hill, who had after being ordained and invited thither in order that he might take charge of the morning service in the ancestral church. The young clergyman was exceedingly nervous and got through the service with difficulty. After the service he said to one of the deacons:

"I was quite nervous, yo' I fahlee myself that I managed to jah through without a mistake."

"Well, I'll admit 'dat you did first rate," replied the deacon. "In fact, I'm say that the service couldn't have been better done, ef'n he asked dey it. This is the first time I've ever known the morning service to be given in the morning."

The Charm of a Modest Girl.

When she is 16 or 18 the modest girl comes to know she is beautiful, though she does not reach at the early size of the Hindu girl. She wears the saris and chain, and slaps her fingers of jewels and matters the moral earrings the more the friends of her mother wear. In her rose-colored veil with gold studs she is the prettiest picture you ever saw. With gamble eyes and Adinie aright she is full of silver art upstairs at the same time. She reads silly, a fawn at the approach of a stranger, but when unobserved her laughter rings through the house, and the instructive country of her audio shows that the parable is a recently—Edmund Russell in Everybody's Magazine.

Essence of Orange Leaves.

A chemist in the interest of Paraguay is the preparation of essence of orange leaves. Mere than the years ago The Jesuit priests who then ruled that country imported several orange trees and planted groves, which have now become immense forests. Elaborate chemical establishments for extracting the essence, which is exported to France and the United States for use in soap and perfumery making, is in also employed in the matter in Paraguay as a medical component and a flavoring.

Great Physician—a Theory.

"That physician is wonderfully wise. No matter what your disease is he can tell you the name of the germ that caused it, and what will cure it."

"But I understand he is not going out of the business."

"Why, what makes you think so?"

"Why, he has now a wife and a new flame with a lovely complexion, to maintain the allure of cosmetics."

Their First Sight of Snow.

Although there is a strongly contrast, it sometimes and cold enough there to make a sleigh drawl answer a blanket, especially in the mountains. There is no doubt several of its large snows in the province of Alava twenty years ago, although no white man saw it. The natives came to the town and reported a swarm of white butterflies to view descended from the sky and disappeared into the ground. This the Spaniards knew it had arrived.

The next morning Castle Hill came sweetly into the room. The sleep had passed over her head but not dealt with her as gently as they had with Wyvil Fairlie. Her figure had lost its roundness, her features had sharpened, and an habitual sadness forked in the corners of the mouth, and her diamond and window eyes, which had lustered proud, had then with a disappointed air, addressed Lucille.

"I thought he was here. John said he had adjusted him. Surely he has not gone without seeing me?"

"He was in bonne humeur of some importance, called him away!" said Lucille soothingly, the look for the sake of the forthcoming witness was still before her in the mirror.

"But he might have waited to see me, if he is a gentleman!" said the poor girl.

"Mr. Pudding, friend, that you were with!"

"Oh, he!" said Lucille. "And then was he! And yet he knows that it is a wish since I was a boy! How did he speak of me, Lucille? Affectionately, and as if he felt some sorry to leave without seeing me?"

Lucille put her arms around her friend's neck.

"My poor, dear Lettice, it is worse a man and a coward, and he knew that you as he could. Knowing this, why do you not forget him? Why do you not know that some man there is that you deserve a hundred times better than this? Ah! Lettice, I know that you do! Why, finally, you have a good face, and—"

"Hush, Lucille!" said the sister. "Not one word more! Remember, I have known him from my childhood! Let me forget him! Let me forget my own folly! Let me forget my own folly! Let me forget my own folly!"

"Yes, yes, I will! I will! I will!

MARINE NEWS.

The steamer Pine Lake loaded with lumber at the Charlevoix Lumber Co's dock for Chicago.

Pine Lake ice is rotten and disappearing. Boats are expected to get through today or tomorrow.

The steamer Beaver will probably take the Wauseondamee and Skillin cedar light keepers to their stations Saturday. They are here waiting, but the ice has prevented their going until now.

The steamer Beaver made her first trip to Beaver Island Saturday, running the old McHann dock at "the point." She will again Monday and Wednesday, and will continue on the old schedule. Capt. E. S. Small took her over Saturday, in the absence of Capt. Sampson, and Capt. George Weaver made the run Monday.

The steamer Kansas (formerly City of Charlevoix) will make the Chicago run until the Missouri comes out and thereafter she will come no further north than Frankfort. Capt. Wm. Franklin has been offered the command of the Kansas but may decide to go as mate of the Missouri.

Navigation is fully opened here at last. The steamer Illinois arrived here Friday afternoon from Chicago and again Wednesday. Capt. Finnegan is temporarily in command until the Missouri comes out. The other officers, probably permanent, are First Mate, McGuiggan, second Capt. McGuiggan, who takes the Illinois later; Second Mate, Johnson, (formerly captain in the Ludington line); Steward, Chas. Sakyum. Clerk, John Maloney.

Milwaukee Wisconsin: A crew is being enlisted for the revenue cutter Tuscarora, orders having been received from Washington to prepare for the opening of the season. The crew consists of fifty-two men and seven officers. Twenty men were stationed on the boat all winter. Next week the revenue cutter will go into dry dock for a thorough overhauling. The Morrill is also enlisting a crew she will very likely be assigned to Lake Huron and Erie, while the Tuscarora will sail on Lake Michigan and Lake Superior.

A Love Letter.

Would not interest you if you're looking for a guaranteed Salve for Sores, Burns or Piles. Only Dead, of Tomboy, Mo. writes "I suffered with an ugly sore for a year, but a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured it." Guaranteed to cure wounds, Ulcers, or Boils. Only 25c at Hites & Co. Drug Store.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

A portion of one Iron company's dock at Ely Rapids gave away Saturday night, precipitating about 1200 feet of barked cedar timber into the river. There was a large quantity of timber on the dock awaiting the opening of navigation for shipment.

Dexter Leader: Some weeks ago this paper took occasion to express the hope that the new phone company, which was putting in Bell interests in Michigan, would promote manager "Jack" Clifford of the Petoskey exchange to the position of district manager with headquarters at Detroit. It gives us pleasure to announce that this was done a few days ago. Mr. Clifford was notified of his appointment in an informal way and will receive his formal instructions in a few days. It is altogether likely that this district will comprise all of the Bell exchanges in northern Michigan from Central Lake and Mancelona on the south to Mackinaw on the north.

School Commissioner's Column.

The Department of Public Instruction has made the following ruling: Beginning with the June examination 1904, applicants for teachers' certificates will be required to write on a special set of questions on the State Manual and Course of Study. The basis of the examination in reading will be Cotter's Saturday Night.

Teachers who have students desiring to take the examination for the Regents Diploma, kindly notify the office in order that proper arrangements may be made for holding the same. The examination will be held May 19 and 20th.

Promotion blanks may be had by applying at this office

Broke Into His House.

Hunt Stock Company.

The above is a good picture of Miss Kate Pitzgibbon the young and talented leading lady of the Hunt Stock Co. which appears at the opera house all next week. This company has played in all the big towns in Michigan, and the press throughout the state speak in a very flattering way of them. Miss Pitzgibbon is also a [illegible] of rare ability and the manner in which she renders the latest popular and standard songs at once wins the hearts of the audience. To much credit cannot be said of her ability and Mr. Hunt owes much of his success to his wife Miss Kate Pitzgibbon, who is private life is Mrs. M. A. Hunt.

Another shining light of the show is Miss Marie Pitzgibbon the comedienne and her Irish specialties are always a "great." The show is a continuous one, no lull in the performance.

MUST INCREASE.

Demand For Light Surtounts Crowding Present Capacity.

The council has wisely taken up the important question of increasing the capacity of the public light plant to meet the increasing demands upon it.

In this task Superintendent Martindale and Capt. P. D. Campbell, chairman of the council committee on electric lighting, left for Cleveland Saturday and secured an option on a direct connection engine and dynamo. The engine is of 220 horse power, and the dynamo of corresponding lighting power.

The option is secured, pending negotiations with the Richards Heilmire water power, which were begun last fall. It is understood that as matters of capitalization connected with that project have been perfected, and that Mr. Richards stands ready to close a deal with our people to advantage, two terms. Should the deal be consummated, it will give us day service, and bring into the spring, besides the Argo Roller Mills, numerous small plants now using gasoline engines.

But the council demand it wap to protect itself by clinching a very desirable option offered on the Cleveland outfit and Martindale and Campbell went there to look it over.

Of course, other things being equal, the water power proposition would be more that of the consumers of the present steam plant, as it will also operate the water system. We say "other things being equal," because there are many, many, engineering details to be considered, aside from the cost of service. The Herald cannot safely advise the Village for continuous and reasonably uninterrupted service.

Superintendent Martindale says there is already a demand for extensions of the lighting service, and a probability that this demand will continue to increase in rapid ratio.

It is an important and difficult problem for the council to solve, but we have the utmost confidence that they will solve it.

Saves Two From Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. E. Hartland, of Armonk, N. Y., "but, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our neice, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and to-day she is perfectly well. Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. TRADE IN GRAVE ORNAMENTS.

Immortelle Wreaths Sold by the Thousands in Paris.

The manufacture of immortelle wreaths in Paris occupies at least 40 hundred persons. The immortelles are gathered about the beginning of October, and come chiefly from the arid hills in the middle and south of France. They are brought to the markets in their natural condition, and the yellow blossoms are dyed green, red and white, and woven into wreaths by special workmen in readiness for All Saints' and All Souls' days, when all good Parisians visit their relatives' graves. On these "fetes des morts" the gates of the cemeteries are beset with crowds of dealers in immortelle wreaths, wire crosses and bead wreaths. At Père la Chaise alone more than two hundred thousand persons are calculated to visit the cemetery, and the sale of immortelle wreaths varies from 20,000 to 25,000.

THE ECCENTRICITY OF GENIUS.

Writer Points Out Peculiar Facts Well Authenticated.

The proportion of distinguished men and women contributed from among the families of the clergy can only be described as enormous. In numerous the clergy can seldom have equaled the butchers or bakers in their patriarchal yet out of 1,253 cases of genius only two butchers' and four bakers' sons are definitely ascertained to have produced eminent children as against 123 persons. The eminent children of the clergy outnumbered those of lawyers, doctors and army officers put together. On the other hand, much is the eccentricity of genius that the clerical profession produces more units than any other class.—From Havelock Ellis' "Study of British Genius."

Cheaper Than Horses.

The following is the record of a gasoline tractor used in England for drawing agricultural machines: Six acres of grass cut in three hours and forty minutes, using five and a half gallons of gasoline, three acres of grass cut in one hour and thirty-five minutes, using three gallons of gasoline, two and one-half acres of land, with hard surface, plowed to an average depth of seven inches, in four hours and fifty minutes, using a double furrow plow, and consuming seven and three-fourths gallons of gasoline, nineteen acres of wheat harvested in two hours, using eight and one-half gallons of gasoline. The cost of the machine is said to be $1,500.

Canada's Geographical Position.

The capital city of Canada occupies a peculiar place in American geography. The two legs of a compass applied to a map of the United States will show how nearly central is its position. Topeka is as far from Quebec as the extreme northeastern corner of the Union, as it is from the strait of Juan de Fuca, at the extreme northwest. The distance is the same from Topeka to the southernmost tip of Florida as from Topeka to Hudson bay, and so the north and south line, Topeka is just half way between the Canadian border and the coast of the Gulf of Mexico.—New York Sun.

His Self-Sacrificing Disposition.

"There isn't anything my boy Willie won't do to oblige a friend of his father," Mrs. Gossaige was saying. "He is a boy of tastes the other day for instance that Willie and his father had found out that when he went on a trip, his mother afterward, a daughter's boy from him they were going to have real sport for dinner at their home, and proved fine to go out and with him. Willie didn't want to be myself on the week along and just as sure as the subject came he was sick and he was sorry and she more in that could come the other day."

Fattening Oysters.

Many people seem to enjoy the plump white oysters so often served here in restaurants as a relishing to the gastric rather than oyster that the sentiment is sentimental, especially the Japanese Oyster has retired to his native haunts, and the Pacific oyster, grown are laboriously and rendered plump by feeding the way to that delicate. Normally oysters are fattened in our waters. If oysters are transported inland they should be taken for a time into brackish water, that is, fresh water and salt water mixed, or they will become watery.

Queer Will Pronounced Valid.

Recently a very singular case of will-making came to light in an English court. A lady, possessed of considerable property, was paralyzed, so she sent for her solicitor to dispose of her estate. Incapable of speech, she was unable to give directions. The solicitor wrote down the various items on a sheet of paper, then on other cards he wrote the names of the lady's family. That done he "dealt" the cards. As he did so she (that simplest proxy) aptly with names, and in was able to draw up the will. It was declared good by the court.

Wheels in the Finish.

According to the New York Herald the latest cure for rheumatism is given without breakfast. As the latest cure for sleepless is going without dinner, and the latest cure for sleeplessness is going without supper, there is apparently nothing left but to exercise on air. But then, again the scientist tells us that every time we breathe we run the risk of wearing blemishes by health, so that the best thing, perhaps, all things considered, is not to breathe at all.

Herbs for Fine Cooking.

Wherever cheer is a foreign population there will be found a demand for herbs. A French chef is sometimes greatly at a loss here in America for the "fine herbes" he can use in concocting omelettes or any market in France. It is in those that herbs are used for his most subtle effects. One has only to glance through a French cook book to see what an important part they play in French cookery, and this is equally true of the Italian and Spanish cuisine.—Country Life in America.

—Workmen are engaged building the pipe organ annex to the Congregational church.

—You are missing a good thing if you fail to see Hunt Stock Co. at Lewis opera house.

—R. A. Posey & Co. have removed their clothing business to the Green block, recently vacated by J. L. Crane.

—If it hurts you to laugh you have no business at the Lewis opera house, for Miss Marie Pitzgibbon will convulse you.

—Mr. O. T. Johnson, of Fairgrove, Mich. a brother of E. L. Johnson, has accepted a position in the dock office of O. S. Wilson.

—A special meeting of the Historical Society will be held at the home of Major Green on Friday evening at 7:30. A full attendance is requested.

—Geo. W. Priest has moved his photograph studio to the second story of the Green block, where he has fitted up a gallery that is a credit to Northern Michigan.

—Lem. A. Comfort, who completed the pier light-house work last week, left Saturday for Manitowoc, where he will superintend improvements and repairs. His family remains here.

—Robert Miller, our respected veteran pioneer arrived here from Flint Monday to remain for the summer. The "squire," aside from his difficulty in moving around is feeling well.

—Dollar potatoes, so long the dream of the growers in Michigan and elsewhere, has become a reality, although the dollar has been reached too late in the season to be of much profit.

—At the Hunt Stock Co. entertainment at Lewis opera house Monday night there was an audience of about 450, and the house was emptied in 15 minutes, which speaks well for the house.

—Wm. Rogers and Ed. Bush, the Petoskey chimney sweeps, are here to play an engagement on the house tops. They are experts, and now is the time to prepare your flues for winter as a preventative against fire.

—What perfume is this with which the mild spring air is laden? Is it the maple buds, the May flowers that are bursting from their under lie the dead leaves of the forest, or is it the library stalks? No, dear one, it is neither; it is but bitumen from Jack Cramond's outfit.

—E. T. Osborn proprietor of the Inn, arrived here Tuesday, and will begin the work of putting the big hotel in shape for the summer's business. The many friends of steward W. H. Terry will regret to learn that he does not return here this season, but will remain in Buffalo as steward of the Hotel Iroquois. The Inn steward has not yet been appointed.

—Mrs. Julia Calhoun wife of Jacob Calhoun, of this place left here Monday to attend a district meeting of the L. O. T. M., at Traverse City. On Tuesday, when at the hall she was suddenly stricken with paralysis and taken to the home of her daughter, Mr. Calhoun, and his daughter lives here for Traverse city yesterday morning. At last accounts Mrs. Calhoun was in a serious condition.

—The paving people placed the first "hot stuff" on the street last Monday morning, and have made steady and rapid progress since, barring some delay for want of stone. The surface this morning is laid well past the bank block and the way it looks now there will be very little of the dirt left uncovered by Saturday night, if bad weather does not delay the work. The company's crusher has been shipped to Cadillac and by this time next week the whole plant will, at least be moving toward the railroad track.

—The Hunt Stock Co. is having good houses every night.

—S. A. Marling returned from Ohio Friday. Mrs. Marling will remain there some time yet.

—Mrs. Dr. Frank Wilkinson, of Gladstone, is here visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hawkins.

—The 13th Annual Convention of the Charlevoix county Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held in the M. E. church in Charlevoix Tuesday and Wednesday, May 17, and 18th 1904. The union hopes to make every session interesting and cordial. To invite the people of Charlevoix to come and see whether or not they are successful.

—Mrs. Georgie Gordon, wife of Ira Gordon, and eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Irwin, of this place, died at her home in Traverse City yesterday morning, after a long illness. Deceased leaves, besides her husband, two children. Mr and Mrs. Irwin and Mrs. Lem. A. Comfort, sister of deceased, left here yesterday to attend the funeral.

—A quiet wedding occurred at the home of A. T. and Mrs. Burnett Thursday evening last, when their only daughter Nellie was united in marriage to Rev. Dr. Hyslop, to Mr. Edward Hinchey, of Walker, Minn. Mr. Hinchey is a book keeper at Walker, Mrs. Hinchey will remain here for the summer, when she will join her husband at Walker, where they will reside.

—Senator Moffatt's own county, Grand Traverse, endorsed him in the recent republican convention by permitting him to select his own delegates. The republicans of Grand Traverse county have always borne the reputation of being level-headed and they are maintaining that reputation. Senator Moffatt will be renominated and re-elected, as he should be. He is an honest man, who votes his convictions, regardless of the howls of disgruntled republicans and "independent" newspapers. O. H. Moffatt is the son of his father—he is not easily stampeded.

—The contest over the rural mail carriers' salaries and privileges is closing. Committees on the postoffice appropriation bill made a unanimous report to both houses on the provision of the bill which provides that after July 1, "Rural carriers shall not solicit business or receive orders of any kind for any person, firm or corporation, and shall not during their hours employ men to carry any merchandise for hire. Provided, said carriers may carry merchandise for hire for and upon the request of patrons residing upon their respective routes, whenever the same shall not interfere with the proper discharge of their official duty, and under such regulations as the postmaster general may prescribe." The effect of this is to cut off the privilege of being agents for newspapers. The paragraph in crossing minimum of carriers to $750 per year remains in the bill.

—You can enjoy yourself every evening right of this week at Lewis opera house.

—Service in the Episcopal church Tuesday evening, May 10th, Rev. C. Stout officiating. All are invited.

—A. L. Coulter is in Grand Rapids this week, at the U. S. Internal Revenue office, posting up on his new duties as deputy Collector.

—The trustees of the estate are having the Austin Newman farm surveyed into five acre lots, which they will soon sell at public auction.

—Capt. Martin O'Malley many years ago a well known Beaver Island resident, and a brother of Mrs. James Dunlevy, of St. James, died in Chicago Friday. Mrs. Dunlevy went to Chicago Tuesday.

—The Hunt Stock Co. appear at Lewis opera house tonight, Friday and Saturday nights. Friday night they will present the great Dumas story of "Monte Cristo," in which Mr. Hunt has won a great record as the Count. The company is an exceptionally good one, and is worthy of patronage.

—The Hunt Stock Co. is at Lewis Opera House all this week. The excellent organization is so well known through Northern Michigan that praise is superfluous. It is not one of the country barn-storming sort, Mr. Hunt is a star, and Miss Kate Pitzgibbon is an artist of world-established reputation. The support is worthy of these two excellent people. Miss Kate Pitzgibbon, in private life is Mrs. Hunt, and Miss Marie Pitzgibbons is Mrs. Hunt's sister. The latter is one of the most famous coon shouters and Irish specialists on the American stage.

Dead Ordinances.

We do not refer to it to be hypercritical, or to find fault with the village government—it has always been so. Charlevoix has half a dozen ordinances that are practically dead letters, and should be repealed if not enforced.

One makes it a misdemeanor to "spit" on the sidewalk. We use the word "spit" because that is the word that should have been used in framing the ordinance instead of "expectorate." As a rule, a man who will precipitate a mouthful of tobacco juice on the cement walk is too ignorant to know what "expectorate" means. The language of the ordinance should be within the comprehensive grasp of this class of people. This ordinance is violated every day, and there is no notice taken of it.

Another village law is that horses shall not be left standing and unhitched on the streets; yet it is done on both sides of Bridge street a hundred times a day in plain sight of the officers, and not even a protest is entered. Runaways occur often from this cause, and yet this does not quicken our respect for local law.

The bicycle sidewalk ordinance has got to be an old chestnut.

One of the latest ordinances is that prohibiting the blowing of whistles, yet fish tugs are as noisy as a Charley Hampton political speech at four o'clock in the morning.

Still another ordinance is against walking on freshly laid cement walks, and yet all over town is walks nine in one there are bed marks, toe marks and instep marks, imprints of the dainty five dollar shoe, and impressions of number ten lumbermen's boots.

If we cannot enforce these ordinances, let us blot them from the books.

The Congressional Convention.

Congressman A. S. Darragh was unanimously re-nominated by acclamation at the Congressional Convention at Clare Tuesday.

The delegates from Charlevoix county were R. E. Newville, Wm. Pratt, H. M. Enos, F. J. Meech, F. A. Kenyon and Dan Judd.

The convention did another good thing when they elected A. B. Dougherty, of Elk Rapids, a delegate to the National Republican Convention.

No Infraction.

Judge Mayne, after hearing the arguments—both sides of the Antrim county local option case, yesterday rendered a decision refusing to grant a temporary injunction and holding the election legal.

MEET HERE.

Old Settlers Planning a Big Celebration at Charlevoix.

From the Traverse City Eagle.

The executive board of the Old Settlers association of the counties of Grand Traverse, Antrim, Benzie, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Charlevoix and Emmet, met in The Daily Eagle office this afternoon to make arrangements for the holding of the twenty-second annual meeting of the association, which will be held at Charlevoix the year June 8th. Major Green, of Charlevoix, president, Chas. H. Estes, secretary, Mr. Cracker, of Northport, and F. L. Spiegle, vice president, were present. A committee of arrangements was appointed consisting of Willard A. Smith, Wm. H. Hampton, M. J. Strickman, H. I. Siddings and Capt. O. E. Wilson.

A committee on transportation was appointed consisting of E. W. Conlter, of Charlevoix, T. T. Bates, of Traverse City, and H. E. Gill, of Northport.

It is expected that the old settlers from all the regions embraced by the association will make a special effort to attend this meeting.

MARINE NEWS.

The first schooner to arrive was the Merchant, Tuesday morning.

The first arrival of a cargo vessel was that of the steamer Three Brothers Monday morning.

The steamer Crysler is making regular East Jordan trips and the Gropen will be running today or tomorrow.

On her Wednesday trip the steamer Beaver went to the Beavers by way of Waugoshance, to land the keeper and his assistants.

The fishing tug L. W. Knapp arrived here last week from Dunkirk, N. Y. in charge of Capt. Josh Dainmer, to do summer fishing at Beaver Island.

The last hope for a peaceful settlement of the differences between the Lake Carriers' association and the Pilots and Masters association vanished last week in the absolute refusal of the Carriers' association to grant the demands of the masters and pilots. The result is a complete tie up of traffic on the lakes, which will involve millions of dollars and keep thousands of men idle. The masters and pilots insisted that each master should have nine months' pay whether he works the whole nine months or any one month, regardless of whether he had been employed at any other vessel; that any master not notified prior to January 15 that his services would not be required would consider himself engaged for the ensuing season in the same line and on the same boat, and could not be transferred unless he was given a better boat. And that no mater could be discharged for cause without it being referred to the arbitration board. Yet the masters reserved the right to discharge unquestioned all of the men under his jurisdiction. The proposition was rejected absolutely. All work of getting the ships in readiness for the opening will be immediately suspended, and unless modified demands are submitted by the union the lake routes will continue as deserted as in mid-winter. The owners of the Three Brothers signed the agreement, but the Pine Lake refused, and is tied up in Chicago.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors closed a three days session yesterday. D. S. Fayan was elected chairman, and the following standing committees were appointed:

Claims—Bailey, Graff, Crakes.
Equalization—Price, W. D. Gallagher, Wagner.
Settle with Treasurer—Lewis, Nelson, Hufford.
Settle with Supts. Poor—W. J. Gallagher, Wagner, Gill.
Rejected and Charged Back Taxes—Wagner, Karcher, W. D. Gallagher.
Roads, Dams and Bridges—Adams, Price.
Ways and Means—Hufford, Lewis, W. J. Gallagher.
Apportionment: Nelson, Karcher, Smith.
Printing—Graff, Price, Bailey.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The Hanah and Lamb compound microscope has been ordered for the high school physical laboratory. It will be paid for from the Queen Esther Cantata funds.

The arithmetic work in the grades is probably in a more satisfactory condition this year than ever before. It would surprise some parents to see the work in fractions done by some of the second and third graders.

Congressman Landis of Indiana will probably finish the high school physics course in place of the Kathi Boys for this year. Patrons who have the opportunity of hearing Congressman Landis lecture will certainly wish to patronize the Lecture Course again next year.

On Arbor Day, in connection with the program given by the various grades, twenty new trees were planted in the Lincoln School yard, eight at the Washington School and two at the school grounds. We believe this is as good a showing as most schools of our size have made.

The beautiful cantata, "Building the Ship," words by Longfellow, is nearly prepared for the public. The High School Chorus is doing excellent work and the music is of a higher order than that of the Queen Esther Cantata and does not require concerts. It will be given toward the end of this month.

Mr. DeVoe gave a successful demonstration of wireless telegraphy in the high school last Friday and repeated it at the last meeting of the Historical Society at Mrs. Chapels. The apparatus was a "home made" construction combined with a few pieces from the school laboratory.

Assistant Professor Lewis Alger of the University of Mich inspected our high school last Thursday. He met with a few members of the Board of Education before leaving on the afternoon train and made some suggestions looking to the improvement of two teachers for the Normal work next year on a plan which will probably not require any greater expenditure than this year. If this plan is carried out it will relieve the superintendent from any class work in the Normal School and allow all of the high school teachers to give their full time to the high school work, as a number of additional classes in the high school must be provided for next year.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Rev. James Hyslop, Ph.D.
Pastor.

The bi-monthly communion was observed on Sunday morning with an attendance of about seventy.

The boys sang a simple anthem at the evening service which was enjoyed.

The recess for the new organ is being used and the organ is about ready for shipment.

The Cheboygan Association, of Congregational churches and ministers will meet with the church at Cheboygan May 11th and 12th. Mr. Hyslop expects to attend and thence go on to Detroit to the State Annual meetings of Congregationalists. These meetings promise to be very largely attended.

Eighth Grade Examination.

The annual examination for eighth grade diplomas will be held in the schoolbuildings in the villages of South Arm, Boyne Falls and Charlevoix Friday and Saturday May 13 and 14th. The examination will begin promptly at 8:00 standard time. Students should provide themselves with pens ink and paper.

LESTELLE

By the Author of "The Rose and Shamrock," Etc.

CHAPTER X (Continued)

Lestelle made an unwitting movement then checked herself and steadied her voice before ask 1898.

"You do not seem to know that Lord Fether hold the estate."

"Yes, I know that he holds it, but I know that it was entailed on the male issue of his grandfather and specially on the female issue of his father. Tell me, I pray, the Christian name of the lady, the daughter of Esther Hill, who married Hubert Fether, who is going to be the heir?"

"Why, Miss Hill, I thought you knew that the lady married her cousin, the son of the late Lord Fether, and that the heir is their son, Hubert Fether, who is now a boy of about ten years of age."

"Thank you, Mr. Lemoyne, for your information. I am very much obliged to you. Good morning, sir."

"Good morning, Miss Hill, good morning, Miss Lestelle," said the gentleman, as he raised his hat and bowed to the young ladies.

"Lestelle," said Miss Hill, as soon as they were out of hearing, "I have a plan in my head. I will tell you what it is when we get home."

"Very well," said Lestelle, wondering what it was that Miss Hill had in her head.

"Now, Lestelle, I want you to go home and write a letter to Mr. Lemoyne, in which you will say that you have changed your mind, that you will be his wife, and that you will be married as soon as he wishes."

"Why, Miss Hill, what do you mean? I cannot do that. I have no intention of marrying Mr. Lemoyne."

"Of course you have not, but you will write that letter, and I will take it to Mr. Lemoyne myself. I want to see what he will do when he receives it. I want to see if he is a man of honor or a villain. I want to see if he is a man who will take a woman who has given her word to another man, and who is engaged to another man, and who is to be married in a few weeks, and who, knowing all this, will persist in marrying such a woman. I want to see if he is a man who will take a woman who is in a state of mind bordering on insanity, who is in a state of nervous prostration, who is in a state of physical weakness, who is in a state of mental anguish, and who is about to be married to another man, and who, knowing all this, will persist in marrying such a woman. I want to see if he is a man who will take a woman who has declared that she does not love him, who has declared that she does not love the man to whom she is engaged, who has declared that she does not love the man she is about to marry, who has declared that she does not love the man she is about to marry because her father and mother have forced her to do so, who has declared that she does not love the man she is about to marry because her father and mother have forced her to do so because they have threatened to disinherit her

THE HEARST BOOM.

MOVEMENT FOR FREE TRADE BEHIND IT.

Calamitous Results That Followed the Adoption of This Policy in 1892 Would Repeat Themselves—Which Ingoism Will Do Well to Remember.

The boom of William Randolph Hearst for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1904 may be said to have been launched at a mass meeting held in Washington on the 13th of August. The ambitious individual in whose behalf this movement has been organized is the reputed possessor of a fortune of several millions of dollars, represented in great part by a number of daily newspapers whose editorial columns appear to be chiefly concerned in the destruction of wealth belonging to other people. It is upon this platform that Mr. Hearst would as much the Democrats. At present he is merely a Tammany Congressman from a New York city district. In population he enjoys the distinction of sending each day to four different cities the very worst lot of newspapers of large circulation and vicious influence known in any part of the civilized world. Upheaval, revolution, anarchy, assassination if need be, seem to be the guiding principles in these publications.

The mass meeting of August 13 in Washington was ostensibly called in support of protests claiming to represent organized labor in the name of American labor the Hearsts propose for itself a blight forward. By appealing to the prejudices and the passions of American wage earners it is hoped to render the political ambition of a mere wealthy magnate and platform "Down with all Trusts" This is the battle cry of the Hearst lieutenants. How much has organized labor to gain by the repeal of our Dingley tariff and the establishment of free trade? That is the question coming rather rudely upon almost every person when the Hearst platform was first spun. When the protective tariff is swept away the trusts will disappear. Such is the Hearst program and plan. Take from trusts out of the Dingley propaganda and nothing remains.

Workingmen who are now employed all the year round at the highest wages they ever knew in this or any other country, wage earners whose deposits in savings banks have increased in the past six years at a protective tariff from less than $300,000,000 to nearly $1,000,000,000 are expected to rally to the support of a platform calculated to destroy industry, to throw out of work all whose prosperity is due to the protective tariff and cause a panic which would be the most disastrous to the working people of this country since the year 1892, and that panic was brought on by the agitation for free trade, which is a Hearsteant institution, are much in evidence. They announce that prosperity does protect. That, in spite of the fact that wages in this country are more than double those in Great Britain, the amount of exports of manufacturing goods to the latter country has grown to decrease, while our manufactured exports to that country are increasing rapidly. The same applies to all protected countries so that Great Britain is designed to be a disadvantageous position, especially as the United States can, we know as the, to a full so long demand food Great Britain with goods at much lower rates.

The real cure of a nation is to look after the welfare of its own citizens. That is what we have done. In establishing protection we have not only stood shoulder to shoulder with the Republican party ever claimed, but have confounded our opponents by have and abroad. The British government officially announces that our policy has been a beneficial one and will be of great help to the cheap goods among results. Very progress are taking.

Which is why we remain cool to the idea we have expected to see day by day Great Britain, the apostle of free trade acknowledge Heaven defeat upon our own success. What will the Democratic party say to this in the view consistent? It seems cruel that they are deprived of their only stock in trade, and that they are becoming great wings when opposed to falls of Dingley. Protection is treason

SIGNIFICANT ADMISSION.

British Acknowledgment of the Value of Protection.

We indeed that we never expected to see the officials of Great Britain laboratory furnish the Republican party of this country with the most convincing arguments in favor of protection. The Cobden club is founded upon a dogma and the Anti-Cobden club of the Nineteenth ward—that particular band of traditional political economists, should at their next meeting make a minute of the subject. Imprimis as was the announcement of Premier Balfour, the official statemates of the board of trade, which is a Government institution, are much more so. They announce that protection does protect. That, in spite of the fact that wages in this country are more than double those in Great Britain, the amount of exports of manufacturing goods to that country has grown. To decrease, while our manufactured exports to that country are increasing rapidly. The same applies to all protected countries so that Great Britain is designed to be a disadvantageous position, especially as the United States can, we know as the, to a full so long demand food Great Britain with goods at much lower rates.

George H. Pettengill, of Bennington, Vermont, who has been visiting friends in Charlevoix and incidentally looking over the ground for a government fish hatchery, left for his home last week, and a few days later the writer received a letter from him in which he said that he had "a very pleasant time while in Charlevoix and was much impressed with the beauties of your town and its possibilities as a summer resort." Mr. Pettengill is a man who has been in the employ of the government for a long time, and has had charge of the fish hatchery at Bennington, Vermont, for many years. He is a man of large experience in his line, and his opinion of Charlevoix and its possibilities for a fish hatchery are of value. He spent a few days here looking over the ground with a view to the establishment of a fish hatchery here, and while he did not say so in so many words, from what he did say and from the way he acted while here, the writer is quite sure that he was favorably impressed with the idea. He said he would report to his superiors that he had been here and looked the ground over, and that he would recommend that a hatchery be established here. He said that he was very much impressed with the beauties of Charlevoix, and that he was quite sure that if the people of Charlevoix knew what a fine place they had they would be more active in the matter of improving their town. He said that he was quite sure that if the people of the surrounding country knew what a fine place Charlevoix is they would be more active in the matter of improving their roads so that they could come to Charlevoix more easily. The Harbor Springs Republican has been sold by editor L. A. Clark to A. J. Lamoureux, formerly of Livingston county, and more recently of Rio Janeiro, Brazil. The new owner, who is a life long newspaper man, takes possession Monday.

The executive committee of the Northern Michigan Masonic association has decided to hold its third annual meeting at Frankfort, Petoskey and Harbor Springs were strong competitors. O. S. Watsonury, county clerk of Benzie county, has been elected secretary of the association.

It reports be true, Boyne City carpenters have cause to regret that their town has been advertised as possessing a good sized book, for state papers have been asked by the Boyne carpenters' union to publish the fact that the town is overrun with knights of the saw and plane. Such is fame.

East Jordan Herald: A change worth more than passing importance took place this week in business circles of our village when the firm of W. A. Loveday & Co. sold to Stephen Howe their large line of Hardware. The change has been contemplated for some space, but only of recent date has anything definite materialized. The gentleman who takes possession are both past the novice stage in Hardware. W. A. Strouse comes from Beaverton where he has been in the Hardware business for a number of years. Carl "Crocket of Johnsburg is already well—known in this vicinity having been in the Hardware business at Central Lake for a number of years.

Central Lake Torch: James Cameron is one of Elk's fellows who has been telling all winter about the terrible winter of '75 but he has gracefully retracted and now admits that the winter of '94 beats the old one all to pieces for cold. He came across an old register that was used by P. J. Lewis during the '70's in the Lewis resort hotel at Torch Lake, or what was then known as Ironvision. The register contained a report of the readings of the mercury on every day of the year and Jim confesses that the famous winter of '75 was not near so severe as the past one, all the old residents to the contrary notwithstanding. In the spring of '75 the ice held on in Torch Lake until in May for a record was made of a trip made by Mr. Cameron and Hon. A. E. Palmer now of Kalkaska but at that time a resident of Torch Lake, traveling down the lake from Torch Lake to Alden a distance of nearly 15 miles.

NORTHWOOD NEWS.

Charles Brown of Manistee was over here on Wednesday last week.

Clark Shipman a resident of this town of Norwood from 1866 to 1876, died at Muskegon about a year ago.

Mrs. Lawton lady for many years house keeper at Norwood for Charles H. Ferguson died at Kansas City, last week.

Fred Jackson has bought a lot at Central Lake and will fit it up for a hotel and restaurant. He will move there some time this month.

Mrs. Estes A. Clark, died of general debility at her home in Norwood, Wednesday, and funeral service was at the house on Saturday. Mrs. Clark was one of the earliest settlers in this part of the county. Estes A. Hardy was born on the 7th of August 1822 at Walcot, Wayne Co. N. Y. moved with her parents in 1837 to Hartford 10th and in 1847 moved to Hillsdale Mich. She was married to Chas. Winner June 20th 1842 and in 1856, they went to Jacksonville Iowa. They returned to Hillsdale, and in 1863 came to Northport and kept the exchange hotel. Mr. Winner died at Northport in 1867, and Mrs. Winner moved to Antrim City 1868, and from there to Charlevoix the same year and kept the Franklin City house 1869-70. She was married to Elmer E. Clark 1867. Mr. Clark died 1885. Since that she has lived in the 2d place with her son Charles Winner. There were three children by first marriage Charles, Arthur and George. George died at Northport and Arthur at Colorado 1881. In her father's family were two boys and five girls, Almeda, Polly, Philo, Lois, Rachel, Charlotte Hannah, wife of the late A. H. Noyes. George Hardy the only survivor lives at Traverse City. Mrs. Clark was a member of the M. E. church of this place since 1873. She lived a very upright life, and was loved and respected by all.

At an adjourned meeting of the council held on above date there were present: E. W. Coulter Pres. and Trustees Winner Cross, Campbell and Washburn.

The following resolution was adopted by vote as follows. Ayes all.

Whereas the council of the village of Charlevoix deem it necessary for carrying on the financial affairs and meeting the requirements of the general expenses and liabilities of the said village that there be raised by general tax upon all real and personal property liable to taxation in said village one and two tenths of one percent of the assessed value of such property in said village the sum to be and constitute a general fund.

And whereas the council deem it necessary for working and improving the highways streets lanes and alleys of the village and for the construction and repair of bridges therein that there be raised by general tax upon all real and personal property liable to taxation in said village one and two tenths of one percent of the assessed value of such property of said village the sum to be and constitute a general highway fund. And whereas the council of the village of Charlevoix deem it necessary to levy and cause to be collected a poll tax of one dollar upon every male inhabitant of the village of Charlevoix between the ages of twenty one and fifty years excepting active firemen of the fire department and such other persons as are exempted by general law from the payment of such tax.

DISASTROUS WEEKS.

Carelessness is responsible for many outbreaks where not the same disease-breeding germs are killed that Dr. King's New Discovery destroys. Hence the advice of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, when the worst comes you be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lade Drugg of Dorchester, Mass is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all Throat and Lung diseases by F. G. Hines & Co. Druggists. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

DO NOT DOSE THE STOMACH.

Cure Catarrh by Nature's Own Methods—Every Breath of Hyomei Helps Relief.

Many people who have catarrh know from actual experience that to try to cure it by dragging the stomach from primary relief may be given, but a cure seldom comes.

Until recently our physician would have said the only way to cure catarrh would be to have a change of climate, but now with Hyomei you can carry a health giving climate in your vest pocket and by breathing it a few minutes cure times a day soon cure catarrh.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs $1.00 and dealers all over the United States are earied to the vest pocket Hyomei. The dealer hands a bottle, and if one bottle does not cure, another bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most wonderful of all remedies advertised for cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows nature in her method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

F. S. Chapel & Co. have sold a great many Hyomei outfits and the more they sell, the more emphatic are they that they are perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomei does not cure.

Not a Sick Day Since.

Mrs. Wm. Tabor, Ionia, writes: I was taken suddenly sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility. This is what H. L. Haas, of Fremont, N. C. writes. Only 50c. at Hines & Co. Druggist.

Laugh on a Would-Be Lover.

An incident has just taken place in the village of Rosenwald, known in the vernacular as Iron Juan, it appears that a young married man who has been paying his attentions to another married lady, has been cured of loving a husband and family, at an expense of a few hundred dollars. It appears that the husband of the lady in question has been there a few months, and his wife, with similar intent, accompanied the unsuspecting husband.

The husband, it appears, was taken sick, and the wife, "good" to her husband, sent for her lover to come to the house to see her husband, who was sick unto death. The lover, not to the house, but to the house next door, was ushered in, and the husband, who was sick unto death, was cured, "there's no time like the present" and informed his wife that if she ever saw her lover again in the house or anywhere else, he would be sent after a great way in great distress, and good riddance. The husband and family are happy.

—Rev. A. Burnett was married May 5th in California, to Miss Mabel Smith. The bride was formerly a well known and popular Charlevoix young lady. Mr. and Mrs. Burnett are expected here the 25th of this month. The SENTINEL extends its hearty congratulations.

—Traverse City Herald: The friends of Miss Rosa Gratan, formerly of this city, will be pleased to know that the chances for her recovery are very favorable. Miss Gratan has been an invalid for the past nine years, but Thursday she underwent an operation at Charlevoix which was very successful. She was very much improved and unless complications set in will entirely recover. Should she catch cold, however, the result will be pneumonia.

—A party of friends said relatives gathered Wednesday evening, May 11, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens of Phelps, to witness the marriage of their daughter Grace to Mr. Roland P. Murdock. It was a quiet but very pretty wedding, the bride was dressed in white silk mull, carried white roses and was attended by her sister Mabel as bridesmaid dressed in blue. The groom's brother Joe was best man and he entered into the wedding festivities with as much zest as he enters a game of Euchre. The bride's sister Hattie played the wedding march and Rev. Nagler tied the knot. After a very plain supper the bride and groom drove to East Jordan where they will make their future home.

—Charlevoix should buy a steam road roller at once. The village would derive enough money by hoeing it to the adjoining township to more than equal the interest on the investment. A better investment could not be made.

Listen to This Great Journalist.

Arrangements are being made for the midsummer meeting of the Charlevoix County Press association. It is expected two meetings at least will be held during this session, one at Boyne City and the other at East Jordan.

Editor Smith of the Charlevoix SENTINEL tried to beat the Charlevoix County Press association when for $25 he secured the county printing in an underhanded way. If he had stuck by the association its members could have posted him on one thing alone that enters into the cost of getting out his paper that would have saved him at the least calculation $100 per year. The more we think of it the more we are inclined to believe that that $25 Smith worked so hard for is the most expensive luxury he has ever enjoyed, or ever will.

The reference to the county printing matter we shall not notice, the people stamped out that slander at the spring elections.

But the other proposition makes us real mad. The writer of this was publishing the SENTINEL about ten years before the Boyne City press was born, and yet he has the nerve to say that he and his associate sand-baggers can give us pointers" on newspaper publishing. When we accept advice from such a precious bunch of monkeys as the "Charlevoix County Press Association" outfit the day will be colder than any experienced last winter.

We can take care of the SENTINEL thank you, regardless of the said "Association," or any "combination" it may effect. But we confess that we are a little curious as to whether or not the method by which the "Association" could save us $100 per year is akin to that by which the "Association" tried to rob the people of Lake Leelanau.

There is a new editor in the county—Mr. C. A. Tink, of the East Jordan Herald. We assume that he inherits Mr. Roy L. Lorraine's membership in the "Association." We do not wish any of these remarks to apply to him. We shall consider him a gentleman and an honest man until evidence is produced to the contrary. Association with the East Jordan postmaster and the other two members of the "Association" will, however, shake the Decency.

We thank heaven that we did not twitch by the associations," and we are perfectly content to remain outside of it. We prefer to sleep alone rather than to nest with vermin.

Latest War News.

During the past week the Japanese army and navy have wrought wonders. Port Arthur harbor entrance has been effectively blocked by the sinking of stone laden barges.

The first Japanese army has successfully crossed the Yalu, defeated the Russians and driven them back to Hurtle with great slaughter. Forces have been landed on both sides of the Liaotung peninsula. Dalny has been taken, the Port Arthur railroad cut and Port Arthur cut off and besieged.

Another battle is hourly expected.

Primary Money.

The thirty-eighth semi-annual apportionment of primary school interest money made by Superintendent of Public Instruction Pattengill distributes $44,551.80 among the various counties of the state. The rate is 60 cents per capita, there being 74,586 children of school age in the state. The following shows the sum each county in this district receives:

Grand Traverse	$ 865.80
Antrim	2,028.60
Wexford	1,968.00
Charlevoix	1,076.40
Emmet	2,357.40
Cheboygan	1,936.80
Presque Isle	1,098.00
Leelanau	1,098.00

A Lamentable Condition.

It is officially announced from Boyne City that the Charlevoix County Press Association is still a live and active reality. It is also announced that the malcontents has killed off Cæsar, and that the forces will no longer hear the voice of the tyrant and usurper.

This is the second swipe that the SENTINEL editor has received within the past three months. The first was when the Shiftless Shipmasters' Society, with its envious and vindictive malice, disorganized under the leadership of Capt. Pete Campbell, leaving the founder of that benevolent organization out in the cold cold world to struggle on through life alone and disconsolate.

And now, even while our head is bowed in sorrow at man's inhumanity to man, comes this second grief, to sap the fountain head of life's hope and joy, and crush the loving spirit of a virtuous and philanthropic scribe.

It is decreed from the councils of the elect that the SENTINEL is an outcast—a scab—an inhumanitic. He is to be forever cut off from fraternal journalistic intercourse with the East Jordan poundmarter and the experienced and philosophical Boyne City journalistic savant.

We shall endeavor to bear the blow with fortitude, and struggle on alone. We could recover from the shock of being kicked out by a lot of money sailors, but to be outlawed by an organization of such aggregated ability and power as the C. C. P. A. is more than we can stand.

Chippewa county has the distinction of being the only county in the state having twins as members of the board of supervisors. They are Albert Curtis, supervisor of Sault Ste. Marie township, and A. E. Curtis, representative from Dafter. They are aged 32 and as alike as two peas. Albert has served several years on the board, but this is his brother's first term.

R. L. Lorraine, for several years publisher of the Charlevoix County herald, has re-embarked in newspaper work, this time starting a publication at Wolverine. He has purchased a plant and moved some to that place. The plant purchased was that of the Michigan Vidette, a newspaper published in the interest of the Soldiers' Home at Grand Rapids which failed and was taken to Boyne City.

Cheboygan Democrat: The state tax commission have gone, either another or two days in the interest of Cheboygan county. An effort has been made on the part of all the interests of the local county to get the commission to ascertain the commission's business here at this time, but from all accounts they are simply going along carrying the assessment of the due consequences of disobeying the order of the commission in regard to property valuation, saying that in the basis is not the true cash value of any property so all cases the Lelanaskiner will again appeal, re-assess the lumbership and wards and present legislation the local assessors legally for your failure to obey.

LESTELLE

By the Author of "The Rose and Shamrock," Etc.

CHAPTER XII.

Darcy Lennox fortunately escaped the ordeal of the Gaiety; he was not to be had, with Lucette supporting his cousin Percy. He appeared in town one or twice for a brief enough spell, just the sufficient time to recognize him as acceptable in London for his own release; but with the appearance of a dark and supposed-to-be-unknown lady he repeated Lucette's words "Not on the Heights of Richard Waverill," she, he said, with his free frank laugh, he had found herself entirely at the mercy of the world.

There he belied his reputation. Darcy should locate concerning Lucette's antecedents, and now it was that the young man mentioned his recognition of the Lady Waverill, and he had found Miss Hall acting as chaperon to her on the occasion.

The face confronted me in the crowd; I was sure it was Lady Waverill, and I saw at something more than usual interest in the young man's face, which I had never seen in him before. Lucette, the Lady Waverill, was a good-looking woman, with a pleasant face, and a very good figure; she was dressed well, and looked well, and I thought, as I looked at her, that she was a woman to be trusted.

"I am in a terrible mess," he said, "and I want your help. I want you to go to Lucette and tell her that I have met her cousin, and that I have recognized in her the Lady Waverill, and that I have found her a most charming woman, and that I have found her a most charming woman, and that I have found her a most charming woman

Conducted by
J. W. DARROW, Chatham, N. Y.
Press Correspondent New York State Grange

WHY JOIN THE GRANGE?

Good Reasons That Should Appeal to Farmers Generally.

The old no lady this has not fully set the seals of the farming population in solving the problems of life and adding to its success and pleasure and helping to place the life on the farm in the happy condition of a good grange for the following reasons given by National Master Jones:

First—Because it is Patriotic.

Second—Because it has stood the test for thirty-six years.

Third—Because it develops a higher manhood and womanhood among its members.

Fourth—Because it is educational in times equipped to appreciate, who know from experience the needs of farm life.

Fifth—Because its social features, in a large measure, make farm life seem the centerpiece of farm life, especially for the wife and mother.

Sixth—Because it is the oldest and best non-partisan, non-sectarian fraternal society organization in existence and the only one that is national in its work.

Seventh—Because it is founded on principles of truth and justice, and is based, and is entirely free from partisan politics and party entanglements.

Eighth—Because it stands a firm friend of industry and good will among business men, and has no quarrel with any business interest.

Ninth—Because it is a school of fraternity and good will among farmers, and teaches them how to work in harmony and unity for the good of all.

Tenth—Because it is the strongest and most natural developer for the farm boy and girl as well as for our adult members, in love to all culture and refinement.

Eleventh—Because it is the duty of farmers to cooperate with one another for their own economic good, and the elevation of civilization in every direction.

Twelfth—Because it has carried greater reforms in morals, social and national legislation in the interest of agriculture than any other agency in America.

Thirteenth—Because of its occupying a position in the public mind, it is an evil influence or difficult to form—also in conservative companies, where our cause needs our influence most.

Fourteenth—Because it, abandoning its home and its interests, most of the farmers will find it a lonely and uncomfortable existence which relate and unite the farmers and form the backbone of the state and nation as well.

A HINT TO LECTURERS.

How Do You Get Backward Members to Respond?

In response to the above question we have received the following from a correspondent:

Questions to promote:

By inducing them to ask questions.

By allowing them to talk while at lecture.

By allowing them to select their own subjects.

By encouraging regular attendance and then will do the rest.

By assigning them subjects in which they are interested.

By turning to a selection and plan in the lines heads to read.

By every member expressed a line of a song for delivery to respond.

By definitely turning the trend of the discussion upon their ability.

By asking them direct questions to be answered then and there.

By keeping the thought before them that they can do if they try.

By giving them something that they can do and can be held for them.

By giving them questions that can be answered by yes or no for a starter.

By thinking that each member present can say something upon a subject under discussion.

In studying each member's inclinations and assigning them subjects appropriate to the same.

By only asking them to respond when I think something to interest them that they can do and will do.

By writing a number of questions each another after having each one given out one and answer.

By impressing them with the fact that they are capable of exercising any that mankind does and that they should cast aside all fear, for we are all brothers and sisters—Lecturer.

What the Order Stands For.

The most objection to including to understand that to come within the pales of the order of Patrons of Husbandry means some intelligent and successful farming some discreet and attractive home for the farmer, his wife and the boys and girls. It stands for liberal and progressive legislation in the interest of agriculture in the town, state and nation. It believes in the right of every American citizen to be free with dill, none and receive a just reward for the energy bestowed. The order does not conflict with any other institutions interest, but is sure to the belief that the farmer is entitled to a full share of what the harvest yields, subject to law.

The Grange Defined.

The grange is a school for the moral and mental development for the farm boy and girl as well as for our adult members, in love to all culture and refinement.

Third—Because it is the duty of farmers to cooperate with one another for their own economic good, and the elevation of civilization in every direction.

Fourth—Because it has carried greater reforms in morals, social and national legislation in the interest of agriculture than any other agency in America.

Fourth—Because it has carried greater reforms in morals, social and national legislation in the interest of agriculture than any other agency in America.

Fifth—Because of its occupying a position in the public mind, it is an evil influence or difficult to form—also in conservative companies, where our cause needs our influence most.

Sixth—Because it, abandoning its home and its interests, most of the farmers will find it a lonely and uncomfortable existence which relate and unite the farmers and form the backbone of the state and nation as well.

COUNTY DEPUTY'S WORK.

Its Importance Should Be Appreciated and Provision Made For It.

As the business of all states increasing grange membership, the work of the deputy lecturers and assistants, may attract the attention and in a very proper for organization of grange, and it is encouraged. The deputy work is mind the actual work of organizing. There is a very well boiling all over the United States that the work of organization should be pushed, within just limits, of course, still not a source or neighbor load outside the close lab. shall have heard of the grange work and its all. Visitors to the female. While we have by the United states approximately [illegible] interested deputies, county and state officers.

We may not know the work of organization is good, and we may [illegible] to [illegible] and our patronage that the effort be made and the more agressive and progressive it is the sooner we shall approach the fullest success of life and approximate happy results the grange is more up to work. This is already. It is also by general more progressive grange states, but [illegible] and [illegible] work. Every is lagging and where now life should be outlined.

OBJECTIONS ANSWERED.

Misapprehensions Concerning the Grange Corrected.

First—"It costs too much."

The answer is, and with the benefits is but a trifle. The revenue could not be forthcoming if the work of other fraternal societies have been started on a cheaper scale, and they failed to pay at least, for want of funds.

Second—"The cost necessary for long grange."

In contrast, it is emphatically economical, it costs to system, and system is essential to success in any calling. The best trained soldier is the most efficient in battle, and the most successful prizes from the highest pay. The grange stand [illegible] beautiful and [illegible] Nine can learn them and not be made better.

Third—"It is a secret society."

It is a secret only in the sense of being private, it is not an open bound society. It is no more secret than is the well organized family or many branches of the Christian church. All of these maintain their private business in private. Were the grange less secret and less conservative, it would doubtless long since have gone the way that other farmers organizations have gone. They were too being at or the grange, proposing to eliminate what their promoters called the objectionable features of the grange—ceremony, secrecy, conservatism and real. They, that, let the grange still live.

Fourth—"But the grange uses signs. Who does and what do our lives become? They are often more expressive and impressive than words, and because they can be seen and heard where words cannot. When any one calls at a square house in any of the degrees of Flora the best. No one ever claimed that there was any sense, wrong in this. Would it be wrong if by mapping a certain number of times or in a certain way to could tell to those inside who was without? What could produce a railroad, or mines, or factories, or anybody or anything do without signs? Was not the Jewish and not be the Christian religion typical throughout? —Rev. Rock, Pomeroy'sville State Grange.

First Quarterly Report For 1904.

The number of grages organized from July 1, 1904, to March 31, 1905, both inclusive, is as follows: Connecticut, 1; Delaware, 1; Illinois, 11; Indiana, 10; Maine, 5; Maryland, 1; Michigan, 10; New Jersey, 6; New York, 42; Ohio, 11; Oregon, 5; Pennsylvania, 15; Rhode Island, 1; Tennessee, 1; Vermont, 4; Washington, 12; West Virginia, 3; total, 138.

The number reorganized in the same period is as follows: Indiana, 1; Iowa, 2; Kansas, 2; Maine, 2; Massachusetts, 3; Michigan, 3; Minnesota, 1; Ohio, 1; Pennsylvania, 4; West Virginia, 1; total, 40.

The Dominion Grange.

Dominion grange, Canada, at the annual session held recently, elected as master for 1904 Henry Green. A feature of the session was the address of Master Jared Hoskinson, M. P., who for thirty-five years of service. He dealt chiefly with the tariff and trusts and spoke strongly in favor of rural free mail delivery and the taxation of railways.

Strong Grange County.

The Androscoggin county Pomona grange of Maine has a large membership. At the annual session this year the membership was reported to be 7,000. Maine ranks third in membership in the United States, and over one-sixth of its membership is located in Androscoggin county. There are nearly 4,000 Patrons in that county.

The New York state grange began May 1 to issue a monthly bulletin or bulletin for the benefit of subordinate grange officers. It is edited by Secretary Report of Lowrenceville, N. Y., bulletin of the state grange.

Has your grange ever had a fair? If not, why not? You will be surprised at the amount of stuff one little grange can get together if it has a fair.

Grange lecturers in the St. Louis exposition with the open from Sept. 1 to Dec. 1 and will probably be in the Agriculture building.

Where you find a well organized and efficient degree team there you will find the degree work well and numerously.

HON. OLIVER WILSON.

Master of Illinois State Grange, Pioneer of Patronage.

The subject of this sketch was born on a farm in Putnam county, Ill., but removed with his parents, when [illegible] years old, to Putnam county, Ill., settling on an open prairie. He attended when five years old. When old enough to handle a hoe he went to work on the farm, attending school in winter. Later he attended the Normal school at Normal, Ill., for one year. Four years in [illegible] and graduated from school in Chicago.

In 1873 he became a charter member of Magnolia grange, No. 750, being the [illegible] master. He was elected treasurer in 1876, and continued in that capacity for five years, when the state appointed, the same year, secretary. He attended the state grange as a representative from 1876 and has been a regular attendant since. He was elected lecturer in 1880 and served in that capacity for eight years and was then, by an almost unanimous ballot, elected master of the state grange and has held the office with practically little opposition until the present time.

In 1881 Brother Wilson was unanimously elected member of the seventh degree of the order and received the vote for recreation at the session of the national grange, held at Rochester, last November. He has been identified with the farmers' institute work, serving on the state board of that body for eight years, and was elected and served as the first state superintendent of institutes.

New Hampshire Grange Prizes.

The state grange of New Hampshire offers first, to be divided into three prizes, to the three granges that will make the best park of not less than an acre or this a grover of not less than two acres. It the offers an unabridged dictionary to each Pomona grange for the best essay on a Pomona meeting and a school book to the subordinate grange in each county district that shall excel in certain prescribed literary work during the year.

Auburntie grange, Columbia county, N. Y., has 104 members, and not one is a citizen for dues.

The grange picnic season is in view again.

PLAN BIG RESERVOIR.

PART OF IRRIGATION SYSTEM FOR WYOMING.

Large Dam Will Make for This One If Latest Report Is Adopted—Engineer Quoted Upon Certain Claims Unauthorized from Home for Explanation.

The Secretary of the Interior has set aside approximately the sum of $1,000,000 for the construction of the Pathfinder reservoir on the North Platte river in Wyoming. Commissioner will proceed at once to make inquiries from engineers in the field as to various details and to obtain from them a report on the proposed plan of irrigation, and, in the event that the report is favorable, he will then be ready to let the contract for the work. It is understood that the reservoir will be of sufficient capacity to supply all the water needed for the land to be reclaimed under the proposed system, which is to be the largest undertaking in irrigation upon any single stream in the western states. It will be the large arm of the arid and semi-arid country which is being reclaimed by the government.

WAS CAPTIVE OF GYPSIES.

New Jersey Girl's Two Years' Experience in the Northwestern Wilds.

After having been held a captive by a band of gypsies for almost two years, Jennie Meyler, a lad 15 years of age, was rescued by the Rev. Isaac S. Mills of this N. J. Mr. Mills left home in April, 1900, to go to school, to take a run in South Vineland, three miles above the city. On the Malaga turnpike a band of gypsies had established a camp, and the young girl was seen by them. Her mother, who had been abducted in March, was captured by the gypsies, who moved the night following the girl was missing. Jennie was taken to Texas and was seen with them at Fort Worth. Mrs. Meyler died in a small hamlet in the last two years in Texas, search for her. Mr. Meyler died, was dragged for his life, and he was never found to this day. Mrs. Meyler died at the fair. The bad tells an interesting story of her capture and the terrible life of the tribe to 1. Hess, Ohio and Illinois. He was also in Texas and in a few months ago, when the old leader of the band died at Elizabeth, Ill., after which the owner of rough treatment from the women of the band. When the band left Texas from Louisville, Ky., he escaped and walked to Cincinnati, where he got money to pay his way to Vineland. The young girl's mother was released by her husband, who had been imprisoned on fraud.

FOR GOLDEN GRAIN OF FOUR.

Several Persons Also Injured at Dolan Station in Lansing, Mich.

Two persons were killed and four injured in the Kansas or Indian Home, a Chicago-bound train, which left the rails at Dolan station, Lansing, Mich., five miles from Lansing, on the Michigan Central. The dead are Jerome C. Stone, formerly of Chicago, and Thomas Hopkins and James Ray Lansing. Stone left the car on some errand when the wreck first started, and from his mother at the hospital it was learned that he had been buried to death, they hadn't yet found the body of his companion, a portion of the car. Several other boxes were left in the wreck, and it is feared that there may be more dead. The injured are not serious. A portion of the train left the rails and one of the building exploded a few minutes after the train passed, throwing the fusees on the building and kindling a fire which destroyed the station and freight house. The damage was slight.

SEALS HIS HUSBAND'S FATE.

Wife Witness to Murder Case Which Ends in Confession.

In Pittsburg, Pa., a gray faced Charles Hunter sought to be acquitted of the murder of his wife, which he had shot and killed on the street. Mrs. Hunter had left her home in Sharpsburg, and had gone to meet her husband. When he saw her he drew a revolver and shot her to death, and dragged the body in the street. Hunter's defense was that he had married Mrs. Schneider, who had secured from him a divorce, but had married the couple soon in Illinois. It is said that Hunter had threatened to kill it and wife Mrs. Schneider, and that he had followed the woman to Pittsburg. Hunter said he had tried Schneider's house in Sharpsburg, and had waited there for the woman. He was shown into the house by the man, who had left his hat in anticipation of Hunter's coming. The woman ran out of the house and was shot down. Hunter said he was drunk when he did the shooting. The woman in question was a witness to the murder.

AGRICULTURAL SCHOOLS.

The Interest Intensified in the Education of Boys from the Farm.

A very important question in this country we had hardly mentioned the whole school system with the spirit and the knowledge essential to final success? One issue in this question may be here to be in the establishment of agricultural high schools, and, if we mistake not, Minnesota is settling the example in this line of work. According to the New York Tribune, what is wanted is such a modification of our common school system, that it shall point toward the farm rather than from it. There really is no limit effectively in making better and enterprising, agricultural chemistry and the mechanical feeding parts of the school course. Nor is there any reason why our city common school education shall not take in the study of little and their value to the fruit growers, vegetable and mechanics do not tend to be any more important studies than those we have indeed, all are that they may prove adapted to the class of people found in our common schools. We believe it is true that every child in a town can, and, in studies cannot be made to be the chief problem is how to provide a class of freshmen better equipped to profit in nature study.

In Minnesota it has been determined to have a agricultural school for each congressional district. Several counties have joined together in buying farm and school for teaching the science and art of agriculture. The Tribune, in its opinion, that this course profit from the success of the problem and experience of the Minnesota schools would be worthy of the combined purpose of legislation that to add agriculture as a number of small schools that are managing for an academic year of six months each, to cost the state of the farm during the six year months. It is said that $2 per year of the pupils number in eight thousand pupils, while and not than 10 per cent. of the pupils in the home farms to hold qualified to be interested in farm work and to engage in it with success. Should of the course of study pertains to those sciences that are closely related to agriculture, and that to the art and science of agriculture, and the meaning and the results of a small high school course.

GRANGE SUPPORT NEEDED.

A Bill Before Congress In Which Farmers Are Interested.

In the last issue before the Grange mention was made of the bill introduced in the house of representatives introduced by Mr. Hepburn of Iowa. In view of the interest in the proposed legislation we make itself for our readers a brief review of the bill. It provides for the establishment of agricultural experiment stations in the various states and territories, and for the appropriation of $5,000 a year for each station. Provision is made for the publication of the results of the experiments and for the distribution of the bulletins and reports of the stations. The bill also provides for the establishment of a department of agriculture in charge of a secretary of agriculture, who is to be a member of the president's cabinet. The department is to have a division of chemistry, a division of botany, a division of entomology, a division of forestry, a division of vegetable pathology, and a division of publications

BUILDING THE NAVY.

WHOLE COUNTRY A UNIT ON THE PROPOSITION.

Senator Gorman's Opposition to the Creation of a Proper National Defense Will Be Condemned—Site Own Party is against Him.

The naval appropriation bill reported to the house and besides the one item of one first class battleship, two first class armored cruisers, and three naval colliers, is "one long list of expenditures. The bill authorizes also an increase of men in the service of engines. The construction of no many cruisers is recommended because it is desired to give a better proportion to the navy. Last year provision was made for five battleships.

The committee says in its report: "If we place under instruments now authorized it is in favor of the construction of battleships on the ratio of two to one of cruisers of the same class. It is in proper note we would be just behind the nearest competitor, and the balance the point of succeeding. The committee is not in favor of increase ments are in there and each second ship.

It is not intended in its judgment. The temple do not wish to see the battleship on the navy place second. That is just because they are the very most powerful weapon of warfare employed and cannot have the protection of a fleet of cruisers. The country must have a respectable and growing navy for purposes of peace, France and the northern coast of American ports. Germany has begun the construction of its navy. Under pressure the work was pushed to completion, and it was unknown early. When the war of 1812 came the country found itself at a serious disadvantage because of that fact. Some years ago which had an advocate now in his house.

What is true of the people generally is true also of the Democratic party in the United States Senate. The Democratic party is not, however, responsible for itself or control control naval expenditure. The senate committee has reported the expenditure of a million dollars, which is in the very most powerful. The senate committee always will remain what it is, that it consists of a number of leaders who control the party will have to do with the government of the United States. It has not, and during our time some things may happen which will shake it highly necessary to have a fortified naval station on Mobile bay, and to have five or Manila better outfit and better armed than those the Spaniards had.

Severity and Fighting.

Bravery has always been supposed to be a necessary accompaniment of the soldier. Now it appears that in the Japanese language there are no equal words. Just how the Japanese soldier expresses his warlike spirit, just how a little Jap officer addresses his men in tight places, we are not quite sure, but, history records, quite recently when he finished his role from twenty miles away, and George Washington, father of the country, resented to profanity in the light at times. If we can guess by the flux of the war news the Japs are about to prove that one Gen Sui have to swear to fight—Indiana polis Star.

The Consular Service Bill.

No one regards such enthusiasm from politicians for economy diminishing some opportunities or limiting the area of their activities. The Lodge bill for the reorganization of the consular service of the United States has come out, and in unanimous indifferent and commercial organization than, indeed, the business interests of the country are practically a unit for the adoption of the merit system in the selection of consuls and the abolition of the fee system.

Notwithstanding this fact and in spite of the further consideration that the bill has been recommended by the foreign committee on foreign relations all sorts of "commercial" interests are now called to its opponents. The measure they say, is unnecessary, and no prompt would find himself bound to its provisions. The fight of the executive to appoint consular officers cannot be doubted in certain cases generated by unanimous, it is generally agreed, and it is undoubted by most who would that be partial advantage. All the last been heard be fore, at business and to measure is presently would be a waste of space and time.

The truth is that the opponents of the bill do not want merit in the consular service. They want the defeat of the present system and they know that the service is maintained under the government of a law passed in 1856, which is admittedly antiquated and inadequate and which is very good cause from the defects do not impose the political class of the law. They after foreign consulates, for which compensation many friends and been given to reward for actual or local party aid and not with the of the service. Not relations to the consular service it cannot be contended. The Lodge bill cannot be unconstitutional, nor can its executive would place in office of consulate in Europe and a merit list to the from 10 percent and 90 percent.

The enactment of the Lodge bill by the present Congress would be a contradiction from the spirit of the stand put policy. But it is a departure from the Democratic party will not only manifestly "adopt" but gladly welcome the friends of the measure are not loyal, are they sufficiently patriotic and earnest?

Reciprocity With Canada.

The Lewiston is for reciprocal trade relations with Canada. The United States and Canada has been treated by the British chamber of commerce. The idea is to have the great high commercial compromised for the purpose of negotiating a reciprocity treaty.

There is nothing unusual in the idea, but it is unusual. Canada has been in 1854 and should indeed be in 1896. American sentiment does the Canadian provinces of Confederation commercial and the large trade relations not in our withdrawal. In 1874 another treaty was negotiated but failed of ratification by the senate.

In the two years, 1895 and 1896, under the old tariff, the balance of trade was largely in Canada's favor, but the conditions are immediately changed the war tariff, principally responsible for this. In the main, the two countries are our customers and are beneficial to both countries.

Mr. Bryan's Policy Platform.

The Commoner's office of Lincoln for a democratic platform, is surrounded with conflicting opinions which call for prime investigation. Thus the Omaha platform seem favorable to the Democratic newspapers is enough to fill a whole journal ward with man made "boats" in the attempt. The process office of an extra $1 for a letter from Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland's Judge Parker indicating any platform was one of the newspapers behind can come there also to have a rather return on semi-friendly editor. Mr. Bryan's Nebraska with rails against the money power, and the other newspapers invited to the Post will be an equilibrium of the foundation to the convention. Omaha World Herald speaks opposition to the Omaha platform and declares it cannot be accepted by the Democratic party.

Military Work in the Philippines.

Some of the time that would ordinarily be spent in the hand of Moro proves that the pacification of the Philippines is not a command military establishments such as England has employed in the long course of colonial expansion. It is a fact however, that the need for the employment of troops is rapidly diminishing. There have of late been very few disturbances to the most civilized tribes in the north, where our earlier campaigns were conducted, and there has been nothing at all resembling a concerted effort at rebellion against the American authorities.

So far as we can judge from the dispatches, is worse now than the cause who followed the leadership of Aguinaldo or acted in cooperation with him have given up the struggle. It cannot be considered a fact, however, that the Philippines are independent it does not express itself in the appeal to arms. Instead of supporting a national movement there is only the occasional outbreak of some few dissatisfied persons who are obviously thwarted as leaders.

DO NOT LOSE THE STOMACH.

Cure Catarrh by Nature's Own Methods—Every Breath of Hyomei Brings Relief.

Nearly every one who has catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it by drugging the stomach. Temporary relief may be given, but a recurrence follows.

Until recently one physician would have said the only way to cure catarrh would be to have a change of climate, but now with Hyomei you can enjoy a health giving climate in your own pocket and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day cure yourself.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime and a bottle lasts four to six months, extra bottles of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows nature in the method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

F. S. Chapel of Ida, have sold a great many Hyomei outfits and the more they sell, the more satisfied are they that they are perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomei does not cure.

DIE IN RAIL WRECK.

ENGINEER AND FIREMAN KILLED AT PORT CHESTER, N. Y.

Locomotive and Tender Plunge Down 75-Foot Embankment Train Carries Twenty-Seven Passengers—Injured Rushed Ahead to Telegraph Station to Prevent Other Wreck in Tunnel.

Two men were killed when the Atlantic Express section of the Federal express left the Stamford, Greenwich and Port Chester N. Y. Railroad tracks at a point two miles south of Port Chester, N. Y. After leaving the Stamford station the train had run about five miles and had either slipped from a 75-foot embankment or the rails had given way under the locomotive of the train shortly before 10 o'clock. Many of the engineers and Wall Street men who were on the train were killed. The engineer and fireman of the locomotive were killed. The engine was upside down in the creek and the cars were piled up on the embankment. The dining car was ripped from the rest of the train and was left on the tracks. Some of the passengers were pinned down in the wreckage and had to be released by the firemen and others had to be released by the use of jacks. The injured were taken to the Greenwich hospital and were cared for by the local physicians and by those of the Stamford hospital who had been summoned by telephone and phone at the first word of the wreck. The injured were all cut and bruised. The engineer and fireman were killed in the cab of the locomotive. The train was made up of a baggage car, a smoking car, a dining car and a number of Pullman cars. The train was carrying about 27 passengers, most of whom were men who were on their way to their offices in New York City. The train was in charge of Conductor Charles Mitchell of Port Chester.

ROB POSTOFFICE IN SLEEP.

Young Nonchalantlet in Mission Tries to Hold Up Postmaster.

In Alison, Mo., Hardie Hughes, a young man, was in the office of the Hughes telegraph, by an old office, when a young man came in and demanded the money in the postoffice. The young man had been seen in the place the night before and had asked the postmaster if he had any money. The postmaster said he did not, and the young man left. The postmaster had a pistol in his hand. The young man had a pistol in his hand

Our Commercial Department.

It is desired to call the attention of the patrons of the Charlevoix High School to the Commercial Department which was established in our schools last year and to remind you, in the first place of the fact that nothing along this line has ever been given in the schools here, and, up to a few years ago, that this work was confined to business colleges altogether. It is quite evident to any one acquainted with the work and the statistical will doubtless go unchallenged, that it is one of the local important departments of the high school today.

While it is very important that the youth should have a liberal and extensive education, that he should have a broad foundation upon which to build his future; yet, the advisability of confining the work to a limited knowledge of many subjects rather than to a thorough knowledge of those subjects which will be of great assistance to him in a practical way may be very seriously doubted. In other words if the pupil cannot complete the entire course given in the high school and do it in a thorough manner, or take a post graduate course in some other institution, it were better that he confine his work to those subjects that will best prepare him for the practical affairs of life. A lack of thoroughness is the greatest criticism made upon the high schools today; and as the great majority of the age in throughness, the high schools, generally, are not fulfilling the demands made upon them by the parent government.

The pupil must be exceptionally bright to complete the course given in most high schools in which in the time allotted to it, and do it in a thorough manner. The average pupil gets a little knowledge of many subjects and a thorough knowledge of none, and the consequence is, that when he has completed his course, he is prepared only to be a tool-carrier, a "lumber jack" or a waiter in a hotel. He is familiar with Latin and German, but so often deficient in English. He understands geometry or Algebra pretty well, but cannot compute interest, cannot make a business contract, cannot write a business letter correctly or draw up a promissory note in proper form. He can tell you about the deeds of Cicero, Cæsar and Charlemagne, but he knows nothing about the great questions of capital and labor, of the tariff, of trusts, of the tendencies and other great questions of political economy, which are so necessary to intelligent citizenship. He may be able to tell you the meaning of molecules and atoms, of binary compounds and chemical equations, but he cannot tell you the difference between a bill of lading, a bill of exchange and an expense bill. He may be able to tell you something about the formation of the earth, but he cannot tell you anything about the formation of a subscription paper, a power of attorney or bill of sale. He doesn't know the meaning of legal tender, certified check or negotiable paper. He can write a fairly good essay on Ivanhoe, but he cannot make out a statement of account or journalize a sale.

Now, as stated at the beginning, the pupil should have the advantages of everything given in any first-class high school. To lead prepare the youth for a business life is not the great aim of education, but it is to train his mind, to strengthen his judgement, to develop all his mental faculties and make him a stronger man, better able to deal with the problems of life. The studies usually prescribed in a high school course, including perhaps everything taught in our own school, have, undoubtedly, great value in educational development. The question is—are not the subjects taught in the Commercial Department just as good mental disciplines as those taught in the other departments?

If a pupil has trouble with seventh grade work in arithmetic, will not Commercial Arithmetic develop his reasoning faculties as readily as algebra or geometry? Is not the study of Commercial Law or Political Economy just as good food for the mind as Shakespeare, Virgil and Cicero? There is nothing that will strengthen the judgement and reason better than will book-keeping. The time attention necessary for journalizing difficult items, posting and making out balances and statements, are excellent drills for the mind.

Visit of the Grand Lecturer of the Grand Chapter Royal Arch Masons.

Charlevoix Chapter, 141 R. A. M. accorded to Louis C. Goodrich, Grand Lecturer, a characteristically hearty welcome on the occasion of his annual visit to this Chapter, Tuesday of this week.

The beautiful Dedicatory ceremonies incident to the Most Exalted Master's degree, were exemplified by the Chapter, the explanations and criticisms made by companion Goodrich were in his usual happy vein, and High Priest and Sanhedrin alike profited by the visitation.

Then came the Mamoie ladies, wives, daughters and sweethearts of the Royal Arch with a repast to far the kings whose wisdom and fame were celebrated, and as the clocks struck low-twelve good nights were said.

STRONGEST EVIDENCE OF FAITH

E. N. Chapel & Co. Guarantee that Hyomei will Cure the Worst Case of Catarrh in Charlevoix.

When one of the most reputable concerns in Charlevoix guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or they will refund the money, it speaks volumes as to the merits of that remedy. It is in this way that E. N. Chapel & Co. are selling Hyomei the inhalation that has made many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic catarrh. In Charlevoix and vicinity.

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon nor teaspoon. You breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit and benefit will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and certifies and protects the blood with additional germs. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever mucous membrane exists catarrhal germs there Hyomei will do its work, of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountains high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the air pure by giving off vitalizing antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

A complete Hyomei outfit cost but $1.00 and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for several weeks treatment.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure you Chapel will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh in this natural method and prevent catarrh colds that are so common at this season. 20.

Ordinance No. 62.

An ordinance to amend section 1 of ordinance number 60 entitled "An ordinance to prohibit the keeping of swine within the corporate limits of the village of Charlevoix, and to provide for the impounding of such swine and the collection of damages for such keeping, and to repeal all ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith."

The Village of Charlevoix ordains:

Section 1. Ordinance No. 60 entitled "An ordinance to prohibit the keeping of swine and to provide for the impounding of such swine and the collection of damages for such keeping, and to repeal all ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith" is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 1. The keeping of swine within the village of Charlevoix is hereby prohibited, except in such places and under such regulations as may be approved by the Board of Health of said village, and it shall be the duty of the Marshal of said village to impound all swine found in violation of this ordinance, and to dispose of the same in such manner as may be approved by the Board of Health of said village, and to collect the damages for such impounding and keeping of such swine which is the same as provided in section one and two of said ordinance.

Section 2. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the first day of May, A. D. 1904.

Approved this 2nd day of May, A. D. 1904.

LOCAL NEWS.

Wm. Stevens, of Petoskey was in town Monday.

—Mrs. L. D. Bartholomew arrived home from Atlanta, Ga., Friday.

—E. Carpenter and family are expected home from Florida Friday of this week.

—You will miss a good thing if you miss "Old Arkansaw," at the opera saturday night.

—Don't forget that the final musical program of the High School Chorus is given next Tuesday evening, May 31.

—Mrs. C. W. Granger, of Grand Rapids, who came up last week to attend the funeral of her brother, the late W. H. McKinney, returned home the last of the week.

—The scenic success of the season is the startling story of the Sunny Southland "Old Arkansaw" which will be seen at Lewis opera house April 28th. Prices, 25, 35 and 50c.

—The beautiful Cantata "Building the Ship" (words by Longfellow) will be given by the High School Chorus, assisted by local soloists, in the High School Auditorium on Tuesday evening, May 31.

—Dr. Wilkinson, and wife of St. James, came over on the Beaver Monday. The doctor left Tuesday for Grand Rapids to attend the annual meeting of the State Medical Society.

—The council having authorized the extension of cement walks to the east, that two feet of ground is being covered by cement by many, and the prospect is that before long you will have to go to a side street to secure a handful of virgin soil.

—Grossman & Moran have bought the Fagan cigar factory fixtures and started a shop at the former Kinsey rooms in the Ayer block. Mr. Moran is well known here. They propose to manufacture a high grade of goods, and ask the patronage of Charlevoix dealers.

—Don't fail to hear the High School Chorus and soloists in their closing cantata "Building the Ship." While making the exclusive effects of "Queen Esther," the poor music of this cantata pleases many people much better. Its patriotic characters makes it highly appropriate to follow Decoration Day.

—"Old P. T." is a great friend to farmers, and they should give serious consideration to the following. A few years ago the patrons department makes it obligatory for mail carriers to make monthly reports on the condition of the roads over which they have to drive, and if the roads are not kept in good condition the service will be discontinued.

—The Thirteenth annual Convention of the W. C. T. U. of Charlevoix County held in the M. E. Church at Charlevoix was a decided success. But three unions were represented. There were present 12 officers of local unions and 12 Superintendents of departments. Mrs. F. J. Howard district President was also in attendance and assisted in the meetings. The average attendance of visitors at the day meetings was about fifty, at evening meetings between 200 and 300.

—The Charlevoix County Bank will move into its elegant new quarters next Monday. With the exception of the new Traverse City bank rooms, the Charlevoix County Bank has as fine and commodious rooms as any bank in Northern Michigan, and we doubt if any one applies." Item in elegance. The rooms are finished in natural oak, to match the elaborate fixtures, which are embellished with oxidized iron and plate glass front. The president's room in the rear is a beauty, while the cashier's office in the front is a model of convenience and elegance. In the rear of the enclosure a vault of good proportions contains a burglar proof chest, and a series of safety-deposit compartments. A fleet attentic "day gate" adorns the access for business hours. Everything is provided for the convenience of the public. Charlevoix has reason to be proud of its new bank.

—Hon. C. J. Pattinson, of Petoskey, was in town Tuesday.

—Dr. Lewis secured a good attraction when he booked "Old Arkansaw."

—H. J. McNeil is down from upper Michigan visiting with his family.

—Mrs. Bessie Mason, of California, arrived here last week, and is a guest at the parental home.

—Hugh McCartney, of Chicago, who was called here by the death of his father, returned home Tuesday.

—The magnificent new steamship Missouri will leave Chicago for the north June 1st, probably arriving here the third.

—Among the attorneys in attendance on circuit court this week, was former congressman W. S. Menick, of Petoskey.

—Joseph Desmond and his crew, who have been waiting a week for cars with which to remove the plant to Cadillac, left Tuesday morning.

—"Old Arkansaw," with a strong cast, a world of mechanical effects and a car load of scenery, will be seen at Lewis opera house April 28th. Prices, 25, 35 and 50 cents.

—Circuit court proceedings this term aside from the usual batch of divorces, was confined to the case of the People vs. Hugh, of Boyne Falls, forgery. The jury returned a verdict of guilty.

—Miss Belle McNeil, who has been at Grand Rapids for some time under treatment for ear trouble, has been home for a few days. She is very much improved, but will return next week for further treatment.

—The Charlevoix Concert Band will give a concert at Lewis opera house next Monday night, assisted by local vocal talent. The boys are progressing finely in mastering their repertoire, and deserve encouragement. Buy a ticket and take in the concert.

—Rev. C. T. Stout devoted his regular Tuesday evening service at the Episcopal church to a lecture on "Worship and the choice of Religion." We very much regret that want of time and space prevents our review of his able address, which covered much of church history that is generally misunderstood and sometimes perverted by sectarian writers.

—Subcommittees have been appointed and work is well in hand to make the Old Settlers' Meeting here June 8th a success. It is earnestly hoped that our people will take hold of this matter in such a way as to demonstrate the fact that Charlevoix is up-to-date in entertaining the "ranger within its gates. This will be an occasion upon which it is very desirable to secure the good opinion of our neighbors. A little effort and a moderate contribution from all, will accomplish the desired end. Let us make the Old Settlers feel at home.

—The editor returned from the World's Fair Sunday night having spent the greatest part of "Fair Week" at the great Exposition. Although yet incomplete, it is the grand thing of the grand the world has ever seen. About ten thousand editors and publishers were in St. Louis, and they were shown every courtesy by the citizens and fair officials, as well as by the railroads. We will not attempt to describe the fair—it would require more time and space than we have at our command. Suffice it to say that we return refreshed, and much more concerned in the tremendous resources of our great country, and the good will of the rest of the world for the great republic.

The SENTINEL has taken very much abuse from neighboring journals for its attitude on the so-called "primary reform" question. It is therefore cheering to note the action of the state convention last week in emphatically turning down Wm. Alden Smith's minority report for a primary reform plank in the platform. When people investigate this question carefully they cannot fail to discover that the clamor has been mainly hot air, and that the deep-toned "reform" cry is often a delusion and a snare. The republican party will reform all evils in the body politic, but it will not be stampeded into committing itself to false or visionary methods. The SENTINEL could see no virtue in "primary reform" as outlined in the Colby bill, and the State convention seems to have been of the same opinion. The trouble with the whole business is that the people have been deceived and misguided by the word "reform." The familiar legend "Pears Soap," has sold much soap.

—Advice from Miss Calla Wilbur, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at Ann Arbor, state that she is doing finely.

—J. W. Harris was here a few days last week. He had with him as a guest Chief draughtsman Chipman, of the Pere Marquette engineer corps.

—The Ladies of the Congregational church will hold a bread and cake sale on Saturday p. m. May 28th from two until 5 o'clock, at Priest's old stand.

—A mission will be given in St. Mary's church by the Redemptorist Fathers beginning Sunday June 12th, the 10 o'clock mass and continue for one week. Rev. Father Joseph Hurley C. S. S. R. will conduct the exercises.

—More fun than was ever bundled up, in one show before. More laughs than were ever before crowded in a single evening's performance. That is what people say about "Old Arkansaw" which will appear at Lewis opera house, April 28th. Prices, 25, 35 and 50 cents.

—It is a play dealing with common folks and apparently the characters are the actors of naturalness, and a wonderful fund of comedy is introduced through the action of the play and you remember it as one long laugh. "Old Arkansaw" will be seen at Lewis opera house, April 28th. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cents.

Census Enumerators.

Bay, A. J. Stroud.
Boyne Valley, Will Nelson.
Charlevoix, Arthur Fitch.
Chandler, Frank Pearson.
Eveline, Archie Miller.
Evangeline, Hiram Thompson
Hayes, Frank C. Burnett.
Hudson, James A. Waggoner.
Marion, Thompson Shapton.
Melrose, Clayton Bixby.
Norwood, William Cowan
Peaine and St. James, James Gallagher.
South Arm, Phil L. Lansay.
Wilson, Edward Brimmell.

Census enumerator in Charlevoix county will be governed by rigid rules and regulations and penalties are provided for infractions and violations. According to the instructions and enumerator who discloses the nature of secrecy will be fined $100. Three dollars will be the compensation for each day of ten hours and the enumeration must be finished on or before the first of July. Factory and other specials enumerators will be employed during July and receive $2 per day. Enumerators are privileged to enter dwellings and persons who refuse to give the information desired may be fined from $50 to $100.

June 1 is regarded as the census day and all information is to be obtained as based on that day. Persons who are married during June, after June 1, will be returned as single persons and all who die during that month will be counted as alive on that day. Babies born after midnight, June 1, will not be enumerated.

Lodgers are returned as part of the family with which they lodge and are counted as members of the families. Hotels are considered as families and all employes who sleep there are reported as members. Clerks who sleep in stores are also families. Individual census cards are to be filled out with the following particulars regarding each person: Name, residence, voting district, physical condition, race, ability to read, write and speak English, school attendance, place of birth, nativity of parents, occupation and number of months employed during the year preceding the census day. Widowed men are to be reported at their homes if they habitually visit them. Transient lodgers at hotels are to be enumerated only where they have no other particular abode. Summer boarders are to be enumerated at their various homes.

In cases where persons have two occupations the enumerator is authorized to learn at which the most time is spent or the most money received and this is the legal occupation. Preachers who also own farms are to be listed according to the more lucrative of the trades.

The G. R. & I. change time on May 29th, when the night trains will be renumbered.

COAL AT NORWOOD.

Into the Veins Three Miles With Good Showing.

Advices yesterday from Norwood, state that the coal prospector, after boring 78 feet, struck a vein of pure bituminous coal, and, with a 2½ inch bore brought up a large pail of good material in three feet borer.

How much deeper the vein will go remains to be seen, but indications are certain that Norwood has a coal mine.

A Successful Spectacle.

One of the most pathetic yet disgusting spectacles that has ever attached to American politics, is the Hearst presidential candidacy.

That so large an element of a great party should be so completely controlled by this mountebank is a sad commentary on the glory of free institutions. With nothing to recommend him but his millions, which he is spending with a lavish hand; with a record of sensational and discreditable journals that has been a standing bomb to the profession; with a career in congress that is conspicuous for its uselessness, the man is hunting delegations galore, and will probably get that from Michigan.

It is indeed a successful spectacle and one that should bring a blush to the cheeks of every honest democrat.

NORTHPORT FERRY.

The Big Boat Leaves the Bay, and Goes to Traverse City.

A Grand Rapids special says:

In railroad circles here there is much talk and gossip over the taking used of the Northport car ferry by the Pere Marquette. A railroad official said this morning that the move undoubtedly is the first step in the effort to secure control of the Northport branch of the Grand Rapids & Indiana by the Pere Marquette people. It is known that the management has long coveted the line as the only possible outlet to the Soo.

The Pere Marquette can have no use for the ferry except for this purpose. It is thought that the plan is to tie up the ferry and make the Northport branch of the G. R. & I. so unprofitable that the stock will be reduced to a figure that will enable the Pere Marquette to get control of it cheap.

The Pere Marquette has to contend with great things for Traverse City in case its plans succeed as it will have access to the upper peninsula and Traverse City will be the natural distributing point. The Northport line would become the main line and the present Petoskey line would be operated as a branch.

The Grand Rapids Evening Press President H. H. Metheny of the Traverse City, Leelanau & Northport railway company, who has been in New York for several days returned to this city this morning. When asked by The Press concerning the reported abandonment of the line from Northport to Traverse City, he said: "That's all nonsense. It has not been even thought of. It's true that the road has not been a money maker this winter, but it is now doing a good business and there is no possibility of its being discontinued."

Now that its Upper Peninsula connections have been captured by the Pere Marquette, however, it is considered more than possible that an attempt will be made by the T. L. & N. to effect traffic arrangements with some Wisconsin road which will give the line an outlet to the West. A car ferry line to Green Bay, Menominee or Manistowoc, with the proper railroad connections at the other end, would solve the problem even more readily than the arrangement with the Manistique, Marquette & Northern, which has just been abandoned.

Heavy leaders in Michigan are feeling the brunt of the victory, as the result of recent county conventions in the state, and are now predicting that the twenty-eight votes of Kidlington will be cast as a unit for the New York newspaper man in the St. Louis convention. It only from "my say" guessed that the Parker men will be shown an quarter to the state convention, should Hearst control.

The Charlevoix Sanitor, the best sickle elixir in the market.

The G. R. & I. are selling World Fair excursion tickets to St. Louis and return on Tuesdays and Thursdays during May and June from Petoskey for $13.75, good 7 days, with choice of routes.

EAST JORDAN WINS.

The Athletic Meet at East Jordan a Successful Event.

The field day and track meet held at East Jordan Friday in which teams from the East Jordan, Charlevoix and Traverse City High schools participated, was won by East Jordan with a total of 62 points. Traverse City got second with 45 points and Charlevoix was third with 36 marks to their credit.

The highest individual score was made by Maddock of East Jordan, who secured four firsts and a third, giving him 21 points. Campbell of Charlevoix secured 19 points individually and Lardie made the highest score of any Traverse City boy, 13 points, two firsts and a third. Traverse City's four firsts were won in the running broad jump, the 220-yard dash, the 440-yard run and the football punt, two of these being won by Lardie.

NO SUNDAY TOBACCO.

PENNSYLVANIA BLUE LAW IS UPHELD.

Man Who Bought Cigar to Obtain Evidence of Violation Is Fined Himself—Friday's Proceedings Noted Cattle Buyer Killed.

Judge Mantle's recent decision that a man who bought a cigar on Sunday, in Washington, in violation of the provisions of the Sabbath laws was guilty of violating those laws himself was reversed by the Superior Court. The case was brought up on appeal from a decision by Hunter. He was an agent of the Sunday Observance Association, and engaged getting evidence of violations of the Sunday laws. He was fined for that employment, brought a suit for damages and had been fined in Judge Mantle's Court. Superior Court found that Judge Mantle was wrong in his decision. Lane appealed from the case against Hunter on the charge of "Malicious Mischief" in the amount of $10, which judge Mantle imposed, on appeal affirmed.

Our Commercial Department.

The study of shorthand is very important from the standpoint of mental culture. It invigorates all the mental faculties, and by the close attention necessary in taking dictation, cultivates habits of patience and perseverance that are invaluable to the pupil in the ordinary occupations of life. He is trained to distinguish and adhere closely to the train of thought that runs through the subject matter, and in doing this his power of perception is developed, his judgment strengthened and his taste refined. The fact that he must relate in his mind the last words of the dictator while he is taking one of the syllables Shorthand an great exercise for the memory. In fact it may safely be said that there are few other subjects taught in the high school that will compare in effectiveness with Shorthand in the improvement of the mind.

It may be asked that if this department is so important why it does not show greater results from the year's work. The question will not be asked, however, by anyone familiar with the qualifications of the pupils upon entering. Many of them were greatly deficient in the principles of arithmetic and English and were very poor in spelling and penmanship. The principles of arithmetic or English are not supposed to be taught in this department, but about methods in arithmetic are given, with drills in both arithmetic and English.

Time had to be spent in teach principles, and the pupils have worked at a great disadvantage on account of their being behind in their work when they entered. That they have improved wonderfully is quite evident from an extra bulletin of their work at the beginning and at the present time.

Speak a good word for the Commercial Department and insist on its continuance.

No one who carefully reads the foregoing articles can get the impression that there is any division of opinion among our High School teachers as to the comparative value of studies pursued in the various departments. No such condition exists. The truth is that each class of studies has its own peculiar usefulness, and no addition may yield a larger measure of general mental discipline when properly taught. This specific and general value is as true of the Commercial branches as of any other, and unquestionably entitles them to definite place in a high school course—not to displace other studies of recognized value, but alongside or them and on an equal footing.

Judged in this way, the Commercial work deserve a special teacher and as good a teacher as for English and other languages, Mathematics or Science. It is work that cannot be satisfactorily done by one who has not made a specialty of it, and in our own school there are no teachers in other departments who have time even to attempt it in addition to the regular work that is expected of them. The alternative is either to continue and improve the Commercial Department or else send our boys and girls away to other schools as soon as they develop an interest in Commercial work and cannot be indulged in finish the usual work of the High School.

It is true that some students have not accomplished all that was expected in the Commercial course this year, though they have probably been as successful as they would in any other department. Some students are not eminently successful in any school work, especially in the more advanced studies. But it is also very noticeable that some students have done much better work this year in the Commercial Department than they have done previously in other lines, and it can be said without reservation that a majority of them have surpassed materially their as good work as can be shown in any high school during the first years existence of its commercial department.

There is always a certain proportion of students who cannot entry cultivate a strong interest in the usual lines of high school work, though they are interested in athletics, mechanics or music. Such students generally do not finish a high school course, especially if for standard of scholarship is raised, unless special provision is made in their behalf. This is one of the strongest arguments for systematic provision for manual training (handling of tools) and industrial work. And in addition to all the foregoing considerations it constitutes also one of the strongest arguments for the continuance of our Commercial Department, with provision for gymnastics and manual training work as soon as we are able to equip for it.

"It is impossible."

"My gentlemanly friend, if Mr. Lamere would lend me to agree with you, only I cannot regard a Wilkes and Walker leading themselves to a mere item. They must have had what appeared to them very convincing proofs of the legality of these claims, before they dishonored to act for the person who alleges them."

"Then you would have one regard the matter seriously?" cried Stacey. "You do not consider it an infamous attempt to extort money?"

"Most certainly I do not. We shall have to be wary, sir, and get a peep into the enemy's hand before we effect to discuss his plan."

Stacey thought awhile. Though his confidence in his father remained undimmed, he was that some greater proof was needed than his own solitary recollection of the conversation between Walker and his father.

"Will you see these lawyers for me, he asked, "and learn more what female claimant they are strange stuff? Assure them from me that while I have not come into the fortune, I do not mean to fight, rather than it, my father's memory shall be aspersed. Remember, if they have any proofs, I will be ready to meet the claimant." It is the old scheme of some adventurer, Mr. Lamere, I believe."

Mr. Vandy heard the interview with the Kennedy's solicitor, and was struck dumb. Case in point Arden Lessmore, during a gathering hard in his mind, he had interested Stacey, where he made the acquaintance of a young girl named Lestelle Wayneth."

It was Stacey's aim to enter on the profession of astronomer. It must have been to an expedition his father had that he had learned when the General expressed his desire to see Lestelle. Being a little from home, at the party the young man was dropped a chaff and shaded his face with his hand. He was right, indeed, unfortunate, and his best feelings were wounded when he was compelled to leave that the account whose memory he had vainly resolved, the pleasant times of either the one and the other.

"Dry young girl," said Mr. Vandy, reading from his notes, "was carried away from her home by Mr. Arden, who was, and for a a chapel was Wharton, etc. By the marriage there was a child, Stacey, the surviving of whom is dead. Behalf of the child, Mr. Arden, but the other claimant pretends to be the grandchild of the Arden possessor in an illegal Fife and, unless we are prepared to remove the legitimate existence of his uncle."

"In defense of the actress Lestelle He shall not," exclaimed Stacey as the lie, doubting, he was not Stacey as the lie. "In this miserable girl always to were so serene and prepared."

"Was a world Lestelle Lee," said Peter, contributed Mr. Vandy with flashing eyes. "This is not low doing—Stacey that it is to—but Fairly."

"Fairlee is the name of my legal guardian." Mr. Vandy exclaimed, "Mr. Fairlee; I have a cousin note in my memorandum."

"It is true," his handiwork Peter continued. "But Stacey needs have his name in the Lestelle Lee." "Look to it," he said to my brother-in-law." He, sir, can be interrupted. If applying I can do so and can prepare

THE FIELD OF BATTLE

INCIDENTS AND ANECDOTES OF THE WAR

The Veterans of the Rebellion Tell of Whistling Bullets, Bright Bayonets, Burning Beaus, Bloody Battles, Camp Fire, Festive Dogs, Etc., Etc.

"Things happened merely in the army," said a veteran of the Rebellion. "When Farlin's division was driven back at Beaucoup, N. C., one brigade (the Third of the Second division) was thrown out to check the rebel advance. The underlined being heavy, we ran into the rebel masses and got in the first volley in our advantage. We had fired six or eight volleys when the brigade commander ordered us to cease firing. This gave the rebs a chance to notice that both our wings were in the air, and they pre-coded to take advantage of the situation.

"When the brigade fell back, I took in a tree, and Comrade Giles took an other to my right. We not could see where we were and seen rebels only a point, but I had fired only once and had reloaded and was just about to cap when a fellow who had gotten in on my left flank, took me and the twenty-three-inch leg-bone in my leather cartridge box. This continued me to be had not seen, and I had been outflanked and I hiked for a more congenial clime. I came across Giles (Tatter), and we traveled together to a more hospitable region, and I lost sight of him. I had been with my company only a few minutes when I discovered a number of bullets whistling in the right for the day.

"In the same fight the Fourteenth Michigan and a rebel regiment built up from behind a rail fence and an independent light of their own, in which the Fourteenth whipped the rebels and got the worst of it. One of the boys of company o was sent back after a lot of ammunition, and when he came back he found his company had moved off and left him. He was a great joke relieved him of his ammunition and gave him a musket and a place in the rear without a guard. He made a flank movement, got around behind the rebels and fell in to the company to their points.

"That was a fellow who had the nerve of the nerve of the American soldier. Here is another. When our regiment, the Fifty-second Illinois, was in camp in Kentucky after the battle of Mission Ridge, we had a regimental band, very Cleveland. One afternoon we were lying in our tents when we heard McLaughlin, Hastings, Dan and myself had joined forces, so that we might be together in battery for it. Recently the enthusiasm of a well-known English lady, who had been carefully resolved of this when they turned their battery upon us with an exceedingly peaceful design on the cover.

"The magazine found no sale on the news stands and the publishers were actually obliged to recall the issue and issue a new document.

"Whether it would be possible to bring the magazine into favor is hard to tell. Perhaps it might be done if fashion should take it in hand as she has the Gibson girl and Lady Betty Balfour. The editors are rich and their funed and are used to have, grown and ribbons in every variety of style.

"The magazine's inertia of India is surely not prejudiced against the people. Quite the reverse. Several hundred years ago, the Indian people should be a woman's constant study. It should be all that she may, she must guard well against the signs of ill health. Mrs. Brown tells her story for the benefit of all wives and mothers.

"DEAR MRS. TOBIAS:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will make every mother happy. Your health and happiness depend upon the wise care of children. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with pain and soreness. I was noticed a statement of a woman who was in the same condition and received her health. I was said the wonderful results she had had from your Vegetable Compound and decided to try what it would do for me, and used it for three months. I am well now. At the time, I was a different woman, the neighbors remarked it, and my husband felt in love with me for all over again. It seemed like a new existence. I had been suffering with leucorrhœa and was weakened to a very low condition and tired, and built up my entire system. I feel like a young girl in a new woman.—Sincerely yours, MRS. CLAY P. BROWN, 21 Cedar Terrace, Hot Springs, Ark. Ohio Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE POPULAR PULPIT

YOUTH AND HIS COMPANIONS.

By Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D., of Brooklyn.

"The desire for companionship is instinctive. By nature we are social beings. Isolation is distasteful. We marvel at the power of melancholy Robinson Crusoe, in his fact. The growth is not modern, nor is it artificial. It is a spontaneous, and vague in the beginning, nor for reasons of safety, nor for commercial reasons alone, but for social reasons as well, the unseen flock is great comfort. People are more company than stamps." said the old Irish woman, who preferred dog fight to a dog fight. The universe, with all its white lying and moving worlds, is one great

Secondly, we must bear in mind that the good of which this speciale is from the same source as everything else good, the good of the soul which is the good of the body. Many of us have lives of what is good for us. We assume the three-world, health, fortune, or power, whereas these things may not be best. It does not follow that what is good for the soul is itself either than. He has not gone to the rich man, the poor man, the cities which control and restrain us and the rich man's palace, but that we set an exaggerated value upon such things. They surely are not the only things and are not better upon them. May do not even believe in a day of judgment, the day of God

"And men better than man sees and he sets a higher value upon character and a clear conscience. His own ship carried him through the storm—the ship of his character, the ship of his conscience.

Lastly, we must exercise patience and trust in God. We think—I am fully crowned with temporal success, but not always. It is not guaranteed, though the higher towards are, the most wear and trust God.

Ordinarily, above he is longing the blessings out of affection. We can only keep because of keeping faith. Prove the principle of the test by your own experience, the happiest people are those who are most religious people. Prove the principle by the history of the world. Take the biography of the Christian nations. God is our Father, and cares for us. The floods will pass, the sun shine all problems at last be solved, and the things work together for good to those who love God.

"Thank God, I am a Christian, I am a Christian, I am a Christian

SUNG THE KING'S PRAISE.

Little Material to Work On, but Official Did His Best.

In a recent published book on the Battle of North Atbara, the author tells of the practice of the native chiefs of keeping a court jester—which might be therefore just laudable—which business it is to go before the chief and sing his praises. Some times it happens that this function may be not to be embarrassing for lack of matter, as in the case of the Kwazi who, being for the day he went out fighting with a hundred warriors, and after a whole day's effort he managed to kill only one miserable little hare. Yet the court jester ran in front of the king calling out: "Hear the voice of the Swallow, the chief of which, has killed a hare. Let all the people listen. It was as big as an ox, as fierce as a lion and as swift as a horse. The brave King there killed the hare all alone. He killed it with no assistance. Listen, ye people. Since the king has killed a hare. Women can go into the bush. He killed a hare. It was as terrible as a tiger as large as an elephant. Its eyes were flames of fire; and yet hath the great king killed the hare." The long panegyric was repeated, over and over, while the king followed behind with great gravity.

ALWAYS FISH UP STREAM.

Expert Angler Gives This Advice to the Brethren.

A youth whose prowess in trout fishing has gained for him the sobriquet of veracious gives this advice: "If you wade down stream in your fallen boots, the meat and offfleece of lamb leaves coming down stream would be tainted for every one of the fish. You undertake yourself when you start east to. Then a way pass to your place? Lots of water wash over the front and don't have to. I find Search fish up stream for the fish to be with their tails down stream, breasting the current, and they can't see you nearly as well as when you come from behind. If the mud and weed blows that the fish go down and away from the fish you instead of around and over them. So when I have to fish down stream I always get out on the bank and slip in behind cause of fishes, and then I don't feel the water, for be sure that the trout knows every unnatural thing that is taking place over and in the stream."

POET'S DISLIKE OF PUBLICITY.

Lord Tennyson Never a Seeker After Notoriety.

In one of the published letters Lord Tennyson discusses the title which he claimed after at being raised to the peerage. A publicist which he added exists have suggested that he would not care to use his particular honor conferred in any publication which might follow, but he was included in the biography. The publicist ran as follows: "I heard of an old man who came day to whom all the great men of her time had written. When Tennyson's "Queen" came out she read it out to her class and to an old man friend who was with her. Tennyson wrote "Queen" and put it to the judge." And she not be chosen on the side for children and the grandchildren was in. "Now, you know the rest." Never mind! she said and went on reading. I think the judge on after to that old lady and here honors upon her."

VON MOLTKE AT HIS WORK.

In 1866, a few days after the mobilization of the German army had been ordered at the beginning of the Prussian-Austrian war, a friend of Moltke, who was anxious to see him on important business, called upon him in his apartments at Berlin, and was astonished at the sight of a great number of maps and papers spread out on the floor. The great soldier was on his knees, with his head resting on a table, and was so absorbed in his work that he did not even hear the door opened. "Why, what are you doing?" he asked. "Why, I am on my knees," was the reply, "I am trying to see how the armies of Bohemia will be placed."

Butter-Making in Siberia.

Siberia, notwithstanding the imagination of the world as a land of ice and blizzards, has even now shown the Trans-Siberian Railway has been finished and when the Russian areas of that vast country is beginning to be exploited, one is rather surprised to see that more than five-sixths of butter is annually exported from Siberia, the great plains of the great prairie and warm three years after the railway was opened. Butter manufactures were started. The experiment has now foundation in Tomsk, from instruction on a large scale in dairying and butter-making.

Manufacture of "Milkstone."

"Milkstone" for calcite is manufactured in the following manner: By a chemical process the casein is precipitated as a yellowish powder, which is mixed with formalin. Thereby a hardness is formed. The substance with various admixtures, forms a composition for hair, curtain shaft, fancy, celluloid, marble, amber and hard rubber. Handles for knives and forks, paper cutters, cigarette holders, cigar holders, combs, marbles, chess and other small articles are now made of milkstone, the only material, cheaply and proof against fire, made is very durable.

Purification of Water.

L. Allen of Marseilles, France, has devised a method for a chemical purification of water which is said to have given excellent results. Water, as a powerful antiseptic, is added in proportions of one part to 100,000, and in most cases destroys bacilli within a quarter of an hour. Water thus water potable the free iodine is then neutralized by adding hyposulphite. The water is then filtered through charcoal and is said to come out limpid, odorless and tasteless.

BENEFITED BY COUGH

PROFESSIONAL SWINDLER OF CHURCHES IS CAPTURED.

Had "Commercial Clergy" that Proved Offensive to Christian Ministry from Pockets of Compassionate People.—Foolish Gullet also Relieves Him of Money.

Will the crooks, William Davidson alias "Fred Hall, agents of the Church Organization in New York, say they have not to satisfy one of the Christian church societies in the country, and even if they do, some one has reason to think Davidson charge a fast accounting for the money he has secured from the Christian people by the use of the Christian name. Davidson, alias Hall, was arrested in Chicago, from there he was taken to New York and arraigned before Justice Mayo, charged with the grand larceny of a Brooklyn man, who was induced to part with $50 on the representation that the money was needed by the Christian Union Tabernacle, of which Hall was said to be a member. Hall was also charged with the theft of $5 from a Brooklyn man, who was induced to part with the money on the representation that it was needed by the Christian Union Tabernacle. Hall was also wanted in Newark, N. J., where he is said to have secured a large sum of money on the same representations. Hall is said to have been convicted in the east on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences, and was said to be a professional crook, who has been working the churches for years. At the time of his arrest in Chicago he had in his possession a letter of introduction from a Chicago clergyman, which he had presented to the pastor of a Chicago church, who, it is said, was induced to part with a "generous" sum of money. Hall's operations in Chicago were not known to the police, but he was known to the police of Milwaukee, where he is said to have been operating for some time. Hall is said to be a clever talker, and his ability to talk has been the means of his securing money from many people who, if they had not been so easily impressed with the importance of the work he was doing, would have kept their money in their pockets. Hall's method of operation is to visit a city, and, after securing the ear of some prominent man, he would secure a letter of introduction that had such sacrilegious value that it was accepted by many people who would have kicked if any other than a "Christian" had presented the request for a donation. The letter would be signed by some prominent man, who, if he had been in his right mind, would have kicked at the use of his name in such a manner. Hall would then go to the pastor of some church, and, by the use of the letter, would secure the pastor's name to a letter of introduction, which would be used in the same way as the first one. Hall would then go to the people, and, by the use of the letters, would secure money from them. Hall's method of operation was to secure a large number of these letters, and, after he had secured the money from the people who had been induced to part with their money by the use of the letters, he would destroy the letters, so that there would be no evidence of his work. Hall's method of operation was such that it was difficult to get evidence against him, and he was able to secure money from people who, if they had not been so easily impressed with the importance of the work he was doing, would have kept their money in their pockets

CHAPTER XVIII.

A week or two after this, as Darcy was returning from the office of Mr Yately, with whom he had been holding a long and disquieting conference, he passed the doors of a tit tier, and saw the familiar bulb poster upon them that Lestelle was performing one of her farewell engagements. He was seized with a desire to see her to hear from her own lips how far she had participated in the attempt to ruin him. Something he thought of her latterly, resembling, at a foreign creature, who had exercised all her fascinations to win him to her side, and then showed his character. At the same moment, he inclined to believe that she was but a tool in the hands of the arch schemer, Pauline. Meanwhile between these two opposites he strolled round to the stage door, where the mud encrusted boy was still standing, and there received her appearance.

She came out at the conclusion of the first piece, leaning on Miss Hawkins. The laughs as well as Miss Hills, were full of flowers that had been flung upon the stage, and she was selecting the prettiest for a little one who ran forward and presented her bouquet to Mr Darcy, approved. She smiled at him.

"Well, what do you think of me?" she inquired. "Do I look as if I had the blues or anything?"

"I think you look as if you had a very good time."

"Why, what's there to make the blues for, the more that accomplished the last gaffe, which I told you of, I suppose? Miss Hawkins was so mad she took more than one stick of rock out of the boy's basket, and chucked it at me! Wasn't it a shame? Fancy getting angry at her own pupil! Why, I was only trying to improve her! Indeed, she ought to be quite pleased, I think, that I can be so funny when I am interested in her."

"Miss Hawkins is a very good performer, Mr. Dalmaine, and a very good teacher, I should think, if you do not mind my saying so! May I offer you a cab?"

"If you prompted, but there, anyone else would be quite lost with her! Look out, she comes! Hi! Hi! Hi! Here we are! Hi! Hi! Hi! Hi!"

"It is the habit to provide open cabs for actresses, I suppose, in the interest of the new bold bonnets such either. It would be serious to my pate, at all events, to wear one here."

"Hi, who hooted you, eh? Hi! Hi! Hi!

NOVEL METHOD OF SUICIDE.

English Jurist Had Himself Shot in His Gamekeepers.

Lord Chief Justice Hankinson of England, who lived in a former century, notwithstanding his high position, became so tired of life that a gamekeeper to handle off the mortal coil. Has he frowned in disgust and life, business or the time a weaker of time do so frowned on a matter of course and the front of the house was buried at four commands with a noble friend (Grange). Parliament had to stand the consequences of the relatives of Hankinson at all goods which was also one of the penalties for self-mutilation. He adopted a novel expedient. Several of his good having been stolen, he gave orders to his keepers to shoot any person that set his or near the part at night. He first was demonstrator stand when challenged. This on a dark night in terrible himself in the part of his keepers and not answering the challenge was shot down on the spot. The keeper of an old oak under which he lay had made his escape of the time and gone to visit one of his gamekeepers of Hankinson.

TO SAVE THE HORSES

Why Hostess Took Theater Party to See Gun Play.

Mrs Harlow was once invited to the opera party and was taken to Washington where a comic opera was being put from Broadway cast and costumes which it seemed the production of the opera. The all enjoyed.

This went back to supper and time listening made it narrow you are so interested in why I came up to see a play. Can you guess?

Nonsense suggested the lady, as mind the managers saying. No, she couldn't tell him on the stage to off.

Some suggestion was that there that was financially interested in the management. Not, which I can say for sure the contrary. That gave it up.

"Well" she said, "my husband is very particular about a horse, and that finally the only whose carriages can be safely entrust on."

STRONG IN HIS BELIEF.

Justice Harlan Would Not Bow to Majority Opinion

Justice Harlan is a member of the faculty of the Columbia law school and a check on law, also was seated at the school with Judge Parks on the District court of claims. "I wish, Mr. Justice," said Judge Parks, "that you would have your clerk mail me copies of some of the cases decided by the supreme court." All right, Judge Harlan replied. Then he asked affectedly, "do you want those cases in which I have published dissenting opinions?" "Why, Mr. Justice," he said, "I should not read them," retorted Justice Harlan, "and yet be responsible for the publication of such law as appears in those cases I oppose to which I have dissented."

Sign Was Too Much.

William J. Bryan, the well known orator, it is said, also uses a sign on a traveling district, which he carries with him. Bryan, it is said, is fond of a joke and he takes it in the form of some at his expense. Having been a hotel with a fine sign, the Nebraska leader decided to investigate the matter, and, as everything in the sign, the man there had erected his sign in his own name.

What Costs Educational Test.

It is not the intelligent voter alone—the voter who reads the papers and knows what is going on—who is affected by the educational test. Illiterate voters are not alone the people who are in need of the protection of our laws and requirements that the ballot, which ultimately rule the course of the nation, shall be cast by men who are able to read.

—Saturday June 11th the Congregational ladies of the north side will give a bread and cake sale at Priest's old stand.

—The Womans' Christian Temperance Union will meet on Friday at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. I. E. Mudge. A report of the State Convention will be given. Visitors are welcome.

—A good array of new ads in this issue. Read them all. J. L. Crane, S. M. See & Sons, Levinson, Shen the harness man, H. B. Fowler, Taylor the tailor, Joe Grossman & Moran, the cigar factory men. Read them all.

—Miss Lois Dodge, who has been a stenographer in the law office of Osborne and Mills, at Kalamazoo, arrived here Sunday and will assume her former position as stenographer and secretary for R. F. Foley, at the Belvedere.

—The renewal of the University relation for two years instead of one is doubtless the result of the new policy inaugurated in the High School this year by the Board of Education. The success achieved along the line is due to the efficient and persistent work done by Superintendent Howey.

—It is just as interesting Anderson said in his address to the opera house Wednesday. The "Old Settlers Association" will be perpetuated, but the pioneers, who now constitute a large percentage of that organization, are steadily decreasing in number. We will always have the Settlers but we shall not always have the Old Pioneers.

—Charles E. Kirtland, one of the oldest captains on the lakes, died at Milwaukee Sunday, aged 77 years. He had sailed Lake Michigan in command of seventeen different ships and never had an accident to a boat. Capt. Kirtland was the master of the wrecker Leviathan thirty years ago, and will be remembered by old settlers.

—J. W. Harris, who spent a few days with his family this week, is now no better than a common tramp, and should be treated accordingly. Mr. Harris, who is an assistant to the chief engineer of the Pere Marquette, is engaged in a critical inspection of the tracks over most of the system, and has been "hooting it" on the tie for two weeks. He expects to have plenty of exercise for several weeks to come.

—"Jack" Nicholls, who for several years has been surgeon on a British steamship in the South African trade, was recently married to an English lady of high station, and will make England his future home. There are few men better equipped in the medical profession than Dr. "Jack," and few that have seen more of the world. It is said that he will settle down to a quiet life in "Merrie England," and his many friends here will be very much happier.

—The new steamship Missouri arrived here Friday evening, and the newspaper she got most have spread her bawsen pipes. The Charlevoix people went out on the Beaver and met the big boat in the outer harbor, and the East Jordan band, which was here with a big excursion, stationed itself on the bridge. Every whistle in town, tooted and shoot, shrick a welcome, the bands played, and the crowd cheered. The Missouri has been fully tested, she is in many respects a duplicate of the Illinois, and everything is the wider dining saloon, made possible by taking up the spar deck promenade that is so conspicuous on the Illinois. Her interior finish is artistic, and her appointments entire by modern. The Missouri will easily take rank among the finest steamships on fresh water. Long life to the Missouri and her sister, the Illinois, the finest steamships in Lake Michigan.

—Mrs. Geo. O'Neill, joined her husband here over Sunday, where she was the guest of Mrs. Grant Harrison.

—The Steamship Missouri returned here with a big excursion from Traverse City Sunday, and our people had a second and better opportunity to inspect her.

—Miss Mattie Bedford left Friday for Kalamazoo to attend College Commencement exercises. From there she will go to Mishawaka, Ind., to visit friends.

—J. W. Slater, Pere Marquette station agent at Harker Creek, claims to have buried $200 in a quart glass can under the depot and that some stiner stole it the first night.

—Charlevoix need not be ashamed of its reception to the Old Settlers. We did our best, and that is all any town could do. But many words of praise were spoken by our visitors, both for the town and for its hospitality.

—E. A. Burnett and bride arrived from California on the steamship Illinois Sunday. They took in St. Louis on the trip spending a week at the World's fair. Mr. and Mrs. Burnett will reside in the recently built Sears cottage, on Main street.

—Lewis G. Stevenson, of Eagle Creek, son of former vice president Stevenson, is at the Davis cottage on the Belvedere side. Mr. Stevenson enjoys the distinction of having been the Bearss manager in Michigan, with Charley Hampton as understudy.

—The graduating exercises of the Charlevoix County Normal Class will be held at the High school auditorium on Thursday evening, June 16, at 8 o'clock. The address will be given by Hon. W. H. French, Deputy State Superintendent of Public instruction. Class Day Exercises will be held in the same place at 10:30 o'clock on Friday. A fuller announcement will appear next week.

—Mr. Hugo E. Stahl, the pipe organ expert from the factory worked all Tuesday night and until nearly Wednesday noon in setting up and testing the fine Congregational church organ, and last evening a large audience listened to a recital by Rev. Chas. Mockridge, of Detroit. Mr. Mockridge not only proved himself a master of the pipe organ, but demonstrated the fact that the instrument is a masterpiece of mission and mechanical skill. Modulating from dulcet tones of sweetness to passages of powerful cadence, the performer covered a program classical yet within the appreciative grasp of everyone present. The organ presents a front of finely polished oak and is a thing of beauty, as well as an instrument of singular purity and power of tone. The organ was made by the Barckhoff Co. of Pomeroy, Ohio. It stands 16 feet high and presents a front of eleven feet eight inches. It has two manuals, and its action is part tracker and part pneumatic, with separate wind chests for each. It has 12 speaking stops, with tremolo, and accessories of "swell to pedal," "great to pedal," and "swell to great." It may be a surprise to earn that there are no "dummy" pipes. Every one of the ornamental front pipes are voice tubes, and are connected with the open diapasons. It is unquestionably the finest organ in Northern Michigan.

The Article Has a Local Bearing.

The first Bishop elected at the recent M. E. general conference, at Los Angles, was Joseph F. Berry, D. D., of Chicago. Dr. Berry has been the editor of the Epworth Herald since its beginning and has developed the paper to be the most widely read of any publication in the world.

He had the distinction, not enjoyed by scarcely another man in a century, of having been elected on the first ballot, by an overwhelming majority.

But a very important fact to which we desire to give local significance is that Dr. Berry is an enthusiastic Mason. When making his annual visits to the Conference, as editor of the Herald, he has for years displayed on his watch chain, the charm of Knight Templar.

When once asked if he was not afraid that the charm might affect his chances for the Episcopacy at the general conference, he replied that he was not ashamed of Masonry, and realize, "man is my own business."

We should be glad to be informed how many of the other six bishops elected at Los Angles were likewise Masons, or, at least how many were avowed "mixts." We venture the guess that at least three of the seven are Masons, and we would not be surprised if still another could be added.

It is indeed gratifying to note this evidence of broad mindedness in the general conference, and that the ignorance among the clergy exists only in a small degree.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Charlevoix High School Events Closing the School Year.

For the first time public graduation exercises for the eighth grade of the public schools were held last Wednesday evening at the High School, and at their close Mr. Iddings presented promotion certificates to the following students. Hanie Hanshaw, Irene Harris, Dorothy Iddings, Geo. Johnston, Doris Kane, Sam Levinson, Kate LaPeer, Ella Whitford, Emerald Emery, John Zeitler, Arvilla Dunham, Mary O'Leary, Chas. Pinn, Henry Partridge, Margaret Ryan, Alice Shapton, Lottie Willson, Ethel Wooley, and Clenand Mayne.

With three or four exceptions all of these took part in an elaborate and well rendered program of recitation, original essays, and music, introduced by a few words of advice to new ninth grade by Supt. Howe. Space does not permit individual mention of the excellence of these parts; it will suffice to say that the new class enters the high school with the highest reputation for natural ability and scholarship, and their exercises well sustained that reputation. Their work reflects good credit upon Lake Hall and sets a new standard for our High School "Freshmen."

The annual commencement exercises of the High School Seniors were held in the M. E. Church on Thursday evening. After the invocation by Rev. A. F. Nagler, beautiful piano selections were rendered by Misses Levinson, Emory, Bedford and Brooks on two pianos supplied by the Beach Hotel and Mrs. Bellinger. Beautiful solos were also sung by Mr. Jacobs and Miss See, and a male quartette, "Life's Dream" was happily rendered by Messrs. Jacobs, Martling, Wicks and Finch. The class salutatory was given with ease and effectiveness by Miss Josephine Smith, and the valedictory, full of good sense and fine English, was delivered by Mr. John Hamilton. By special request of the speaker, Mr. Charles Black announced the address to the class by Supt. J. M. Tice, of East Jordan. Mr. Tice's theme was appropriate and practical, well illustrated by historical reference to great heroes, and its delivery sustained it an increased reputation as an effective and pleasing public speaker.

The diplomas were presented by Mr. Iddings in behalf of the Board of Education, in a few well chosen remarks in keeping with the class motto, "I Will." The class membership as printed in the program is as follows: Charles N. Black, Howard L. Calder, Marion A. Harris, John W. Hardie, Nellie F. Hartling, N. Ellis Hall, Mellanatan, Lowen O'Neill, M. Josephine Smith and DeForrest H. Wood. Their average age is 18½ years, and they are as fine a set of young men and women as were ever graduated from the Charlevoix High School. Here's to their abundant success in all life's endeavors!

A word of appreciation is also due to the Junior Class, whose taste and labor went so far to make this occasion happy with the appropriateness of the decorations that beautified the auditorium of the church. This is considered a sort of routine obligation upon Juniors, but it deserves its own measure of credit when faithfully done. Some of them may not be in the graduating class here next year and should receive their dues now while their share is work rather than honors.

The Annual Alumni Banquet was held at the Beach Hotel on Friday evening. After very pleasing piano selections by the Misses Levinson, Emory, Bedford and Smith, a piano duet by Miss Green and Mr. Berry, and a beautiful vocal solo by Mr. Jacobs, the company adjourned to the spacious dining hall, followed by the Juniors, Seniors, and High School superintendent and principal.

The room was beautifully decorated with colors of the class of 1904, and the toastmaster and speakers were conveniently seated at the long table where they could face their auditors. The Rev. T. B. Hughes said himself "as toastmaster, his introductions being peculiarly felicitous. The first response was by Charles Black of the graduating class, to the theme, "Advice." It was thoughtful, witty, and well delivered. The class of 1905 was well represented by Laura Miller, himself a fine illustration of "Brain and Brawn." Dr. Wicks then for a few minutes taught the "School of Human Nature." His illustrations were excellent proof of the universal sentiment that "one touch of Nature makes the whole world kin." His "Jackson Johnson" is a character that ought to be embalmed in immortal fiction. The concluding toast, "The American girl," was "done up brown" by Mr. Lisle Shanahan. It is comprehensive, literary, classic, and well enforced with historical illustration—a gracious tribute to collective womanhood. This ended a feast of reason and a flow of soul that will long be remembered by those present. The only cause of regret in connection with the occasion was the fact that the attendance was not as large as it should have been and the Alumni Association will have a financial deficit to meet.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the work of Mrs. Baker, of the Beach Hotel. The menu would have done credit to a Yale scholastic event.

It was in every particular a culinary surprise, and did great credit to the house and its management.

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Communicated by Supt. Howe.

At the close of the school year it may be of interest to mention a few general matters concerning the year's work. A few statistics will first be in order. The total enrollment in all grades this year is 641, as against 754 from the superintendent's annual report for 1903. The total number belonging at the close of the year is 625, showing a loss of 121 during the year. The total number at the close of last year was 555, showing a loss of 201 for that year. So it would appear that while the total enrollment this year has been somewhat less, the total losses during the year have been a little more than one-half the number last year. In other words, the attendance this year would appear to be more regular and continuous than last.

In every year a considerable number enrolled as members but continuous only a few weeks or days, while many are obliged to leave school before the last month of the term. With an enrollment in the High school nightly less than last year we have at the close a membership only five less than at the close of last year. Most of these losses have occurred in the last two months due to students falling in their school work or having to leave school to take up other work. Last year the number neither absent nor tardy in the High School was four, under a system that did not count students who reported to the school for an excuse by telephone; this year the number is six, with every student counted tardy who is not actually in his own room when the last bell stops. This latter ruling will account for a smaller total number this year of those receiving the special diploma for "perfect attendance." Students who were absent on account of measles, for example, were counted absent simply because they could not honestly be counted present.

One decided improvement this year is very gratifying to our teachers, the total number of visitors in all grades last year was reported as 549; this year it is 1367. Such a large number of interested visitors is inspiring, and we hope the record will still be surpassed next year.

Perhaps the most noticeable improvement during the year appears in the organization of the High School work on a seven-period basis. This allows each teacher six classes of 40 minutes each, and permits much more thorough and satisfactory work than is possible with recitations of 20 minutes long. The High School equipment has also been increased by a full supply of chemicals, a compound microscope purchased from the Queen Inter Ocean Fund, and the additional dissecting microscopes for botanical work. Two new sets of encyclopedia have been added to the school library, and a Future Study Cabinet. The inauguration of the Commercial Department, which promises to be continued, has also considerably increased the range of High School work by including short-hand and type writing. With further enlargement of our laboratory facilities, as recommended by the State University, our High School will undoubtedly equal any of its size in Michigan. The High School Chorus and Lecture Course have had pleasing and successful results and the Lyceum work will be considerably improved next year. With the addition of one or two classes, our school work will be fully in line with the general course of study recently adopted for Michigan high schools.

Finally, if the school work this year has stood for one thing more than another, it is for honesty, good discipline, high ideals, and thorough scholarship. If a student gets these in his school training he is well equipped for success as a man or woman. And it may be added that they are standards that are especially to be sought for in a smart town. They should be put higher rather than lower for next year, and the full, intelligent, sympathetic co-operation of every parent and patron should be given toward making our public schools the best in the state.

ON THE DIPLOMA LIST.

The following letter has just been received by Supt. Howe from Hon. Angell of the University of Michigan.

"I take pleasure in informing you that the Committee on Diploma Schools have put your school on the diploma list for this year and next. The Committee desire to say that in their opinion larger laboratory facilities are needed, and an increase of the library is very desirable, and that if you are to secure and retain efficient teachers, it will be necessary to offer higher salaries than you are now giving. We trust that these changes can be made without proving burdensome to the public, since your city seems to be very prosperous.

OLD SETTLERS' DAY.

A Large Gathering of Pioneers in Charlevoix Wednesday.

The annual meeting of the Old Settlers' Association of the Grand Traverse Region held here yesterday was a pronounced success, despite the fact that, owing to the unaccountable mean.ess of the Pere Marquette R. R. Co., in refusing to run a train, practically none of the members from Traverse City or Elk Rapids were able to get here. Fully 350 people would have come from those towns, and other points on the railroad had an opportunity been given.

The weather was all that could be desired, and everything passed off pleasantly. It was worth a long journey to witness the meetings and greetings of old pioneers who had not seen each others' faces, in many cases for years.

There were many notable pioneers here, among whom were H. O. Rose, of Petoskey; John Scott, of Northport; J. J. McLaughlin, of Elk Rapids; Jackson Ingalls and wife of Petoskey, who formerly lived here, and others that limited time will not permit us to enumerate.

The Wilbur vacant store was used as a lunch room at noon, and many a well filled basket went home empty. Everything was jovial, free, unconvential, and distinctly fraternal.

Besides the Charlevoix band, which did itself proud, there was with us the fine East Jordan band, the music and evolutions of which elicited unstinted praise. With the steamer Columbia, from Suttons's Bay and Northport, came the Northport band and the Suttons Bay Boy's Band. About 150 people came on the Columbia, "up lake" furnished a good quota, and many came in with teams from Antrim county.

The afternoon business meeting at the opera house was fairly well. It was unanimously voted to hold the next annual meeting at Petoskey, and the following officers were elected.

President—H. O. Rose, Petoskey.
Secretary—C. H. Estes, Bates.
Cor Sec.—W. S. Anderson, Traverse City.

CHAPTER XX.

It seemed an unfortunate fatality to Estelle—this she found herself more prone to lay upon her own shoulders than upon those of her parents—that if she left Dublin it no longer boasted other life. The school-rooms—she was but half-a-dozen months the principal of its more humble—were closed, and she was left alone in her dark with the tips she got and her friends, and drawn from her life's work—a loss, or otherwise.

Frequently Miss Hill wrote to the south of the miserable girl, and wrapped up the envelope in a letter. I regret I shall find you very lonely, but, for pleasure's sake, I must tell you that Lestelle has left Dublin—we have lost her.

Though Hill contrived to make the sting rather sharp, and wrapped her up in kindness, Estelle felt the blow.

Poor Pauline grew grievously pale and thought of the day Father Peter died. Yet it was a far less sharply sentimental sorrow than that of Lestelle.

Mary Hill, among its questions, had asked Estelle if she had ever thought of the relationship which the circumstances of her birth had created, and Estelle had seldom, if ever, thought much about it.

Pauline was a little more in the world than Estelle, and had learned more of life than Estelle, and knew that there was a little more than a little difference between the two

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Room, June 1, 1904.

The common council for the Village of Charlevoix met on the above date in regular session. On roll call the following officers were found to be present: President, E. W. Cousins; Trustees, O. E. Wilber, A. E. Cross, F. D. Campbell and N. H. Washburn, and Little Stanzman Clerk pro tem. Poole and Miller being absent.

The minutes of the meetings of May 19th and 25th were read and approved.

On motion made by F. D. Campbell and seconded by A. E. Cross the matter of the grade on the south hill on Bridge street was referred to the committee on streets and sidewalks.

On motion made by O. E. Wilber and seconded by A. E. Cross the following resolution was passed by yes and nay vote as follows. Yeas all.

Resolved, That Nelson Hudson's account for work done on the south hill be allowed, subject to the approval of the village president, on the ground that the work was done at the request of the village president and that it took double time and work only practically one day, and work which should have taken two men and a team two days was done by one man and a team in one day, and that the time of the team and man was worth double time.

The matter of the walk in front of Charles Dellinger's store was referred to the committee on streets and walks.

On motion made by F. D. Campbell and seconded by N. H. Washburn the following resolution was unanimously adopted.

Whereas, There are petitions of the office holders of a municipal nature, A. Bennett for Justice of the Peace, and Wm. Clay Crane, to be entered into the ballot for the ensuing year, and Wave of Suicide Over Monday.

Three suicides in Chicago and one in Ohio is the result of the usual "blue" on Monday. Two of the Chicago suicides were Bohemians, one a German. Two of the suicides were women, one a young girl of 17 years of age, who had taken a dose of laudanum because her mother had scolded her. Miss Mola Wolf was married to Frank Wolf, a boy of 19 years of age, and the young couple were living with the mother. Miss Wolf was married in her mother's dress, and it is feared it blighted her life. Miss Wolf was a beautiful girl. Chicago Dispatch.

OLD AND NEW ISSUES

WEAKNESS OF EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S POSITION.

While the Former Democratic Leader Criticises Bryanism, He Forgets That the Questions He Raises Also Have Been Passed Upon.

Grover Cleveland has evoked his belief that there is an opportunity for Democratic success in the coming presidential election.

But the former President makes conditions under which that opportunity must be embraced which will not appeal to all the Democrats in the land. He says in the first place that the fighting forces of the Democracy must not be surprised to a third defeat in a strange cause. They must be given the true rallying cry.

If course he means that Bryanism, to all its phases must be abandoned. "Shoddy issues and questions no longer challenging popular interest," he says, "should be manifestly silent forever." That, of course, applied to the issues raised by Bryan, but in the next breath Mr. Cleveland urges the rifling of the issue of tariff reform, and an appeal to the people for economy in the expenditure of public money, as well as an arraignment of the Republicans for having made and broken promises. He would also attack the Republican policy with respect to the Philippines.

But is not Mr. Cleveland faced with shoddy issues himself? Did not the American people pass the seal of their disapproval upon tariff reform in 1894? Did they not express their approval of the Philippine policy in 1900? Is it not possible that Mr. Cleveland is as much of a back number as Mr. Bryan is in his way?

Of course, this is a question for Democrats to decide, and they will have to meet it.—Cleveland Leader.

The Man Who Knows.

"A petition asking the two great political parties to promise the Filipino people that their will ultimately be given their independence has been circulated. The Democratic party will, of course, grant what the petition asks. I sincerely hope the Republican party will not be led into any such declaration. * * * The time for Building cannot arise for several generations. A people 90 per cent of whom are still in a state of gross ignorance, and all of whom have been for 400 years denied any experience of self-government at all, cannot be made over in a decade. The hope of success of our work in the Philippine is tranquility of the public mind and a condition of public attention in which the conservative, peaceful and educated members of the community may able to give their best efforts and sympathy to the primary work of improving the existing government."—Secretary Taft to the Hamilton club.

After the experience of 1900 it seems incredible that any considerable number of Americans should again offer into a consideract to destroy the confidence on which a public government has been built up in the Philippines, and yet that there is such a contingency is shown by Secretary Taft's warning. His advice may therefore be well considered. It is a common sense view from a man who knows more of the Philippines than any other American, and one who stands higher in the estimation of the Filipino than any other American.

It comes from a man who remained in the Philippines a year after he was summoned to duty in this country, on petition of the Filipino people. It comes from a man he received the highest testimonials of regard and affection from the Filipinos when government he had organized and conducted.

Secretary Taft speaks, not in behalf of the Filipinos, but as one prudentiest statesmen, who knows them and who is interested in their present progress and their future welfare. He is the man who knows.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Mayflower Question.

The intensely democratic organ of the collection of the occasional use of the ex-presidential yacht Mayflower by the President should have kept it out of the list of campaign issues. But the Democratic minority longer dignified the matter by some remarks in the House, and the President has seen fit to reply in the form of a memorandum signed by Secretary Moody. The official statement makes short work of the attacks that have been made upon the President for his Mayflower trips. It is to be regretted that an equally convincing reply cannot be made to the criticism of the Post-Dispatch Free-pass, journeys by rail, notably its free ride on its long Western trip a year ago. When the President travels on the yacht Mayflower, he goes as government expense in order, and that is entirely proper. Why, the U should he not travel at government expense—if he does not pay the traveling bill out of his own purse—when he goes into the country to issue the only reasonable criticism upon Mr. President's course is that he accepts the favor of free special trains from private railroad corporations Congress ought to provide for the cost of Presidential tours, if they can be construed a legitimate charge upon the treasury.—Chicago Tribune.

Will Erect Statue of George Sand.

The people of Paris will honor George Sand by erecting a statue of the great writer to stand in the Place des Vosges, near the Victor Hugo museum. NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Dr. C. J. Kneeland, a pioneer physician of Traverse City, died Friday.

A Catholic church will soon be erected in Boyne City. Father Hrom of Petoskey has made a canvass of the situation. He finds there are sixty families of the Catholic faith in that vicinity. An acre of ground has been secured on the South terrace and a large edifice, it is stated, will soon be under way.

H. H. Power & Co., bankers of Suttons Bay have decided to change their institution into a state bank to be known as the Leelanau County State bank. H. H. Power & Co. will start a new bank at Northport, June 15 under the name of the Northport bank, with Frank H. Davis, present principal of Suttons Bay schools, as cashier.

Saturday morning Tindle & Jackson's fine large handle factory and saw mill at Alba caught fire, and was seen a mass of ruins. The office, banks of logs, and piles of lumber were saved. The exact loss could not be ascertained but as the mill was a good one, and equipped in Tindle & Jackson's characteristic liberal manner it may be accepted as a fact that many dollars of value were up in smoke. The plant was insured.

The Litchfield Stevens lumbering interests at Cross Village have been sold at receiver's sale to the Cadillac Handle Company for $200,000 after a spirited contest between the winner and the Oval Disk Company of Traverse City. The Hamel-Conroy Land Company was also a bidder. These vast timber interests in northern Emmet will now be utilized by the Mitchell brothers' enterprises at Cadillac, where most of the timber will be hauled for manufacture.

The East Jordan baseball team has organized for the season and is ready to meet any independent team in the state. New grounds, fences and grandstand have been built and the team is equipped with new uniforms. East Jordan will be a member of the North Michigan league now being formed, which will be composed of Petoskey, Charlevoix, Harbor Springs, Kalkaska, Boyne City and East Jordan. The league will probably play three or four games a week, and with the short jumps should be a success financially and otherwise.

Messrs. I. E. Bell, State secretary, and C. W. Wagner, one of the State Executive Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association of Michigan have concluded arrangements with William Tyler and J. H. Bopp for the use of Deep Water Pt., and the beautiful resort property platted by Bopp last summer. These properties comprise the most delightfully shore frontages on the east side of Torch Lake and will be occupied the first two weeks in August by the members of the Association above named who desire to join in an outing of a couple of weeks under canvas.

Another electric railway proposition is being discussed and this time is suggested that Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Cadillac and Traverse, and the intervening towns, be connected by trolley cars. It has not been said who is responsible for this suggestion, but whoever he is, he hasn't done any harm, for this road won't be built right way. Officers were elected the other day for the Alpena, Lexford & Western railway, and for the fifth time, but that steam railway, supposed to connect Alpena with the eastern shore of Lake Huron, hasn't been built.

Within six weeks work will begin on the construction of a metal working plant at the foot of sixth proposition that when the industries of the Cinnabbaland are scarcely larger. Just what the nature of the plant is those who are promoting it will not tell at the present time, but a plat of land 75 acres in extent has been set aside for the plant and 2,000 horse power is to be joined from the Michigan Lake Superior Power company's canal. The owners will also have plants in connection with certain parts of its business on the Canadian side of the river. No less than 1,000 men will be employed as soon as the plant is completed.

The Rev. B. C. Fenner of Cadillac secretary of the Northern Michigan Baptist assembly, has announced that the annual meeting will be held in Cadillac Aug 9 and 10 at the assembly grounds, between Lake Mitchell and Cadillac. Among the features of the assembly, which will last from Aug. 9 to 19, will be three lectures by the Hon. Henry B. Pettengill, a lecture by the Rev. Frank S. Lyons of Owosso a lecture on "Mormonism" by Hon Glen Webster for several years a missionary in Utah; five addresses on the gospel by the Rev. T. W. Young of Ann Arbor and addresses by the Rev. C. H. Strong, superintendent of the Baptist state missions, and the Rev. R. W. Lambert of Chicago. Other lecturers and minisers will be engaged.

—A year or so ago most of the pieces along the shores of Lake Michigan, especially in this vicinity, were all agog over the prospect of securing the location of the United States naval station which the navy Department ordered built somewhere on the great lakes. The consolation made a tour of the lake ports, and the members were feted and royally entertained. Finally, a location near Chicago was decided upon, and everybody else gave up the fight. Now comes the announcement from Washington that President Roosevelt has appointed a new commission to select a site for the naval training station, and the fight is to be made all over again.

A MODEL STREET.

The Bitulithic King of all Paving Substances.

The writer of this has seen stumps in Bridge street, Charlevoix. It could not then be dignified by the name of street—it was a "road," and we are certain that it was quite as passable then as it has been most of the time since up to this spring.

Bridge street, our chief business thoroughfare, was a disgrace to the town. It had no drainage, and to keep it reasonably decent was a constant drain upon the public treasury. Its mud holes were notorious, and fortunes frequently remarked that it was the worst piece of road they traveled in getting to market.

But when the question of paving, which carried with it the necessity of sewerage, was spoken of, it brought a groan. It was a steep hill to climb, and seemed altogether too steep. But the hill had to be climbed, and the council, backed by the people climbed it.

The street was well sewered, and then the council attacked the paving question seriously. Before the council decided upon the material to be used, it thoroughly investigated the matter, and then the contract was given the Central Bitulithic Paving Co. of Detroit, and the work was begun in May and finished about two weeks ago.

The Charlevoix County Bank has delayed removal to its new building in order that everything should be complete. Cement walks are now being built, and when these are ready for use—probably the first of next week the fine new quarters will be occupied.

—Monday's Cadillac News: It is among the probabilities that a number meeting of the Knights of Khorassan will be held in July or August in Petoskey or Charlevoix, a concert tee having been recently appointed in Traverse City to select the meeting place and to arrange for the meeting. They ought to have met in Cadillac, but if they won't, why, the Cadillac Knights will go to Petoskey or Charlevoix.

—A year or so ago most of the pieces along the shores of Lake Michigan, especially in this vicinity, were all agog over the prospect of securing the location of the United States naval station which the navy Department ordered built somewhere on the great lakes. The consolation made a tour of the lake ports, and the members were feted and royally entertained. Finally, a location near Chicago was decided upon, and everybody else gave up the fight. Now comes the announcement from Washington that President Roosevelt has appointed a new commission to select a site for the naval training station, and the fight is to be made all over again.

CRAZY MAN'S CRIME.

KILLS HIS TWO CHILDREN AND HIMSELF.

Returns Two Shots Its Others Made Lessen Its Death of His Wife and Disembowelment. High School Teacher Has Little Brown Children.

Crazed by the news of his wife's elopement with a young man, Frank Wilson, a well-to-do farmer living near Ionia, killed his two little children and then committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart. The tragedy occurred Sunday morning at the home of Wilson's father, Jacob Wilson, near Ionia. Wilson had been drinking heavily for some days and was in a state of mental depression. He had been in the habit of carrying a revolver with him for some time, and it was with this weapon that he committed the deed. The children, a boy and a girl, were in their beds when their father entered the room and fired two shots into their bodies. The shots were not fatal, however, and the children ran from the room and into the adjoining room, where their mother was sewing. Wilson followed them and fired two shots into the woman's body, one of the bullets entering her heart and causing her death. The children then ran from the house and Wilson, who had been standing in the doorway of his father's house, fired a bullet into his heart and fell dead on the porch. The children will recover.

Wilson's wife left him a week ago and went to her mother's home in Ionia. She had been a school teacher in Ionia for several years and had a large circle of friends. Her husband had been jealous of her for some time, and had accused her of infidelity. Wilson was a man of about 35 years of age and was a prosperous farmer. He was well known in Ionia and had many friends who will be shocked at his act. The children are well known in Ionia and have many relatives who will be prostrated by their deaths.

ENDS HIGH SCHOOL TRATS

Trustees Take Radical Action and Put a Stop to Fraternities.

High school secret societies have been the bane of the existence of the trustees of the Ionia schools for some time. Some years ago the trustees made a strong effort to rid the school of the societies, but they were then forced to let the matter drop because of a technicality in the law. The trustees have been planning ever since how they could get rid of the societies, and last week they took the matter up and passed a resolution to the effect that no pupil belonging to a secret society should be allowed to enter the high school building. The action was taken at the suggestion of Superintendent Clarke, who expressed himself in the strongest terms against the institution. There are numerous high school societies in Ionia, and they have been a source of much trouble to the school authorities. The boys belonging to the fraternities are said to be the most unruly pupils in the school, and their influence has been very bad on the other students.

An electric line has been planned to connect Chicago and Indianapolis, to be known as the Chicago and Southern. Its plans for this company. The promoters claim to construct the road similar to a steam road, with the exception of the power equipment. It will be built on a right of way through Lake, Porter, Jasper, Pulaski, Starke, Stark, Newton, Benton, Tippecanoe and Marion counties. The cities and towns will be joined to the main line. The first station will be built in Chicago, about the Grand Central station. The line will be completed to Logansport first. The terminus of the suburban line will be Porter, Ind., Chesterton and Valparaiso

The County Convention.

The republican county convention, to nominate county officers and elect delegates to the senatorial and representative conventions, will be held at the court house in this village next Thursday June 23d.

It will be composed of delegates from the three townships of the county, elected under the caucus system, and that these delegates will truly and faithfully represent the sentiment of the republicans of their several township no man can deny. If they do not, it will be because republicans failed to attend the primaries, to do which was not only their right but their duty.

In every township there delegates were elected by a majority vote of all the voters there present. If you hear anything said about "ring rule," or "slate" or "machine politics," or "primary reform" in most cases it will be from those who did not attend the caucus, or from those who regard the caucus as having no binding force, as not entailing no obligations of republican one in the minority.

As in Charlevoix, so in every other township caucus, all who was or could be compelled to vote against his will or conscience. The struggle such men had to cause they got the votes and gave them honestly, and when they won it was by a majority of all the voters cast, instead of by a plurality, or a possible minority of all the votes cast, as would have been the case under a Colby rail primary election.

Therefore, reasoning from these premises, we may know that the nominations made next Thursday will represent the sentiment of a majority of the republicans of Charlevoix county, and, therefore a majority of the people of the county.

The republicans of Charlevoix county have never yet nominated or elected incompetent or unworthy men to administer county affairs, and they will not do it now.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Boyne City is preparing to get up a big celebration July 4th.

The Northern Michigan Baptists will assemble on the Baptist grounds between Lake Cadillac and Lake Mitchell, Aug. 9 to 19.

The Central Lake potatoe is among those that gets a raise of salary by the recent adjustment. Commencing with next month an additional hundred dollars is added.

Electric lights for Rapid City, Alden and Crystal Beach are among the possibilities. W. E. Clement, who owns water power a mile out from Rapid City expects to install an electric lighting plant for the purpose.

Bear Lake Enterprise: The board of directors of the County Agricultural Society had a meeting here on Thursday last. E. B. Ward and Fred J. Lee. The were elected directors in place of Hon. Tregonia and A. W. Chase, deceased. Committees and superintendents were appointed and the date for the 19th annual fair fixed for the last week in September.

A force of thirty persons is at work at the Royal Frontenac at Frankfort getting ready for the resort season. The grounds have been greatly improved by planting trees, and a St. Louis landscape gardener is beautifying the lawn by laying out flower beds and shrubbery at different points on the three sides of the building. The hotel will open July 1 and everything points to a large business.

John Vanderbelt, aged about 70 years, a resident of Northport committed suicide there by jumping off the car ferry dock. The body was discovered by some small boys who went to the dock to fish and saw the body floating near the dock. A search of the dead man's clothes disclosed a memorandum book in which were written these words "John Vanderbelt. Drowned June 13, 1904. No relatives. No friends. Perfectly sober." This shows that the act must have been committed early this morning.

The Methodist Foreign and Home Missionary three days' convention for the Grand Traverse district was held in Traverse City last week. The attendance was unusually large and the meeting was successful in every particular. Next year the foreign missionary branch will meet at Manistique, the home missionary at Petoskey. These officers were elected by the latter branch: President, Mrs. Emma Barnes, Petoskey; vice president, Mrs. Searle, Petoskey; recording secretary, Mrs. Anna Hinsom, Harbor Springs; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. D. Campbell, Charlevoix; treasurer, Mrs. M. D. Carrel.

The Charlevoix County Normal Training Class.

The first annual Commencement of the Charlevoix County Normal Training Class was be held to night (Thursday) at the High School auditorium. The County Normal Board will be represented by County Commissioner Tice as chairman of the evening, by the Hon. W. H. Fraser, deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction, who will announce formal speaker, and Supt. Howe in the presentation of the diplomas. These exercises are to be followed on Friday forenoon by a class-day program of essays on important educational topics, to which all friends of the class are cordially invited.

Mr. Fraser is one of the best platform speakers in Michigan and his address will probably embody a complete explanation of the county normal training and its practical workings. Our Charlevoix people have not had a public opportunity to understand the plans of our county normal training, especially for next year, and it is hoped that a large number will attend the first commencement exercises. Show to Frenchmen your interest by full attendance and good cheer. Nine normal graduates at twenty bonus off to their work in the rural schools of Charlevoix County.

Probate Order

[First Publication June 9th.]

The Decision Court for the county of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the Probate office, in the City of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 7th day of June, A. D. 1904.

Present, James M. Barnes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Mary Ann Bennett, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Mary A. Bennett, praying that the administration of said estate be granted to Charles Bennett or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 20th day of June, A. D. 1904, at ten o'clock in the forenoon be appointed for the hearing of said petition, at which time the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be held at the Probate office, in the City of Charlevoix, and show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County of Charlevoix, three successive weeks previous to said time of hearing.

JAMES M. BARNES, Judge of Probate.

Wit as Well as Scientist.

Herbert Spencer in his newly published autobiography says of Prof. Huxley: "He was one of a circle in which humor was the topic, when my turn came my in conjunction with other humorous other subjects he compared the opponent's idea of a tragedy to a centaurian animal with a face, the another occasion George Henry Lewes gave Huxley an opportunity. I had quoted some inflidious leading case to show an American friend at dinner, in the course of the evening a conversation arose about bachelor communities. Lewes, one of the last, said, I never believed, I got my wife at Gretna Green." Huxley, that implies a vacuum in the upper regions."

Curious Custom

A curious custom has long been celebrated at Rhu, near Moness. All the unmarried girls in the town lined up in the principal street, dressed out in their single finery, many of them also hanging with things the stock of their fathers and grandfathers, which forms part of the display. The young men accompanying matrimony then walked down the street from the opposite end, and moving towards the girls, each selected his partner for the choice. A formal call in due ceremonial form then follows, and the wedding soon comes, and a quiet dance for the occasion.

THE STOUT WOMAN'S REVENGE.

Ingenious Way of Using "Treats" to Get Even.

It was a rainy, sloppy day. In a Lexington avenue car a man came up his seat to an old woman who had just clambered aboard and could not reach the hanging strap. What is, he intended to give up the seat to her, but a short, stocky sitting beside him grabbed a sharp-eyed girl who was standing at her knee and fitted her into the seat.

"I intended my seat for this lady," said the man, helping the old woman to get further away from the crowd at the door.

"My child has paid her fare," snapped the stout woman. "The seat belongs to her rather than you have it yet."

"Oh, never mind, I would as soon stand," said the old woman.

"It's selfish women like you that prevent men from giving up their seats to ones to others of your sex," said the man, who was evidently in the mood for a discussion, and looked in that direction in the new double bear film. The woman flushed and turned to the girl.

"Treats," she said, "you may kneel on the floor if you want to and look out of the window."

Treats did, and for the next five blocks wiped her pretty face on the self-satisfied, smile-laden handkerchief. The stout woman spoke not a word to her neighbor—New York Press.

Darnley had his trembling attention to an ear-shattering cry he knew. He joins the crowd and has gone. He found his parting to the dying man, and measuring the stature of Harry's son, noticed the resemblance of his face to his father's. Darnley had indeed thought the boy was the image of his father, and had caused his unfortunate bride to banish.

There was a pause when Harry finish of his tale. With his deep sense of this sort of thing, he knew the effect of such a tale would be unnecessary and unpleasant. He was content to let the father's memory be with the dead, and the son's with the living. Darnley had and drinking had been blended in all the records of his life, and he was long in obscurity at Brussels, and consequently, and much also in the whole country, his life, and not so called in society a friend.

WAYS OF COSSACKS

How They Are Organized and Mobilized—Superior Cavalry.

The latest and probably the most accurate description of the Cossacks has been published recently in Paris by Colonel de la Passeme who is now retired from active service after a brilliant career as French officer of cavalry and military attache to French embassies in some European countries, also the Hartford Times. He says, in this interesting paper:

"Perhaps the Cossacks operate continuously with the cavalry always but in Asia the only mounted troops of the Muscovite empire. . . . Nowadays, in Russia and other privileges the Cossacks are bound to provide and to furnish their horses and equipment, uniforms, etc. There are according to the official statistics published in Paris by the imperial commission, the regiments of Cossacks, consisting of three divisions, of sixteen sotnias or squadrons, eight hundred and ninety-two officers, ten thousand of infantry and forty-four hundred of light artillery, in all twenty-seven and one-thousand men.

The mobilization of the Cossack forces is rapidly made without great expense of ink and paper. The military's posts in the Russian steppes, are connected by telegraph lines, are served by "posts" in cavalry, having a well-organized system of relays, and permanently near the provinces governing in peace to obey their orders in the big dislodgings of the Cossacks. When the mobilization order reaches the military administrations of the provinces each guard starts carrying the orders to the chief of the district, and the chief of the district, and the chief of the district, and

The Recoiling Tide.

Evidences are unmistakable that the "primary reform" spasm has spent its force in Charlevoix county, and indications are multiplying that the people are beginning to investigate the merits of the proposition.

Both Boyne City and East Jordan turned down "primary reform" resolutions by decisive majorities, and even the Charlevoix resolution was refreshingly vague.

From other parts of the state comes information that the people are waking up to the fact that it is better to endure the ills that are than fly to those we know not of—or, rather to swallow the dreamy philosophy of mugwumps and theorists.

The fundamental governmental doctrine that a majority shall rule begins at the bottom, and it is a doctrine that will not permit of theoretical tinkering. That a plurality shall shape and govern political action even in primary affairs is contrary not only to the philosophy of democratic government but to common sense.

Such a system has in it greater possibilities for the schemes of the unrighteous in politics than even the machinery of Tammany.

That this fact is gradually dawning itself to the people is certain.

Epworth Leagues.

The Grand Traverse District Epworth League Convention occured at the M. E. church in this village from Friday to Sunday evening, inclusive, and was a very successful and interesting religious event.

There were 78 delegates present representing 22 chapters. Among the delegates were Rev. M. D. Carroll, D. D., of Traverse City, Rev. Hugh Kennedy, pastor at Traverse City, Rev. A. Martin, of Petoskey, Rev. E. E. Vost, of East Jordan, Rev. A. E. Wood, of Central Lake and Rev. McCook, of Kalkaska.

The following new district cabinet was elected: President, Rev. A. Martin, of Petoskey; 1st vice president, S. W. Large, of Petoskey; 2d vice president, Herbert Welch, Traverse City; 3d vice president, Miss Ruth Carpenter, Williamsburg; 4th vice president, Miss Florence Hazle, Thompsonville; secretary, Miss E. Agnes Dean, Petoskey; treasurer, A. E. Teggett, Central Lake; Junior Superintendent, Mrs. H. V. Wade, Pellston.

The next annual convention will be held at Boyne City.

YOUNG WIFE'S CRIME.

KILLS HUSBAND AND HERSELF WITH REVOLVER.

Domestic Troubles Supposed to Have Caused Tragedy in Cleveland—New Brown Dry Dock—Counties Highway Commissioners Meet in Convention.

L. D. Ford, of Cleveland, shot his wife and then killed himself with a revolver in the Cleveland Hotel on Sunday morning. Ford was a cripple, having lost his leg while in the service of the Cleveland Rolling Mill company. He married Miss Ella Hoffman, a young woman of Cleveland, about two years ago. Ford was 35 years of age and his wife 22. Domestic troubles are supposed to have caused the tragedy. Ford had been drinking heavily for some time and had been in the habit of carrying a revolver. He had been in the habit of threatening to shoot his wife if she left him. He had also threatened to shoot himself if she did so. Ford was a member of the Knights of Pythias and Knights of Honor. Mrs. Ford's parents live in Detroit. Ford's father lives in Cleveland.

NOT FIT FOR POWER.

WHY DEMOCRATIC PARTY MAY NOT BE TRUSTED.

Their Method of "Revising" the Tariff in 1893 Should Be Warning Enough to the Voters of the Country—Have No Right to Another Chance.

Some of the leaders of the Democratic party in Congress are trying to make the country believe that it would be safe to trust that party in the control of the government.

"There is no free trade party in the United States," says Champ Clark, "and Republicans ought to quit asserting that there is." In a recent magazine article John Sharp Williams, the Democratic leader in the House of Representatives, says:

"As to the tariff the Democratic party stands for the principle that protectionism is a system of taxation whereby many are robbed in order that a few may be enthroned by legislation into artificial prosperity. The method whereby 'protection' does this is by enforcing capital and labor from naturally profitable pursuits into pursuits which without legislation would have been less profitable or perhaps not profitable at all.

"The attitude of the Democratic party in the matter of the tariff, has been and is, in the opinion of many, the most disastrous panic of modern times, so that the Cleveland administration actually had to borrow gold to increase the bonded debt to pay the ordinary running expenses of government, and in all the great cities of the country charitable people were compelled to organize soup houses, soup houses, so that the best of men and women who had been thrown out of work by Democratic misadministration wouldn't starve to death.

"Thus the Democratic party is revise the tariff." Not much!—Rochester Union Post Express.

Where Cut Meets Cut.

Because of the deadly quotation, Judge McClintic and Lawyer Cotton once were opposing attorneys in a suit wherein the grievances of certain young ladies were being tried. Lawyer Cotton in his speech to the jury took occasion quite frequently to make use of the biblical expression, "strange woman," not meaning anything offensive and evidently forgot that the real biblical application of the expression. Finally Mr. Cotton quoted:

"For the lips of a strange woman drop as an honeycomb and her mouth is smoother than oil."

Whereupon Judge McClintic finished the quotation and the reason with:

"But her end is bitter as wormwood, sharp as a two-edged sword. Her feet go down to death; her steps take hold on hell."

Mortality Among Army Surgeons.

From an interesting study made by an Italian medical journal as to the dangers incident to army surgeons during the war it appears that in the Russian army at least the doctor runs quite as much danger as the combatant. During the Crimean war 324 Russian surgeons perished out of a total of 2,799 employed. During the Russo-Turkish war 501 Russian surgeons died in the hospitals and ambulances connected with the army.

Shipwreck Victims.

During the last forty-nine years as many as 31,211 persons perished from shipwreck on or near the coasts of the United Kingdom. During the same period the number of lives saved by the royal National Lifeboat Institution totaled 23,906.

THE NORMAL COMMENCEMENT

The Charlevoix County Training Class Graduates Nine Teachers.

A large audience greeted the first class of graduates from the County Normal School at the Charlevoix High School last Thursday evening, many of the rural schools of the county being represented in the attendance. The speaker of the evening referred to the occasion as "the first county normal commencement in the history of Michigan." One or two other classes have already closed their work, but the State Department of Education had received no announcement of a commencement program.

Com. J. M. Tice of East Jordan introduced the program with a few fitting words preceding some very pleasing musical selections, and then presented the Hon. W. H. French, Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction for Mich. Mr. French's address was a masterpiece in close reasoning, apt characterization, and effective delivery. After a brief survey of the growth of Michigan's educational system, and some pungent criticisms of ineffectual and undesirable school officers and teachers, he developed his subject along the line of the characteristics of the ideal school and teacher. The dignity and high responsibility of the teaching profession was deeply impressed upon the outgoing class of graduates. "Activity, sincerity, honesty, and loyalty" are the qualities that must be developed in pupils and always illustrated in the teacher. "The purpose of the school is to enable the child to discover himself" the purpose of the teacher is "to bring the man and women out of the boy and girl," and to put himself on their level and treat them always as children. Hard work is the only means of excellent development.

The address was doubtless the best ever delivered in Charlevoix County on a purely educational theme. At its close Supt. E. W. Howe in a few appropriate words presented the three-year certificates to the following:

Maude E. Flynn, Mary E. Finnegan and S. Ruth Emrey, of Charlevoix, A. Lorene Allen and Magdeline H. Mitchell, of Ironton, Kittie L. Bassport, of Ellsworth, E. Mae Planck, of Boyne Falls, Blanche M. Clark, of Central Lake; and Mabel V. Bradshaw, of Eastport.

On the following morning these young ladies gave a very interesting class-day program to their invited friends. The exercises showed their deep interest in educational subjects and gave evidence of the careful and thorough training received in the Normal class. Supt. Howe took occasion to explain the plans of the Normal work for the coming year and to urge its friends to assist as far as possible in securing for the next year a still larger class to receive the benefits of the training work. Circulars giving full information may be had by addressing Mr. Howe at Charlevoix. The members of the first class are exceptionally well qualified for efficient teaching in the rural schools of the county and the County Normal Board are anxious to see them located where they can do the most good. Directors of schools are requested to correspond with Mr. Howe or Com. Tice in reference to a teacher, and it is hoped that all the county papers will co-operate in promoting the good work of the Charlevoix County Normal Training Class.

Harbor Springs is having a building boom. A two story brick hotel, across from the G. R. & I. station, a club house and dock for Harbor Point, a new casino for Waugoshance and a new freight depot being among the improvements.

Petoskey Record. The snow roosting schooner Bonnie Boy, which drifted upon the beach in front of the Pere Marquette passenger depot last year, and has been an eyesore there ever since, was pulled off and towed away yesterday by the tug Maggie, of Charlevoix.

Manistee Herald: At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors last Friday and Saturday plans and specifications for the new court house were submitted by a number of competent architects, all of whom claimed that a suitable building could be erected and completed within the limits of the appropriation.

Cement bricks are being marketed from Kalkaska, a decided innovation since the days of old when bricks without straw were the fashion, rather than the exception. Experiments in a number of Kalkaska brick makers for three or four years in clay bricks has finally resulted in a cement brick which is hard, tough and durable. Now there is a little plant in the little village making and marketing about 3,000 bricks every day, and the demand is growing.

Read Ward & Ward's new ad. this week.

H. Bulige, of Nebraska, is here visiting his son A. F. Bulige.

—John Cook left Tuesday on the Missouri for Manistee to take the salt baths.

—Howard Francis, an agricultural college student, is home for the summer.

—Artie Cameron is another Charlevoix boy who is home from college for the summer.

—Hon. A. J. Sirout republican nominee for representative was in town yesterday.

—The band played 4[19] at their planked whitefish supper at the Beach Hotel Friday evening.

—The Charlevoix County Bank will be open until further notice from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m., including the noon hour.

—Master Hubert Parkick went to Chicago on the steamer Che Laka Saturday, and will visit relatives there a few weeks.

—Hon. A. Bottars and wife returned Sunday from their California trip, both well. Mr. Bottars is again at the cashier's desk at the bank.

—John G. Berry, of Vanderbilt, formerly State Land Commissioner, and an old settler of that part of Michigan, is here visiting his son, J. I. Berry.

—John Ward was home over Sunday from the Manistee salt baths, and returned for another week's treatment Tuesday. Mr. Ward is very much benefitted by the treatment.

—The Charlevoix county delegation to the State convention left Tuesday for Detroit, and as we all sputtered at the Hotel Metropole They will vote solid for Warner for governor.

—Home grown strawberries are coming into market. A qui pie comes to us this from Chas. Monahan, Petoskey, on the S. M. Morse lot, Dixon avenue, that will challenge the season's record.

—Now, lines let us get together and pull together first now until after the election. We cannot all have our way and things in this is a presidential year, and demands strenuous work by every republican.

—It is not strange that the republicans of Charlevoix county, in convention assembled, should have unanimously endorsed the public services of the county officers, after they had been denounced as grafters by an "influential" republican county paper.

—The steamer Beaver will run as excursion to Beaver Island Monday, July 4th, at one dollar for the round trip. This will be a most enjoyable day outing if you don't care for brass bands, fire crackers and strong lemonade. We know of no pleasanter way of spending the 4th.

—Joe Howland will this week finish the strip of cement walk on Bridge street from Mason to Antrim street, and then Bridge street will have unbroken lines of cement walks from the bridge to the hill excepting the practically vacant strip on the south end of Mason street. The beauty of it is there is not a foot of the walks on the street.

—Engineer Smith and his force finished the survey of the harbor Monday and left Tuesday for Grand Haven. We don't know but we prefer to wait for the report, since the dilapidated condition of the north side revetment, what there is of it, and the inadequate slip on that side. Mr. Smith found that the least depth of water in the channel is seventeen feet. He also found that the deep water is shallower inshore higher than last year at this time.

—Yes, gentle reader, the large iron machine you see at the street in connections with a squadron of horses attached to it, is a road roller. It was bought from Traverse City some years ago. Traverse City very reluctantly consented to part with it, and Charlevoix is the galley by the generosity of our sister city. It is a beautiful instrument of torture—for the horses—and is the most proficient producer of abnormal profanity that has ever entered our midst, not excepting primary reform. It is very slow—is too, too durable. It is a fit mate for our 4th of July cannon.

—J. L. Crane has a readable change in his advertising space this week.

—Meat markets will close at 10 a. m. on July 4th, for the remainder of the day.

—James McGuire, of St. James, is here visiting on his way home from Chicago.

—Capt. Tom Weaver has been temporary master of the steamer Beaver the past week, Capt. Campbell taking a lay-off.

—If you are indebted to the Sentinel on your subscription account, will you please call to mind Bigelow and save us the trouble of sending out statements.

—Alden Chamberlain, who lives a mile north of town, while digging post holes Monday, unearthed a piece of pure copper weighing sixty pounds—evidently a glacial drift, perhaps centuries ago.

—A man who travels all over Michigan recently remarked, "There is no town in the state of the size that can show as good a business street as Charlevoix, and there is no better street anywhere."

—You can take one of three alternatives July 4th—remain at home and rest, or go to Boyne City or East Jordan and celebrate. Both the up-hake towns are putting up big dollars and each will excel the other in attractions.

—Mrs. Ether Brown wife of Frank T. Brown, died at her home in this village at eight o'clock yesterday morning. Mrs. Brown was the only daughter of Mr. W. O. Newman of the place, and was born in Charlevoix. Deceased leaves her husband, leaves an infant son. The bereaved and mother have the unblended sympathy all all.

—The Inn will open on Saturday of this week. The Chicago Club is already open, and the Belvedere may be considered as "in commission." The Beach has been open for some time with several guests, and Mrs. Bitner says every room in the house is booked. Cottages on both sides are being occupied every day. Indications are that there are more people here that at the same date last year.

The republican county convention, composed of representative citizens from every township, declared that "the administration of the several offices of the county be and is hereby approved, as conducted in a creditable, economical and honest manner." Legislation in this paper declares that the county officers are a lot of grafters. Which is right? It will not take a right minded citizen long to decide.

—Mr. J. H. Rothman, chief of the telegraph division of the U. S. weather bureau, is still here attempting to lay the cable from south to North Manitou Island. To morrow he goes to Beaver Island to look over the ground for a report in the matter of the proposed cable to St. James. Mr. Rothman says that the cable will go direct to Beaver Island from Charlevoix, the matter of a display station at the head of the Island to be determined for the present. As this can be done at any time by building a telephone line along the beach, there is no doubt that a station at the head will soon follow. Mr. Rothman is a pleasant gentleman. Senator Moffatt, who was brave enough to vote against the foul Colby bill, came in for a torrent of abuse from the Boyne City and "independent" newspaper of Charlevoix county. Nevertheless, the republican county convention elected a solid delegation for Moffatt. Senator Moffatt will be renominated and re-elected, just as he should be. He had nerve and backbone enough to vote his convictions regardless of the howl. He voted right, and, if another Colby bill comes up in the Senate, he will do it again.

We clip the following from the Waukegan (Ill.) Daily News: While here Newton, the abstract man, stood talking to an officer of the large motor last night at 8.30 o'clock, he looked into the water near the coal dock and saw an arm protruding from the water and being waved slightly. "There must be somebody in the water," he said and ran to the edge of the dock, reaching down he seized hold of an arm and soon found they belonged to a man. Mr. Weaver pulled hard and steadily and in a moment had a man, a foreigner, on the dock nearly exhausted from his experience. The man said he had been walking along the dock and fell in. He said he had been drinking and after fasting could not keep himself out of water long enough to call for help. As he made no sound whatever, it is indeed fortunate that Mr. Newton happened to glance out and see his hand.

—Sunday was a lively day for Charlevoix harbor. The Alamakiks Manitou, Illinois and Missouri were all in—the latter two at one time.

—L. H. Gunther, superintendent of growing department of the H. M. Ferry Seed Co., arrived from Detroit this morning on crop inspection.

—A favorite spot with many of our citizens these days is trolling for big trout in Lake Michigan. Some very fine catches are made. Little Mosquito brought in three big fellows Tuesday, and S. A. Mathig was showing off on the street Tuesday with a ten pounder.

The annual meeting of the Michigan Prebiotic Judge's association will be held in Charlevoix on August 3, 4, this year and more than one number members of the bar and their wives are expected to be present. It is expected that two days will be devoted to convention business and the regular program while the third will be given up to recreation.

The County Ticket.

In a convention where there was not even the suggestion of a contested delegation, where the utmost harmony prevailed, and in which every township was squarely and legally represented, the republicans of Charlevoix county last Thursday nominated their ticket. It is needless for the Sentinel to review the ticket—every voter is well known, tried and true.

Hon. A. J. Sirout, the nominee for representative has lived in Charlevoix county most years, and no man more fully enjoys the confidence of the people. Mr. Sirout has been twice elected Judge of Probate of this county. He is a farmer, and is known as "level headed"—a qualification that compassses many virtues in a public servant. No citizen of Charlevoix county has any doubt that Mr. Sirout will faithfully and truly represent the interests of his county at Lansing.

If any of the republicans of Charlevoix county had sent out a committee, as for games of old, was sent, to find an ideal candidate for sheriff, for any other office for that matter, a more perfect selection could not have been made. Your ff all, and we say it for the benefit of that class who are "machine position." Mr. Coulter is well and never has been what is known as a politician. He numerous lines affiliated with any faction or political "bunch." He has never held an office that carried emoluments to the extent of 15 cents. He has been twice elected president of Charlevoix. He is a good republican, an honest man. The only criticism we ever heard that this man was from a plain spoken citizen who observed that Mr. Coulter "was a d—d good fellow." The former might have said that Mr. Coulter never stops over, that what he lacks in linguacity and verbosity he makes up in hard-headed sense.

We only care to speak of the new men on the ticket—the others are too well known to require any introduction. They have been tried and the people are satisfied with them.

D. S. Payton, the nominee for county treasurer, has for many years been supervisor of Eveline township. He has been known as one of the most capable members of the county legislature. He has been chairman of the board, and in technical committee work, Mr. Payton's judgment has always been relied upon. There is no more deserving citizen of Charlevoix county than D. S. Payton.

The republicans of Charlevoix county have made a mistake in the selection of county officials—not once in the thirty five years of the corporate existence of the county. They have not made a mistake now. The men are all nearly practically elected.

According to the Pelosian Journal Col. Hugardus will next spring set out an orchard of 2,000 trees, 1000 of which will be high class standard apple trees. In addition to this month orchard the Colonel will also have an experimental school planted containing all varieties of apple trees, so that all growers may profit as to just what varieties of apple trees thrive best in this section.

PROBLEM SOLVED.

The Council Acts on the Definite Water Power Proposition.

The council last night voted to accept the proposition of the Bellaire water power syndicate, thereby providing for a revolution in the Charlevoix water and lighting system. No action since the place was incorporated has involved a gender or more momentous public interest.

It means a total change in our water and lighting system, and, while it involves considerable expense now in terms a "shifting scale" of reduction in expense of operating.

Charlevoix has for some time been "up against" a serious proposition in connection with its water and lighting plant. The steady extensions of both systems have increased the demands upon them to an extent almost beyond their capacity for supply, and the necessity for still further extensions are apparent.

The council was time confronted with "a condition and not a theory." To meet even present requests it is evived, if the present power system was retained, an expenditure of from $12,000 to $15,000. This, indeed, was a serious proposition.

The Bellaire proposition involved the generation of power at Bellaire, from water power, and the transmission of current to our lighting system direct, and to the water system through motors and rotary pumps and a stand pipe.

It means a 24 hour service for the lighting system, with all that is required—sufficient for largely increased revenues from the supply of motive power.

While the expense the first year will exceed to some extent the current annual cost of operation, thereafter the cost will decrease, as the revenues increase. The council has laid the matter under advisement several months, and have thoroughly investigated every phase of it. Superintendent Martindale heartily endorses the change. The power is simple to supply, any demand for future demands. The present motive plant will be held in reserve for two years, after which time it will be disposed of.

The saving to the village after the first year, will be the wages of three men and the wear and tear of boilers and engines, and we will receive twenty four hours of service.

The contract calls for the completion of the Bellaire power plant and the installation of the motive power here by June 1st, 1905.

There is no doubt of the ultimate economy of the proposition. It will place us in shape for any demand, day or night, that may possibly be made upon us.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Rev. James Hyslop, Ph.D
Pastor.

The congregations were large last Sunday.

We were glad to see a number of familiar faces in the congregations of friends from distant parts and also to welcome several others who will spend the summer in Charlevoix.

Independence Day will be observed next Sunday, with appropriate features of service.

The church has just purchased a good supply of the fine new Hymn Book "the Hymns Hymnal." The church has waited two months for the publication of this book, as the few advance copies prove it, by the general solution of hymnologies to rival, its many honorable predecessors in the Hymnology of the church. The book contains about 500 hymns and about 40 sentences, chants and canticles, with the addition of about of a hundred responsive readings to psalms and selections. We expect to use it for the first time last Sunday.

Grace Gilbert, the Kalkaska, Record ed lady, is traveling with Harmon & Bailey's circus.

Harbor Springs is having a building boom, a two story brick hotel, across from the G. R. & I. station, a club house and dock for Harbor Point. A new casino for Waugoshance, and a new freight depot being among the improvements.

J. KOV. Agnew, of Grand Rapids, is the new assistant general manager of the B. C. & S. R. railroad, assuming his duties a few days ago. L. D. Patchell has been appointed superintendent and George Lang assistant and master.

THE COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republicans of Charlevoix County Submit Their Work to the People.

The republican county convention last Thursday was as nearly a representative a body as ever met to nominate a county ticket. Its nominees came from the farm, and the mills, attested by the sons of the township auspicious, and they did their work well.

H. E. Newton, of Boyne City was both temporary and permanent chairman, and A. B. Cross, of Charlevoix, was secretary. The credential appointed J. S. Converse, of South Arm, H. Judd, of Boyne Valley and A. Radakar, of Charlevoix, as committee on credentials.

Nominating by the nomination of county officers, J. M. Harris was unanimously nominated for Judge of Probate.

Simon W. Gunther, of Charlevoix, was nominated for sheriff—the vote standing as follows: E. M. Coulter 14, Amos A. Storey 17, Henry Cooper 11.

D. T. Mosier was nominated for county clerk by a vote of Thos. Cosgrove, 1; F. Meech 6, John Hughes 23.

W. J. Pearson was unanimously nominated for register of deeds, and D. S. Payton was nominated for county treasurer on the same manner.

A. A. Sabins for prosecutor, A. L. Pease for circuit court commissioner, E. A. Cornell for school commissioner, Amos and Dr. H. H. Ray for coroners were unanimously nominated by acclamation.

For representatives in legislature, A. J. Sirout, of Bay, was nominated by the following vote—Sirout 36, Paddock 23.

The following Warner delegation to the state convention was selected: J. M. Harris, A. B. Sabins, A. L. Coulter, L. F. Edwards, H. S. Judd, Amos A. Storey, Henry Cooper, Richard Lewis, Wilson Gunther.

NORWOOD NEWS.

Wilber Cline of Charlevoix, was here over Sunday.

Mrs. Gruelly, June and Evelyn Shaw arrived from Chicago last week.

The degree team of the K. O. T. M. of Charlevoix were here Saturday night, and initiated 2 candidates. A good time was had and enjoyed by all.

The L. A. S. will have a tea cream social in Town hall Wednesday evening of this week.

Secret of the Plundered Safe

By EMILE GABORIAU

CHAPTER I.

The Parvel Bank, Rue de Provence, is an important institution and from the large staff, presents the appearance of a government office. In an old fashioned way the banker's dwelling is under the same roof. His private office is on the first floor over the offices, and leads into his own apartments, which communicate directly with the bank by means of a narrow staircase, opening the second occupied by the head cashier.

This cashier is almost proof against all attacks, able to stand a siege, being sheathed in steel like an ironclad. A strong gate prevents a burglar coming down through the branches. Situated in the 8 all is a formidable—but calculated to fill with longing the men whose wealth may be compressed in one little wallet.

The mahogany of wrought iron all feel by floor and a bell with three sides and divided into separate frosted compartments. It is opened by a special key, for this safe is treated just like lock, or good, unless the six bolts in which are two secret ones, are unfastened by some a secret combination. This is the safe which contains the bank's cash. The bunch of its other keys, which are numerous, is in the cashier's pocket.

One morning in February the bank clerks were at loss to find the patronage of their chief, who usually was one second Christmas midnight found the safe.

Then come the sudden.

Prosper, the head cashier of the bank, was a tall handsome man of about forty, with a long black beard, and dark eyes, very expressive and soft and dreamy.

At four one hour until Cavaillon Ordinaire, the cashier, was in his office. "What! Not yet, Monsieur?" he said. "Knowing that I would come late the morning I made all my correspondence and accounts."

"Yes, I have been very busy," replied the head, engaging himself and closed the door behind him.

"Such a beautiful day as this calls for a ride."

"There is a person who are so right in the morning. Hot sun makes you lazy."

A lounger idlers the afternoon, but the morning is the time for work before them with tempting and a hundred pleasures to be enjoyed."

"Indeed, I agree, he laughed as he pressed his hand on the table, "I have a friend there, and I shall go to see him."

"Ah, you are in the safe this time," said Prosper, pointing to the open door.

"Why, nothing, nothing! I have I forgot my key."

"I have a duplicate and the same key." Prosper took it from his pocket and opened the door.

"Thanks, I will not forget it, I have the key with me." Prosper locked the door and opened the other door, which was the cashier's.

"Ah, I have left the key in the lock, I forgot it, I forgot everything today."

"Perhaps you have left your pocket-book in the safe." Prosper, the cashier, smiled.

"Ah, I have left my

THREE ESSENTIALS.

Sound Words of Counsel From Maine's State Grange Master.

Three things which are most influential in making persons safe members of society are a true sense of responsibility, a just sense of values and a wholesome self respect. These can only be acquired through organized effort in connection with this Order by a true understanding and proper application of its principles will strengthen this Whenever and wherever we find a school-house grange carefully study the record of the Order, attempts to discover and fix the time, we find it was a grange doing the very work along the line of sound endeavor. My fellow-fellow-that to the faith we have not given this promise of our work the prominence it deserves. It should be kept alive, elevate the thoughts and in every way contribute to improvement.

The sole purpose of this Order is to help and improve, and we will take out of the past its principles to have small are concerned in its work, other in time, thought or labor. By keeping our methods attractive or work that are attractive, helpful, happy and thereby continually strengthen the Order and create a desire among those on the outside of our gates to join our ranks. We need all to join us whose interests are identical with ours, but every legitimate effort to make it more than one-sided organization. We would improve the thought that a grange whose membership tries to be perfect when the others of other orders have ceased, and with shrivel and wither the good of its members until deep shadows will fall on its place which none know it will know it no more. Individual duty and individual responsibility, with concentration will do what we need to win.

C. M. SANBORN,
Master Maine State Grange.

Why Farmers Should Organize.

President E. L. Butterfield of the Ohio State Agricultural College is an enthusiastic member of the grange. Speaking of the need of farmers organizing, he says:

One of the weaknesses inherent in the nature of the American farmer is the tendency to organize as he ought. Original sin in the Old and sin of the World in planet doubtless essential for the well protective of any class. It is necessary also in order that the settlements and habits and wishes of the class shall be crystallized into definite sense, practicable programmes and that such may be sought in order that the realization of these programmes may be secured. Organization is a test of class efficiency. If the farmers cannot maintain adequate organization as may suit he argued that as a class they are declining in ability. Organization is furthermore a most powerful means of educating the members of that organization. This subject of organization is one that has been too much neglected by our agricultural educators."

A Victory For the Grange.

What the grange can do when it pulls itself together is well illustrated in the campaign which was carried on to secure an appropriation for the agricultural land in Oneida and other counties in N. Y. Within ten days between the time the bill passed the legislature and the time the governor. Secretary Allen received almost one hundred signatures to the petition by the governor on the business. These were submitted to the governor in a bunch. This was from large state counties in the union. Of the number only three signatures appeared the bill and only five were against it. It will be a matter of congratulation, by members of the Order to know that the grange is to be represented in the management of the plant, the state grange being allowed to appoint one member to meet with the board of directors and act in an advisory capacity.

Why Cooperation Pays.

Master Saunders of the New Jersey state grange says that cooperation is a fundamental grange principle in this state the sales of cooperative effort has been thoroughly demonstrated, particularly in the matter of fertilizer. In the purchase of fertilizer there the Patrons of some counties are saving thousands of dollars annually, and yet competition is not what it should be. If farm supplies could be ordered in several hundred lots, as to carloads, the saving would be much to the farmers' advantage.

Join the Grange.

Join the grange and grow up with it, says the New York Farmer. It is a social center, an intellectual awakener, a pulpit of answers, an educational gathering, a business conference, an idea expander, a harmony promoter, a development of character and an all round good thing for you.

After July 1 rural carriers will receive 75% on their pay. They are not allowed to receive subscriptions for papers or to solicit business and can only carry advertisements on papers along the routes.

Westfield grange, Ohio, exemplifies the grange principle of charity in a practical way by hiring a trained nurse for the family of one of its members who had a scourge of typhoid fever.

There have been organized in New York state since Jan. 1 sixteen subordinate granges, one Pomona and one juvenile. Of these old granges have been reorganized.

A BUREAU OF EXCHANGE.

How the Pennsylvania Grange is Aiding Its Patrons.

It was in 1876 that the Pennsylvania state grange established a bureau of information as a means of association and to use its worth, an exchange between the farmers of Pennsylvania of this state. It was believed to bring producer and consumer together and to put the farmer in possession of surplus products and make it possible for the consumers to buy at lower prices or at least to do away with the services of the middlemen and save at least one commission.

At the last session of the Pennsylvania state grange another step was taken with a view to bringing producer and consumer in touch with each other more ably. Mr. George W. Coder of Cumberland, Pa., was appointed agent of the bureau of exchange, and he was authorized to open an office and hold his office in such a month to continue a list of the wants, by name and notice of patrons and the bulletin was to be mailed to each subscriber present in the state. Price to be paid in a comprehensive form after having been tried in open grange. The first bulletin issued contained for sale the wants of three farms, from 100 to 150 acres, fowls, hay, apples, apple sauce, and waste of a farm for pasture. The second issued contained "a quantity of barrel hoops. Hoosier." The third issued contained "a quantity of barrel hoops. Hoosier." This shows the extent of the bulletin exchange plan.

We consider the idea a good one and the plan practicable for the state of Pennsylvania. It would be enhanced were the bulletin issued weekly or bimonthly at least. Monthly or quarterly is inefficient. We commend the idea to the state granges of other states as a method of carrying out the principle of cooperation in agricultural affairs. It is fundamental and is in the direction of progress. It is also in accordance with the principle of the grange. It is the work to make the intermediate grangers more helpful to their members.

INFLUENCE OF THE PRESS.

The Grange Should and Does Appreciate the Press.

This is a day of newspapers. There influence is felt in the remotest part of the earth. We criticize them as we read them, yet there is no power in our land today which exercises as great an influence in molding public sentiment as the press. Realizing this fact, it becomes the grange to meet fairly half way the writers of the secular papers to bring to the attention of the public the grange. They will advocate our principles because the grange is a builder of public sentiment in all agricultural communities. The grange should realize and appreciate the efforts of the press and keep in touch with these great living, breathing machines that are doing so much for the world. Each secretary should give the local and the state daily editorial papers each week as will be of interest and tend to spread abroad the principles of the grange. Brother J. W. Darrow, acting as press correspondent for the New York state grange, has been of immense service to the Order in promoting greater cooperation of the press with the work of the grange. The total circulation of the papers using its grange matter is approximately fifteen hundred thousand. It includes the American Press Association, Rural New Yorker, Rural Shepard, Lancaster New York state Grange.

Keep Up the Organization.

In speaking of the grange a few years ago ex-Senator George F. Edmunds of Vermont said, "I hope the farmers will keep up your organization and continue to press for the simple justice and fair play they are entitled to."

The organization is kept up, and its members are pressing for simple justice and fair play through the channels of cooperative effort in the different departments of grange work and we ask the thousands of farmers, with their families, who are not members, to join our ranks and cooperate with us, not alone for the greater material prosperity which could come to them through business cooperation in the grange, but also for the larger blessings which would come to the home through the culture and refinement which are incident to the broadened thought and social intercourse to be derived from active membership in the order.

An Important Work.

Mrs. Saunders, lecturer of the Michigan state grange, through the medium of her monthly bulletin is conducting a study in agriculture which is doing an immense amount of good. The Michigan Agricultural college this year is publishing a special bulletin treating upon each monthly topic assigned by her.

The New York state grange exhibit of cereals at the World's fair is a very attractive one. Mr. J. H. Trueblood in charge. Something over 200 farmers are represented by the exhibit, the grains being neatly arranged in glass cases, occupying the corner of the New York state exhibit in the hall of agriculture.

A HISTORIC GRANGE HALL.

It Is Located at Ludlow, Vt., and Was Once a Church.

It was in 1792 that a town meeting in Ludlow voted to erect the church building which was to contain the Ludlow grange, or more correctly speaking, its lower floor to then consist of a second story having been extended about twenty-five years ago. It was moved to its present site about sixty-five years ago. The plates and cross plates of the building, which is 50 feet long by 40 feet wide, are 8 by 12 and were hewed by hand, as was the native frame, each timber being hewed from one tree.

The records read that "Nov. 20, 1793, town meeting at the meeting house that the Ludlow committee secure a sufficient quantity of rum to raise the meeting house frame." The meeting house which contained lumber enough for three modern buildings of the same dimensions was soon ready for the raising. Rev. Aaron Steward was the first pastor of this church and his salary was $200 and thirty cords of wood.

On the lower floor, as above noted, the grange has fitted up a pleasant room with anterooms and kitchen. The hall is used frequently for sociables, entertainments and other gatherings, and the ancient building is highly prized both for its associations and its convenience. The picture of the church is taken from the Ludlow (Mass.) Journal.

THE GOOD ROADS QUESTION

Secretary Wilson Addresses the Good Roads Convention at St. Louis.

Among the speakers who addressed the good roads convention at St. Louis recently were Governor Bachelder of New Hampshire, who is lecturer of the national grange, and secretary of Agriculture James Wilson of Washington, who is also a member of the grange. Governor Bachelder spoke of the great need of good roads and of their importance to the farmers. He discussed the best methods of improving roads and also how to interest the people in the subject. Secretary Wilson, who came so specially for the occasion, said, among other things that notwithstanding had not improved very materially since Marcellus applied broken rock, and it has come to be a question of economic importance to the American people. Continuing, he said:

We have established within the department at Washington an office for the study of road materials. We are making wise young men who have graduated in agricultural colleges to take practical work with us, so that we may be able to furnish to thousands coming from all parts of the country for men skilled in road construction.

We endeavor to interest in some such fashion in determining the use of materials that happen to be plentiful. Five or six towns and cities have facilities for road work and have set up a plant for road building in the past are due to the fact that we have been able to furnish them a competent man.

The work of the department of agriculture along the line in question is intended to be educational and experimental. Not long ago I was asked by a gentleman, I am well satisfied that the construction of public roads at the present time is a correct indication of the amount of money expended in the past. I am satisfied that the department is endeavoring to do now regard to helping to build school houses, stable, which has lost little in the United States, and I am satisfied that the study of road material for the information of the people, and when the people have learned what is required, the people would have the roads. Some states would have under the values of the materials in all parts of the United States, and I am satisfied also that when the people are thoroughly informed in the matter of roads and improving with regard to the expenditure of money, that there will be hesitation in putting taxes to carry on the work.

Each section of our country has problems peculiar to itself, and to the end that we may be of the greatest benefit to the experiments of agriculture has a scheme for the study of the problem of good roads in Maryland, in touch with the labors of Washington, and in the Pacific states we are carrying on experiments and remodeling with the cheapest as to the cost of the knowledge of the principles involved in the construction of roads, with farming machinery and the means much in evidence. It was novel feature of the programme. A bright man opened in the answer of a letter hour, at which everything seven on the table was grown on or taken from the university farm. Corn was spread for 200 guests. Several state grange officers were present, and at the close of the banquet, the agricultural department presented to H. Baker a large letter case, a

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver at Marquette, Mich., on June 27, 1904, viz:

Frederick Nagy for the S½ sec. 30 T. 34 N. R. 10 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Frank Nagy of Boyne City, Mich., Jacob Kopsky of Boyne City, Mich., Frank Kopsky of Boyne City, Mich., Joseph Kopsky of Boyne City, Mich.

THOMAS BARNETT, Register.

Probate Order.

(First Publication June 28).

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of the Probate Court, for said County of Charlevoix, at the Probate Office, in the City of Charlevoix, on the fifth day of June in the year one thousand and nine hundred and four.

Present, Hon. Joseph H. Lovely, Judge of Probate.

The petition of Frank Kopsky of Boyne City, praying that the administration of the estate of Frank Nagy, late of Boyne City, deceased, be granted and that Frank Kopsky, or some other suitable person be appointed Administrator of said estate, now or be further in the Probate Office, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden in the Probate Office, in the City of Charlevoix, on the fifth day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. And it is ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County of Charlevoix, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Take No Chances With Your Kidneys.
Diseases of These Organs Most Dangerous of Any—A Certain Guaranteed Cure.
Diseases of the Kidneys are more, are dangerous. Being more frequent established, their work is more difficult and results often are other than fatal. Kidneys must be encouraged or all kinds of serious troubles will result. Doan's Kidney Pills are a kidney remedy. Doan's Kidney Pills are a cure for kidney ills. They are recommended by hundreds of the leading citizens of this locality. Read the following case:
Mrs. Cornelius Sullivan, Lake Street, Charlevoix, says: "I suffered from a severe attack of kidney complaint. My back was so lame and painful that I could not stand long at a time. I was also troubled with dizzy spells and my sight was affected. I was in a nervous condition and was very much run down. I had to be careful what I ate as it would disagree with me. I was also troubled with a dull pain in the small of my back. I had heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a box at Hayes' Drug Store. They soon cured me and I have had no trouble since. I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from kidney trouble."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents per box.

RUSSIA MEETS DEFEAT.

Repeats of Japanese Victories in Both Land and Sea.

Gen. Kuropatkin's attempt to cut the Russian, commander-in-chief of the Vladivostok squadron have been repulsed by the Japanese first under and most humiliating after a running fight of two days in the Korean waters according to a cablegram from Tokio to the Chicago Inquirer.

The three Russian cruisers were engaged in a terrific battle off Tsu Island, after escaping from the port and having been cut off. According to the gathered from Nagasaki the Russians were pursued north by four Japanese cruisers from Admiral Togo's fleet, and an hour spent in a hot engagement ensued, the Russian cruisers attempting to escape by the open sea three other Japanese warships appeared from the north, thus preventing the escape.

Russian loss in the war in the Far East is practically disorganized, if this report is true. The Russian army in Manchuria is practically annihilated either prisoners or killed.

All doubt as to the sinking of the Dmitrieff Donskoi and Sudoi by the Japanese has now been removed. The Japanese are making an effort to raise the Dmitrieff Donskoi, which was sunk in the Korean waters, and the Sudoi, which was sunk in the Pigeon Bay, has been raised, and a tug of the Japanese navy has towed her into port and all damage has been made good.

The thirteenth Republican national convention, opened at noon Tuesday in the Chicago Coliseum. From North, South, East and West a mighty throng had come to make the nominating great. The "elite" of the Republican party was there to nominate the President of the United States to succeed himself, to select a candidate for the second highest office in the gift of the American people, and to make a platform.

It was the gala quadrennial event of one of the two great parties in American politics. The other event only approaches it as a spectacle and an inspiration to partisan enthusiasm, and that is the inauguration as the head of the national government of the man chosen by the people at the polls to fill the chair of their chief executive. Probably not since the days of Washington and Grant has a body of men having to do with the selection of the governing personnel of this nation met under what might be called such unanimous conditions as to a prepared platform and platform.

Six thousand seven hundred persons composed the gathering of citizens at this opening ceremonies. Almost twice that number would have listened to the proceedings had their been room, but no one was admitted to the vast building who was not provided with a seat. The "standing room only" signs were not printed for the reason that some the immensity Dreamy Theater larger the most big seats of Chicago had been erected in that one palace hall shall extend its thousand seating capacity. The Coliseum has a floor space of 1 acre. The platform upon which the speakers of the convention and the representatives of the press and brought the press to the earliest hour stood.

Six hundred and eighty-eight delegates and six sixty alternates found their places at noon an hour and without confusion. The doors were thrown open long before the convention was to meet, and a brass band of fifty pieces created the early arrivals to a fine concert.

For a week past the big guns of the party, and many of the big guns of the nation had been gathering here, throwing of the various chances of convention questions, the vice presidential possibilities, the wording of the platform and the character of the coming campaign. To most of these and ers a national convention is always more or less of a pleasant reunion and they welcome the opportunity to get together left over old hatches and map out lines for future struggles.

Among these top men were Hedges, Parker, Platt, Cannon, Speaker, Lodge, Hanna, Kearns, Wolcott, Frank, Kerr, Scott, Taylor, Babcock, Hale, Lodge, Littlefield, McCormick, Kloter Nelson, Carter, Dolliver, Webb, Harriman, Murphy, Aldrich, Bradley and Pennoyer. Some that have been identified with the great party they serve through many a hard fought battle. There were men, too, from Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines, some of these delegates to the convention and others here to urge the justice of representation for our outlying territories.

TUESDAY'S SESSION.

Chairman Henry C. Payne of the National Committee, called the convention to order shortly after 12 o'clock. The hour of convention throughout the big building echoed a mighty roar, and the convention arise as a mass while the opening prayer was delivered by the Timothy P. Proctor, of the conference of the greater Southern South, of West Virginia prosecuted the invocation which was followed by a prayer.

The nominations were read by John R. Mellor, of Ohio. Mr. Mellor did most of the reading at the national convention of 1904 and 1900, and his ability in that line was recognized with appearance of a handicap to the front of the platform. When he finished the call with the words "Marcus A. Hanna chairman" there was a tremendous burst of cheering.

Governor Van Sant of Minnesota—the "merger hunter"—was next recognized to present to the convention the name of Senator Hanna. The nomination was made by the normal training class of the South Minneapolis High School, and was in service at the convention in Minneapolis in 1892, and at St. Louis and Philadelphia.

Mr. Page announced that the national committee had selected Elihu Root, of New York, for temporary chairman of the convention, whereupon Mr. Root advanced and was introduced and applause. As he is Secretary of War, suppose up to the speaker's table, he was greeted with the right was received, and the features of President Roosevelt appeared a short word up from every corner of the immense hall, that was repeated often throughout the course of the New Yorker's address.

As the "keynote" of the convention Mr. Root's speech was listened to with intense interest throughout. He recounted the deeds of the present administration, enforcing everything in its power from the Panama canal, the Panama canal, and dwelt with touching eloquence on the deaths of President McKinley and Senator Hanna. Throughout it was historical and made no mention of congressional policy certain. Without apparent effort the of Senator Hoar of Massachusetts, for the Morning Bailey Harrison, of the national committee, then offered a resolution providing that the rules of the last national convention governing permanent organization be effected, and it was adopted.

Mr. Root's speech was then read with rapt attention by the vast throng. Mr. Root's speech was then read with rapt attention by the vast throng. Mr. Root's speech was then read with rapt attention by the vast throng.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM TARIFF PLANK.

Protection, which guards and develops our industries is the cardinal policy of the Republican party. We insist upon the maintenance of this principle. But we recognize that particular tariff schedules are neither sacred nor immutable. Present duties must be altered conditions, when changed conditions and the public interest demand their alteration. But this work can not be safely committed to any other hands than those of the party of protection.

Special provisions concerning Cuba, Philippines.

For the first few sentences Mr Root underestimated the war of the immense convention hall and his words were hardly audible beyond the platform. Shouts of "Louder" came from the far corners of the hall, and he increased the pitch and lifted his strain, sending his well emphasized phrases through the silent listening throng.

Former Secretary Root began by calling out the growth of the country during the years of Republican control and by analyzing the organization of the national parties. At the close of the Civil war the Republican party emerged the solid and strong phrases through the united Democrats.

Our Candidates.

The republican national convention in Chicago last Thursday unanimously nominated Theodore Roosevelt of New York, for President, and Chas W. Fairbanks, of Indiana for Vice President.

For unanimity of action there is no parallel in American political history to the work of the republican national convention of 1904 and probably in the history of the republic there has been no instance where the nomination of a national ticket has been followed by such unanimous cheers as that which prevails at this time.

It is the calmness of confidence. It is the calmness that harbors no doubts nor uncertainty. Theodore Roosevelt has been safely nominated by the American people for many months. The nomination came from the heart of the people.

No man in American history has in so large a degree enjoyed the confidence and admiration of the people. They admire his candor, his frankness, his honesty of purpose, his courage and his high character. They regard him as the highest ideal of truly patriotic American citizenship; a heroic representative of progressive yet safe Americanism.

The opposition already say that the republican campaign will be simply Roosevelt. That is enough, because Roosevelt, besides personally representing high ideals of American manhood, stands for every fundamental republican doctrine.

The Senator Fairbanks the convention named as one who is in an eminent degree a fit candidate for second place. He is a man of high character and commanding ability.

Roosevelt and Fairbanks will sweep the country in November.

Petoskey Independent: By the death of Mrs. Mary G. Porter, mother of Dr. R. G. Porter, of this city, who died Monday at the residence of her son, Petoskey loses one of her oldest and most respected citizens, one who was loved by all who knew her and who by the gentleness and sweetness of her life had endeared herself to a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Mrs Porter was one of the oldest residents of the city, having come to Petoskey in 1856 with her husband, Andrew Porter, who died Feb. 8, 1866. Mr. Porter came first to Petoskey in 1852, his wife, the late Mrs. Porter, coming to the city in 1856. For many years both were engaged in missionary work among the Indians of northern Michigan. Mr Porter being the first white man who ever built a house in Petoskey, this being located on the place where Nathan Jarman now resides, it being known to the present day as the mission farm.

Where Does the Charlevoix Sugar Factory Come In in This Deal?

One of the most important steps in the development of the beet sugar industry in Michigan is the formation of a central board of control, for the purpose of more economically operating a number of plants which are all practically owned by the same interests.

A report from Saginaw that such organization had been perfected is confirmed in detroit. The plants now working under the agreement made a few days ago at Saginaw are The Alma Sugar Co., capital, $500,000; Saginaw Sugar Co., capital, $700,000; Valley Sugar Co., capital, $650,000; Bay City Michigan Sugar Co., capital, $1,000,000; Carson Sugar Co., capital, $750,000; Sebewaing Sugar Co., capital, $600,000; Sanilac Sugar Co., capital, $500,000; Peninsular Sugar Co., capital, $1,000,000; total capitalization, $6,200,000.

"The beet sugar industry in this state deserves more considerate treatment than it commonly receives," said a capitalist interested in one of the above plants. "Too much has been published of an inaccurate and misleading nature, and the business is not fully appreciated by the general public. Each of the various companies keeps on an average $50,000 worth of beets every year from the farmers of this state. The money all remains at home, being spent by the farmers for labor, household supplies, etc. The companies also buy large quantities of livestock from Michigan farms and coal from Saginaw mines. The fact is not generally understood that higher prices are paid the farmers for beets in Michigan than anywhere else in the world.

"To illustrate the importance of the beet sugar industry, the companies spend more money in the Saginaw valley in payrolls, including money paid for beets, than the sawmills of the Saginaw valley, and to spend in their personal days. There has been an evolution of the sugar business during the past two or three years, and some plants which were not properly located have dropped out, but with proper location and economical management, the business is bound to grow until it becomes one of the leading industries in Michigan."

Oriental Silks and Other Goods Seized in Vessel at New York—Other Ships Expected to Follow.

One of the great New York piers in Hoboken was the scene of a lively time the other day when about 200 men, including the Customs men in charge, and the Federal men in charge, were busily engaged in the examination of a consignment of Oriental goods, which, according to the estimate by the officials, represented a value of many thousands of dollars and Japanese money. The goods were consigned to Hoboken and New York, and were brought over on the Pacific Mail steamship Korea, and the Dutch ship Sumatra, which left Yokohama on the 15th of last month. The Dutchman was the first to arrive, and her cargo was taken off and placed in the warehouse on the Hoboken pier. The Korea came in a few days later, and her cargo was also taken off and placed in the warehouse. The Dutchman was the first to be examined, and the work of examining her cargo was begun on the pier. The Korea's cargo was not touched until the Dutchman was cleared, and then the work of examining her cargo was begun. The Korea's cargo was taken from the warehouse and placed on the pier, and Oriental Opium Worth Three Hundred Thousand Dollars Found on Board the Vessel at New York—Four Men Who Had with Them Opium Valued at Thirty Thousand Dollars Are Captured by Officers.

One of the most extensive and successful attempts to smuggle opium into the United States was frustrated by the officers of the customs service at the Port of New York last week. The contraband opium, valued at $300,000, was found on the steamship Nippon Maru, which arrived at Pier 40, North River, from Yokohama and Hongkong. The opium was concealed in the forward hold of the steamship, in the forward end of the forward hold, and was so well secreted that it was only by the most diligent search that it was found. The opium was in 1,000 cases, each containing 100 cans, and each can contained one ounce of the drug. The cases were marked "Tea" and were stowed in the forward end of the forward hold, in the place where the ship's cargo of tea was stowed. The opium was in charge of four men, who had taken it from the ship and had carried it as far as Hoboken, where they had hired a wagon to take it to a place in Jersey City. The men were followed from the ship to Hoboken by Special Agent Hoey and Inspector Kelly, who had been shadowing the men since the ship had arrived in port. The officers had secured a wagon and followed the one in which the opium was being carried to Jersey City, where they arrested the men and seized the opium. The men were taken before Commissioner Shields in Jersey City and were held in $5,000 each for their appearance before the United States grand jury. The men gave their names as Charles Ah Ping, Ah Ping, Ah Ping and Ah Ping. The opium was taken to the custom house in New York and will be held there until the trial of the men.

OLD LADY IS SLAYER OF FOUR

On Deathbed She Confesses to Murder in Four Instances.

Nelson, Neb., dispatch: Mrs. Sarah Miller, aged 75 years, died here last week. Her husband, son and daughter died within the past four years, and it was stated at the time that they had died from poisoning. These three deaths were the result of a family quarrel, and it was stated at the time that the death of the daughter had occurred from poisoning. Three days before her death she made a full confession to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gaspel, who she made her home. She repeated it in the presence of a son of the family, who had returned home to spend his last days with her. Mrs. Miller said that she had poisoned her husband, son and daughter because they had ill-treated her. She said that she had poisoned them by putting poison in the food she had prepared for them. She said that she had never before had any intention of poisoning anyone, but that she had been so ill-treated by her husband and children that she had determined to put them out of her way. She said that she had poisoned her husband first, her son second and her daughter last. She said that she had put the poison in the food while she was cooking it, and that the child was a cripple. The husband died in a few days, the son in about a month, and the daughter in about six months. Mrs. Miller was taken to the county jail in this city, where she was placed in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Gaspel, who she made her home. She repeated it in the presence of a son of the family, who had returned home to spend his last days with her

WANT MORE SMALL CHANGE.

Subsidiary Silver in Circulation is Not Sufficient.

President Roosevelt in his annual message to congress, which is now in session, calls attention to the need of more small change in the form of silver dollars and fractional parts of a dollar. There are now in circulation about $60,000,000 of silver dollars, which do not circulate, and there are about $50,000,000 of fractional parts of a dollar, which do not circulate. There is a demand for the coinage of silver dollars, and there should be some provision made for coining them. The Treasury Department has plenty of bullion, which it purchased under the act of congress of July 14, 1890, and which is now lying idle in the vaults of the treasury. The coinage of this bullion into silver dollars would be a great benefit to the silver producing states, and would not be an injury to any other interest. The silver dollars would be as good as any other dollars if they were made of the same size and fineness, and they would be more convenient than gold dollars for the people to use. The coinage of the bullion into silver dollars would not be a violation of the promise of the Republican party to maintain the parity between the two metals, for the Treasury Department could issue certificates of deposit against the silver bullion, just as it does against the gold bullion, and the silver would be as good as the gold. The coinage of the silver would not be a violation of the Republican promise to maintain a sound currency, because the silver would be as good as the gold. The coinage would not be a violation of the promise to maintain a protective tariff, because the silver would be as good as the gold. The coinage would not be a violation of the promise to maintain the credit of the government, because the silver would be as good as the gold. The coinage would not be a violation of any promise or principle of the Republican party. The coinage would be a benefit to the people who have silver bullion to coin, and it would be a benefit to the people who have small change to use. The Republican party is in favor of the coinage of the silver bullion into silver dollars, and it is in favor of the issue of certificates of deposit against the silver bullion, just as it is against the issue of certificates of deposit against the gold bullion, and it is in favor of the issue of small silver coin of full weight and fineness, just as it is in favor of the issue of small gold coin of full weight and fineness

"Liberty" Bell.

BY A. M. HOPKINS.

It was the morning of Independence Day, the first Fourth after the Civil war, and we were all very glad to celebrate a national holiday that was small then, and is still just a speck on the map.

On the edge of the town there was an old house hidden behind great trees, as if trying to avoid the public eye. It was, and is, the oldest house in town and in it lived George Hill, or "Liberty" Bell, as some of the villagers called him since well before the Civil Memory.

He was very old. Everything about the place looked old. Even the moss on the roof of his house, and the lapdog of years fully made his house creak. He barked at one and he had a clinkety-clank in every joint of his body. He was a good citizen, but "queer," according to those who didn't understand him.

This Independence Day he came out of his castle with an idea in his old noddle.

The sun shone on his snowy white locks and face stained with age. His hands trembled as he fumbled with the powder horn, loaded one gun after the other on the fence and pulled the trigger. There was a rattling of the old gun, the men "hung out" a flag or some bunting, and the women folks swept and dusted the porch, ran into the gate and gave vent to their surprise at the noise, over their house.

Thirteen times did old gun thunder and then a quavering voice screamed, "Hip! Hip! Hurrah!" and a boy who was peering with anxious eyes through the fence, jumped, thought he was frightened—asked, Who are you the Man? Mr. Bell, if you please?

"Make no Billy, kid," said the old man. "Come in and both are old fellows celebrate. I won't hurt you. Hey! Lay your little bunch of frowsies on the chopping block, and I'll give you a true story about times way back before your daddy was born."

Children were curious anyway, and a moment later the beginning of the end of a country were marching with blue locks against white masts a tay an old man's knee. He was saying the older ones:

"Why do I do it, my boy? Why do I celebrate? Why do I hang out the old Liberty Bell?

"It is because I love my country and I want everybody for miles around to remember that this is the day dedicated to liberty.

"Years ago there was a young man who had more money than he cared for him. Billy. He was plump with fat, the dabbed cheeks of his face on earth except himself. He was selfish. He was good children and cared about the a turkey gobbler. He was puffed up. He put in all his time building fire.

"There was a war on in his country. The people were fighting a bad King who wanted to take away their liberty, and there were some terrible battles. Men went without food. They walked without shoes off their feet bled. They froze because they did not have clothes enough to keep them warm. But they wouldn't give up. They said that all men should be free and equal. Hard and sometimes cruel, they were willing to die for the rather than go back to the old world of kings to be treated as a serfs. They were willing to fight and to fee Without fee is an old word in the dominions of the king that means a man who is not free to go and come as he pleases, who must do what the King tells him to do, who must fight when the King says he must fight, who must pay taxes to the King, who must be a slave to the King.

"The old young man didn't give the war. He thought it was a good thing for fighting. He made so bad all the day he wanted to Northern Bill. He had had a quarter he wouldn't have been such a fool.

"In minutes, three of them, had went to the war, and two were killed. Almost with the last breath of life they cried Washington! and three Bill, and Robert were shot to pieces.

"What do you suppose he did the sight of blood? Was ashamed good for the cowardly man his courage on his courage of regret because he had run?

"And men say that they myself the father into the old house. It would have made the old man's heart sore to see the old man's face. He was ragged worried and he the broad than was a great wound that made those who saw it shudder. The man had fallen in the battle, and the cowardly man had run away. Bill was ashamed of his cowardice. He was ashamed of his wound. He was ashamed of his poverty. He

WRITES LETTER TO NEW GOVERNOR GENERAL.

Counsels Possible Union of Russia and Finland Are to Be Written For Merchant of Harrisburg, Ohio, Fatally Shot by Town Policeman.

In endorsing the appointment of Prince Obolensky as governor general of Finland the Emperor of Russia sent an autograph letter to the prince relative to the situation there. This letter is in the nature of an imperial rescript. The Emperor therein expresses his confidence that it will be possible to reconcile the legal requirements of the province of Finland with the requirements for the well-being of the Russian empire. He concludes: "Guide the Finnish people with the paternal care which I have always shown for it and which it merits by its loyalty, and show it that Finnish people will be safe in the arms of Russia, and that the Finnish people will be faithful to us." The Emperor also has addressed a letter to the Finnish senate, in which he says: "Our Grand Duchy of Finland is one of the borders of our empire. Its prosperity depends on the maintenance of the rights and privileges which have always been the foundation of its well-being. Its prosperity also depends on the maintenance of the ancient laws which have sanctioned the rights of the Finnish people from the time of Swedish rule, and which have always been the foundation of the well-being of the Finnish people." The Emperor also has addressed a letter to the Finnish people, in which he says: "Our Grand Duchy of Finland is one of the borders of our empire. Its prosperity depends on the maintenance of the rights and privileges which have always been the foundation of its well-being. Its prosperity also depends on the maintenance of the ancient laws which have sanctioned the rights of the Finnish people from the time of Swedish rule, and which have always been the foundation of the well-being of the Finnish people." Easily Encouraged.

The New York Herald-Post sees hope for free trade in the fact that nothing impossible in the way of tariff reform is to be expected of the Republican party. It says:

"The people of the United States have had new light on a good many subjects. They know more about tariffs and their effects than they did. They have learned that high duties not only keep out foreign goods, but keep down wages. They have learned that high duties, by raising their cost, make cost of living dear. They know that the Republican party has done for our foreign trade double what the Democratic party ever did.

The President and Monsoons.

President Roosevelt's war dance precision order blew up a storm that violently ruffled the surface of the congressional waters. "The tyranny of the executive" and the "usurpation of the president upon the functions of Congress" were denounced so fearfully on the chance for a speech earlier round, whether in Senate or House. The Democrats did the declaiming, but the Republicans contributed congratulations to the orators, and white rosebuds of Irish eulogy were being hallowed on took plates not to furnish a single vote more than was barely necessary to prevent their passage.

Meanwhile what was happening beneath the surface in Congress? The general deficiency bill contains an appropriation of $1,200,000 to cover the cost of the "executive order" pensions for next year. Clearly the pensions cannot be paid, order or no order, unless Congress provides the money. We hear now anything at all about that phase of the matter from the congressional orators and conservationists?

Is Congress or any part of the congression desirous to show honest opposition, either to the "usurpation" of the White House, it has but to make a genuine fight against this appropriation.

If no such fight is made the country will know what interpretation to put upon the present congressional excitement.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Long Record of Good Service.

Forty-eight years Louis Berger has toiled over the books in the office of the collector of St. Louis, though there have been many collectors and three of different political faiths. It is claimed that during the entire time Mr. Berger has never lost a day from the office by reason of illness. Though he has worked over columns of figures for nearly half a century his eyesight continues good and at the age of seventy-five years he does not wear spectacles.

A Republican Platform.

The address of United States Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island at Providence, in that State, might well be adopted as battle the right matter for the national platform of the Republican party. Senator Aldrich called his address of a few words.

the brilliant record of the Republican party in the past and then to the equally distinguished development of that record which was taking place in the night of the present generation. Senator Aldrich, as can every Republican in the United States, testified to the wonderfully effective diplomacy of the national administration, under the presidentship of Secretary Hay; to the value of the protective tariff; to the necessity for the maintenance of the gold standard of currency, to the development of trade relations with peoples whose products are non-competitive; to the rehabilitation of American shipping by appropriate laws; to the approaching construction of the Panama canal, to the need for efficiency and strengthening the American navy, and to the care of the new possessions in such a way as to maintain the reputation of the United States and to assure the prosperity and happiness of the dependencies. Such a platform is that cannot fail to win in any American campaign, and when the Rhode Island author of that platform is placed at the head of the ticket as the personal representative of Republican principles, victory is as sure as has been the success which has followed the politics of Republicanism.—Tree Times.

Clear and Definite.

The only hope of genuine tariff reform is in the party that has a good detestation of the protective policy, and not in the party that stops its praises with the superlatives in fact that is in the same category of the celebrity's prospects.—Philadelphia Record.

That this candid statement reflects the Democratic view and intention remains the tariff plank of the party in doubt. It is well to know where we stand and what to expect. Tariff reform, so construed by the general body of Democrats, means precisely what the Record says. It means that Democrats hate and detest the Dingley act and the protection which it carries, and that the absolute repeal of that act would be one of the first steps in legislation to be taken if the Democratic party should have obtained full control of national affairs. After that? Another tariff of Democratic tariff another of the sort that was inflicted upon the country in 1894. Tariff reform ten years later will need no such definition. It remains always the same; always hostile to the principle and policy of protection, always friendly to business, always destructive of prosperity. That year the Democratic party will once more unanimously commence work on tariff reform, and the country will know precisely what to anticipate as the result of a Democratic victory at the polls next November. The issue is made clear and definite by the Record. Thanks!

A Magnificent Record.

The record of the Republican party is made up to date, and it cannot be changed by attempts to distort or misrepresent it. It is little, in fact, forms by far the most brilliant page in the history of the country. Rebellion all the greatness the country has made during the last half century, from an isolated nation, almost without recognition beyond its own borders, to a world power, from a confederacy of civilization and progress is felt throughout the world, and from a place away down in the list of manufacturing and commercial countries to the very front rank. The party under whose government and guidance the country has made this progress has not succeeded by lowering pledges and forgetting promises of reform, nor by demoralizing American institutions, but by adopting sign ideas and living up to them, by formulating progressive policies and carrying them out. Mr. Cleveland's party has taken if he thinks the people can be fooled into forgetting this record of progress, development and growth for much-advertised tariff, and so may be offered them by a patriotic and conservative Democracy.—Indianapolis Journal.

Exploiting New Markets.

Many have been expressed from time to time that the United States is not holding its own in foreign markets, that its products are being undersold, that Japanese products of other nations are taking orders in Siam and Indian, Indian and Egyptian cotton, Russian petroleum, and the grain products of the Argentine Republic have carried approximate boundaries.

No, great harm has yet come from these sources, for if there is to be competition in foreign lands with our manufactures and manufacturing products in the future as many good reasons believe, the more reason for not allowing markets easily home to be neglected for lack of proper foresight and care to enlarge them.—Boston Globe.

Democratic Party Temperate.

The Republican party is the party of perfection, and believes in making continual proper improvements. The Democratic party remains a large free trade element, and would if it dared commit itself fully to free trade, but it will not, enough who know to realize that such a course would be political suicide, so it temporizes.—Tree Times.

That Tariff Plank.

It becomes more and more evident that the impossibility of Democratic platform makers will be tested to the utmost when it comes to filling up the tariff plank at St. Louis. The people are fully sold to free trade principles, they have even been deceived two or three times, but not again so soon after the experience under the last free trade law. The first thing the Democratic party can do is to ship the tariff plank this time. By the end of Parker's Cleveland and Bryan free trade, a bad and blurbly protectionist.

Judge Parker and His Platform.

Whether or not the platform adopted by the New York Democrats reflects the sentiment of the country could be determined only by a popular vote, but it is skillfully framed as an appeal to people who are out of sympathy with President Roosevelt. The somewhat vague references to what might be called the "imperialistic acts of the national administration were wisely put in general terms because they hold out some hope to all within the ranks of the disaffected. Attempts to particularize would have been sure to provoke dissidence over questions of time and method which were properly left to the national convention and which it might properly leave to be decided after the election.

The Republican state platform has declared that the greatest national issue was the maintenance of prosperity, which is attributed by inference to the protective tariff, and it was silent on the subject of revision. The platform declares for a reciprocity revision and pronounces against such an duties on raw materials. One is calculated to satisfy the protective tariff beacon, the other invites reciprocation from all who believe that the time has come for a modification of the Dingley law.—Chicago Record-Herald.

His Candidate.

William J. Bryan came in Chicago the other day, professedly in the interest of the Democratic party. He hired a hall that no limitations might be placed upon him in declaration of principles or in expressing preferences for candidates. And yet he made no declarations of principle and made no suggestions as to a candidate.

His speech was almost wholly negative. He devoted most of his time to the criticism of the platform adopted by the New York state convention of the Democrats of the nation. In his analysis of the platform he found but a minute phrase to commend, and a principle to approve.

If Mr. Bryan has any political following it is in still the leader of the faction that controlled the Democratic national convention. His speech was formal notice to the people of the Union places that there is an irreconcilable conflict and an impending crisis in the Democratic party.

Mr. Bryan, indeed by his speech in Chicago, is at open war with the wing of the Democratic party under the leadership of Mr. Cleveland, Mr. Hill and Judge Parker. He looks forward to no party except in the gold of the free coinage. He looks forward to no platform that does not include the Kansas City platform. He looks forward to no candidate who cannot stand upon the Kansas City platform.

The only question that Mr. Bryan leaves open is as to what candidate he will support. He mentioned none that he could approve. He was uncharitable and seeking as to the qualities he would oppose. The logic of his speech points to one candidate—and that is William J. Bryan. If the twice defeated, the hopeless—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Slightly Twisted.

She—I imagine not. Women care a lot for dress, but they want more for it.

Proposed Democratic Battle Cry.

Champ Clark wants the Democracy to go into battle this tariff reduction measure eventual tariff for revenue only imported upon its banners, so hastily scoffed with "25 cents make a dollar" and "To — with the Supreme court." Good idea! Let it march!—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Ahl and the Turkey.

Several letters written by Franz Ahl, the famous composer were recently discovered, and in one of them the following humorous story was found.

As he was strolling home one afternoon in Brunswick Ahl met a friend, who said to him. "You seem very hungry, dear fellow, has poty been your great friend?"

"Oh, no; I've just been taking Ahl?" was the reply.

"You evidently enjoyed it. What did you have to eat?" continued the friend.

"A turkey, replied Ahl.

"And how many were at table?" asked the other.

"There were only two of us," said Ahl.

"Who was your companion?" inquired the friend.

"The turkey," replied Ahl.

Probate Order.

(First Publication June 16th.)

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of the Probate Court for said County, held at the Probate Office, in the City of Charlevoix on the 13th day of June in the year nineteen hundred and four.

Present, Hon. Willard A. Smith, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Phoebe L. Bostwick, deceased. On reading and filing the petition duly verified of Mary E. Bostwick praying that the administration of said deceased and all other proceedings in said estate, be vacated to appear at a hearing in said court, on the 11th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, and show cause, if any there be why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. It is ordered that notice of the time and place of hearing be given to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and of the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Decreasing Cost of Living.

It may be just as well to put on record the following from a recent issue of the New York Times: "Bradstreet's index of prices, compiled up to April 1, indicates that the wave of high prices is receding and that in many lines the expectation of Bradstreet's index of average of values has been found impossible of realization. Among the articles of advanced cotton and cotton manufactures are considerable. There are also advances in building materials either across the board, rubber and leather. Most of these advances are in a great extent or wholly artificial, and those of them are likely to be quite temporary. The decreases are in lines which, with the exception of cotton goods, enter more directly into the average family consumption, so that the conclusion is a safe one that the cost of living is on the whole, declining. How this is interpreted will, of course, depend largely upon the point of view."

Protectionists will interpret it flatly as Free Traders will interpret it at all because it knocks one one of the main props of their platform.

Stop More of the Same—Quick.

Say wife, there's no use screaming, the other night that isn't down in the medical books, I know what I've had some property tonnin' up for longer. I was lonesome as I supposed I was trying to eat too fast. At any rate I had some of the soup in my whistlepipe and commenced to sputter. I caught on and coughed, and drank about two glasses of water. Still I coughed.

"Take another spoonful of soup," said my wife.

"Now for mercy," I said. "I choked on that once, and I'll wait until this morning and see if I can breathe."

"She insisted, however, telling me it would cure me. I thought that for fun I made the attempt, and the effect was magical, for the irritation disappeared immediately. My self-appointed physician told me also that to cause the cough to stop entirely I must take some more of the very liquid on which you strangled. She said it was especially efficacious in the case of a cough and cold. Hence. How is that for a household remedy for a common complaint?"

Back to His Youthful Days.

When Bluebird Jones Allen wrote "Backward, turn backward, O Time, in thy flight, Make me a child again just for to-night," she did not foresee the experience of the Pennsylvania man who, when he was taken down by the branch of a falling tree and made unconscious for a few minutes. When he regained his senses he was a boy again in which condition he now spent the same games he played as a youngster and at the same time retained quite from the wound on his head, which is healing, he is in good physical health. He is of middle age.

Clergyman is Fire Chief.

Medway, Mass., is safe of the only fire department in that state, or grey hairs in any other, which has a clergyman for its chief. He is the Rev. Mr. Strawbridge pastor of a wealthy Congregational church in that village, but when the chief engineer for nine years died he said to have was that evident position through merit as a fire fighter. His ministrations in the department refer him as a preacher, but he fires in this world as well as in the next.

Pyrotechnic Birds.

In Nagasaki, Japan, there is a fireworks maker who manufactures pyrotechnics in the original case that when exhibited will be a lifelike manner. Birds of all sorts and sizes every movements exactly like those of living birds. The secret of the fabulous wonderful things lay born in the possession of the oldest child of the family each generation for more than 400 years.

Silk Mill at St. Louis.

The process of silk weaving is illustrated at the world's fair. A silk mill demonstrates the interesting process and runs constantly. The finished products of the loom will display an interest and will be useful in demonstrating the possibilities of industry in this country. The loom is the United States consumes more raw silk than any other nation in the world.

Fifteen Business Anniversary.

John Sheppard a Boston merchant, recently celebrated the fifteen business anniversary of his entrance into business in that city, and especially marked the day by the gift of $5,000 to endow a free bed in the Massachusetts general hospital in that city.

Harvard Men Athletic.

Figures compiled by Professor Hoffman of Harvard are a revelation of a movement surpassing the hopes of the most sanguine advocates of athletics as a family. A canvass of the graduating classes that of 3,000 students showed that 1,000 took part in the athletics or gymnasium work last year. Of 1,364 students registered 1,331 played tennis, 540 took their recreation on the golf links, football had 450 patrons, and baseball about as many while rowing was only a little behind these figures.

Hockey aroused the active interest of 400 students, cost lacrosse nearly 100. In the gymnasium 1,127 Harvard men, without reckoning those who in medical duty, more than 200 chose basketball for theirs.

China's Hapless Position.

Sympathetic feelings are distinguishing China's somewhat precarious position in the Russo-Japanese war.

"China," he said, "seems very small and helpless beside Russia or Japan. Anything that she may pay to the combatants is suggestive of the relationship of a mouse, back to the lioness.

"This mouse, you must know, forms almost one day in a static pot of huge, restless steeds. They were all kicking and stamping and the mouse had to dodge from left to right and from right to left in order to avoid being crushed. As he shot this way and that, between the hoofs he made no hard sighing sm.

"Take care, gentlemen. Don't hit me there or the mouse."

Secret of the Plundered Safe

BY EMILE GAROMAU

CHAPTER VI.

Prosper was triumphant; he had at most conquered his father of his innocence. Here he had not time to argue over this victory. The cell door opened and the guards gruff voice called out:

"It is time for you to appear before the court."

He instantly obeyed the order. As he passed through the hall of the court full of policemen he again met the man with the gold spectacles who had accosted him in the morning. He was searched, his pockets emptied, his watch taken from him and he was marched into a room where he was left alone for a few minutes. He was soon joined by a gentleman.

"Are you the gentleman?" he asked of the policeman.

"Yes, I suppose that was Mr. Jones' letter." replied the policeman with surprise. "It is in M. Lecoq of the detective service, and the constable would have given me a long disquisition on M. Lecoq's detective abilities had they not been interrupted by the entrance of the judge, which they entered.

"Monsieur Prosper Parfaitt, was willing to undertake, and to our begin Prosper Parfaitt, was willing to undertake, and to our great joy he has succeeded in finding the lost Prosper of this conversation I overheard between the Mr. Jones and Monsieur de Chevalier. What I am about to say, you can repeat to your friends, as the Archduke did after numerous lessons between Prosper and Monsieur de Chevalier.

The letter read Parfaitt at once proceeded to state to the Archduke that he was waiting a when the door of the hotel was suddenly opened and the bell twice whispered.

"Come!"

Parfaitt rapidly disappeared into a room. Prosper was left alone for a few minutes before Mr. Jones entered the room. He was pale and sullen looked and spoke in a manner very different from the morning sire. Alias Alexandre could not help noticing it.

"Why, my child you are not going to be sick, are you?"

"I am obliged to do so, madam, and I must request you to leave me alone, I suffered during my absence to wait such a long time for my return, so that I am in a frenzied state, determined upon following out the plan of the night before, and leaving the force for some time to finally settle the affair between myself and Mr. Jones, and to find the robbers supply. "Think that he is the robber, I suppose." "Madam, I beg you to be so kind as to go and see M. Jones the next morning."

CHAPTER VIII.

At 6 o'clock Parfaitt was ready to go out. He had ordered a cup of coffee to catch M. Jones at breakfast, determined to "rip up" every detail of the affair. He was walking over the Archduke, as it was the only place where he could be heard and help me, so that she wont be in the way."

In a few minutes Parfaitt was conducted into the room of the Archduke and a worthington's house. Mons. Lecoq was sitting in a chair before a big fire in the street in those six hours had aged considerably. The Chevalier Jones, who identified up and down among the cells, seemed to be the picture of a man a year in a month. One minute he would stop and stamp, and shake his head, and then he would commence to walk up and down again.

"Well, Monsieur Parfaitt, I suppose you have found the robber." said the Archduke, as he entered the room.

"Not at present, sir." said Parfaitt, "but I have a clue which I shall follow up, and I hope to be able to report to you in a few days." "Have you found the robber?" said the Chevalier Jones, who had the same question to put to Parfaitt

PROSPERITY AND SAVINGS.

Deposits Have Increased to Nearly Three Billion Dollars.

There is no such thing as real prosperity in this country when the general public is short of surplus money. There is no statement of real prosperity when the general public goes on making money and saving none of it. The speculative gambler may be rolling in wealth or he may be absolutely poverty stricken, and neither the one condition nor the other reflects the situation of the general public and the country. Something that does, unfailingly and emphatically, is the total of the savings banks deposits—the surplus wealth of the general public when we had "hard times" with the advent of the Wilson law, savings banks deposits first ceased to increase and then actually decreased. From 1893 to 1894 they fell nearly $40,000,000, or to a total of $1,747,861,000. By 1902 they had risen to $2,760,000,000. Comptroller Ridgely's report showed that the total of the savings banks deposits is now $2,932,204,845.

From the experts who "went broke" in speculative ventures we hear that national prosperity turned downward in 1901. In that year the savings banks deposits were $2,507,000,000, so that since then to now there has been a gain of nearly $440,000,000. This year, when the "hum of prosperity" is larger than the gale from 1893 to 1894. It is as large as the gain from 1880 to 1889, large than the gain from 1858 to 1860, when the times was indeed booming, as no one will deny.

Nearly three billions of savings banks deposits to-day—nearly twice what we had in 1894—does not look as if the general public were yet sick of prosperity. Nor will it be, if this nation continues a policy which keeps up industries protected against foreign competition and our wage earners market for their wages at home.—New York Press.

Paying for the Canal.

Secretary Shaw has announced the method by which the Panama canal funds are to be raised. The $50,000,000 required—$40,000,000 for the French Canal company and $10,000,000 for Panama—will be secured by withdrawing from the national banks 95 per cent of the United States funds in their possession. An additional sum of $5,000,000 for local contingent expenses will be obtained by the Mexican dollar loan, and also to be raised. It is to be supposed that provision for these payments is to be made in the same way. To reduce the possibility of disturbance to the minimum the secretary has provided the banks which may desire to sell bonds that they have deposited in the treasury to enable the government may transfer the securities direct to new holders. While depositary banks will be allowed to release a part of the surplus funds with which they are now liberally supplied, there is no reason to apprehend any real stringency or crippling scarcity in rates. Secretary Shaw is anticipating the action of the senate, but in view of the moral certainty of the ratification of the treaty his action is not premature. Promptitude has characterized the action of state, navy and war departments in the Panama affair, and the treasury department evidently does not mean to be caught lagging in its duties.

Secretary Hay's Note.

It was not sufficiently to either Russia or Japan. It does not menace any railroad rights of Russia in Manchuria or the financial advisory towards Japan has or seeks in Corea. It does not interest either from depriving the other by war of such advantages as it has gained. It does safeguard the acquired interests in China of Germany, Great Britain and France, earliest and most extensively the "treaty" in the Pacific. It is proper that the United States which, alone of the great nations has no territorial claim in the region, should make the proposition.

In the Philippines.

The annual report of the Philippines commission gives some of the facts of the satisfactory progress in the islands. It does not point out a number of the things which it is our duty to do for the Filipinos in the immediate future.

Apart from the rapid extension of agriculture, the settlement of the friars' lands dispute and the good income in sugar exports are specially noteworthy. The revenues of the islands have increased materially, and the number of children in the public schools has increased in every province but one.

To Improve Petersburg.

In order to encourage builders to make the Russian capital a thing of beauty the city council of St Petersburg has declared its intention of exempting from taxation all new buildings which shall be adjudged ornamental as well as useful. It is doubtful whether our lawmakers would approve of such a course, but it appears a powerful way to bring about its object.

Wonderful Nerve.

Is displayed by many a man suffering from accidental Cuts, Wounds, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Sore feet or stiff joints. But there's no need for it. Bucklen's Arnica Salve will kill the pain and cure the trouble. It's the best Salve on earth for piles, too. 25c, at F. G. Hines & Co. Druggist.

Oscoda Notes. Judge Aldrich's cement plant at Edgewater, building operations on which were recently suspended, is to be transferred, it is said, to Charlevoix county. Nearly five hundred acres of land, underlaid with limestone and shale, is now owned by the Aldrich company and a cement plant is to be built thereon. According to the reports the Charlevoix county land and deposits are superior in their promise of future development to any other similar land in Michigan. This is why the Benzie county proposition was abandoned.

Last week Mackinac was visited by a prominent party consisting of Lieut. Gen. A. R. Chaffee, wife and son, with his aide, Capt. Hutchinson, C. P. Humphrey, quartermaster General of the army, and Lansing S. Hirst, major of engineers and lighthouse inspector for this district. They were entertained by the part commander, through Supt. B. F. Emery, with a tour of the old fort and a carriage drive over the island. The objects of their visit to Mackinac were to ascertain the accommodation at old Fort Mackinac for stationing a company of troops with officers here during the summer months, and also to inspect Fort Mackinac cemetery. This place has been neglected in the past, but General Chaffee authorized Supt. Emery to make requisition on him for such money and material as should be necessary to put the cemetery in a similar condition as all national cemeteries.

Kalkaska special: George Persons who owns and operates a resort hotel on Torch lake, 14 miles from here, has been presented with a metal of honor by George H. Thomas post, G. A. R., of Chicago, for nobly defending the stars and stripe against the wrath of two anarchists three years ago—the day President McKinley died. The presentation of the medal came about in this way. As soon as Mr. Persons heard of President McKinley's death he hoisted a flag at half mast. Torch river bridge was then in course of construction and on the job were two anarchists, who threatened to tear the flag down and started toward the pole. Mr. Persons, who is an old veteran of the civil war and only possesses one leg, grabbed his trusty crutch and started for the house, returning immediately with a Winchester rifle loaded to the muzzle. A couple of shots caused the anarchists to change their minds and they made themselves scarce and were never again seen back on the bridge job. Along the lake, resorting, happened to be a man from Chicago who is a soldier, too. When he arrived home, at a meeting of his post, he related what he saw at the little resort up in Michigan, and it was at once voted that the post have a suitable medal of honor made and presented to Mr. Persons for his noble deed. July 2, 1904, Colonel Baker post of Kalkaska received an invitation from George H. Thomas post of Chicago to have several of its members at Mr. Persons' July 5 to witness the presentation of the medal to Mr. Persons. Accordingly about 30 members of the local G. A. R. and W. R. C. drove to Mr. Persons' hotel Wednesday and spent the day. The presentation speech by Mr. Pierce of Chicago was followed by a sumptuous dinner and jolly good time.

Probate Notice.

[First Publication June 23th.]

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said County of Charlevoix, held in the City of Petoskey, in said County, on the 11th day of June, A. D. 1904.

Present, Hon. Willard A. Smith, Judge of Probate.

On reading and filing the petition of Ann Arbor Smith, praying that a certain instrument in writing, now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and also the last will and testament of said deceased, be admitted to probate, and that said executrix be appointed executrix thereof, and that letters testamentary issue to her, and that the heirs at law of said deceased be ascertained by the decree of this court.

It is ordered, that the 11th day of July next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at said Probate Office, be appointed for hearing said petition, and that said executrix give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said time of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County of Charlevoix.

—The East Jordan base ball team, which has won laurels in Northern Michigan, will make a tour of central and southern Michigan having a two week's lay-off on account of excuse. The East Jordan boys, however, were badly defeated at Petoskey yesterday by the local team.

—Chicago paper: Lorraine F. Boyer has leased to Joseph Beauvais, Jr., the store at 62-64 Michigan avenue, at South Water street, for a term of ten years at an annual rental of $2,210. The term begins July 1, and the store is to be occupied as a lunch room. Mr. Beauvais having for years been manager H. H. Kohlsat: & Co.

—Mr. Ferris, of the Standard Cement Co. is here this week doing up certain unsettled matters in connection with the cement factory. The deal with the railroad company involving rates and branch facilities, has been satisfactorily closed. The Tuesday report states that the site and railroad right of way is practically secured. Mr. Ferris says the company will break ground for the factory during August.

—Cohan has a new display in his advertising agency this week.

—Local Inspector Hosmer and Hooker went to Beaver Island yesterday on inspection business.

—Miss Anna Aldworth arrived Wednesday for a week's visit, with her fiance Mr Meyer M. Cohen.

—Glasses fitted in the latest style of mountings by I. Leahy the optician at Hotel Bartlett July 27 to Aug 1st.

—Lieut. F. A. Newbery, of the Detroit police force, is here, on a visit to his brothers Geo. A. and E. A. Newberry.

—August demand, of New York, made a friendly call on Judge Parker last Thursday, at his pleasant home at Escapa.

—I'lete this in your hat! In 1905 the Charlevoix sugar factory and the Standard Cement Company's factory will be in operation, with an aggregate force of 300 men.

—I. Leahy the optician has an ad. in this issue. If you need glasses and also when he comes July 27 to Aug. 1st as he is prepared to fit any eye that can be fitted.

—Rev. Fr. Zeghelaire, of St. James came over Monday and returned Wednesday, making a trip to Mackinac Island with a friend—Rev. Fr Brugger, of Saginaw.

—St. Mary's Catholic Church will have regular service on Sunday July 24th. Early mass at 8:00 o'clock and mass and sermon at 10 o'clock at 7:30 in the evening Vespers and benediction. Rev. Father Alexander officiating.

—Chief Robinson, of the U. S. weather bureau telegraph division, left with the tug Taylor and the cable outfit yesterday for Manitou Island. Chief Robinson expects to have the two islands connected and the display station on North Island established this week.

—Soleska's oriental store near the bridge, is attracting crowds daily. No greater summer attraction ever visited Charlevoix, and Mr. Soleska is so favorably impressed with the place that he is talking seriously of securing a permanent location here, by purchase or otherwise.

—The U. S. revenue cutter Tuscarora was in port all day last Thursday. The cutter is making a special inspection cruise of life-saving stations, and has on board General superintendent Kimball and Capt. McClellan, chief inspector. The Tuscarora is one of the finest ships in the service, and is commanded by Capt. Hall. She will return here later on her regular custom duty.

—H. J. McNeil was brought to his home in this village yesterday from Gerrish v. suffering from the effects of an amputation of a toe, the process of healing not being satisfactory. He will be taken to Chicago today for further treatment, and probably another amputation, as gangrene is feared. Mr. McNeil had his foot frozen last winter, and being in the woods where proper treatment could not be secured it developed into trouble that made amputation of the affected portion of the foot necessary.

—A large audience attended the illustrated gospel service at the Dogt st Church last Sunday night. There were about fifty pictures of the "life of Jesus" and about thirty illustrating the hymns "Abide with me," "Rock of Ages" and "Throw out the Life-line." Next Sunday evening the subject will be "What Christian Civilization has done for Japan." There will be sixty stereopticon views showing Japanese customs, homes, houses, occupations, schools, costumes, cities, soldiers, warships etc. All are cordially invited. There will be a collection for the special incidental expenses.

—An up-lake exhange is speaking of the building of a cement factory here, hopes "it will not turn out another sugar factory," which remark implies a supposition that the sugar factory is not to be counted upon. You were never more mistaken in your life, neighbor. The sugar factory will be operated. The plant represents an outlay of $225,000, including a building that cost nearly $100,000. Neither the building nor machinery, will ever leave Charlevoix, because they cannot be moved, within the bounds of any consideration of profit, even if sold under the hammer. The adjustment of all trouble will come in due course of time, and that at no distant day. The sugar factory will be operated, and every farmer, to whom a cent is due will be paid in full. Don't worry about the sugar factory—it will make sugar.

—W. D. Jacobs and wife are enjoying W. J. Hazeltine and wife, of Lexington, Ont., also Miss Crosby, Mrs Jacob's sister, from Vassar Mich.

—At a meeting of the school board Tuesday evening the following officers were elected: President, F. J. Mesich, treasurer, A. Hostlers. Directors, F. J. Mesich.

—S. A. Maxting left Monday for Portsmouth, Ohio, to interview a young daughter that arrived there last week, at the home of Mrs. Martings mother. Mr. Marting will attend the wedding of a sister at Berea, while he is there.

—Dr. Donald McDonald the eminent specialist of Grand Rapids will be in Charlevoix at Hotel Bluff on Friday and Saturday, August 5th and 6th. Two days only. Consultation, examination and advice free. Call early and avoid the rush.

—We hear of threats from certain quarters of Charlevoix county to nominate an independent ticket. Get together gentlemen, and come to the front where we can see and count you. The average American citizen hates a scrubbed. Talk is cheap; get to the front. The republicans of Charlevoix county have no apologies to make.

—It is a fact that can be backed up by evidence that there are more merchants in Charlevoix today, proportionate with hotel and cottage accommodations than at any other Northern Michigan resort. It is also a fact that in equipment of first class hotels offers more and better natural attractions than any of them. There is better scenery, better boating, better fishing, and better water than any other Northern Michigan resort can give. Charlevoix is the Queen.

—A milestone in the history of Charlevoix as a resort town is the establishment here of the E. A. Soleska oriental rug and bric-a-brac store, in the Wilber store building near the N. M. Trains Co's dock. It is the first of its class ever established here, and not only the summer visitors but our own people are to be congratulated. There is one rug in the Soleska collection that represents the value of an average village store—$1,000. There are many at $1,000, while those from $500 to $1,000 are thickly spread about. But they are magnificent fabrics. In works of art the Soleska store is an exposition of itself, and is well worth a visit of inspection. Heretofore our summer visitors were compelled to go elsewhere for a special summer purchase, but Charlevoix now supplies the want in the Soleska bazaar.

—Petoskey News: From a recent dispatch from Lansing, in which it is stated that the secretary of state is sending out the warrants for the pay of commissioners of the state census, there is evolved a situation that has heretofore been unthought of. These warrants are drawn on the treasuries of the various counties, according to the law, which says that the people's commission shall be paid by the county in which their work is performed, but there is hardly a county in the state which has not been asked and have made provision for the payment. County Clerk Dickinson was surprised when the inserter called his attention to the matter and said that this county had been just as negligent in this business as some of the others, for no appropriation has been made. Just how the case will be handled remains to be seen, but it looks very much like a case of wait until the next meeting of the board of supervisors, which will be in October.

Letter From Superintendent Howe

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 8th, 1904.

DEAR EDITOR.

It has occurred to me that I might send you a little news concerning the University Summer School that would be of interest to at least a few of your readers, that is, if the summer "operators" and the cement factory have not absorbed all the interest available.

The "Summer Session" of the University is an institution now of about ten years' growth, and was developed chiefly in response to the demand which began about that long ago for some extension upon opportunities for a larger class of people whose work or circumstances prevent continuous attendance at a higher school. From this beginning it has taken on a number of modifications which more closely approximate the regular work of the University. A considerable number of students use the Summer Session as a means of improving entrance conditions, some for shortening their regular course, and others for taking special subjects outside their course. The regular work of the Engineering Department has grown so rapidly in recent years that all students in that department are now required to continue their study through at least one summer term before graduation, and a similar requirement may soon be made in the Law Department.

The total summer enrollment the year is about five hundred. The Law, Medical, and Engineering departments have a good proportion of these, but probably the largest group is made up of undergraduates and teachers who are working in the Literary Department. A few of these are school superintendents who are also doing special graduate work toward a higher degree. Let me note here that the popular term "post graduate" is never heard here; on the theory, I suppose, that one is an undergraduate or else a graduate, and that he could not be a post-graduate" until he had ceased to be a graduate. It is in this select last-mentioned class that the Charlevoix representative has his lot and being Superintendent Lott of Elk Rapids and Miss Mabel Cutler of Petoskey are the only neighbors I have discovered from Northern Michigan.

Perhaps you will allow a personal mention of my own work. I have a daily class in Theoretical and Critical Pedagogy, and in School Supervision, both under Professor Dillingham in the Psychology for Teachers, under Professor Reber, a Teachers' Course in Ethno-Social Movements, under Professor Wenley, and a two hour XXXIX "seminar" in the History of Education with Professor Reber on Saturday. The work in pedagogy, and history is a review and extension of work I had here years ago, and so far it seems I have no difficulty in keeping up with the seven examinations, mental and physical. Only about 85 percent of those examined this term passed all the examinations, it is reported, showing this as severe was the test, and Pallbrop was the youngest of all those examined. In the class is a son of Gen. Early, of Confederate fame.—Petoskey News.

Out of respect to the late Fitch H. Williams, whose funeral was held at Elk Rapids, Friday afternoon, every business house in the city without exception was closed. The hotel Lakeview was also draped in mourning. The floral tributes were the most magnificent ever seen there. Large and beautiful net pieces were sent by the Antrim county and Charlevoix Bar associations, the board of supervisors and the county officials besides hundreds of smaller pieces, sprays and flowers from his many friends. There were many representative present from Charlevoix, Petoskey, Cadillac, Traverse City, Manistee, Macatawa, Kalamazoo and in fact from almost all over Northern Michigan. Grand Master Terrel of the Masonic lodge was in the city and the Masons attended the funeral in a body. The funeral, however, was not under Masonic auspices. The service was conducted by the Rev. William Vincent Dawson of St. Paul's church. The cortege was the largest ever seen in Elk Rapids. He was laid to rest in the local cemetery.

One of the strangest happenings imaginable was experienced at Wequetonsing a few days ago. A letter was received from a Chinaman, asking if Wequetonsing is a Christian resort. As it was established by missionaries the inquiry sent the thermometer down rapidly for a moment, until it was remembered that the letter came from Chicago.

The Kalkaska Leader says of the land of gypsies that struck this place last week: "A band of gypsies have been visiting north through this county during the past week, and if all the stories we have heard concerning them be true they are a mighty bad lot of tech acres and should be kept moving, as wherever they have been allowed to camp depredations of all sorts have been reported, and we understand that the citizens of one or two townships south of us were forced to protect them out of there in self defense."

The Detroit Free Press of recent date contained a fine half-tone cut of one of our well known young men, together with the following comment: Ormond C. Pallbrop, aged 16 years, son of Judge Pallbrop, of Petoskey, Mich., who admitted as a cadet at the United States naval academy at Annapolis a few days ago. He passed with an average of 3.0 in the seven examinations, mental and physical. Only about 85 percent of those examined this term passed all the examinations, it is reported, showing this as severe was the test, and Pallbrop was the youngest of all those examined. In the class is a son of Gen. Early, of Confederate fame.—Petoskey News.

FLOOD SMITES KANSAS.

Torrent Sweeps Hundreds from Their Homes in Many Cities.

Wichita is flooded worse than ever before in its history. The damage at several places along the little river gave way to the main part of water which poured down Water avenue, one of the principal thoroughfares, in a raging torrent, between wind deep. Its Main street the Harmony Hotel was flooded and the water is flowing waffle office. Two hundred people evacuate the main business street. Many persons living within three blocks of the little river have been forced to vacate their homes. In North Topeka the water is knee deep in the principal streets and the town is flooded. All the Santa Fe shops in the city are now moving across the big Melan bridge to Topeka and the main side. The well-to-do citizens started their goods in wagons and in the upper stories of their homes and fled. The poorer classes, driving their live stock to the hills, refused what goods they could upon their shoulders. Merchants and all took what all might getting their goods to safe quarters. Thousands of sacks are being used, in Topeka gauge the water is 3 feet higher than from the river above the bridge. Trains on the Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Rock Island are abandoned east and west out of Topeka. Immense damage has been done to Lawrence, one-half of Arrangement. The packing house was in the Kansas City, is under water from the waters of the Kaw. Many thousands of Argentine and Brookside other suburbs are flooded and hundreds are imploring people from their homes.

TRAIN RUN OVER TRESTLE.

Engineer Stops Before Falling Into River and Saves Lives.

After doing a narrow escape for an miss, a south-bound accommodation train on the Chicago Peoria & St. Louis Railroad was struck by a swaying storm-beat Deadfall, Ill., and was thrown off the track beside the track. But for the presence of mind of the engineer, who at last seeing that the bridge could not be crossed, put on the brakes and stopped the train before it reached the bridge across the Illinois River, the train would have been lost. As it was, only the baggage car was thrown off. The engineer and fireman were injured. The storm checks as the train sped along, and a dog apparently crossed the road in front of a passenger train yesterday. Instantly the engineer reversed the engine in an effort to push the dog ahead of the train, and would have succeeded, but the animal escaped again and headed directly for the flying train. The engineer thought that he had heard above the roar of the tornado, the whistle of a locomotive approaching. The engineer were torn from the cabin and thrown into the ditch, the fireman, baggageman and called to their aides were hurt. Injured, the engineer, fireman and baggageman were taken to the hospital.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR

The fog of mystery surrounding the war has been dense during the last week than ever before, says the Chicago Tribune. There is a feeling that great events are going forward, and only the correct version of them have reached the outside world.

Kuroki has pushed his lines forward a few miles. Saitsiepu was taken on the morning of June 7 at early dawn of the morning was observed in the jungle outlying Chenlu Ferry, a town of the employes. He went upstairs, and returning will a revolver, fired at Harlman. The old man fled and his son George shouted at him to stop. Instead of stopping at the sound of the voice, he turned and fired at George, who ran for cover. The Russian report that Kuroki has gained back and forward, cutting through, toward Ping Yang. Nothing. There is no to the front yard, where in mid-morning there stationed, when he through the throat causing almost instantaneous death. The Japanese are now at Ping Yang, the town occupied by the police after a desperate fight.

THREE RAILROADS COMBINE.

Single System Between Buffalo and Twin Cities Will Result.

Eugene Zimmerman announced in New York a deal had been completed by which a syndicate of New York, Boston, St. Louis and Cincinnati capitalists will in the future control the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad, the Toledo and Marquette Railroad recently completed, the Cincinnati, Chicago and Louisville Railroad and two local companies in Ohio, which will form a single system between Buffalo and Twin Cities. The properties in question, with the exception of the Marquette Railroad, are now operated as a single great system, controlling the large coal and iron traffic between Buffalo and St. Paul and Minneapolis. The exact details of the transaction I now am not at liberty to make public. Pre-conferences have taken place and an important factor in the railroad situation at the central West.

STORM HAS DESTRUCTION.

Deluge Causes One Death, and Much Loss in Pennsylvania.

Storms and destruction of property followed in the train of a terrific storm that swept Pennsylvania Pa and adjacent regions. Nelson Dilliston was one of the victims, and he was killed in Pine Creek, which had been swollen to a river. The girl was caught in the current and swept away from her companions, who were unable to help her. The girl's body was found few hours later. The loss from the storm was enormous.

Chautauqua Has Fire Scare.

Fire started in the business portion of the village of Chautauqua, N. Y., where the Chautauqua assembly is located. The flames spread rapidly among the wooden and frame buildings, and the loss is believed to be not more than $15,000.

Rhode Island Building Sold.

The Rhode Island State building has been sold to a St. Louis man, who will use it as a country home. The price of the building is not given but it is understood, for those in charge of the building, that it cost $25,000, and sold for less than $5,000.

MAP OF THE THEATER OF WAR.

SPHINX NO MORE A MYSTERY.

It Is Nothing More than a Gigantic Image of Harmachis.

Scientists of Washington confirm the reports which have been circulated recently to the effect that the mystery surrounding the Sphinx has been solved. At the Smithsonian Institution it was said that the stone on Giza plateau in Egypt is nothing more than a gigantic image of ala Harmachis, the god of morning and the conqueror of darkness, buried in the sand. This discovery was made recently by Sir Gaston Maspero, who was with the party of a temple which was unearthed by excavations.

Scholars unanswered the foundations of the great statue and have brought to light many interesting features which until recently were unknown. The people surrounding the base was intended for the worship of Harmachis, and several chambers have in the rock were the tombs of kings and priests devoted to his worship. In 1816 there was discovered a stone cap with a sacred asp carved on the forehead, which once covered the head of the Sphinx like a royal helmet, and must have added immensely to its grandeur, particularly if it was gilded, as it is believed it was.

The Sphinx is not an independent structure. The body and head are carefully hewn out of the solid rock, but such assistance masonry was built in to make the outlines perfect and cover defects in the material. This reinforcement of the original rock is very apparent now to a close observer, but originally they were concealed, for scientists believe that the entire image was once covered with cement. Indeed, it is possible even now to find fragments still adhering to the surface which resemble porcelain thus found in excavations in the ruins of the royal palaces. Several private collectors and some museums have made some of the most brilliant redoubtings and artistic design, and from them we can imagine what the original appearance of the statue must have been before the ravages of time and the elements had stripped its gaity.

While it is not an impressive picture, it has no beauty whatever. The nose, the lips and other features have been mutilated by Mohammedans, who when the French soldiers under Napoleon and had to have been the first defilement begun to defend it against the Christian era, and Caliph Ma-mun invaded Egypt and made it a province of the Persian Empire. The expedition upon the face of the famous statue is blank. Poets and imaginative people have expatiated much and quaint in describing lines which do not appear and are purely fanciful, and we have now but again said again that the solemn inscrutability of its expression is the chief mystery in its stone." One writer that I read the other day described it as being "a comeliness not of this world," a model of beauty now forgotten, forgotten because forever dead, with lyrics from the flashing foam of the Aegean and in bare images created out of pure beauty." While this sounds fine, it is preposterous.—Washington Times.

LABRADOR A BARREN WASTE.

But Its Fisheries Are Valuable Being Would Break Its Isolation.

The coast of Labrador is the edge of a vast solitude of rocks, hills split and blessed by the frosts and lashed by the waves of the Atlantic for unknown ages. A grand bendland, yellow, brown and black in its barrenness, is ever in sight, one to the north of you and one to the south. Here and there open there are strips and patches of pale green moss, lean grasses and dwarf shrubbery. There are no forests except in Hamilton inlet, occasionally gulies of prechoice from the sea in which land may roughly shape all the structures of human art.

More frequent than headlands and perpendicular sea fronts are the sea lagoons, after land and lands, and then the perfection of all that is picturesque and romantic in the interior the blue hills and stony vales that wind up from among them, from the sea level up into the inclosed, pleasant air.

One finds himself peopling these recesses and dotting their hills, valleys and wild shores with human habitations, but a second thought and a second glance it is odd that no one tell in the fields away there, no wonders dwelling in the hollows of the drift, play by the brooks or shoes in the sea. Nothing actually human takes color lone to the line, no sailor cuts from the fathomless chimney, no to fight the Russians sighted in the Japanese squadron four attacked and one so-against battleships, or we, as four first-class armored vessels. At the beginning of the war the Japanese had five first-class and seven second-class battleships. The Hatsuse was sunk. Therefore the complement of the Japanese battleship squadron, by Russian report, is intact. Furthermore, it is concentrated near Port Arthur, and Admiral Kamimura's fast main consist only of cruisers. The Japanese have active Cruisers armored even two Port of three force at Port Arthur on June 23. These are probably with Kamimura to cope with the three armored cruisers of the Vladivostok squadron.

Kamimura has had his third chance to engage this squadron, but he has not engaged it. It escaped him. He seems to have tried to head off the big ships on the high seas with torpedoes, but he could not do it, of course. This confirms the prophecies of the Japanese disposition to the three theatre at our new harbors they are not just such they said, was they are not of much account.

The Japanese suffered a naval disaster during the week in the blowing up of the Kasuga, an old wooden gunboat of Togo's fleet. It was one of most of the crew off, but refused to leave himself and was drowned. The Kasuga was in Dalny bay. In destruction shows that the crews are good in discipline and that they will leave overboard one of a crew.

Admiral Togo on June 20 gave the course of a torpedo attack on the night of June 17 a Russian gunboat in the Yalu River. Nearly the crew was asleep. The gunboat had two masts and three funnels. Togo had received news killed and three wounded. It is not known whether the gunboat ship was a battleship or a cruiser.

While Kuropatkin and Kuroki have been facing each other with the fortunes of the war of Port Arthur has been with Japan with sympathy. The Japanese suddenly moving on from hill to hill and have mentioned their heavy loss in the attack, it is not to reach all parts of the town. The Japs have approached within sight of the Russian forts from Tigerse bay on the west, in Lomantsin on the east, in Kamimura on the south. Port Arthur is overfortified. That is, that there are more forts than there are four fights in such a way that if a key fort is taken Russia will be half a dozen other strongholds upon which the key fort can direct a plunging fire.

The Japanese certainly are trying to get as close as possible to Port Arthur without actually before putting their fate to the test of assault. While it is true that these approaches will be conducted and the world will hear the story, either of the fall of Port Arthur or of its successful defense fiercest desperate attack. Many thousands of others will be killed which or the attempt succeeds or fails.

Gen Sakharoff reports that he today received a report from the Russian ship of war. The rainy season has not ceased entirely this year which is, of course, it is taking a reason. In the dry weather events will march rapidly. The Japs's campaign has been definitely decided within a month.

War News in Brief.

Chinese coming into Newchwang from the country report that Russians everywhere are retiring before the Japanese who are soon expected there. Active preparations are being made for defense at Fenchuhsien.

Admiral Togo reports that at midnight July 11, torpedo boats approached the Russian fleet in Port Arthur harbor and attacked the guard ships. Japan with compensation. Other lies and been encouraged. The Japanese are now at Ping Yang.

It will be a long time before Gen. Kuropatkin will have enough supplies and men to attempt an offensive. The moment he is will have to fight regardless of cost, perhaps giving up important positions like Nanchwang, which are of vastly more consequence than Kinchow.

It is reported that few Russian troops and several hundred loose left Port Arthur at 8 o'clock in the morning and have left and alarmed the enemy's positions in the rear, reaching Nanchwang at 4 o'clock in the evening. It is believed they attempted Admiral Togo's ships and were forced to retreat.

A certain reformation of officers and students was held at Tokio to express the gratitude of Japan to the Czar and Russian for the sympathy shown in the recent conflict. The meeting was held in the Imperial hall of the Higher University, and in the assemblage were representatives of the Imperial Diet, the Japanese government and citizens of the Japanese capital.

The opposing armies are pitilessly facing each other on the heights across the Liaoho River, ready to engage in a death grapple. The Liaoh crosses the main mountain range of Manchuria, and for twenty-eight miles east of Liaoyang. It flows north into the Taitse river, which passes through Liaoyang and empties into the Liao River.

Gen. Mitsu also can, but hardly as you would notice it.

It is all over now except the campaign, which will soon be all over the country.

Perhaps Kuropatkin has been hesitating because he was trying to follow all the advice offered him.

It is a great advantage to Port Arthur to be well town. It is best known to the Japanese would have his it now or wait after shelling it steadily for months.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

New York indicates little change during the week in the general trade situation, holding centres reporting active business, several lines showing good gains over a year ago. In many instances these gains are attributed to conjunctures for hence sustained early in the season.

The outlook is generally cheering, reports from all centres indicate big a more hopeful feeling than prevailed a month ago. While there is the national uncertainty of the Presidential year there are few "blue spots" in the country.

At the West business is active. Further deliveries in clothing, shoes, men's furnishings, and some branches of dry goods compare favorably with a year ago. Sections where influenced by crop prospects are the most active, but this is not unusual for the season. Wheat, owing to the fine work of a year ago, and consequent postponement of reports needed then, the period of ripening this year may be somewhat prolonged. Except for the Southern portions this latter fference is not likely to prove of much importance.

The inter-stations at the Coast has substantially improved. Shipyards and employes are working in greater harmony than at this time last year.

The more confident tone noted a week ago in the iron industry continues, and the belief gains ground that the improvement will gradually extend to all branches of the trade. Some increase in demand is noted in New York where general trade is quite up to slightly and merchants appear somewhat more hopeful.

While it is not an impressive picture, it has no beauty whatever. The nose, the lips and other features have been mutilated by Mohammedans, who when the French soldiers under Napoleon and had to have been the first defilement begun to defend it against the Christian era, and Caliph Ma-mun invaded Egypt and made it a province of the Persian Empire. The expedition upon the face of the famous statue is blank. Poets and imaginative people have expatiated much and quaint in describing lines which do not appear and are purely fanciful, and we have now but again said again that the solemn inscrutability of its expression is the chief mystery in its stone." One writer that I read the other day described it as being "a comeliness not of this world," a model of beauty now forgotten, forgotten because forever dead, with lyrics from the flashing foam of the Aegean and in bare images created out of pure beauty." While this sounds fine, it is preposterous.—Washington Times.

LABRADOR A BARREN WASTE.

But Its Fisheries Are Valuable Being Would Break Its Isolation.

The coast of Labrador is the edge of a vast solitude of rocks, hills split and blessed by the frosts and lashed by the waves of the Atlantic for unknown ages. A grand bendland, yellow, brown and black in its barrenness, is ever in sight, one to the north of you and one to the south. Here and there open there are strips and patches of pale green moss, lean grasses and dwarf shrubbery. There are no forests except in Hamilton inlet, occasionally gulies of prechoice from the sea in which land may roughly shape all the structures of human art.

More frequent than headlands and perpendicular sea fronts are the sea lagoons, after land and lands, and then the perfection of all that is picturesque and romantic in the interior the blue hills and stony vales that wind up from among them, from the sea level up into the inclosed, pleasant air.

One finds himself peopling these recesses and dotting their hills, valleys and wild shores with human habitations, but a second thought and a second glance it is odd that no one tell in the fields away there, no wonders dwelling in the hollows of the drift, play by the brooks or shoes in the sea. Nothing actually human takes color lone to the line, no sailor cuts from the fathomless chimney, no to fight the Russians sighted in the Japanese squadron four attacked and one so-against battleships, or we, as four first-class armored vessels. At the beginning of the war the Japanese had five first-class and seven second-class battleships. The Hatsuse was sunk. Therefore the complement of the Japanese battleship squadron, by Russian report, is intact. Furthermore, it is concentrated near Port Arthur, and Admiral Kamimura's fast main consist only of cruisers. The Japanese have active Cruisers armored even two Port of three force at Port Arthur on June 23. These are probably with Kamimura to cope with the three armored cruisers of the Vladivostok squadron.

Kamimura has had his third chance to engage this squadron, but he has not engaged it. It escaped him. He seems to have tried to head off the big ships on the high seas with torpedoes, but he could not do it, of course. This confirms the prophecies of the Japanese disposition to the three theatre at our new harbors they are not just such they said, was they are not of much account.

The Japanese suffered a naval disaster during the week in the blowing up of the Kasuga, an old wooden gunboat of Togo's fleet. It was one of most of the crew off, but refused to leave himself and was drowned. The Kasuga was in Dalny bay. In destruction shows that the crews are good in discipline and that they will leave overboard one of a crew.

Admiral Togo on June 20 gave the course of a torpedo attack on the night of June 17 a Russian gunboat in the Yalu River. Nearly the crew was asleep. The gunboat had two masts and three funnels. Democrats Nominate Parker and Davis.

St. Louis correspondence.

Alton Brooks Parker, of New York, received the Democratic nomination for President at 5 o'clock Saturday morning after an all-night session of the national convention in St. Louis. William H. Hearst, George Gray, Nelson A. Miles, Richard Olney, J. M. Cockrell and Edward C. Wall were also placed before the convention. The nomination was made on the first ballot, the vote standing as follows:

Alton B. Parker	658
William R. Hearst	216
George Gray	105
Nelson A. Miles	2
Richard Olney	2
J. M. Cockrell	44
Edward C. Wall	38

It was a wild night for the representatives of the democracy gathered in St. Louis from all parts of the country. Fifteen thousand persons listed the many hours of often bitter oratory.

THE TARIFF AND 1904

Republicans Will Gladly Assist Making it the Issue.

Some of the Democratic leaders say they will attempt to make the tariff the leading issue in 1904. It is safe to say that the Republicans will be glad to assist them in this endeavor. If there is anything that the Republicans should be grateful to the Democrats for in 1904 it is for bringing the tariff question to the front. If they do that. Two or three Democrats in Congress have been making antitariff addresses recently with the intention of using them as campaign documents. The Republicans will be glad to assist the Democrats in discussing at all of that sort of literature that they will want to send out.

The tariff is a pretty old issue. It has been talked about to many conversations. In several campaigns it has formed the main issue. For a great many years the Republican party has stood out strongly for a tariff which will give adequate protection to American interests. For many of those years the Republicans have been able to secure considerable protection. All the interests thus secured are of this sort at the outlook hence the Republican party will defend. Let the Democrats be under no illusions on that point. The Republican party would be very glad to see the issue of protection brought to the front by the Democrats. The other members of the Democracy know there is peril for their party in meddling the tariff, but perhaps some of the troublesome leaders of 1904 may be detailed into making an assault on this subject.

Several excuses were made for Hanna's defeat in 1896, one being that it was the real issue of his overthrow. It was the Bryan 16 to 1 silver panic that laid out Cleveland in 1892. The Republicans do not want the tariff as an issue in 1904, but they will accept it if the Democrats are idiotic enough to broach it. The Republican tariff of 1897 the country has had a prosperity almost without an example in its annals. If the Democrats want to assail this act, the Republicans should very cheerfully meet them on that. The tariff, of course, will be mentioned frequently in the Chicago platform of 1904 as one of the things for which the country ought to be grateful to the Republican party, and for which it is grateful. If the Democrats make an attack on the tariff this year they will be supplying a very great favor on every Republican candidate. Toledo Preacher Roosevelt Stampeded—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

An Ill-Advised Step.

The National Association of Manufacturers has strayed up a mistake, next by its recommendation to Congress that a tariff commission be appointed. Opposition to this recommendation comes from manufacturing and general business circles. Certainly it does seem to be an ill-advised step to clog the fire in a presidential campaign year by its devotion an agitation that may form a new complication in tariff discussion, and neither of the two great political parties appears disposed to run into the tariff arena.—The Ohio Valley Manufacturer.

They Have Forgotten.

The Republicans who nominated and elected William McKinley in 1896 nominated and elected him upon the issue of protection. They believed in protection as an essential thing; nobody else was "the true American citizen" enough to be President. The party urged the election of William McKinley as an avowed protectionist. It is a fact that Congress made law as the embodiment of Republican wisdom and it attributed the return of prosperity to its wise provisions and its patriotic legislation.—Dallas Gazette.

IS SOUND AND TRUE

ROOSEVELT AND FAIRBANKS—THE PLATFORM THEY STAND ON.

All Views Harmonized in Terse and Reciprocity Declaration That Adhere to the Doctrine of Protection to Every Form of American Labor and Industry.

The cause of protection to the labor and industries of the United States has gained a triumphal victory in the national convention of the Republican party. The platform of the party and the nomination of Roosevelt and Fairbanks carry a pledge to the labor and industries of the United States that, so far as the Republican party is able to control events, they shall be exempt from ruinous attack which so much endangered the history of successful enterprise, development and the aggrandizement of our country.

The Republican national platform of this year will stand in unrivaled inventory of contracts of political concern as well as of the documents of party honors which distinguish the Republican party. It is a document that will be found on the shelves of American industry and commerce and to the well being of American citizens for many years. The old reliable issues of the Republican party have cement that will attract the attention of Republicans everywhere and that will be the pledge against subsequent tariff tinkering and the pledge that no schedule for reciprocity in trade with foreign nations shall be proposed to the Senate any treaty of the United States.

The best will not be done made of that but the reciprocity commission will consider questions the Republican national convention of 1904 and the good has been done would have been done if the Democratic party had accepted the Republican proposition with our company and the Republican party for which the Republican party for which the Republican party for which

By EMILE GABORIAU

As he spoke M. Lecoq took from his desk and handed a blue sheet of foolscap paper. On the paper was written, at the head of M. Fauvel's name. The sergeant was informed with great exactitude.

"Now," said M. Lecoq, here is our situation. It is some extra time to be lost starting from the hole in the lock, drying the wood, and so forth; but it is not a misfortune on the whole matter, the gentlemen mentioned in the hallway appointment. Although very deep of the lockers, I want to a sufficiently presentable man.

"You guess, I am that."

Nonsense, you thought that this affair was made by the person who took the money. Let us see if you were correct. I have gone little time has passed since you visited the M. Fauvel's house. Now, I have, in the first place, ascertained that the person who committed the robbery was a man who was well acquainted with the ways of the house, and who knew that M. Fauvel was in the habit of keeping a large sum of money in his bureau. Secondly, I have learned that the person who committed the robbery was a man who was well acquainted with the ways of the house, and who knew that M. Fauvel was in the habit of keeping a large sum of money in his bureau. Thirdly, I have ascertained that the person who committed the robbery was a man who was well acquainted with the ways of the house, and who knew that M. Fauvel was in the habit of keeping a large sum of money in his bureau. Now, you see, I know as much as you do, and I have not left my office. Well, I have found out the author of the robbery."

"Well, and Mad. Fauvel and Prosper Lantier and Mlle. Madeleine, have you?"

"Oh, and Mad. Fauvel, my dear, is a little as wise. As to my handsome nephew, she could not prevent him from her amount money, because she is so blind as to be quite under his thumb. As for Prosper, I have ascertained that he is a good young man, and that he has not disposed of his inheritance of gold, would enhance the value of his property. Madeleine, I have ascertained the author, but I have not discovered the author. Now, I have proved to you that you are a fool, and I am a man of talent, I will now determine how to release the author from the prison in which he is, in consequence my appointment."

Fortune who everything picking up the hat to go when M. Lecoq checked him by an angry shrug and said:

"I have not finished. You have to drive a cabriolet and a pair of horses. Very well. As soon as the judge dismisses you either, come immediately make yourself a wig and the complete dress of a gentleman. I have found a crossed, take this letter to the answer on the Rue Dauphine. You signed will send you to M de Clamoran, who is leaving for a relief, his man having left him yesterday."

"Excuse me, I venture to suggest that you are making a mistake. The Clamoran is of the orchestra."

"Why do you always interrupt me?" said M. Lecoq, impatiently. "Do what I tell you, and don't distract your mind about the case. Clamoran is not a friend of Prosper's I know for he is the friend of a musician of Baron de Lagrac. Wait! Whence the intimacy of these two men of such different stations? I know what I must find out. I must also find out who the musician is who lives in Paris, and never goes to attend to his business. Through this I may find an eye upon him. He has a carriage, you say, to drive in, and you will soon be able to give me an account of the master of this and to the author of the robbery by associates."

"You will be sharper. Where shall I report to you?"

"I will call on you every day. Tell I tell you differently don't step foot in this house; you might be followed. If anything important should happen send a note to my office. Be careful, and be on time, do, and be prudent."

The door closed on Fortune as M. Lecoq, entire into his bedroom. In the repasting of an eye he had changed the self of the appearance of a police officer, the suit of his self-control and composure, and removed the coon dog from his chair, made hale. The official clerk had disappeared, leaving in his place the gentleman young man, with a very determined manner, and brilliant, flashing eyes.

"Remarkable Prosper! did not you, but you, have of the Palais de Justice. At last he was one who is to carries come at that hot. Fortunately, was a man of the senses to the point, sound in all to me now. I have made no plans yet. My mind is this confused. Let me to think."

"I will not you what to do." replied Baron, quickly. "You must start, already, and in the meantime, I will prepare a fortunate report author, and if it lately ascertain what the accused will be prepared to receive."

He began at once to write out one of those interim decisions of Napoleon, which seemed written in the battlefield appointment, although very deep of the lockers, I want to a sufficiently presentable man.

"Yes, prince, I am that."

Nonsense, you thought that this affair was made by the person who took the money. Let us see if you were correct. I have gone little time has passed since you visited the M. Fauvel's house. Now, I have, in the first place, ascertained that the person who committed the robbery was a man who was well acquainted with the ways of the house, and who knew that M. Fauvel was in the habit of keeping a large sum of money in his bureau. Secondly, I have learned that the person who committed the robbery was a man who was well acquainted with the ways of the house, and who knew that M. Fauvel was in the habit of keeping a large sum of money in his bureau. Thirdly, I have ascertained that the person who committed the robbery was a man who was well acquainted with the ways of the house, and who knew that M. Fauvel was in the habit of keeping a large sum of money in his bureau. Now, you see, I know as much as you do, and I have not left my office. Well, I have found out the author of the robbery."

"Well, and Mad. Fauvel and Prosper Lantier and Mlle. Madeleine, have you?"

"Oh, and Mad. Fauvel, my dear, is a little as wise. As to my handsome nephew, she could not prevent him from her amount money, because she is so blind as to be quite under his thumb. As for Prosper, I have ascertained that he is a good young man, and that he has not disposed of his inheritance of gold, would enhance the value of his property. Madeleine, I have ascertained the author, but I have not discovered the author. Now, I have proved to you that you are a fool, and I am a man of talent, I will now determine how to release the author from the prison in which he is, in consequence my appointment."

Fortune who everything picking up the hat to go when M. Lecoq checked him by an angry shrug and said:

"I have not finished. You have to drive a cabriolet and a pair of horses. Very well. As soon as the judge dismisses you either, come immediately make yourself a wig and the complete dress of a gentleman. I have found a crossed, take this letter to the answer on the Rue Dauphine. You signed will send you to M de Clamoran, who is leaving for a relief, his man having left him yesterday."

BIG STRIKE BEGUN.

FIFTY THOUSAND STOCK YARDS EMPLOYES QUIT WORK

Labor Tie-Up Affects Nine Great Centers Involving Over 50 Per Cent. Number Men Said Not to Stop Shipments of Live Stock.

The great union yards strike expected to paralyze the meat industry for a time at least began Tuesday morning by the retreat of the packers to grant a demand for increased wages and conditions to one of the most extensive strikes in the history of the packing industry of the United States was begun in Chicago, between twenty thousand and twenty-five thousand men called out, gambling places are closed. If contingent this order is expected to spread to Kansas City and Omaha, where the union people have established organizations in the packing houses of the United States.

Other Stock Yards Strikes.

The real time the Chicago stock yards panic was the cause of the strike the Great railway strike. Five six weeks at the outset of the strike, the packers had a little being received and some established, a number of troops, and the union men were in the hands of the union. Some of the strike is expected to be settled in the Chicago stock yards, and the union men are not in the hands of the union. Some of the strike is expected to be settled in the Chicago stock yards, and the union men are not in the hands of the union.

Union men and their families are starving. Their work stops Saturday night after supper when the workmen leave the house and do return until the next Monday morning. The employers have a lot of men, and the time they is cool.

Human nature will affect some Roman circles more everything to the point of the strike, the other to an then please.

THE POPULAR PULPIT

THE TEST CHRIST PROPOSES.

By Rev. J. P. Peters

And the scribes which came down from Jerusalem said: "He hath Beelzebub, and in the prince of the devils casteth he out the devils"—Mark viii. 22.

What a picture of bigotry! What the scribes do is done in the power of God. If Jesus do the same thing it is done by the power of the devil. We are criticism and all we do is of God. You are hetaiden and are you do God the devil.

Do not let us put this disgrace off on the scribes, for does it not affect us? Do we not constitute a part of our religious life? Do we not constitute a part of our religious life? Do we not constitute a part of our religious life

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Rev. James Hyslop, Ph. D. Pastor.

The heat last Sunday interfered somewhat with the attendances at both morning service and Sunday School.

The ladies are doing well with their Saturday afternoon cake sales.

Sunday School is suffering from lack of teachers.

Next Sunday morning the Rev. D. H. Cornell of the 6th Presbyterian church, Chicago, will occupy the pulpit. The pastor urges all his people and those who usually attend the Congregational church to hear Mr. Cornell.

Next Sunday evening Rev. Wm. Ewing, of Lansing and Bay View will speak on "The South Land." Mr. Ewing visited the south last spring with a view to studying the Southern problems especially from the standpoint of education, and will tell his tale of travel experience and opinions in an interesting and amusing way, dealing with features of the Southern Problem in a plainly, frankly and dispassionately. Mr. Ewing's story should be heard by as many people as the church will hold.

Why could not the St. Louis convention have made the ticket Hill and Belmont? It means the same thing.

Bryan was right when he said that Parker's drawer telegram on the money issue should have been sent. Just before the convention met, instead of just before it adjourned.

Cadillac News: The position taken by the republicans of Michigan, that they will go as far in the advocacy and adoption of direct voting or "primary reform" as any other northern state and will advance as rapidly as results satisfactory to all the people of the state will warrant, is a position that would be deemed reasonable and wise if the good of the state and the well-being of the republican party were the purposes sought by the most aggressive and noisy representatives of self-styled "reformers." Most of them are actuated by personal and political purposes that are not referred to in connection with their boisterous demands for immediate reform.

FOR SALE CHEAP—Forty acres of and under cultivation. Good orchard and well watered. Inquire of Capt. Wm. C. Lennox Charlevoix, Mich.

Traverse City Record: At a meeting of the directors of the Wednesday club last week, it was decided that a breakwater was necessary for this port and steps were taken to induce the government to build one. At present, the local harbor is utterly without protection. Ships that are caught in a heavy storm here unless they can get out of the port are in a bad way. This, of course, works against the shipping interests of the city. In connection with this fact, it will be interesting to know that Traverse City stood on the list of ports on the great lakes last year. Every other port on the lakes did more marine business than this city. Traverse City is the most important city in the north county and for this reason, just hasten may believe that the port should be protected.

—Hon. G. J. Pallthorp, of Petoskey, was in town Friday on legal business.

—W. H. Carter, of Chicago, joined his wife here Tuesday, for a week's stay.

—Supt. L. D. Coulter, of the Ferry Seed Co., is here on a crop inspection trip.

—Wilbur F. Gill, manager of the Little Traverse bay ferry line was in town Friday.

—Mrs J. A. Eshow, accompanied by the Misses Pierce, of Alibin, are at the Eshow cottage for a month.

—The entire accompanied Prof. Cox, of the Weather Bureau, to Beaver Island Sunday, returning Wednesday.

—W. H. Shields, at the U. S. supply station, is entertaining his mother, from Kalamazoo, and two cousins from Manitou.

—Not knowing that his father and mother left here for Chicago Tuesday, Ed McNeill accompanied by his wife, arrived here from Chicago on the Manitou the same day.

—Commodore Hamill, of inland route fame, was here Saturday and chartered the steamer Rhoscum to run from Cheboygan to Tojinabee, connecting with the boat from Oden.

—A fire alarm called out both companies Saturday afternoon to subdue a fire in the woods north of Dr. Cronin's residence. In the run Harry Cohen was run over by a horse cart and his quite badly injured.

—Announcement is made that the various labor organizations in Charlevoix will celebrate Labor Day, Sept. 5th, in proper style. Organizations from other towns will be asked to cooperate in making the day a big one for organized labor.

—Mr. Ferris, of the cement company, tell us that they already have purchased the lots, locomotive and flat cars for their railroad branch, and expect to have the equipment on the track this fall. It is the purpose of the company to grind stone before snow flies.

—Andrew J. Midget, a pioneer of Charlevoix, but for the past nine years a resident of Sawtelle, Cal., is here accompanied by his wife. They will remain until October first. When they left California, Elmore, their son, had just begun the erection of a residence for himself, and expects to remain there.

—Ward & Ward have just installed a modern hay carrier and slings at the farm barn of E. W. Paddock. Mr. Ward says the Paddock barn is one of the most up-to-date in the county. Lorenzo Porter, and Geo. Parson, of Norwood township are pumping water with the new silo machinery put in by Ward & Ward.

—In our last issue we made F. J. Meech both president and director of the school board. Mr. Meech, the director objects, to the SENTINEL thus forcing upon him the presidency, and we therefore withdraw the appointment, and confirm the directorship. H. Lee Iddings was the gentleman who was elected president. We cannot further explain to this connection that both gentlemen will honor their positions.

—Large and increasing congregations are attending the illustrated Sunday evening services at the Baptist church. Next Sunday night Mr. Hughes will have a larger and better lantern, and will thus have better and brighter pictures. The subject will be "God in Nature." There will be about fifty stereopticon views, including unky Japanese pictures which were omitted Sunday. All are cordially invited. A collection will be taken to defray the incidental expenses.

—The big Taylor returned here Tuesday, having successfully laid the North Manitou Island cable. The new cable is four miles in length and to be laid by the weather department of the government. A trustee towns will be established on North Manitou and for the benefit of the mariners passing there signals will be displayed. The contract for the laying was let to the Chadwick Lumber company for $400. The cable was furnished by the department, the estimated cost being about $7,000.

—Miss Rosa O'Neill has been visiting friends in Cheboygan the past week.

—Dr. J. A. Carlstein, of Chicago, is the guest of Mr. Geo. F. Koester on Main street.

—Mrs S. M. Rose left yesterday for Crystal Beach, a resort on Torch Lake, to visit friends.

—The big Margaret McNaun, of St. James, was here over Sunday, shipping a new wheel.

—Andrew Struthers, of Hayes, lost two fingers of his left hand in Burgess & Cooper's shingle mill Saturday.

—Mesdames Noble and Britton, of Ann Arbor, are guests of their sisters, Mrs. C. Y. Cook and Mrs. Aylesworth.

—Walter Ware, of Horne City, was in the town Saturday. Mr. Ware was the first census enumerator to draw his pay at the county treasurer's office.

—Archie Bonevais, harbor contractor has bought the wreck of the steamer Welcome, which lies at the south-west point and will take the machinery from her next month.

—Dr. Hurt Shields, who graduated at Ann Arbor in June, has entered Dr. Armstrong's office as assistant for the summer. Sept. 1st he returns to Ann Arbor as hospital physician for a two years, postgraduate clinical course.

—Chas. Novak, of Petoskey, has bought the Greenman cigar factory, Ayers block, and has been duly qualified by deputy revenue collector Coulter. Mr. Novak is an experienced workman and proposes to make Charlevoix cigars popular.

—Services will be held at Christ Church, on Sunday, the 31st day of July, at 10:30 a. m., by the Right Rev. D. Gillespie, D. D., Bishop of Western Michigan. Sermon by Right Rev. President, Bishop Tuttle of Missouri. Offerings for domestic and foreign missions. All are invited to attend.

—Some railroads have placed a ban on Sunday excursions, and will hereafter have no more of them. The management declares the excursions were too often participated in by people and rowdies, and that the resultant sights and other disturbances injured the standing of the roads much more than the the excursions benefited them in a financial way.

—Three members of the Naval Station committee—Capt. W. H. Hunter, of the Navy, and Congressmen W. M. Bradley of Maine and H. H. Wade, of Kentucky, were here on the revenue cutter Tuscarora Tuesday. Accompanied by the president and members of the council, the party went up the lake on the Tuscarora. The gentlemen expressed themselves as highly pleased with Charlevoix and surrounding, but it is very interesting to remind ourselves, that the former committee which visited us two years ago were also "highly pleased." We hope the last committee will be "perfectly delightted."

—The Charlevoix County Medical Association held a meeting at the Hotel Hartlett Tuesday, and transacted business of importance to the profession, which we do not know. An address was delivered by Dr. Lombard, in the interest of the National Medical Association. Arrangements were made for a meeting and banquet at the Hotel Hartlett Sept. 6th, and an invitation was extended to the Emmet, Antrim Co. Medical Association to participate. President Harrison, of the State Medical Association, will be present as Dr. Kanaga puts it, "every doctor appearing without his own or some other mom's wife will be relegated to the gallery."

—There has been very much unnecessary excitement over reports of a small-pox epidemic at Beaver Island the past two weeks. The editor of this paper spent three days at St. James this week, and is in a position to give the facts, after a careful investigation. Small-pox broke out two weeks ago in the lumber camp of the Beaver Island Lumber Co., about ten miles from St. James. It was promptly and effectively quarantined. The camp itself is in the woods and a safe distance from any farm house. There has been no dangerous exposures on any other part of the island, and St. James is as safe as Charlevoix. Indeed, the people at St James, while fully alive to the situation, are entirely tranquil as to any danger. We consider it as safe to visit St. James as it is to visit any other point in Northern Michigan. Even the cases in the camp are rapidly recovering. The SENTINEL will be fully fee, outside for the truth of this statement, and any reports to the contrary may be put down as emanating from those interested in an exaggerated record of the situation.

—If the walls of the historic old Fox store the first ever built in Charlevoix, could talk, there would be strange pioneer tales. And now, the place where "Kookooch," and Bour were dispensed to the Indians is a $100,000 stock of oriental rugs and bric-a-brac. The place were Amos Fox exchanged the occasion of life for propeller wood, is today a veritable palace of art. The solesman sales, continue every morning and evening, and are attracting much interest.

Odd Fellow's Annual Gathering.

To the Odd Fellows of Northern Michigan.

The tenth annual gathering of the Northwestern Odd Fellows Association will be held at Mancelona, August 23rd and 24th the next. The officers of the Association hope to make this one of the best gatherings of the society. The Grand Master of the state, Fred H. Daley, will be present, as well as other prominent members of the Order. We expect you to come and enjoy a real, old-fashioned Odd Fellows meeting. It will be purely an Odd Fellows' gathering.

The brotherhood and sisterhood of Mancelona will give you a hearty welcome.

The first day, August 23rd, will be given over to visiting, getting acquainted and having a good time. In the evening of the 23rd the two Orders will meet in separate halls and work in the degrees conferred.

At 2 o'clock a. m. the 24th the grand parade will take place. Both orders in full regalia, headed by the Mancelona Cornet Band. This followed by a public meeting, closing with a picnic dinner.

Brother F. C. Wood and Sister Ida M. Baily will be present. You all know what that means.

NEW SCHOOL COMMISSIONER

John H. Milford Elected Commissioner, to Succeed J. M. Tice Resigned.

From the East Jordan Enterprise: On Wednesday last there was a meeting of the County Board of School Examiners at the Court House in Charlevoix, to act upon the resignation of Commissioner J. M. Tice, and elect his successor. Mr. Tice found that to do justice to his school work here he could not take the time necessary for the commissionership and hence his resignation. The resignation of Mr. Tice was accepted and J. H. Milford, of this town, was unanimously elected as his successor.

John H. Milford, the new commissioner, is a young man in every way well equipped for the duties of the office, to which he brings excellent judgment, training experience and first-class ability in school work. For three years past he has had charge of the schools at South Arm and is no school in Michigan has there been better or more practical work done. The characteristic of his work is its practical thoroughness, and when this element is instilled into the work of county schools, it will be another step in advance that will be appreciated. No teacher in the county stood better with patrons and pupils, and the graduates of no schools, in their subsequent examinations show a higher average of excellence than those who were guided in their studies by Mr. Milford.

No better selection for this office could have been made, and it is to be hoped that the County Board will take action to fix the salary at a rate commensurate with the importance of the work and that Mr. Milford's ability should command.

The change in commissioner will not affect the coming Teachers' Institute, as Supt. Tice having started with this, has consented to remain in charge until the close of the Institute.

FARMERS' FRIENDLY.

Dowagiac Van Pelts Popular Association to the Rescue.

The regular annual basket picnic of the Farmers' Friendly Association, of Emmet, Antrim and Charlevoix counties will be held at Norwood, Thursday, Aug. 25th in VanPelt's White Birch grove and everyone in the Grand Traverse and Little Traverse regions is invited.

The Farmers' Friendly Assoc. was instituted three years ago and for the past two years their annual picnic has been quite an event in Emmet county. Last years attendance was much greater than that of the year before showing the growing interest and this year it is the intention to out do former years.

Ample means of transportation will be arranged and good accommodations on the grounds for an increased crowd.

For those who do not wish to bring their own lunches the ladies of Norwood will serve good dinners in well built booths the charge for which will be 35c for adults and 25c for children. In the event of a storm the booths will be large enough to shelter everyone.

There will be baseball games, racing and the regular field sport, and suitable speakers and good music in attendance.

A fee of 10c for adults and 5c for children will be charged for admission to the grounds, the money so collected will go to pay expenses and for prizes, should any surplus remain unspent on Monday will be used for charitable purposes.

It is expected that business will be practically suspended in Charlevoix on F. E. A. day as has been the case heretofore, a good crowd always attending the picnic. Capt. Pete Gamble is contemplating enlarging the steamer in order to accommodate the Charlevoix delegation.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

Drive to the Charlevoix, resorts, followed by a fish dinner tendered by the citizens of Charlevoix.

The village of Elmira hope to be a station on the extension of the Boyne City & S. E. R. R. to Alpena, the surveyors for which are now at work looking over lines.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Rev. James Hyslop, Ph. D. Pastor.

The Rev. D. H. Cornell of Chicago, preached a fine sermon to a large and appreciative congregation last Sunday morning.

The large evening congregation also enjoyed Rev. Wm. Ewings address on the "South Land" which was full of interest.

Next Sunday morning, Mr. Windsor F. Aldrich's of Chicago, will assist in the music and sing a solo. Mr. Aldrich's sing services at the Baptist Sunday evenings are greatly enjoyed.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The railroad being built by the White Lumber Company is now completed from Hayes City to within 10 miles of Gaylord. The Business Men's Association of Gaylord, has raised a bonus to bring the road to that city. This is the road that is headed for Alpena and it looks like a business proposition.—Cheboygan News.

Central Lake Torch. Judge Mayne has appointed F. Robert Williams prosecuting attorney to fill out the unexpired term of his father. Mr. Williams is a promising young attorney, a graduate of the University of Michigan and has had several years of very valuable experience with his father. Aside from that he has a good legal mind and will without doubt make an excellent county official.

The street committee, which consists of Messrs. Barry, Smallman and Gibson, has been instructed by the council to ascertain the probable cost of a municipal water works plant and also to find what terms can be made with Mr. Wallcrecht to purchase the electric light plant. The purpose is if the voters should ratify it, to have the plants combined and managed together.—Central Lake Torch.

James McCann, of Beaver Island, has the use of the dock and warehouse at Bailey's Landing, opposite the Island Home, Mackinac, and proposes to supply the Island with all kinds of fresh fish daily during the season. Many a summer visitor at Mackinac remembers, with a longing desire, for more of the fish which was set before them last year and Mr. McCann handles these varieties. He is a big dealer in fish and ships an average of one hundred and fifty tons per season to the Chicago markets.—Petoskey News.

The Bellaire Sentinel says: Chas. Dayer of Hillsdale and Mrs. Julia A. Hagadt of Osceo, Wis., meet here for the first time Tuesday afternoon, and proceeding to the office of the county clerk took out a license and were married by Justice Job England. They took the evening train to Hillsdale, followed by a shoal of ice constituted to the ceremony by some friendly young people. The bride took the matter rather better than her spouse, who did not know what he should do or how he should receive the attentions showered upon them. In fact he was decidedly rattled. The lady had advertised for a husband and he had replied, and the wedding was the result. He was 31 years of age and she was 54.

Oriental Rugs and Bric-a-Brac.

Superb assemblage of rare Antique Rugs from Turkestan of Persia personally collected by Mr. Sulesha's own native agents and embracing about seven centuries of an almost forgotten age of luxury, including many priceless examples not to be found on the markets of today.

HAS A NEW OIL WELL.

MUSKEGEE FIELD DEVELOPS 200-BARREL GUSHER.

Flow Is Larger Than One of Any of the Other Wells—Mississippi Good and are Best Country—News of Minor Note.

The greatest excitement has prevailed in the Muskegee I. T. oil field since that of the yellow gushing Nellie Jones blew in. Perhaps no oil present gives equal signs to the Nellie Jones in the matter of flow. When it was shot a volume of gas blazed up for a hundred feet and then the heavy oil came up in a column of a size that the boys thought was the greatest they had ever seen. The flow is larger than any of the Nellie Jones wells, and the pipe in the derrick was torn into pieces from the violent force of the flow. It is thought that the flow will be larger than any other well in the Muskegee field. The Nellie Jones is located in the center of the Tiger Hill pool, and is the fourth well in the pool. The other three are good producers, but not of the size of the Nellie Jones

PROSPECTUS CITY.

The Standard Portland Cement Co. Makes Public Its Plans for the Charlevoix Factory.

We have before us the prospectus of the Standard Portland Cement Co., which is about to erect a large factory at Charlevoix. It is a voluminous document, embracing an exhaustive treatise on the manufacture of Portland cement, and the official report on the Charlevoix deposits of natural material, and the superior features of the Charlevoix location.

The Charlevoix factory will cost, when completed approximately $125,000, and will employ 230 men.

The officers of the corporation are as follows:

President—Hon. Fred H. Aldrich, of Detroit.

Secretary—F. B. Schmallfeldt, of Detroit.

Treasurer—Samuel E. Symonds, of Saginaw.

General Manager—E. F. Wentz, of Nazareth, Pa.

We extract the following general information from the prospectus:

The property of the Standard Portland Cement Company consists of about four hundred and seventy-six acres of limestone, cement rock, shale and clay deposits. The limestone and cement rock deposits are located within one mile of Charlevoix, in Charlevoix County, Michigan, and bordering on Lake Michigan. The shale deposit is located near the town of Ellsworth about ten miles south of Charlevoix along the line of the Pere Marquette R. R.

This property consists of 41 acres of soft blue shale, remarkably well adapted to the manufacture of Portland cement in connection with the company's lime and cement stone.

This shale deposit lies to an elevation of about one hundred and fifty feet, and is covered with but an average of two feet of top soil.

This material, when excavated or quarried, contains but a small amount of moisture, is easily dried and pulverized and readily mixed with the lime or cement stone, for this and other reasons shale has many economic advantages over clay for the manufacture of cement. Because of the elevation of this material above the railroad tracks it is very accessible, the mining easily accomplished and the least amount and cheapest mode of handling is required to load it on the cars. The economy in excavating, handling, delivering and preparing it for the mixture is far above that of any material used by any other factory in Michigan.

The mill site is splendidly located between the Pere Marquette railroad and Pine Lake, a natural deep water harbor and extends to the water's edge, giving access by both water and rail transportation to all points on the Great Lakes. The largest vessels plying on the Great Lakes can land at the company's dock for loading and unloading cargo.

The quantity and quality of the raw materials composing these deposits have been thoroughly examined and tested; excavations, drillings and analyses have been made by eminent experts who have acquired their knowledge by many years' practical experience in examining and testing various raw materials for the manufacture of Portland cement throughout the United States and Canada, and who have designed and built many factories for manufacturing cement from these various raw materials. They are, therefore, especially fitted for this work.

The location of the raw materials in relation to the works are of so less importance than an abundant supply of good raw materials.

The building site for the works of the company was selected by their engineer after careful investigation, and is located on the west end of Pine Lake, just outside of the city limits of Charlevoix. This is an excellent location with reference to raw material.

The limestone and cement rock deposits are located a short distance from this site, at an elevation of about forty feet, which enables the delivery of the raw material into the storage bins without elevating or hoisting machinery. It will permit installation of the most inexpensive system of transportation, in first cost, operation and maintenance. The natural advantages relative to the manipulation of the raw materials are of great value when such a large quantity is handled daily.

Next in importance to an abundant supply of good raw materials are their advantageous location with reference to works comes the question of location with reference to the markets, to which the product of the mills can be delivered. This factory alone has enabled manufacturers favorably located to survive competition, which proved ruinous to others. The ability to reach the markets often determines the destiny of manufacturing undertakings. The advantages of transportation cannot be overestimated. Cement is a heavy substance, and the cost of transportation to the market is a very considerable portion of the cost to the consumer. A mill which enjoys the advantages of low freight rates can sell its product at prices with which other mills paying higher rates cannot compete. Cheap transportation is such an important factor in an enterprise of this nature, that it alone may add very materially to the profits on the investment. In this respect the location at Charlevoix is ideal. Lying as it does, on the water's edge of one of the best natural harbors on Lake Michigan, and along one of the largest railroad systems of the Middle West, with Pine Lake and two short competing lines, whereby both the Michigan Central and Grand Rapids & Indiana roads are within easy reach. The Pere Marquette running along the north line of the property, and Pine Lake, located on the south, commands the situation perfectly. With these railroads the company will have competing transportation to almost every inland town and city in Michigan, Northern Ohio and Indiana, as well as Chicago, one of the largest consuming and distributing centres of Portland cement in the United States.

By water transportation the company will be enabled to reach all the principal markets located on the great lakes at freight rates far below that of any cement company located inland. Even if the company should never take advantage of lake transportation, the railroad companies are inclined to meet lake rates. This fact cannot be disputed, as it is done now in many instances where industries are located so as to be able to take advantage of water transportation. For this and other reasons enumerated above, this company is given so great an advantage over all its competitors in large markets located on the great lakes, that it should, without a doubt, be able to control the cement business in the Middle Northwest, and do so on a highly profitable basis.

As previously stated, the cost of coal is a large portion of the expense in the manufacture of Portland cement. Coal can be laid down at the works of the Standard Portland Cement Company at 75c per ton less than at any inland plant. The saving in freight on coal alone is sufficient to pay a nice dividend on the investment.

It is evident from the foregoing that with the exception of raw materials lying as they do in close proximity and easy reach of the factory, contiguous to large markets and in remarkable transportation facilities, this company has one of the finest cement propositions in the United States.

It would be difficult to name any respect in which the proposition could be improved. These natural advantages, when developed by a corps of experienced cement mill builders and manufacturers associated with this company, and handled by conservative and reliable men interested in the commercial side of the industrial world, should insure success and stability of this enterprise.

The works of the Standard Portland Cement Company, to be built at Charlevoix, Michigan, will be designed and constructed by skillful cement experts, and the best "practical business" cement engineering skill in America.

The plant will be equipped with the most modern and best adapted types of machinery and improved apparatus, some of which will be specially designed for this plant, and will greatly reduce the cost of manufacture with improved product.

The Standard Portland Cement Company is especially fortunate in having associated with it a staff of the most practical cement engineers in this country, who have designed (including the first Rotary Kiln Portland cement plant) and superintended the construction of more successful cement plants than any other corps of engineers in America, men who have been indentified with the cement business for the last twenty years, and who are recognized authorities in cement manufacture. Under these circumstances there is positively no experimental work, no experimenting, and the most economical and perfect system of manufacture is insured, hence the best product.

It is well known to cement manufacturers, and investors especially, that millions of dollars have been spent in America in learning and experimenting in building works and manufacturing cement. Some of the companies now in existence have spent large amounts of money in machinery and equipment which proved utterly worthless; many of the companies operating today are so handicapped with antiquated machinery, poorly designed and constructed plants, inexperienced management and impure raw material, that they will never be able to compete with a company having the best natural advantages in every particular.

One of the most frequent causes of failure is that after a plant has been well designed and equipped with the best machinery, it is turned over to some person or persons who know nothing whatever regarding its operation. The Standard Portland Cement Company, realizing the importance of trained supervision in the operation of their works as well as their construction, have associated with them in business experienced engineers and cement experts not only to select their property and mill site and design and construct their works, but to have the general supervision of the plant after construction. It is, therefore, absolutely certain that the company will not only have the most improved plant and equipment, but also trained supervision in their operation.

That the Portland cement industry is a most profitable and staple business is generally conceded, and, indeed, splendid dividends have been made and paid by companies which have no special natural advantages in the way of raw material and location, and but crude and poorly equipped works. It is also well known that a number of cement companies, by reason of good raw material, improved methods of manufacture, and well designed and equipped plants, under experienced management, have shown most wonderful earning power.

The company proposes to build a plant with a daily capacity of 1,500 barrels, designed with a view of extending to 3,000 barrels capacity per day.

According to our engineer's report, with the natural advantages enumerated in this prospectus, and complying them with plants in actual operation, designed and constructed by him, knowing their cost of production, it is reasonable to assume that cement can be made at Charlevoix at 60 cents per barrel, including packing, selling, and administration expense and depreciation. The present selling price at the works is from $1.10 to $1.20 per barrel, in bulk. It will be safe to figure that cement will never be sold for less than $1.00 per barrel. To show the earning power under the worst conditions, we will figure upon only three hundred days per year only (the Eastern cement plants run full capacity on average of 350 to 360 days per year) and on a daily capacity of 1,200 barrels, instead of the full capacity for which the plant will be designed and equipped.

Saved From Terrible Death.

The family of Mrs. M. L. Hobbins of Hargerville, Tenn., saw her dying and were powerless to save her. The most skillful physicians and every remedy used failed, while consumption was slowly but surely taking her life. In this terrible hour Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption turned despair into joy. The first bottle brought immediate relief and its continued use completely cured her. It is the most certain cure in the world for all throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed Bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial Bottles free at F. G. Hines & Co. Drug Store.

Teachers' Institute.

The State Teachers Institute for Charlevoix county will be held in East Jordan, beginning Aug. 4, and continuing eight days. The Institute will be conducted by Supt. J. W. Simmons of Owosso assisted by Miss Carlief Millinson of Charlevoix Normal Training class, and Com. J. M. Tice. Special work will be given in manual training and domestic science. Teachers are requested to bring their copies of the State manual as the work will be presented along the lines outlined therein. A credit of one per cent for each full days attendance will be given in the examinations which follow.

A Very Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve worked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters, and after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. Price 50 cents.

Examination.

A teachers' examination will be held in the McKinley High School in the village of Charlevoix on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 11, 12 and 13, beginning at 8:30 standard time, at this time teachers may take the examination for any grade of county certificates. Examinations will also be given at this time for students wishing to enter the Michigan Agricultural College. Moses Jones's Julius Cesar will be the basis of the examination in reading.

Kidney Diseases Worst of All.
How to Cure These Dangerous and Fatal Maladies.
No one can afford to let a kidney disease become chronic or incurable while the knife and the physician, who is especially free of charge to the poor, offer a cure for most of these ills. The treacherous diseases in which the kidneys are involved are so insidious and apparently trivial in character at first, that they are allowed to gain a firm hold before they are recognized as dangerous. Dr. Colwell's Egyptian Kidney and Bladder Cure never fails, and is guaranteed to cure incontinence of the kidneys, retention, Bright's disease, irritation of the bladder, brick dust deposits, cloudy urine, pain in the back and kidneys, rheumatism, gravel, dropsy, diabetes, inflammation of the bladder and women's troubles, such as backache, leucorrhoea, weakness in both men and women, resulting in much and early decay, and the attendant organic weakness, debility and vigor.
Dr. Colwell's Egyptian Kidney and Bladder Cure is a most excellent remedy as I know from my personal experience with it. I have had serious kidney and bladder troubles for years, and have tried many different kinds of medicines over back. I finally took Colwell's, the total wave so good, I ordered two bottles of you by express, and am quite surprised I am all right now and recommend this medicine fully to any sufferer.
Truly yours, W. F. Black, Cleveland, O.
Dr. Colwell's Egyptian Kidney and Bladder Cure is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money will be refunded. It is for sale at all druggists.

MOT OF A SUPREME JUSTICE.

His Clever Reply to a Hostess of Vegetarian Proclivities.

Speaking of birds with intellectual endeavors to other unhappy animals, reminds a most attributed to one of the justices of the supreme court, who was last seen riding the Washington omnibus a good deal, and enjoying most of late. He was during the other evening with the family of a distinguished statesman who are noted for their extravagant adoration of the vegetarian diet.

Over the delicacies of the table, which included some mixture of form of edible plant life suited to the season, conversation turned upon the familiar chemical and the lessons after trying in vain to discover any hint of a natural law by argument based on the chemical constituents of various food products.

The host, Mr. Justice, you must admit, that conservation demand animals, and animals alive you must admit, that animals have souls, and souls are immortal, and souls are immortal, and souls are immortal

Secret of the Plundered Safe

By EMILE GABORIAU

CHAPTER X.

Raoul shook Prosper's hand, closed the door after him and hurried up the street, leaving Prosper standing immovable and overcome by disappointment. He was aroused from his gloomy reflections by hearing the red whiskered man say, in a low cutting tone:

"So these are your friends?"

"Yes," said Prosper, with bitterness. "You heard him offer me half of his fortune."

"That was very stingy on his part, why did he not offer you the whole? Often out nothing, although I have no doubt that this sweet youth would cheerfully give ten thousand francs to put the ocean between you and him."

"For what reason?"

"Why, himself. Perhaps for the same reason that he has not set foot in his mother's house for a month."

"But that is the truth, monsieur, I am sure of it."

"Naturally," said M. Verdoyer, with a peculiar smile. "But he confessed it with a serious air. We have discussed enough your affairs, I think, and I need strength to arrange your dress and you will go with me to M. Mayer. It is necessary, so come on. You must have confidence in your friend."

Prosper had hardly passed into the bedroom when the bell rang again. M. Verdoyer opened the door. It was the porter, who handed a letter to his master and said:

"This letter was left this evening for M. Bertieni. I was in Everard when he came that I should wait in Lesdiguières for a very exhilarating letter, so it not, monsieur."

It was indeed, a most regular mis-sive. The address was not a strong hand formed of rounded letters, but it was not a disguised one, and finally on the envelope M. Verdoyer read the name of Madeleine Lemoine.

"Here is a letter for you," said M. Verdoyer when Prosper came out.

"I know who it is from," said M. Prosper.

"Indeed! Well, I will give you ten francs if you will write about the answer and look for the porter who brought this letter. Every coming at eight o'clock I come to the Archangel, on the quay Saint Michel, you will be a regular of my search and carries your pay. Ask for M. Verdoyer, and if I am not well I will give you fifty francs. Don't lose a min-ute."

"M. Mayer," said Prosper, when the porter had left the room, "do you not think you are a woman's hand in this affair?"

"More than ever, and a young woman, who has her purse full, since she could ch up one to write to you. Are you ready to go to M. Fauvel's? Yes? Come on, there we have certainly earned our breakfast—both of us."

CHAPTER XI.

The visit to M. Fauvel was very soft and formal. Prosper's new clothes were changed instead the tanner and M. Verdoyer, who seemed to be a mix-ture of Prosper, and then the two left the office.

"I hope you are satisfied, monsieur," Prosper said, in a gloomy tone, when they reached the street. "you avenged this poor boy, and I hope he is happy in quiet. Have I gained anything by adding this humiliation to the others which I have suffered?"

"You mean, that I have spoiled your fine scheme? Is it the proper moment to ask you to explain it? Is the proper moment to ask you to explain it? Is the proper moment to ask you to explain it? Is —Mrs. E. N. Faulkner, of Chicago, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Thyrza Miller, arrived Monday, and is occupying her Main street home.

—If you miss seeing "A Royal Slave," at the opera house Saturday evening will miss the greatest attraction of the season. It is in all respects high class.

—Capt. Wm. Hulter Sr. and wife, and their daughter, Mrs. Arthur Beattie, left Saturday for Hurdleville, Lagamo county, their former home, to attend an old settlers picnic. They will remain there with friends for two weeks.

—James McCann, of St. James, left here Tuesday morning for Golden, Colo., with his son James who is seriously ill with pulmonary trouble. They will remain there for an indefinite period for the benefit of the young man's health.

—The steamer Pilgrim has had her name changed to "Hum." Capt. Jepsen re-named the boat for what he considers good reasons, and in selecting the new name, adopted the suggestion of Frenene Smith, of the custom office "Hum" being her nick-name.

—Judge Fred H. Aldrich, of Detroit, President of the Standard Portland Cement Co., is in town. Judge Aldrich has been well known in Charlevoix for many years, and has always been a welcome visitor here on his merits; but he is doubly welcome now that he is the official head of a Charlevoix industry.

—The aged mother of Mrs. L. C. Madison, died suddenly at the home of her daughter, in East Jordan, Monday. Deceased enjoyed the distinction of having been President Garfield's first teacher. E. V. Mad is son, of this place, a grandson, left here Wednesday, accompanying the remains to Indiana for interment.

—A Lurlington special says: Mayor Rice and a committee of citizens entertained the commission inspecting sites for a naval station. Members of the commission declared St. Joseph had more natural advantages in establishing a claim for the station than several other ports they have inspected. The question now is, does Charlevoix come into the list of "several other ports?"

—Apropos of the question now being studied regarding the planting of trees to in a measure reforest the country, G. H. Cutton says: "If a man is a public benefactor who makes two blades of grass to grow where but one grew before, what of the man who makes two trees grow where none grew before?" There is a sermon in this question that will be better understood in this section of country in the next few years than it is now.

—Today is the golden wedding day of Capt. Alanson G. and Mrs. Annie Aldrich, of this place. We don't mind telling our readers on the sly, that about the time this edition reaches the postoffice this evening there will be "doin's" at the home of Uncle Morris and Aunt Lottie Stockman, in honor of the event, at which Capt. and Mrs. Aldrich and a number of old settlers will be present. The old settlers will never forget the felicitous ministrations of Aunt Aunie Aldrich back in the 70's, in times of sickness and death. There are in two people yet remaining of the pioneers who we remember with more gratitude than Capt. and Mrs. Aldrich. May they be with us yet many years.

—Mrs. James N. Dennis of Louisville, Ky., is the guest of Mrs. Maurice Crane.

—Mrs. D. C. Nettleton will give an exhibition of original paintings and drawings at her home next Saturday from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m.

—Mr. R. Starbuck, of Mancelona, drove his automobile over here Wednesday and will return today. He was accompanied by Claude Palmer, of Mancelona.

—Owing to the steamer Bluecap breaking down last week, her owners were compelled to cancel the charter for the Cheboygan end of Hamill's island route, and the timkerns goes in her place, in command of Capt. J. C. Jones.

—A jolly party of four consisting of Judge Sinnett of Mancelona, W. F. Carpenter, Fred Fisk and Dr. Hanney of Central Lake arrived in town Tuesday in Mr. Sinnett's automobile. They made the trip from Central Lake in an hour and fifty minutes and report a most enjoyable time. Judge Sinnet is here to attend the 14th annual meeting of the Probate Judges in Michigan.

—"A Royal slave," which comes to the Lewis opera house Saturday evening, is to be one of the real events of the theatrical season in this city. Of all the melodramas seen last season, few were so well received as Gordon & Bennett's beautiful production of the Southland. It is not only unusual in dramatic construction but is magnificent in its scenic investure, every piece of scenery used in the production being carried by the company.

—The next event of importance at the Lewis Opera house, will be the engagement of Gordon and Bennett's production of "A Royal Slave" and the management of the theatre is to be congratulated upon securing an attraction of such magnitude. The play, which deals with life in old Mexico, at the most romantic time in its history during the reign of the unhappy Maximilian, abounds in many thrilling situations, at the same time containing a beautiful love story of interest. Next Saturday evening.

—The dreaded enemy of the potato grower is about to be conquered at last, that is if the invention of a Lullington man proves all that is claimed for it. This versatile Yankee genius has rigged up a series of revolving spoons which knock the bugs upon a moving canvas from whence they are conveyed to a set of rollers where they are crushed. One of the machines has been on trial at the experimental grounds of the Agricultural college, and it not only annihilates the bugs, but cultivates the ground as well.

—The annual picnic of the Farmers' Friendly Association, which is to occur at Van Pelt's grove at Norwood August 20th, promises to eclipse all previous events on those grounds. Hon. Fred W. Warner, the republican candidate for governor, has accepted an invitation to be present. An effort is being made to get Congressman Darragh and William Alden Smith and other prominent public men, and the prospects are good. The grounds have been improved, and large sheds have been built, and Van Pelt is doing nothing these days but hustle for the picnic. He proposes to make the event the biggest and best in the history of Charlevoix county. Let every farmer, and everybody else, for that matter, make it a point to be there. Further announcements of details will be made next week, when additional surprises are liable to be sprung. It will be a roarer.

—Prof. H. J. Cox, the weather man, who has been with his family at St. James the past ten days, arrived here Wednesday, and will make an official inspection trip among islands of Lake Michigan. He will return to Beaver Island in about ten days, and remain with his family there ten days or two weeks. Last week Prof. Cox and family and Rev. Father Zugelder had a two days camping and fishing trip at Lake Genesaret, near the head of the Island. While on the Island Prof. Cox settled the details for the proposed weather station there. The station will be placed on the high ground near the church, and will be equipped with barograph and instruments recording wind velocity and weather. Rev. Father Zugelder will be the official in charge. The commercial telephone office will be in the postoffice at St. James. Prof. Cox is confident that the office will be ready for business the fall of 1905.

—J. I. Berry, the enterprising clothing dealer calls your attention to his new ad. in this issue. It is short, but it speaks volumes.

—Since writing the "Farmers' Friendly" article in another column, we learn that the improvements and new attractions for the forthcoming picnic will surpass all our expectations. Van Pelt is busy from morning till night, and their dreams are what he don't think of in the daytime.

—The W. C. T. U. will hold a porch meeting and social at the residence of Mrs. J. T. Kirkpatrick on Friday, Aug. 12, from two until five p. m. Mrs. Howard Hitt, president is expected also Mrs. Nindle from Bay View and other ladies from Petoskey Boyne, East Jordan and Norwood. There will be talks by pastors, speeches, music, recitations etc. Light refreshments will be served. All friends are invited.

—Mrs. Preston, (colored) of Detroit, will speak, sing and recite at the Congregational church next Thursday evening at 8:15 p. m. just after the close of the prayer meetings. Admission free, voluntary offerings. She will give some of her experiences in the South. Some of her recitations and songs are in the negro dialect, she has entertained large audiences with the greatest satisfaction heretofore and is a well known white reformer.

There used to be a saying that "the only good Injin was a dead one" but this has been set at naught by the Indians to make the great camp meeting at Northport each year their Mecca for long trips from distant points. There are twenty-several hundred of them and this year there will be more than formerly as the other campmeetings in this section of Michigan have all been consolidated into this one. The grounds which are convenient of access by boat or train have been very much improved. The summer visitor to Michigan will find in this meeting one of the most fascinating seasons of mental and spiritual refreshing to be found anywhere. The Indian is above all things else very religious. He lives near to nature and loves nature, God. He gives expression to his better feelings at this time as he does at no other. With several hundred of them singing their hymns that have been made sacred to them by many seasons of religious refreshing this scene becomes inspiring. They walk from year to year for this opportunity. They can sing. You hear them at night as they close the day with their vesper songs. You hear them in the morning as they greet the weakening day. They have good testimonies to offer concerning the God of all grace. They will welcome you. Several of the most prominent Indian preachers have been engaged to be present, including Rev. Thomas J. Salamyash of Munising, Minn. a graduate of Albion college, Rev. W. A. Elias, of Sarnia, Ontario, a very talented man and a graduate of one of the Canadian Colleges. These men preach either in English or Indian language. Also Rev. Wm. Petoskey of Petoskey, Rev. John Kewaygoshe of Kewadin, Rev. M. B. Carret of Traverse City and Rev. J. B. Dells of Northport, each where now, will be present. Probably one of the most interesting services is that in which one of the English preachers gives the sermon and it is interpreted by the Indian interpreter, Robert D. Agosa, a most intelligent representative of the Indian people. A most cordial invitation is extended to the whites as well as the Indians to attend this meeting. Any information may be secured by writing to the Campmeeting Association.

W. N. Ferris the Nominee.

At the democratic state convention at Grand Rapids yesterday W. N. Ferris was nominated for governor, after a bitter contest between the Stearns and Boutton factions.

It is gratifying to record the fact that just before the ballott Mr. Stearns announced himself as our anti-out democrat from Parker down. He was turned down, and is now the most absolutely dead man in Michigan.

It is also gratifying to note that Prof. M. O. Graves, of Petoskey, was in the convention and made a "speech." Now will Mr. Graves "stay put?" It is the earnest desire of all Northern Michigan republicans that he will.

THE SUGAR FACTORY.

Annual Meeting of Stockholders Yesterday—Factory Will Operate.

The annual meeting of the Charlevoix Sugar Co. stockholders was held at the Hotel Elston yesterday. Besides the local stockholders, there were present Col. H. A. Matting, of Ironton, Ohio; J. W. Henderson, of Ashland, Ky., and C. C. Lewis, of Charleston, W. Va. The last three own a large majority of the stock, and control the destiny of the sugar factory. R. R. Baker, of Detroit, president of the National Construction Co., was also present.

It was practically decided to increase the capital stock of the corporation $100,000, and put the concern on its feet as soon as several pending lien suits against the construction company are disposed of. It is confidently expected that all matters will be adjusted and that the company will raise beets next year.

The new board of directors is as follows: C. C. Lewis Jr., H. A. Marting, R. R. Baker and Harry Nicholls.

Imported Bloodsucks.

The new editor of the Harbor Springs Republican, who within the past two years, came from South America or Timbuctoo, or some other foreign clime, and was acclimated into what little Americanism he holds in his mugwump kidz as near the southern border as he could get, has taken upon himself the task of reforming Michigan politics.

In the last issue of his paper the Pan-American editor advocates the nomination of Justin S. Stearns by the democrats, and pledges his support to the Lullington surbeast on a democratic "primary reform" ticket. The crisis of Little Tim's life has about lasted about the thing that controls the republican party in Michigan," and that is bringing so much discredit upon our state."

Inasmuch as that straw has been thoroughly threshed over, it is useless to waste any words upon this class of sonambuckism. The republican party of Michigan will correct any evils that exist in the franchise, but it will not hysterically adopt measures that are worse than the alleged evils themselves, or allow itself to be drawn into a whirlpool of democratic and mugwump error. "Primary reform" and "tax reform," is the slogan of this new born Michigan editor. We have already had a taste of what reform will be if the egg was hatched by the same old hen that is now cackling throughout Michigan for "primary reform." If the same breed of fowl that took out of the "reform" nest before the mugwumps came into our national life.

Of course the democrats care not who they nominate or elect so long as they get the offices. Mr. Stearns will support Roosevelt, but that cuts no figure with a democrat. Principle or consistency is not an element in the nature of the democrat party or its mugwump cousin, it is the offices, and the offices only.

The Harbor Spring Republican should not claim to be even one dependent. It should go where it belongs—to the democrats, and now is a good time to do it, in the same hand-wagon with Justin S. Stearns, who has always been a "republican." Of the Pingree school.

Democrats are democrats and nothing more nor less than organizations, and the democrats were always good "organizers." Whether it be city, county or State, if the democrats could control they sought to perpetuate that control by organizations. We know what democratic control of affairs means; therefore which will you have? Democracy disclosed with mugwumpery in worst of all.

As a matter of fact, we flattered hope Mr. Stearns will accept the democratic nomination for governor. There is nothing more certain than that he will go the way of all scorbutics—into oblivion.

THE PROBATE JUDGES.

They Are Here in Force From All over Michigan.

One of the greatest events in the history of Charlevoix, in point of dignified deliberation and official importance, is the eight annual session of the Michigan Association of Probate Judges, now in session here.

There are about 50 Judges, in the association, and many have their wives with them. They are quartered at the Elston, and the association sessions are being held at the court house. The first session was held Wednesday afternoon. President H. Grant, of Manistee opened the session with an appropriate address. The judge advocated the abolition of the present widows dower law, and earnestly advocated greater liberality to widows in the settlement of estates.

The business of the association will be completed at the session this (Thursday) morning, and then Charlevoix will exert itself to entertain its distinguished guests. This afternoon they make a trip up the lake on the steamer Hoover. This evening the judges will be tendered a banquet at the Inn. Circuit Judge Mayne will entertain at luncheon Wednesday afternoon Judge Frackleton, of Tennessee read an able paper on Legacies in Succession of Alienation, and Judge Stowe, of Livingston, read a treatise on "Lapsed Legacies." In the evening President E. W. Coulter made a formal address of welcome, and Judge Mayne speaking for the bar, emphasized the welcome. Judge Swan responded for the association, voicing the sentiment of the association in praise of Charlevoix and those having in charge the entertainment of his conferees.

Hon. Frank A. Hooker, associate justice of the Supreme court of Michigan is attending the sessions and enjoying the outing with the probate officials. Last evening the Judge delivered a very interesting address.

A Paving Scrap.

A suppressed bill asking for an injunction, filed in the circuit court Friday morning, tells the story of a fight between two paving companies that is to extend over the country. Detroit is the center of strife.

The Central Bitulithic Paving Co. asked to have the Barber Asphalt Paving Co. restricted from using the word "bitulithic" in its bids, and a temporary injunction was granted. The Bitulithic company pride down a pavement made under what is known as the "Warren Bros." patent. The word "Bitulithic" as well as the paving compound, is patented according to the claims of the company.

The direct cause that precipitated the fight was the bidding in eight streets for which the bids were opened in the department of public works July 19.

The Barber people participated in the bidding for straight asphalt, also for bitulithic. That company was lowest in both kinds of pavement, and the commissioner has made contracts for the regular asphalt, the Central company being knocked out on bitulithic entirely.

Bitulithic has a stone mixture and patented compositions in addition to the regular asphalt and sand composition of common asphalt pavement. It is claimed to be more expensive, but the company claims that so long as the Barber people dip in and bid less on bitulithic than they do it is impossible for them to get contracts, regardless of the lack of legal right on the part of the Barber people to put down the pavement.

NORWOOD NEWS.

Miss Martena Valentine left for Ogdensburg, Wis., Friday and will be gone about three weeks.

Mrs. Martha Bogue, who has been at Geo. H. Van Pelts for the past 2 weeks left for Chicago Sunday night.

Mrs. Wm. Perkins and Bessie Mildred and Celestine Perkins of Sturgeon Bay are here on a visit.

The kids of East Jordan were here Saturday to play the Norwood boys a game of base ball. The game was in favor of the East Jordan boys 10 to 4.

The annual Sunday school picnic of the Atwood, Barnard and Norwood, Sunday School will be held at Norwood Wednesday of this week.

Secret of the Plundered Safe

By EMILE GABORIAU

CHAPTER XII.—(Continued.)

As M. Verdier spoke Prosper seemed altered his resolution to emancipate himself from his guardian. He felt hope and confidence returning to him.

"If I could only be sure that you are right," he murmured.

"Thunder man, oh will you dust your eyes in the clearest evidence? Don't you understand that Mademoiselle knows the name of the thief?"

"Impossible."

"It is a fact! but we must be sure that we know power each extract it from her. You also sacrificed one, but she loss all more a right to do so, for she as refused to assist Rouet."

"Assist!" cried Prosper, thinking M. Verdier's friend "I must assist Rouet and robberies in your room but you do not, cannot know what I suffer!"

The old wicked man shook his head sadly but face relented a moment. "Poor boy! poor boy! you must be sure."

"Why? Are you now suffering? he asked, "I were have suffered. Like that, I once loved but not the you, a noble girl, with I loved her. For three years I was a free boy. My father died, my uncle who adored her. Then, like you, I wished to marry her. Then, like you, I proves could induce her to some rank in life. Then I was ruined, and she proved another man!"

The face of young Prosper, now to the world cold of his furniture, and whose so low frightened, was lighted up with pathetic for bad Pilar-Sain. That, excited by rage and M. Verdier's story, he rather noble at the great Archangel. He, M. Madame Kolmann had effected in Prosper Lee over best room, which, however, was very purpose to the Prosper leaving room in the Rue Chaptal.

About 10 o'clock, Prosper, feeling for ready, ate, he that to find the number, was surprised to find the door of the wind had entered the room and footsteps of a gentleman living in the floor. M. Chabouilly Prosper picked up this paper and exclaimed, "I am sorry to be writing in the hand of Nina Gipsy, in which he has written, I am sorry to be in a fragment of a torn-up letter, and of the Madame Kolmann fallen in an ash exact meaning they were sufficient to set Prosper's mind at rest, and to exact remonstrance of the Gipsy Prosper.

of M. Rouet I have been long . . . I . . . . . and . . . . . Madame Kolmann never . . . . . stain Prosper and that . . . . . lost . . . . . Madame . . . . . lost . . . . . of Mabile, Ma . . . . . .

CHAPTER XIII.

Not for them the Palais Royal, in the Rue St. Honoré, with its wine of Good Fortune, is a little establishment, half inn, half bachelors' ship, much frequented in the circles at the neighborhood. It was in one of the rooms of this house Green had to the Friday after his release. Prosper was waiting for M. Verdier, who had promised to meet him there at 4 o'clock.

As the clock struck M. Verdier, who was punctuality itself, entered. He was alone today than ever, and appeared particularly cheerful and with humor, for as the waiter has left the room he said to Prosper.

"Well, have all our commissions been executed? Have you seen the Gipsy?"

"I gave him your letter. Everything that you have asked I have done, and I am in the Archangel."

"That's well, very well; for I have had an . . . and I bring you plenty of . . . Whatever waiting for you, old fellow? Hungry? Shall we dine?"

"Wait, until the driver, "at this time of night, in such dreadful weather, it ought to be—an extra fare."

"And how much more for driving very rapidly?"

"Why, monsieur, I leave that to your generosity; but if you put it at thirty-five francs—"

"You shall have a hundred," interrupt ed M. Verdier, "if you overdo", a coupage which has half an hour's start of me."

"Where?" cried the delighted driver, "though in quick, we are losing time."

CHAPTER XV.

Leaving the little station of Vesinet we come upon two roads. It was at the fork of these two roads that Prosper stopped the hack. The driver had gone, at his hundred francs. The horses were completely worn out, but they had accomplished such a speed, that Prosper and M. Verdier were most distinguished the lamps of a vehicle similar to the one by meeting about fifty yards ahead of him. He jumped out, and handing the driver a hundred, said

"Here is what I promised you. Go in front of the inn, and wait for us, and if you enjoy the village. If we do not meet you there is an inn near you an cheaply to return to Paris."

The driver was overwhelming in his thanks, but neither Prosper nor his friend heard them. They had already started up the path and M. Verdier said, "Prosper fall into running along the roads, and be short five minutes, when suddenly the latter stopped and said.

"This is Rouet's house."

Prosper looked at it, and indeed from round the back which M. Verdient had followed. Rectangular in its form, strong in a thick cloak, was the street, also, the side of the property, was a wooden fence evidently waiting for the person Verdier and Prosper.

"What was the news, Joseph Dubois?" said the former to the latter.

"Ah, governor, don't speak of it!" answered the servant, "things are getting worse."

CHAPTER XIV.

Prosper remembered all his attention upon this shower domestic. He thought he recognized the face of a servant, frowned and those thick leather boots of spoke, but where and when he could not remember.

In the first place I must say that the position of the man who was known to M. de Clamerie is not a bad of mean. Yesterday he was a simple lackey, but M. Lecoq, of course, followed him. He was known here as well? The thing was as easy as a force. He went to the lackeyed to keep the appointments made by Nina Gipsy.

"Well make haste. They will time she was gone. There?"

"Ah, I do not know at all pleased. I can tell you. He hurried back to the hotel where the others, M. de Lagrange awaited him. And I have never heard so much about the Gipsy. The Baron said that what had engaged to put him in the "pardon" of the Gipsy, and the sending of the Jesuits school at the Sacred Heart, and the Gipsy, she has slipped through our fingers." Then Prosper was waiting for M. Verdier, who had promised to meet him there at 4 o'clock.

As the clock struck M. Verdier, who was punctuality itself, entered. He was alone today than ever, and appeared particularly cheerful and with humor, for as the waiter has left the room he said to Prosper.

"Well, have all our commissions been executed? Have you seen the coalmen?"

"I gave him your letter. Everything that you have asked I have done, and I am in the Archangel."

"That's well, very well; for I have had an . . . and I bring you plenty of . . . Whatever waiting for you, old fellow? Hungry? Shall we dine?"

"Wait, until the driver, "at this time of night, in such dreadful weather, it ought to be—an extra fare."

"And how much more for driving very rapidly?"

"Why, monsieur, I leave that to your generosity; but if you put it at thirty-five francs—"

"You shall have a hundred," interrupt ed M. Verdient

REAL MOTHER OF TRUSTS.

Not the Protective Tariff, But Only Railroad Freight Discrimination.

James Gaylor, ex-State Railroad Commissioner of New York, testified before the joint committee of the senate and the representatives that the tariff is the mother of the trusts. He stated, on the contrary, that freight transportation is the main support of the trusts, and that by the fast that Standard Oil controls four of the great trunk lines out of New York and Jersey City, it can ship a barrel of oil cheaper than any other concern can ship it, or even a barrel of any other article, for the same distance, and that by the fact that Standard Oil controls the Union Stock Yards and by the fact that it has made contracts with the railroads to ship a certain number of cattle at a certain rate, it has enabled the Standard Oil Company to control the price of beef.

Large interests, a thousand of them, have been created by the railroads, having power into the money lists simply by the concessions that railroads could make without the aid of a tariff, and yet the tariff is always denounced and could not exist one day without the aid of railroads to carry the goods, raw materials and could not exist one day without the aid of railroads to bring the people to the factories and to carry the goods to market.

Gaylor stated that in the Supreme Court of New York, which, he said, is the tribunal before which the question of stocks in the corporations that the tariff is the mother of the trusts, the facts are to the contrary, that Taught testimony before the joint committee of Congress by the fact that Standard Oil controls four of the great trunk lines out of New York and Jersey City, and that by the fact that Standard Oil controls the Union Stock Yards and by the fact that it has made contracts with the railroads to ship a certain number of cattle at a certain rate, that has enabled the Standard Oil Company to control the price of beef.

AS TO STANDING PAT

WHY NOT, IF IT IS THE BEST THING TO DO?

The Main Point to Be Kept in Mind Is That There Shall Continue to Be a Home Market for All Products of American Labor and Industry.

A lowering of import duties on cheap but good goods means a curtailment of an American market, or a large part of it, to the people of other lands. The surrender of the American market would make less employment and lower wages and that the workingman wants and have sufficient wages to enable him to buy the best products of the farm. With low wages he would cease to be a consumer of beef. With lower wages he could not purchase chickens, butter and eggs, never introduced in the American home would be dissatisfied—whether the lower standard were brought about by the Republican party or the Democratic party.

There is nothing the American home laborer or farmer desires more than a tariff that has a sufficiency of all products and if in some one instance it is found that the tariff is not sufficient to protect the home market from the foreign competitor, the remedy is not to lower the tariff on that product but to raise it so that it will be sufficient to protect the home market.

The Democratic platform of 1904 will urge the abolishment of the Dingley tariff on the ground that it is a tax on the poor and to the Democrats that taxes the rich alone. Democrats tax the poor when they advocate the free trade idea. Democrats tax the poor when they advocate the Wilson tariff law.

Large interests, a thousand of them, have been created by the railroads, having power into the money lists simply by the concessions that railroads could make without the aid of a tariff, and yet the tariff is always denounced and could not exist one day without the aid of railroads to bring the people to the factories and to carry the goods to market.

FREE TRADE FANATICISM.

Total and Immediate Abolition of Every Tariff Duty.

Free trade fanaticism is not encouraged in the United States as it was once since last. But it still persists a few volunteers, as to whom in the report of the Report of the American Free Trade League at Boston. At the meeting thirteen dissentients protestation. The most radical among them, however, and the one that most strongly urged the Democratic members of the campaign of 1904 was that of Louis B. Schenck of New York. If the Democratic party had nearly enough time of universal Mr. Elkins, Bacland, Z. would adopt only one plank in its national campaign platform, and that would read: "The immediate and total abolition of every tariff duty and the immediate and total abolition of every tariff duty and the immediate and total abolition of all internal revenue taxes of the United States."

Representative that in time free trade can take place was. No Democrats could be found who would contribute more to maintain the policy of protection than the leaders of manufacturing interests, for it is in fact in every sense of doubt that the adoption of the contrary would be Elkins would have the boundless power which protective tariff has conferred on the manufacturing industries. Thousands has from our national policy for years, has caused many millionaires to spring up which never would have existed before. All the industries which would have power on account in have be come adjusted to it. Profits, wages, capital, every detail of our industrial and commercial fabric are directly or indirectly, in a greater or less degree affected by it. That the national policy has caused so large wealth to be here concentrated that commerce in our cities revolutionizing our whole field from a agricultural to a manufacturing and commercial nation, and that it has caused the population of the country to be more than doubled and to be so well and so fully distributed that the country is to be follow from the American population. Protection has caused the population to be more than two hundred and fifty millions, and has made the country the most prosperous country on the face of the earth. Free trade would ruin all this. It would destroy the industries that have made us the most prosperous people on the earth. It would take away from the laborer his employment and his wages, and would make the farmer's market a foreign one. It would destroy the prosperity of the country which has made it the most prosperous country on the earth

HUNT YOUNG ROBBERS

OFFICERS EXPLORE THICKETS ALONG TIPPECANOE RIVER.

Two Youths Held Up and Robbed on Indiana Pike in Broad Daylight Woman Who Attempts to Double Mrs. Roosevelt Is Foiled.

Two young men, one thirty years of age, the other only about 19, were made the victims of a daylight robbery on the Dixie and Marion pike, eighteen miles south of Rochester, last Tuesday afternoon. The men had taken a large Rochester. They stated that they had when they reached the lonely place they were held up by two men who drove up in a buggy and demanded their money. The men had about $10, which they gave up. The men then drove on to Rochester. They stated that they did not know the men, but could describe them. The men were described as being about 25 years of age, medium size, and dressed in overalls and jumpers. The men had a bay horse and a buggy with a black top. The men drove south on the Dixie road. The robbery was reported to the officers in Rochester and they started in pursuit of the men. The men were caught in the woods near the Tippecanoe River, where they had tied their horse and were hiding in the woods. They were brought back to the scene of the robbery and were identified by the men who had been robbed. The men were then taken to Rochester and were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Charles Blount on the charge of robbery. The men were bound over to the circuit court in the sum of $1,000 each. In default of bond they were committed to the county jail. The men refused to give any information as to their names or their place of residence. They stated that they had been "knocking about" for some time. The men are about 5 feet 8 inches in height, and are well built. The younger man is light complexed and the older man is dark complexed. The younger man is the more talkative of the two. The men are being held in the county jail awaiting the action of the grand jury. The men are being kept in a separate room in the jail and are not allowed to talk with the other prisoners.

Verdict of Coroner's Jury.

The coroner's jury that investigated the circumstances of the death of Ernest Sparlinger, the young woman who tried to elope with her married lover, Charles Blount, at Rochester, last week, returned a verdict holding the deceased responsible and exonerating the Blount family from any blame in the affair and exonerating the man. The accused man is married and his wife and three children live in Kewanna.

Marital Law Ended.

WILL COMPLETE CANAL IN 1909.

Engineer in Charge of Big Ditches Makes Report to Congress.

The annual report of Captain C. S. Hall, chief engineer, has been sent for improvement of the Illinois river and the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal, of which work he has charge, was completed at the Washington office. The estimate of the War Department. Engineering, dredging, excavating and other work of importance was done during the year at a cost of $15,481. There is an available balance of $69,622, remaining to be expended. The report is interesting, a navigable channel of ample dimensions, 9 feet deep and 200 feet wide, and the month of the river, removing snags, felling dead and carrying away the trees. Five dredges started searching for the snag-laden trees. The snags were on Rochester, extend from one sight and self-sight the pole. Dredging was reported near Lippscomb River Officers, however, were unable to find trees in that place for the time. Five more dredges to be lifted in the Illinois, Mississippi, banks and Marshal Dodge and a power of 50 tonnes where with some accounting of snags, searched the woods.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

Letter From Prof. Howe.

Ann Arbor, Mich, July 29,1894.

DEAR EDITOR:

I have found myself so busy, and time going so rapidly, that you will be spared a lengthy communication. This will be my "last public appearance" from this distance as the summer session of the University closes in one week. So I shall take up my one-text referred to in the last paragraph of my former letter

I believe that the highest interests of every public school require that the patrons of the school shall have an intelligent and lively concern in its daily work. This is particularly true and important when the school is in a tentative stage of its development. As a matter of fact nearly all our American schools are in this stage as compared with those of European countries, and in a larger sense every school that is really efficient must be more or less fluid and yielding to the spirit and pressure of the time. This is characteristic in some degree of every social institution, but with us it is especially true of the school. Our educational system has not yet become set and moulded, and before it does it is of vast importance that every one concerned in its welfare should have his rightful influence in helping to shape it for the best service.

This is, of course, in a pre-eminent degree the problem of the teachers and of the teaching profession, but the profession itself is in a state of development responsive to social needs. The people therefore cannot safely delegate all their educational interests to any group of persons whether teachers or school officers. The patrons and the schools each have vital interests which demand direct and constant communion between parents and teachers.

Now for a practical application to our local situation in Charlevoix. On account of the large number of new teachers last year it seemed necessary that the whole teaching corps should direct its efforts chiefly to the inside of the schools; this coming year we shall be able to give some attention to the outside. For one thing, we hope to have every grade teacher, and if possible every high school teacher, visit the homes of her pupils as early as possible in the year. This will not be a "professional" visit, but an informal, friendly call, designed to produce a cordial understanding between the home and the school. Then we shall expect that the parents as far as possible will "return" the call at the schoolroom. Most of the petty misunderstandings that sometimes happen would become practically impossible if parent and teacher and pupils really knew each other. The rother fellow is often a better sort than we give him credit for.

Then we ought to have some general meetings throughout the year (at least four) of parents and teachers together connectively for mutual assistance. Perhaps these could be inaugurated in a series of union educational services in the various churches. It is a part of good religion that the hearts of the children should be turned to their parents, and of parents to their children; in fact, is not that the great thing needful in our social life, especially in "recent" times?

I will not take more space now than to propose a set of topics that could be profitably discussed in some such way as I have suggested. Here is a list to start with.

The best means of securing intelligent and sympathetic co-operation between the home and the school.

How can we improve the teaching in the schools?

The place of physical and moral education in the public schools.

The best course of study for the grades and the small high school.

Historical development of the superintendency and the graded school system.

Shall the school aim for the highest development of the individual, or for the most effective practical service to the community?

The best use of the superintendent's time and ability.

To some of your readers it may seem that certain of these topics are entirely professional, or belong only to the Board and the superintendent. Then the question is, are you willing to leave all such questions to professional or official decision and say, to "raise no fuss" afterward? Or, are you sure that the best decision is always the one to which you would personally make no objection?

For my part, I am willing to go frankly before the whole people with every subject that concerns them, and am equally willing to submit the entire workings of our schools to popular judgment when all the facts and conditions are really known; and I want to have them known. I believe that in this spirit of mutual helpfulness and confidence we can all make the school work of the coming year the most successful in the history of our "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

Political Notes.

The Dispatches say that Prof. M. G. Graves, of Petoskey, is to be a speaker at a meeting of "independent Stearns republican democrats" in Detroit. This is not strange. Prof. Graves has always worn a coat of many colors. No man in Northern Michigan has been a politician in more different ways than he. Graves reminds us of Pine river—when the wind is southerly the current is upstream; when it is northerly it runs down stream. In towing logs through the stream calculation is always made with the current as a factor, and to determine this the direction of the wind is always first determined. But it is more difficult to determine which way Graves' current of "thought" will run. It is more erratic than Pine River, and more to deep. The dispatch to which we refer also imparts the startling information that Prof. Graves is a former superintendent of public instruction." Prof. Graves was a candidate for that office on the Republican ticket, but if we remember correctly he was not elected. Yes, Mr. Graves is unique in politics, he is like the trishman's flea—when you think you have him located he is industrious in another section of the general anatomy.

It is a jolly time the "primary reformers" are having with their pumpkin jack—Justus S. Stearns. Mr. Stearns is a "receptive candidate," like Gen. Miles. His agentacy dates from the republican state convention of 1892, where that event he has done little else but slop over, and nurse a sore spot in his head. Possessed of ambition, to be disappointed that his money could not make him governor. In other words, he would rather be governor than to be right. He hoped to reach the goal on the "primary reform" wave. When the intelligence of the people prevailed, his, Fingers like, don't know enough to "tumble" when the under-tow reaches him, and he finds himself engulfed by his own foolishness. And now comes the news that the Democrats will have none of him.

John Monroe of East Jordan has nearly completed the dock for the East Bay Lumber Co. The dock is 300x50 feet, with an approach 200 feet long. It is now so that all vessels can take lumber direct from the dock. Mr. Monroe has a force of men building a snow os. The river back in the vicinity of "West Front street, bridge at this point. Mr. Monroe has in convert the piling for the work, there being nine outside of this material already on hand. He is burning a snow this street upon which he will place his pile driving machinery and engine. The snow is being built substantially as he will leave it in the river permanently. He stated to the Herald that he would put the best men and money in snow this season. As soon as the snow is completed work will commence on the bridge.

LOCAL NEWS.

For Shame.

Iowa opera house was filled Saturday evening on the occasion of "The Royal Slave" company engagement. The usual quota of gallery hoodlums were present, but they were literally awed into silence by the exhibition of brazen, staggering effronitery given by a delegation of resort hoodlums in four of the boxes.

We presume where they live they pass for young ladies and gentlemen but there were none of either class in the bunch. They were rude They insulted both the audience and the players, and were kissed from the floor and rebuked from the stage. They should have been kicked out of the place, or led out by their ears and sent home to be spanked. Their conduct would have disgraced a South Park street dance house, and certainly was the most sickening display of bad breeding we have ever witnessed.

One of the young men even made himself liable to arrest by unsquarely lifting in female attire. He should have complied as well at the county jail until his father had bailed him out.

The people of Charlevoix desire to treat their summer visitors with courtesy, but they expect the same treatment in return. If resort rowdyism must intrude itself upon the enjoyment of our own people we prefer a tannery or glue factory to a resort.

We try to be patient under tribulation, but, if conduct of this sort continues in our own place of amusement, there will be a cleaning up some night. Our own gallery hoodlums are jealous of their rights, and will not permit themselves to be eclipsed by hoodlums who wear baggy seated trousers and occupy the boxes even though they are accompanied by "summer girls" who know as little about decent behavior as they know themselves.

If a respectable citizen cannot take his family to a place of amusement without having them insulted by a crowd of pim headed snobs, it is high time we find the reason why.

The vessel has gone to pieces.

—It makes no difference what engagements you have for August. You should not forget the Farmers' Friendly Association picnic at Norwood, August 25th. Very much has been done to make this the biggest event in the history of this popular order. The grounds are ideal in every feature, and Norwood is an ideal place to visit. Van Pelt will be there, and that is a guarantee that it will be a stupendous success.

—Willard Olney a carpenter from Charlevoix has the contract to put up two roofs, each 175 feet long and 16 feet wide, to shelter the Farmers' Friendly Association picnickers on Thursday Aug 25, in case of rain. Willard is a good man to do the work and Van Pelt is a good "buyer." Norwood is a beautiful little burg only 10 miles from Charlevoix, but next year we must try and get Van to hold the F. F. A. picnic at Charlevoix. He expects 5000 people to be present and every one will want to shake hands with our prospective Governor Fred M. Warner, who will be at the picnic.

It has been officially indorsed by the Builders and Masons union, in this city. Architect W. A. Dean and others. Mr. Bennett is arranging for the manufacture of the tool in this city and is negotiating with a man who will handle it throughout the United States.

Death of a Pioneer.

John Pattison, of this place, died suddenly of heart disease at his boat livery dock in the rear of the Crooker building last Friday noon. Mr. Pattison had been troubled with heart weakness, but it was not thought that there was anything critically serious in his condition.

Deceased took rank among the the earliest settlers of this region. He was born in Cleveland 71 years ago. He came to Beaver Island in 1849, just before the arrival of the Mormons there. In 1852 the year of the Mormon exodus, he removed to Fox Island. The same year he removed to Washington Harbor, Green Bay. In 1856 he located at Little Traverse, (now Harbor Springs) where he remained until 1871, when he came here. He has resided here continuously since.

Besides the widow, who is a sister of Mrs. Richard Cooper, he leaves five children—Clifford, George and Henry, of this place, Mrs. May Moore of Stout, and Mrs. Levi Humphrey, of Lockington.

The funeral occured from the M. E. Church Monday afternoon.

Secret of the Plundered Safe

By EMILE GABORIAU

In a few minutes (time and a ladder reaching the wall) the robber had fled, taking the safe with him! He had forced the door, and, by long force, had broken open the top of the safe; and the lighted window was the distinguishing sign to Frange.

M. Verduret, after having placed a guard off from the house and witness the latter continued: "Gentlemen, I had sealed the bottom, sealed in six directions, at the same time sealing the two papers; they (yet) sealed with his hands. Therefore, everyone was present.

Frange made a motion, sprang and seized, the latter continued: "I ran down to the lighted window, which, on the ground floor, opened on the lawn as if it was a door. Here I found the safe, which was quickly opened in the lighted window when it (the safe) was moved off to the waiting carriage and dragged this a long distance in the grass.

When questioned, Frange shrugged his shoulders, and, as he spoke, he looked at M. Verduret, and the latter continued: "Gentlemen,

THE EDUCATION NEEDED.

The Grange Seeks to Add Dignity to Labor.

We speak of education today, says Hon. F. A. Derthick, master of the Mississippi state grange, with a somewhat different meaning from that in the recent past. This is a day of specialization and concentration. It is being realized more and more that one needs a broad elementary basis, crowned with special preparation, for one's life work. The farmer as an individual has not sufficiently appreciated this comparatively new thought. The present exodus away from the farm he should resists from two causes: first, the farmer has allowed unnecessarily severe conditions to prevail, and, second, he has spoken too much of the dignity of the farm and too little of the science of agriculture. The grange was born from these two ideas and at its birth declared in favor of uniting from agriculture every unjust burden and exposed the farmer to "odd dignity to labor" and to make the farm home more attractive.

We are doubtly to label upon the farm is to life agriculture from the point of view of dignity and that is against the science. To do this is in a large measure the mission of the grange, and this thought and effort have been developing and growing stronger for twenty-five years.

The education of today is more than the education of yesterday. It is for that it will be tomorrow. Agricultural colleges of the country are an expression of a change thought, and our indebtedness to the education of a person to venue and from the time has given them its strong and enduring support.

GRANGERS AT LAUREL PARK

Connecticut Patrons Have a Busy Day.

Laurel Park, the Charlemagne of Connecticut, on July 18 members of the order came from everywhere to attend the annual meeting of the Speakers Convention, N. J. Bachelder of New Hampshire, secretary of the state board of agriculture of that state and national lecturer of the grange, and J. Lewis Ellsworth of Worcester, secretary of the Massachusetts state board of agriculture.

Lecturer Bachelder discussed the various benefits accruing to the farmer through the efforts of the grange particularly the consolidation of the freight and delivery system, the smart of the activities legislation, and so on. He also took up the subject of goods made and sold.

The question which is now being focused by the grange and, indeed, in the security of national aid in building highways. Through the influence of the grange a great sentiment has been created for national aid to road construction. The national government has expended millions of dollars for our rivers and harbors, and this movement is along the same lines. An effort is being made to secure the appropriation by congress of $2,000,000 for this purpose, but it depends somewhat upon the representation that can be secured from the state. But if possible $2,000,000 more will be secured from the state making $4,000,000 in all for this purpose, to be expended in a period of three years. This will be the most comprehensive building of roads in the world, and the credit for securing it should be given to the grange.

Grange Work in New Hampshire.

The state board of agriculture northern New Hampshire Patrons and the grange united forces in holding a good farmers' outing among the mountains on July 27-29. The White mountains on the first day, combining an afternoon and address and literary exercises at Bethlehem. The second and third days were devoted to sports and excursions to places of interest.

The series of field meetings, continuing during the last twenty-one years by the Pomona grange, will begin Aug. 1. State Secretary Drake has got up a book for entering the attendance of the members and others and the rate of the latter in degree work and the score of the grange in literary work. It is a great saving of time and will greatly aid the deputies in their inspections. The next state grange meeting will be held in Dover, N. H., in December.

The Founders of the Order.

A personal letter from O. H. Kelley, one of the founders of the order, to the editor of this department says that "of all the founders of the older work some thirty against of seven. If I am not mistaken Miss Caroline A. Hall was the beginning was laid when Overland (N. Y.) grange was organized. Brother A. B. Moss was the father of that grange—he was certainly a founder." The assumption impression is that there were only seven persons interested originally in the movement, but Mr. Kelley ought to know.

Hon. George S. Ladd, master of the Massachusetts state grange, will address at the grange meeting of Thousand Islands on Aug. 16. Mr. E. B. Lodi, past master of the New York state grange, will speak, besides others not yet announced.

The first chartered grange was Fredonia grange No. 1, of New York. The first state grange was that of Minnesota, organized Feb. 22, 1868. The first session of the national grange was on April 12, 1868.

Grange day at Chautauqua will occur on Aug. 26. The new grange building at the lake is completed and will be the center of interest for the grange visitors on that popular resort.

Discuss the commercial side of farmers' reasonably in the grange. The selling and marketing of crops is a worthy and profitable subject for consideration.

COL. JOSEPH H. BRIGHAM,
Assistant Secretary of Agriculture and a Prominent Patron.

The Order of Patrons of Husbandry has suffered a distinct loss in the death of Colonel J. H. Brigham, suddenly, of heart disease, at Delta, O., on the evening of June 20. He was on his way to the St. Louis exposition, where he had an engagement as chairman of the government board, and was stopping at Delta for a visit. In his death the Order loses one of its most-most men and a tireless advocate of grange principles. He was well known throughout the Union. Starting from abroad member of the national grange in 1880 and served eight years. He had been leader of the Ohio state grange for ten years. He took an active interest in the formation of the grange in 1873, and his earliest addresses especially brought him to the front. In his duties as national master he visited the different states of the country and became very popular with members of the Order. His last appearance in the national grange was at its last session at Rochester in November of last year. In 1870 at his first attendance at the annual meeting of the national grange, as master of the Ohio state grange, he impressed and carried through a resolution and set in motion working forces that slowly, under his steady and immense influence, and guidance, lifted the national department of agriculture from the rank and influence of a mere side-show menace to a full partnership department, in association with the other members of the president's cabinet.

Colonel Brigham was born at Lodi, O., Dec. 12, 1835, and lived on a farm until his parents moved into Fulton county in 1852. His education was that of the country school, and consisting when he took up the vocation of teaching in the winter and working on the farm during the rest of the year. He was thus occupied when the war broke out and immediately enlisted in the Sixty-ninth Ohio regiment, which made a notable record. He was at Stone River, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, in the Atlanta campaign, on the march to the sea and through the Carolinas, in Sherman's march to the sea he was acting brigade quartermaster. When mustered out of the service he was colonel of the regiment, his promotion having been well earned at every step. He then returned to his farm in Ohio. Later he was elected to the state senate, and during President Harrison's administration he was one of the commissioners appointed to negotiate with the Shawnee and Arapahoe Indians for a cession of a part of the White River reservation, in Wyoming. For many years he was a member of the state board of agriculture in Ohio.

At the beginning of the first administration of President McKinley Colonel Brigham was appointed assistant secretary of agriculture, a post which he occupied up to the time of his death. President McKinley appointed him to the position of commissioner for the Paris exposition, and he was at the time of his death on his way to the St. Louis exposition in relation to the Paris exposition. Colonel Brigham held the rank of brigadier general in the Ohio militia.

Colonel Brigham had the name of being the "biggest man at the county fair." He stood six feet six inches tall and weighed 350 pounds.

THE DEGREE WORK.

Its Importance Not Always Fully Understood.

Paul Shepard, lecturer of the New York state grange, urges a reform in the manner of performing the degree work, in his state Lecturer's Bulletin.

In many granges, he says, there is a serious lack of that influence over their membership which should be exerted by the different groups, from the first that too little attention is given to "the grow work." This work is done too often in a careless, slipshod manner which is neither a credit to the grange nor attractive to the candidates. Good impressions are lasting, and if the candidates do not receive a favorable impression, when the degrees are "worked" something is lost to them that they can never gain. I have yet to learn of a grange where ritualistic work is performed well that is not a successful grange. A reform in the manner of doing this work is most urgently needed. The minutes should be furnished from the grange hall. Dust should be swept and cobwebs be given to the venalis. The floor work should be done in such a manner as to insert to it its dignity and impressiveness which it possesses when fitly performed. The lecturer, when practicable, will permit, devote a period of the time of his visits to drill in the floor work. In this way the officers of the grange will receive that practice so much needed that the degree work may make a pleasing and lasting impression on the candidate—an impression which time cannot efface from their memories.

The demand for grange speakers at Pomona meetings and picnics is gratifying. It shows a wide and growing interest in the order.

County deputies and organizers should not leave the newly organized grange to itself after organization. Watch it, help it.

The New Hampshire state grange will meet at Dover, N. H., at its next annual session.

The shorter membership of a new grange should be invited to practical farmers.

PRESIDENT SOUNDS THE KEYNOTE

In Address of Acceptance Mr. Roosevelt Recites Party Achievements and Ridicules Position Taken by Democrats on Tariff and Money.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 27.—In his address responding to Speaker Cannon, the official notification speaker, and accepting the Republican nomination for the presidency, Mr. Roosevelt said:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the National Committee: I am deeply sensible of the high honor conferred upon me by the representatives of the Republican party assembled in convention, and I express my gratitude to the delegates for the kindness and generosity with which they have conferred upon me the nomination for the presidency. I accept the nomination with a full sense of the responsibilities it involves, and I shall do my best to carry out the principles which the Republican national convention has adopted, and of some future day I shall communicate to you, Mr. Speaker, and to the country in detail a formal written acceptance of the nomination.

Three years ago I became President because of the death of my predecessor. I then stated that it was my purpose to do what I could to carry out the policies and use the powers of the office in such a way as to make it clear that I was the President of the people as a whole, and not of any special class or section. I have tried to do this, and I have kept in view the purpose that the government should be administered with absolute impartiality in the interests of the people as a whole, and that the government should be administered with absolute impartiality in the interests of the people as a whole, and that the government should be administered with absolute impartiality in the interests of the people as a whole, and

SHAW ON HIGH PRICES.

False Interpretation of the Secretary's Wilmington Speech.

Secretary Shaw's speech before the Roosevelt Workingmen's club of Wilmington, Del., in which he pointed out certain advantages of high prices, has drawn down upon him a good deal of misdirected criticism.

It does not appear that he intended to be understood as saying that high prices in themselves were desirable or that low prices in themselves were undesirable. Nobody, as a rule, wants to pay any more for a thing than is absolutely necessary, while the tendency of recent all new inventions and processes of production and of the organization of all branches of industry on a larger scale is to reduce the cost of living. Indeed, one of the avowed aims of a protective tariff, which Shaw stoutly champions, is to stimulate competition so as to cheapen articles of consumption. Secretary Shaw, of course, is perfectly aware of all this.

What Secretary Shaw obviously meant was that a little range of prices that is accompanied by a high range of wages, by general and constant employment of labor, is vastly more desirable than a low range of prices which may perhaps be accompanied by any material fall in wages, but which is accompanied by the suspension of only part of the army of wage earners or by the employment of a wage earner only half or two-thirds of the time. The soundness of this contention ought to be self-evident.

One of the chief objects of the policy of protection to domestic industry is to bring about and maintain a condition of things in which labor will not only be generally employed, but will be employed at reasonable wages, and while that policy may result temporarily in higher cost of living, this disadvantage will be more than offset by the increased share of wealth that will go to labor. That this is the way that protection has worked as a whole in this country is shown by the fact that average wages have, with but few intermittent periods, have steadily risen during the last half century or more.—New York Commercial.

Another Objection Disposed of.

A few years ago free trade was confident to consider the tariff question from the standpoint of actual and not imaginary experience. Instead of believing that we should suffer if we had a reciprocity nation so far as agricultural products were concerned, but that could not believe that we should be large exporters of manufactured products. These opinions were set out forth in public as political opinions, but were the subjects of many a discussion in private. The men were sincere. It was simply a question of what would actually happen not what the political model in politics is to achieve his own political interests or the interests of the particular party with which he was allied. Since then, however, many of those men have had reason to change these opinions, for the simple reason because in the expert of manufacturers products has been a mathematical demonstration that they were mistaken. The statistics now in hand show the fiscal year ending a month from now will show a great increase in the exports of manufactured products above any years in the history of the country. In other words the facts as they have actually occurred have taken the gift out of the theory, and those another theoretical objection to a protective tariff has been disposed of.—Boston (Mass.) Times.

Reciprocity With Canada.

A publication of the Boston Board of Trade of England declares that the future industrial and commercial policy of New England depends upon obtaining wider markets for the sale of its wool products. It also declares that the best opportunities for trade increase are to be secured by reciprocity with Canada. But does anybody suppose that Canada will entertain an idea of reciprocity that will tend to create the sale of Canadian products in New England states at least as low as it will increase the sale of New England products in Canada? The Boston magazine differ not slightly in natural resources and industrial possibilities. The resources not only of New England, one of all the United States would have to be carefully considered in formulating any scheme to offer Canadian lower importation duties on silk. The result might be an island of a in trade and perhaps a cold shoulder.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

A Bootless Straddle.

Recently the California Democrats took up the tariff question in a diplomatically few words. In the platform they adopted they declare that "the difference between the Republican and Democratic parties is one of degree, and that the difference is all of the degree of patriotism to be affirmed." Not that the Democrats in those all the tariff on foreign products, the Democrats of California refuse to take no quarter to rise up against the protection fraud producing and lower wage industries of our Pacific coast.—New York Commercial.

Learn Nothing, Forget Nothing.

The Wool Manufacturers, now in session, the issue of "a tariff for revenue only." It was a Wool Tariff, said, Congressman Wilson, who gave his name to the tariff bill which passed during the Cleveland administration which prostrated the industries of the country, reduced the wages paid to poverty and ruin, so the Republicans put in power the West Virginia Democrats are Democrats who learn nothing and forget nothing.—Wilmerhere Herald.

All Stand Pat.

It will be noted that while the Democrats are even more hopelessly divided on questions of party policy than they are in the matter of platforms, there is no whisper of division either on policies or candidates among the Republicans. In every state in the Union the Republicans stand pat on the tariff as they stand pat on Theodore Roosevelt.—Brooklyn Times.

TARIFF NOT THE PARENT.

Great Combinations Exist Independent of Protection.

The Democratic spellbinders are very fond of declaring that the protective tariff is the mother of the trusts. It is very easy to make charges against a system, but it is another thing to prove them. There are trusts of various kinds not only in protected America, but in free trade England. Some of the greatest trusts of the century are English trusts, and they were organized many years ago. But if it were a fact that the protective tariff originates and fosters trusts, then it should also be a fact that only those industries which are protected should be capable of combination. Then perhaps some of our Democratic friends will explain to a waiting public how it happens that a protective tariff is the origin or the fostering influence in railroad combinations. The greatest trusts in the country to-day are the railroad trusts. There are several of them, but there is no protective tariff on railroads. They do not need any protection for the reason that foreign railroads cannot be imported. Railroads are ordinary industries, and neither they nor their members are subject to foreign competition, and yet these are railroad trusts. There are also gas trusts in a number of the great cities of the United States.

But if the protective tariff is the parent of the trusts how is it possible that these should be gas trusts? The manufacture of gas is not a protected industry. In the nature of the business it could not be protected from foreign competition because there is no foreign competition from which to protect it. And yet there are combinations of gas companies which have been formed into trusts.

There is a great deal of loose talk about trusts. The only reasonable explanation of the trust in the fact that it is the result of the process of evolution, an effort to cheapen production by reducing the cost of admin- and to other economies of a similar sort. The tariff is, absolutely nothing to do with the trusts; for if it were true that they were fostered by a protective tariff, then it would naturally follow that there should be no trusts in free trade countries.

The tariff is not the parent of the trusts, but a protective tariff certainly does originate new industries, and it also fosters them into new industries and causes them to prosper and grow to the benefit of the workingmen and of the whole nation at large.—Lawrence (Mass.) Telegram.

HE WAS AGAINST THE BILL.

Legislator's Unlucky Mistake Disclosed Guarded Secret.

Dr. Lantrell of Washington tells his story of Isaac Williams, generally called Buck Williams, who was elected to the Tennessee legislature several years ago. The newly elected member could not read or write, although he was an extremely shrewd man and had obtained an enviable local reputation for success, which had culminated in his newly acquired honor.

On arriving at Nashville for the first time Mr. Williams happened to watch eight of several of his fellow legislators, whom he had met at various times during the political campaign, sitting round a table in what he thought was the legislative hall, but which was really a restaurant. He sat down with them, and the waiter brought the list of beer. The old gentleman looked at it carefully for several minutes as did the others to know that he couldn't read, and then stepped his hand on the table and showed

"I never give my sanction to this bill as long as I live."

No Cause for Fear.

No Cause for Fear.

Auld Reid, the celebrated at McNab's farm, was a canny old body. A little while ago she was industrious enough to run when an up-river from a neighboring stubble-burning fire in Dalgig. What might have made a brave man tremble for a big, muscled bull, was alarming furiously toward her. Still, she showed no alarm, but ambled steadily on, and, to everyone's surprise, when the bull got near he pulled up and set off in a different direction.

"Weren't you afraid, Jean, when you saw him coming?" asked Mrs. McNab of the old lady.

"Na a bit!" she answered. "Thaa cows hae mothers-in-law!"

Feminine Way.

"Have you read that new novel everybody is talking about?" asked the first dear girl.

"Only the last chapter," replied the girl the second. "I wonder how it begins?"

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The Northern Michigan League of baseball teams was disbanded last week. The Boyne City team dropped out some time ago, and last week Kalkaska followed suit.

The officers of the seventh district Michigan Christian Endeavor union met Friday afternoon and made arrangements for the convention which will be held in Kalkaska Aug 30 and 31.

Curley Woodin, who lives on the north arm of Walloon Lake, caught a speckled trout in the north arm creek a few days ago that weighed exactly four pounds and one ounce, and measured 24½ inches in length and 7 inches deep. The fish was seen and weighed by several people. Mr. Woodin will have the trout mounted.

Last week Antoine Paquette an Ojibway Indian, who was small carrier between Saginaw and the Soo, on dog sleighs before the coming of the railways, died at the Soo at the age of 85. With John Bourbier another Indian guide, Paquette took the news of Lincoln's assassination to the upper peninsula. He was a most interesting man one of Michigan's historical characters. He left a widow and several children.

Petoskey News: Twenty-nine desperadoes of the steamship Northland, of the Northern Steamship Co., struck Sunday as the big boat arrived at Harbor Springs. After wandering around Harbor Springs, penniless most of them, for a short time they came to this city in a body where after a square meal they were taken in charge by railroad detective Robert Logan and sent to Detroit via G. R. & I. railroad.

The attorneys for Mrs. McKnight, the Kalkaska murderess who is serving a life sentence in state prison for poisoning several of her relatives, are moving for a new trial for their client. It is not claimed that she did not have a fair trial nor that any material new evidence is forthcoming, but it is said that Mrs. McKnight has some $1,000 left after paying for expenses in the formal trials, and as this will do her no good in prison, a resumption of the legal fight will enable the attorneys to get the big money in fees. This is not said in so many words but that it is the out of the matter.
